It will be optional with the taxpayers whether they bond for each drain or not, such bonding being done only when so requested by the people who have to pay for the drains, and when the people on any drain wish to pay for them in one or two years they shall have the right to do so in every case.

It was earnestly requested by the governor of Michigan in his inaugural address and has passed both branches of the legislature with scarcely n dissenting vote. Therefore it is for you and everyone to vote "YES" on this amendment.

THEATRICAL.

"Hell-to-Pay Austin."

The Majestic offers the five-reel feature "Hell-to-Pay-Austin," Thursday, March 29. Miss Love is the star.

Her support in "Hell-to-Pay-Austin" is of an order in many respects as high as her own performance and consists of Wilfred Lucas in the title role, somewhat of a Douglas Fairbanks part and played excellently. Mary Alden graces the cast in the part of a scarlet woman and acts with skill.

Witness Miss Love's series of flashes when she sees Hell-to-Pay, who by using his fists the best of the entire lumber camp, and again the scene in which the lumberjack's take it upon themselves to decide by a game of cards which school little Nettles (Bessie Love) shall attend. There is both comedy and drama of the genuine type throughout the five reels and the best has been obtained from every situation.

The story concerns itself with Nettles, the ward of the pugnacious Hell-to-Pay, boss of the lumber camp. She is sent to school, runs away and falls in with a crowd of indecent people, from which Hell-to-Pay rescues her. However, the small space alloted to this story in review or even a complete novelization of it could never do justice to the charm of the picture.

IMPORTANCE OF THE CROPS SITUATION

At the moment no other factor in the national situation is of greater importance than intelligent, precautionary preparations to secure the largest possible acreage of land under cultivation, and particularly, in the food crops during the coming season. Whether we are to have war or peace, the population must be fed, and if, unfortunately, weather conditions should be unfavorable, and the yield no better than last year, the food situation next winter will be so much worse than it is now that we may well take alarm while there is yet time to provide against the possibility.

The present crop year began with large carry-over of all grains, but it will end without reserves, and the whole world will be dependent upon the crops of 1917. The beginning is not good. The Argentine wheat crop, now harvested, is so nearly a failure that there will be little for export, and the corn crop will not be much better. The Australian crop, which, like the Argentine, is harvested in our winter, is estimated at 139,392,000 bushels, against 187,120,000 last year. Fortunately there is a carry over of 80,000,000 bushels. The French crop is 65 per cent, against 74 per cent last year. Owing to lack of fertilizers and want of proper preparation of the soil, the yield will be below normal. The crop of Holland is unpromising, also England. A freeze has cut off the early vegetable crop of our own Southern States.

UNUSUAL CONDITIONS EVERYWHERE.

The high wages paid in the town industries have drawn labor from the farm. The men gone to town for winter work did not go back to the farm last spring, and they are not likely to go back this spring. This is particularly true if industry receives more impetus from our entry into the war. The farmer's outlay for seed and all expenses are higher, and while high prices for products are usually expected to stimulate larger production, they may not do so this year. In ordinary times we can import from foreign countries. It is just as important under present conditions to have reserves of food as reserves of cartridges.

HOW ARE WE GOING TO REMEDY THIS

By preparing only the land you can work. By the free use of fertilizers. We can furnish you with either Armours or Homestead.

FIRE BUG'S CONFESSION

to burn down and only about $1300 insurance could be collected by the arch-conspirator. So Johnson, naturally, didn't get a cent for his first attempt, nor even a stick of the promised furniture. In the eyes of his employer, he had bungled the job.

But Mrs. Biossat waa not so easily to be satisfied. She had started out with the determination to get that troublesome hotel off her hands and do it she would. She kept at Johnson continually to finish the job and finish it right, renewing her previous offer of cash and chattels and promising in her extremity almost anything that he cared to ask. Once or twice, the chief of police was called to the Michigan to investigate the mystery of an open door or a window, with hints of midnight marauders camping within its lonely precincts, but investigation disclosed nothing.

These "wild goose" scares may have been the after-effects of the shock resulting from the capture of the bandit, Powers, or—who shall say—parts of a well-laid scheme to spread the impression that the building was subject to nocturnal entries of unnuthorized persons, covering and allaying suspicion for the grand coup that was to follow.

Finally, on the night of Saturday, March 10, dark as pitch and blustering with wind and wild flurries of snow, Johnson, heavily fortified with red liquor, essayed his second and last attempt. A two-quart bottle of gasoline had been smuggled into the basement of the hotel two or three weeks previous. Among his other preparations, Johnson had procured an almanac which he had consulted to find a night sufficiently dark and windy for his purpose.

At ten minutes to twelve he entered the basement of the hotel and set the fire back under the dining-room floor, after thoroughly soaking the beams and under side of the flooring with the gasoline, and here the two quart bottle was found after the fire. This wns the point where the plot failed. Had the blaze under the dining room floor been given any draft at all through open door or window, scarcely anything could have saved the building. But the fire flickered nnd smouldered in the dead nir.

The other two points in the main office where the combustibles were planted were about ten feet apart. After doing his dirty work, Johnson staggered hnck to his rooms at the Hotel Charlevoix, too drunk to brush off the plaster that he had gotten on his coat sleeve from the basement wall, and it was then that Policemnn Howard met him and noticed the damning evidence he carried with him.

Once again Dr. Armstrong had proved a hoodoo to the conspirators. In fact, ever since the November fire, he had kept a careful watch of their movements about the building, of which Mrs. Biossat had often queruously complained to her accomplice.

The motives for the plot were not difficult to discover. The Michigan is mortgaged to the extent of some $15,000.00, held by local and out of town people. Mrs. Biossat wns two years in arrears on a good portion of the interest, and had sustained heavy expense in the purchase of the Charlevoix Hotel and its refurnishing.

The insurance on the Michigan was about $20,000.00 on the real and $10,000.00 on the personal property or furnishings. Through a complete destruction of the hotel, the entire insurance, or at least a major part of it might be applied to the liquidation of the mortgages and the payment of arrearages, leaving a considerable sum to be nsed for other purposes.

In this way alsn, the property on which Mrs. Biossat's "white elephant" stood could be disposed of without danger of damaging competition, as it is not likely that with the holding destroyed nnd a hotel doing business so near at hand, any purchaser would attempt to erect another hotel building on the spot.

The work of collecting the evidence was done by the sheriff and the chief of the fire department, who worked night and day on the case, assisted by the prosecutor. A deputy fire warden from the state fire warden's department visited the scene of the fire shortly after it happened, but was able to render no material assistance in the case. The credit lies with our own officers solely.

At the preliminary hearing Monday before Justice Cooper, the bail was fixed at $10,000.00 each. There will be a second hearing on the case on Thursday, from which further developments may be expected.

The penalty for this offense is from 10 to 20 years in a State prison at hard labor, and the offenders may be sentenced on both counts, representing the two fires. However, 25 years is generally considered a life sentence and it is possible that only the last count will be considered.

The confessions of both the guilty parties implicate a third person, whose name Prosecutor Lewis does not at this time care to disclose.

Due to the storm Saturday, "Dollar Day," our bargains will be good for Saturday, March 24. Argo Milling Co.—Adv.12t1.

Owing to the poor roads and bad weather last Friday night, the play given at Boss hall by the Central Lake high school was poorly attended. Those, however, who mustered enough courage to brave the elements, were well satisfied.

The new "roll of honor" shows that Ellsworth, Platt and Brutus are the only towns in the Grand Traverse district of the Michigan M. E. conference to have their ministers paid up to date. When we stop to realize that there are one hundred and nine charges in this conference, we cannot blame the members of our local church if they feel somewhat proud.

J. H. Elzinga, our genial automobile salesman, has enlarged his field of operations for selling the popular Chevrolet. He made arrangements one day last week to add the townships of Marion, Norwood, Charlevoix, and a part of Eveline in Charlevoix county, to his former district, which includes all of Antrim county.

Everyone welcome to come and join bands witb one or the other side.

The subject for next Sunday evening will be "Our South American Missions," Isa. 60:1-18. D. E. Clow, leader. Everyone welcome—7:30 p. m.

The Epworth League ia also planning on giving a play in the near future to obtain funds to furnish the basement in the league rooms.

Our treaaurer, DeWitt Patterson, we are glad to announce will soon be with us again.

Word comes from the Central Lake league that we have another invitation to come to Central Lake.

ELLSWORTH SCHOOL NOTES.

Andrew Alkema has left school, his parents having moved to Chicago.

The fourth, fifth and sixth grades hnve finished their reading books and are anxiously waiting for the arrival of their new clasaics.

The sixth grade have finished their history course.

Garrit Drenth has been absent from school for some time on account of a severe burn.

The primary and intermediate rooms were presented with a flag by D. E. Clow.

The boya and girls of the whole school appreciate the pencils which were given to them by Mr. Townsend.

We are all enjoying a warm room since the fuel has been changed from wood to coal.

Mrs. Pickard was very kind in presenting the school with the copy of a very good atlas. We extend to her our utmost appreciation.

Some of the boya in the Manual Training class have finished the coat hangers which they started some time ago. Conaidering conditions under which they have to work, the Beautiful sunshine.

Miss Ida Reamsma spent Sunday at home.

We hear the distant sound of wedding bells.

Mrs. T. E. Boss is some better at this writing.

Looks like spring was coming and so are the sales.

Bert DeYoung drove to East Jordan Tuesday.

Miss Gertrude Jansen returned to Charlevoix lost Friday.

Quite a few from around her went to the Cole sale Monday.

Gertrude Jansen and her sister, Grace, spent Thursday afternoon with Mrs. J. Visser.

Miss Gertrude Jensen and Grace spent Wednesday afternoon with Miss Gertie Reamsma.

We hear there is no snow in Grand Rapids. We are sorry that we cannot say the same.

Most of the people got no mail Monday as the storm playcd havoc with the troins Saturday.

Miss Gertie Reamsma called on Mrs. T. E. Boss last Tuesday, and reported she was doing fine.

Henry Reamsma and family spent Friday afternoon at the home of Bert DeYoung, near Atwood.

Bert DeYoung took a load of beans to town one doy last week. Wonder if he had any guards. $7.50 per bushel!

We are all very sorry to hear of the death of Mr. Indus Eaton. We all extend our deepest sympathy for Mrs. Eaton and her five small children. Heart failure was the cause of death.

WILDWOOD.

Spring has "hove" in sight—somebody saw a robin.

Neal Crawford is contracting for the growing of seeds for Mr. Cross, with the farmers in this vicinity.

Harry Taylor accompanied Jim Wilson over to his brother Elmer's to bring home a bunch of cattle last week Friday.

The community was very much shocked to hear of the sudden death of Indus Eaton on Monday last. His family and parents have the sympathy of the community.

If the boys on the border were entrained the 20th, they are well on their way to Fort Wayne. Some anxious mother hearts and some that ore not—but sweethearts, we surmise.

ECHO DIST NO. 4.

Miss Maude Hosler is working at the Weisman home in East Jordan.

Miss Ethel Vance spent the week end nt the home of George E. Murray, as the guest of Ruth Carpenter, returning home with her brother, Vernon, Sunday evening.

Everyone is invited to the play, "No Girls Admitted," and the box socinl following, on Saturdny evening, Mnrch 24, nt the Dingman schoolhouse.

INDUS EATON DIES SUDDENLY

HAD BEEN IN ELLSWORTH DURING THE DAY.

Was Twenty-seven Years of Age and Was Well Known in Vicinity—Funeral Wednesday.

The community was shocked Monday afternoon to hear that Indus Eaton, a young farmer living one mile west of the village, had suddenly died.

Mr. Eaton was in town earlier in the day and seemed in his usual good health, but soon after returning to his home, he told his wife he would lie down for a little while, and almost immediately afterward became ill.

His wife summoned assistance, but although his parents, living just across the road, responded at once, he had already passed away when they arrived.

Deceased was born on the farm where he died and was about 27 years of age. He was married in 1909 to Miss Cassie Cincush, and to this union were born five children, all living. He was of a very sunny disposition and was well known and liked all over this section of the county, having run a threshing machine for the last seven or eight years.

Funeral services were held from the house at 1:30 p. m. Wednesday and the remains were laid away in the Boss cemetery, just west of Ellsworth, Rev. Kridler in charge.

Besides his sorrowing wife and children, he leaves a father, mother and three sisters to mourn his passing.

STORE AT ESSEX THING OF THE PAST

Established Eighteen Years Ago During Lumbering Days.

The Essex store closed last Thursday night, and now for the first time in 18 years the people of that neighborhood will be obliged to visit either Central Lake or Ellsworth to do their trading. Essex sprang into being nbout 18 years ago, at the time a saw mill was built there by the Central Lake Lumber Co., and a branch line was put in by the P. M. railroad. There has never been a day since thnt time but what there was at least one store, and at one time there were two stores, a pool room and a blacksmith shop.

Will Crago was among the first to run a store there and other men to try the venture have been Art. Meech, John VanDuberg, F. H. Skow, Edd VanDubey, August VanderArk and the last were Smallegan & Smith of Central Lake, the present owners of the building.

The saw mill was removed about eight years ago and no trains have run over the Essex division since 1913 the rails and ties being all removed now and the road hed plowed and planted in some places.

PLEASANT HILL.

Wedding bells.

John Fielstra drove to Essex Thursday, where he purchased a fine pig.

Harm Fielstra of Detroit, is visiting at the home of his father, John Fielstra.

Miss Helen McElroy of Phelps, spent Saturday and Sunday with her aunt, Mrs. Reed Genett.

Ray Bearss, who is working in Enst Jordnn, spent Thursday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Bearss.

ATWOOD.

Mr. Odbert sold one of his horses last week.

C. Supernaw and son bought a horse of L. Groenink last week.

Alex Klooster moved to their new home at Mapleville last Thursday.

Elzinga Bros. hauled a couple of loods of beans to Ellsworth, Friday.

Joe Hofman has been spending about a week in Atwood and vicinity.

Peter Faber, our congenial blacksmith, bought a cow of Adrain Bos last week.

L. Zylstra is progressing in his old age. Put in a telephone last week. Number 16-5r.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Jones of Norwood, spent last Friday with Mrs. Jones' parents, A. Newland.

The annual "Day of Prayer" was observed at the Chirstian Reformed church lnst week Wednesday.

The sale held last Thursday by Mrs. Blow was well attended and everything was sold at a foir figure.

Mrs. H. Klooster has been quite sick. She is on the gain now, much to the relief of the family and neighbors.

The meetings at the Christian Reformed church were well attended, weather and roads taken into consideration.

Gerritt Essenberg, Nicholas DeYoung and Joke Klooster each hauled some of Alex Klooster's goods last week.

The ladies' aid meeting, which wns to be held last Thursday, was postponed a week. They meet with Mrs. Pickart this week.

The Misses Anna Petter, Jennie Zylstra, Rose Essenberg and Annges Sneller left for points in southern Michigan, Wednesday.

Herman Poll has a sick cow. He called Dr. Newman to attend the case but not much hope is held out for the recovery of the animal.

About all of Atwood went to Ellsworth, Tuesday. Some helping the Pere Marquette by bringing passengers and others doing some shopping.

Here's hoping we will not have to report this again this "spring." No young people's meetings were held last week on account of weather and roads.

Rev. Smith was in Atwood last Thursday. He reported the death of Mrs. McIntyre of Norwood. We all extend our sympathy to the bereaved relatives.

Who said spring? We had a little fever two weeks ago and some friend announced it through these columns last week, but I guess we can take it all back.

Art VanAllsburg left Atwood the other day with two horses, a calf and some chickens. He'a helping quite a few Atwood folks to find a market for their stock.

Mrs. Henry Brusse, who has been visiting with her sister, Mrs. H. Klooster, returned to her home in Holland. Henry Klooster accompanied her to nttend to some business matters in Holland and Grand Rapids.

About six Charlevoix men were at the Mrs. Blow sale. Wm. Driggett was one of them and proved to us he is an enrly riser. He bought a clock nnd a rooster. If these two can't wake him up mornings, nothing will.

Ed Hofman, who has been working at Long Beach, California, the past year, will return to Atwood soon to work for his brother, Will. He has been employed by J. Ademo and Sons, formerly of this plnce, on their dairy form.

Quite a few of the people hereabouts hnd a scare lnst Thursday evening. The crust of ice, which formed on the snow nfter the sleet storm we had began to crack, and it sounded as if an army were busy shooting at each other.

Calvin Supernaw lost a cow last week and came very near near losing two yenrlings. The young cattle got through a gate to the cistern and two of them fell in. It took about six men now to get them out and after a rub-down the cattle s emed to have enjoyed their bath.

MAPLEVILLE.

Lou Markus lost one of his horses last week.

Will Smith and L. Groenink traded teams last week.

August Vanderark is home from the west. He hns been gone nearly a year.

Allie Klooster and family moved into this neighborhood lost week Thursday.

Andrew Wansema is home from Detroit, where he has been working the past winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Groonink are tbe proud parents of a baby girl whose name is Wilma Thressa.

There was not a very large attendance at the prayer meeting at the Dutch Reform church last Wednesday afternoon on account of the stormy weatber.

No Eggs, Milk or Butter

The following recipe shows how an appetizing, wholesome cake can be made without expensive ingredients.

In many other recipes the number of eggs may be reduced one-half or more by using an additional quantity of ROYAL Baking Powder, about a teaspoon, in place of each egg omitted.

EGGLESS, MILKLESS, BUTTERLESS CAKE

1 cup brown sugar
1¼ cups water
1 cup seeded raisins
2 ounces citron
½ cup shortening
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon salt
2 cups flour
3 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder

The old method (fruit cake) called for 2 eggs

DIRECTIONS—Put the first eight ingredients into saucepan and boil three minutes. When cool, add the flour and baking powder which have been sifted together; mix well. Bake in moderate oven in loaf pan (round tin with hole in center is best) for 35 or 40 minutes. Ice with white icing.

Booklet of recipes which economize in eggs and other expensive ingredients, mailed free. Address Royal Baking Powder Co., 135 William Street, New York.

Purchases Levering Bank.

Charles Ewald, of Petoskey and Garden, upper peninsula, has purchase the Levering Exchange bank of A. R. Taggett and all of Mr. Taggett's holdings of real estate and his automobile and insurance business at Levering, the transfer having been announced on Wednesday of last week.

Mr. Ewald recently sold his Garden, Mich., bank and railroad holdings and moved back to Petoskey. The deal for the Taggett property and bank has been pending for several days and was completed but recently.

Mr. Ewald was formerly a Cheboygan county man, living only 7 miles from Levering. He is well known and popular in that region as well as in Petoskey where he first started in the hanking business with the First National Bank.

He was at Garden, Mich., for six or eight years and enjoyed a success in both his hanking and railroad ventures The Levering bank will now probably be known as "The Levering Exchnnge Bank of Charles Ewald."

Must Have Lights Light.

The work of the Traverse City police in arresting the automobile owners who are in the habit of running without lighting their rear lights, is having its effect. "They got my old man but they won't get him again," a young chap was heard to say. "He's a wily old fellow. It has been hard work to keep a tail light lighted on account of the roughness of the road, but dad is not going to pay another fine. He has put two tail lights on his car, so if one goes out the other will be burning."

No Saloon at Fife Lake.

By a vote of 43 to 30, residents of Fife Lake, decided that there would be no saloon in Fife Lake for another year, at the regular village election held on Monday of last week. The vote to refuse to accept the bonds of the saloonmen is deemed a big victory for the "dry" interests, as there has been considerable agitation over the problem since the state-wide amendment carried.

Bonding Proposition Carries.

The proposition to bond Boyne City for $25,000 for funds to do their part in the building of the concrete roads in connection with the county road system, carried at the special election held there last week by a vote of 549 to 71.

Chew Believes in Economy.

The Gleaner and Business Farmer of March 1st, has the following with cut, regarding Hon. J. E. Chew, our representative in the legislature:

"Rep. Jacob E. Chew of Charlevoix county, was born on a farm in Ohio 52 years ago. Thirty-seven years ago he moved to East Jordan and now resides on a farm near that city. He has followed farming for the past 14 years, and belongs to two of the largest farmer's organizations in the state and takes an active part in their affairs. He is now serving his fifth year as supervisor of South Arm township and at present is chairman of the County Board of Supervisors. He believes in efficient economy in government affairs, also that the farmer and the laboring man should have due recognition along with the other fellow. As a members of the legislature, he may be depended upon to give very man a square deal.

Pellston Lad Drowned.

The four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Asa Ford, of Pellston, was drowned in Maple river, just below the bridge at Pellston, Friday. The body was found fully twenty-five rods down stream from the spot where the lad fell into the water and was caught under a pile of dirftwood.

Both Mr. aad Mrs. Ford were working away from home Friday, the former in the mill and the latter picking beans at the elevator. The lad was left at home with his sister, who, because of the pleasant weather, allowed the little fellow to go coasting. He soon found a companion and the two searched for some desirable hillside. They found it near Maple river, not far from the bridge, and being too young to realize their danger began coasting down the bank. The one lad coasted out over the ice close to shore and into the water. His body was carried down stream and before help could be secured it had disappeared.

The men searched every foot of the stream, tore up a part of the bridge and slowly worked their way down stream. It wns fully two hours before the body was discovered held on the bottom of the river under a quantity of dirftwood.

Horses Lost in Storm.

A telephone from Mnncelona to Petoskey brought the news that the storm was unusually severe in that section. Two farmers driving into that village Saturday morning became chilled by the wind and left the rig to walk in the rear to keep from freezing. In the storm they missed the road and upon reaching the village found they had passed the team somewhere on the road. The horses had not been located that afternoon and are believed to have turned into some farm yard.

L. O. T. M. INITIATION.

Twenty-five Candidates Put Through Paces.

Tuesday, March 20, at the I. O. O. F. hall, a class of 25 ladies were initiated as members of the White Rose Hive No. 443.

The hall was beautifully decorated in green and white. The work was beautfully exemplified by the officers of the hive. Eighty-seven members were present and five hives were represented.

Deputy Ella E. Tillotson has been working with the Hive the past month in securing this class, and will have another to initiate in April.

At the close of the meeting, light refreshments were served and all expressed themselves as having had a good time.

Due to the storm Saturday, "Dollar Day," our bargains will be good for Saturday, March 24. Argo Milling Co.—Adv.12t1.

Big Revival Coming.

A big community revival under the auspices of the M. E. church, will be held at Hooker's garage every evening during the month of April, commencing with Sunday, the first.

The meeting will be conducted by John E. Zoller, a famous evangelist, known all over the state for his eloquence and spiritual powers. He will be ably assisted by Loya Sutherland, soloist and choirster and N. S. Holmes, the wonderful blind pianist, with a choir of 100 voices. Seats are free and all are welcome. Space will not permit us to give further details, but the names of the members of the various committees will be published in our next issue.

Buy that Harness when you can save $10.00 per set on a few that we have made when leather was cheap. Benj. Brown.—Adv.10tf.

SANITARY ENGINEERING COMPANY FORMED

Alonzo Powers Consolidates Business With Outside Capital.

A firm to be known as the Sanitary Engineering Company, has been incorporated under the laws of this state in the sum of $5,000.00, to do business in this city, having their offices in the Crouter building which have been leased for five years.

The officers of the concern are Charles Beckingham of Sault Ste. Marie, president; Alonzo Powers, Charlevoix, vice president, and Glen Beard of the Canadian Soo, manager. They will do a general plumbing business, sheet metal work and the installation of private gas and pneumatic water systems.

Mr. Powers is well known to Charlevoix people, having done business in this town for the past ten years. The other gentlemen are practical plumbers; Mr. Beckingham's business in the Soo being the largest of its kind in northern Michigan. Good luck to them.

I will be opened up within a few days with the best that the world produces in automobiles, tires and supplies. Benj. Brown.—Adv.10tf.

Will Be Held at Armories.

Latest reports received from Washington say that the troops now on the way home from the border will he held at their armories instead of being mustered out as was originally contemplated. We may not see the boys for quite a while yet.

I will save you money this year on automobiles, tires and supplies. Benj. Brown.—Adv.10tf.

JUDGE FOR YOURSELF

Which is Better—Try an Experiment or Profit by a Charlevoix Citizen's Experience.

Something new is an experiment.
Must be proved to be as represented.
The statement of a manufacturer is not convincing proof of merit.
But the endorsement of friends is.
Now supposing you had a bad back,—
A lame, weak, or aching one,
Would you experiment on it?
You will read of many so-called cures.
Endorsed by strangers from faraway places.
It's different when the endorsement comes from home.
Easy to prove local testimony.
Read this Charlevoix case:

Barney Herington, cement contractor, 108 W. Gnrfield Ave., Charlevoix, says: "About eight years ago my back gave out on me. It became so lame and sore that I could hardly bend or stoop. When I did, sharp, knife-like pains caught me in my back nnd I could hardly straighten up. My kidneys were out of fix also. As I had often read about Doan's Kidney Pills I tried them. Three boxes of this medicine cured me of the attack and fixed me up in good shape. Since then whenever there has been occasion to use a kidney medicine, Doan's Kidney Pills have always done good work."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Herington had. Foster Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

STILL PROBING FIRE SECRETS

CONFESSIONS SUBSTANTIATED AT THURSDAY'S HEARING

Both of Guilty Parties Bound Over to Circuit Court With Bail at High Figure.

The hearing on the flotel Michigan fire ease Thursday morning before Justice Cooper at the court house did not result in bringing to light anything radically different from what was known before. Several interesting little features came up in the course of the examination, however, that we were not ahle to incorporate in our last week's article.

The testimony of H. D. Marshall, the fire chief, had largely to do with the physical nspects of the fire; the exact location of the points where the blaze stnrted, the condition of the huilding, etc. He confirmed the story of tracks lending from the front office door to the sidewalk, which was one of the first suspicious points noticed in the case. Neither, he nor anyone else, however, clnims to hnve seen trneks leading into the building, nnd, as a matter of fact, Johnson's nssertions that he entered the hotel through the rear door and left the same way rather destroys the value of the tracks as a clue, unless later evidence develops the fact that he had an assistant in the actunl work of setting the fire.

Mrs. Pearl Johnson, when called to the stand, admitted rather grudgingly that she had had a conversation with Mrs. Biossat just previous to the last fire, in which the latter stated that she wanted Pearl to go and see whnt could be done about setting the building afire. Her answers to the prosecutor's queries were somewhat evasive and she made a bad impression by apparently attempting to conceal what she knew.

Her husband was next called to the witness chair and substantially repeated his former confession. He seemed as cool, calm and collected as though he were at a picnic instead of standing before a court of justice, practically convicted of a serious felony. In fact, it is claimed, he has no distinct knowledge of the gravity of his position and thinks that because of his having turned state's evidence he will be allowed to go "scott free" and figures on going soutb about the first of April to bring back a boat for a resort man.

He testified without even changing color or "batting un eyelash" that he was in the Hotel Michigan on the night of the fire and that he set fire to the building in three places. He also said that Mrs. Biossat had furnished him with the gasoline to do the job and had given him n couple of drinks just before he went over to the building on his evil errand.

He claimed that he had been drinking all the day previous and when nsked if he were drunk, replied that he "wns feeling pretty good, anyway." He said the reason he had set the fires was that he thought he would get a good haul out of it. When pressed for an explanation, he repeated his previous statement that Mrs. Biossat had offered him two thousand dollars and a set of furniture for each job.

Question: "Did she just go to you once about this?"

Answer: "No, a good many times."

Question: "When were you to get the two thousand dollars?"

Answer: "When she received it from the insurance company."

He said he never got n cent of money nor n stick of furniture for either fire.

He also claimed that he had entered the hotel through the back door and left it in the same way. The two quart bottle of gasoline, he said, he had taken into the building shortly after the first fire.

When the counsel for the defense had got through with Johnson, Prosecutor Lewis asked the court that Mrs. Biossat be bound over to the circuit court for the May term in the penal sum of $7,500.00, which was so ordered, in the absence of protest from the defendant's counsel.

The prosecutor then conferred with Johnson, who finally of his own free will consented to waive examinntion and was bound over to the present term of court in the sum of $5,000.00 bail.

Mrs. Biossat was present in the court room, supported by her husband, and evidently in a state of great agitation. She kept her face covered with her hand throughout the proceeding and her great mental strain and suffering were only discernable when she was led from the court room back to her quarters on the ground floor of the building.

Public sympathy seems to be with this misguided woman, who, notwithstanding her great fault, possessed many excellent qualities and has done many acts of charity in a quiet and unobtrusive manner during her life in Charlevoix. General regret is expressed that she should have been so foolish as to make the misstep she did.

POPULAR CHARLEVOIX GIRL MARRIED

Shores-Ives Nuptials Come as a Surprise to Friends.

Miss Winifred Shores, operator at the local telephone office and one of Charlevoix's most popular young ladies, was married last Wednesday night, March 21st, at Petoskey, to Mr. William Ives of this city. Their marriage came as a surprise to their parents and friends, who wish them much happiness, in which felicitations the Courier heartily joins.

Both the young people are well known in Charlevoix. Mr. Ives worked last summer for Benjamin Brown and has been in Lansing this winter. He will be at the Brown garage again this summer. Mrs. Ives is the daughter of Mrs. Joe Shores of 508 Michigan avenue, and has been with the telephone company for the past two years.

33RD EXPECTED HOME THIS WEEK

DELAYED BY A WRECK UNTIL LAST FRIDAY NIGHT.

Will Be Mustered Out at Fort Wayne and Home by April 1 if Uncle Sam Permits.

Because of a wreck of a train at Fabens, a few miles east of El Paso, carrying Pullmans for a regiment, the Michigan troops were temporarily held up, but mannged to pull out of El Paso by midnight of the 23rd, the three sections of the train cnrrying the 33rd regiment running about an hour apart. This will enable reunions in the cities where the stops are made and will bring the entire regiment into Fort Wayne at practically the same time.

Only five men were left at the hase hospital, and it is believed that all of these will be able to make the journey home in leas than two weeks.

The three sections met at Fort Worth on Sunday, the 25th, and the men detrained for the first prolonged leg stretching process since leaving El Paso. All nnimals were taken from the cars and watered and exercised.

Leaving here, the trains turned south for their detour through southern Louisiana and almost to the mouth of the Gulf of Mexico. About one-fifth of the journey's mileage was covered when the troops reached Fort Worth.

Quick work is expected in mustering out the 33rd infantry when they reach Fort Wayne, Indiana, this week, if the present program of having them released from active cervice by April 1st is carried out. The tedious process of checking up the property, giving physical examinations to each man, completion of paper work and adjusting accounts must be done within the week to clenr the fort on the last day of the month. Other units have been nllowed two weeks and sometimes longer for this work.

No officers, however, from a second lieutenant to the highest military authority of the stato will say nnything about a possible call. It is expected from indications thnt few would neglect to answer should a call be issued.

Latest dispatches state that the 33rd Regiment is among those held for police duty under the recent order from Washington. So, according to this, the boys won't be back for a while yet.

COAL BARON AND HIS RETAINERS HAND COURIER THE ICY MITT

Municipal Tinkerers Take Away City Printing by Star Chamber Methods—Another Swat at the Little Cur Dog —Read This and "Get the Thought."

As a result of many star chamber sessions in the little ten by fifteen shack, where the coal baron and his retinue of dickering novices foregather to swing the bridge, monkey with the electric lights and muzzle the dog, a most foul plot was recently hatched, which found its wings nt the council meeting Monday evening.

Like some fierce hawk, swooping upon its prey, this grisly thing has cast its blighting shadow over the future prosperity of the Courier, and settled above our doors like Poe's raven, croaking its prophecy of death and destruction.

Imagine our future, dear reader, if you can. Presses crumbling away to rust, cobwebs on the linotype, print paper (at $140.00 a ton) yellowing with nge, the untrodden dust inch deep on the door sill and the sad, still bones of the office cat mouldering under the editorinl desk. Reader, can you picture this scene of desolation?

What is this dreadful thing that haunts us and why these fears, you ask. Why, reader, last Monday eve nt the fateful stroke of nine, the members of that "vague, elusive and somewhat intangible" body, known as the electric light committee, sitting in the majesty of their official dignity, deprived the Courier of the privilege of printing the city job work and publishing the reports of its weekly deliberations free of charge, bestowing their gracious favor upon our competitor, undoubtedly to his great satisfaction and profit.

Words can but feebly express our disappointment, chagrin and dismay at this unlooked for deprivation. It was bad enough to start kicking our poor little "cur dog" around without knocking one of our main props from under us. How we shall manage to struggle along, Lord only knows.

Wonder what the trouble is? Maybe it's the two cars of coal we bought last fall. Possibly, the house on Hurlbut avenue? Could it be the fable, or our little spiel on "What's the Matter With Charlevoix," published in our issue of January 3rd. Must have been something we've said or done! We haven't done very much, but we've "snid a mouthful" on several occasions. Perhaps in this little package they have handed us, we shall find a muzzle for the dog—but we doubt it. It is an ancient method, but—these be progressive times.

They tell us the motion came unhersided from the lips of the coal baron, whereupon the custodian of the "house on the hill" arose with stately dignity and Rooseveltian vigor to second it. A heated debute followed. We are also informed that despite the efforts of Aldermen Benton and Cartier to prevent the using of the council's powers as u means of venting personal spite, the chairman of the electric light committee and his colleagues, in a childish fit of pique, put over this precious piece of "boy-play," which they confidently expected would keep the Courier from turning the search-light in their direction.

Had Alderman Hiller been present the "mayor" would have had to cast the deciding vote, but we ure not nt all sure that the result would have been different. Thus through personal spite, was a precedent broken—a precedent established over eight years ago by men who used the nuthority conferred upon them by the people with regnrd to fair denling and the people's interest.

Nor was this all. Never before has the outgoing council presumed to so fnr usurp the privileges of their successors as to pass ordinances regarding the disposition of future business, which the incoming council can only "grin and bear." Trying to kill two birds with one stone, they took a feeble wallop at the men who had defeated them nnd the newspaper that had annoyed them.

The Courier wishes to assure its readers that no fear of loss or hope of gain will cause this paper to swerve an inch from the path that it has so faithfully followed in the past. The function of a renl newspnper is to find the truth, print it and stick to it. To twist, evade or gloss facts is for n newspaper the first step towards entire loss of prestige. Telling the truth may make enemies of a few, but falsehood and deceit, in the long run, bring down the contempt and condemnation of the many.

We seek the support and commendation of the right thinking element of the people and cannot afford to risk our "place in the sun" by base submission to the few whose privnte interests clash with the people's good for the sake of the few poor morsels of patronage which they toss to us from time to time.

COMMITTEES FOR REVIVAL APPOINTED

PLAIN PREACHING AND FINE MUSIC PROMISED.

Everyone Should Attend and Bring Their Families--Meetings Every Night During April.

The Union Community Revival, to be held at Hooker's Garnge each evening during the month of April, is expected to be one of the most revitnlizing religious movements that this city hns ever witnessed.

First class leadership is assured in the persons of Mr. Zoller, Mr. Sutherland and Mr. Holmes and the chorus choir of one hundred voices, with Mr. Sutherland, who, by the way, is a fine soloist as well as chorus conductor, nt its head will furnish a musical feast long to be remembered in this vicinity. Mr. Holmes, who is a marvel nt the piano nnd hns played on the Chantauqua platform for years, will he well worth coming miles to hear.

The chorus choir will be composed of local people, nnd as there is a great deal of work connected with the securing of these choirsters, the renting, decorating, publicity and financial management, various committees have been appointed to carry the project through to successful realization. We give below the personnel of the committees:

Building Committee.

Edward Stewart, William Poole, A. E. Mnson, James McGeagh.

Publicity Committee.

A. M. Wilkinson, Edward Burnett.

Music Committee.

Edward Edwards, Mrs. Archie Livingston, Mrs. A. M. Wilkinson, Mrs. Stanley Bush, Mrs. L. E. Crandell, Cyrenius Beers.

Decorating Committee.

Floyd Bettes, Edward Klooster, Mrs. B. L. Hurrignton.

Usher Committee.

J. M. McCarthy, Archie Livingston, George Brown, Frank Hull.

Personal Worker's Committee.

Mrs. Brayton Saltonstall, Mrs. William Poole, Mrs. J. R. Cooper, Mrs. Charles See, Mrs. J. M. McCurthy, Miss Nellie Stitea, Mrs. Edward Klooster, Mra Edward Burnett.

Finance Cimmittee.

Wylie Humphrey, F. E. Frazier, Henry Jacoba, L. E. Crandell.

The chairman of the various committees will select their helpers as needed.

This is a big thing for Charlevoix from both a religious and a social standpoint, and everyone should boost. Tell your friends, come yourself and bring your folks with you.

Mr. Hooker has not only given free of all cost, the use of his garage to be transferred into a tabernacle, but in addition has also offered free barn room to all people from the country for their horses during all the meetings of the first day, which is Sunday morning, afternoon and evening.

Because of the tremendous increase in the cost of shoe material, manufacturers are forced to choose between lowering the quality or increasing the price. Quality has been maintained in the Educator Shoe. Sold by S. Orlowski & Son.—Adv. 13t1.

SUNDAY SCHOOL HAD CLASS PARTY

Young Married People Meet at Home of Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Bettes.

The "None Such" class of the M. E. Sunday school, composed of the young married people with Mrs. R. Dutcher as teacher, met at the home of one of its members, Floyd Bettes, Friday evening, March 16, for a social time (and they had it).

Although the weather might have kept some at home, yet there was a goodly number present. A short program consisting of readings, recitations, fnnny jokes and conundrums were given, after whicb a three course luncheon was served.

Then games of charades and proverbs took up the rest of the time until 12:00, when a rising vote of thanks were given Mr. and Mrs. Bettes for the enjoyable evening that had taken place.

Before leaving for home a coasting party was planned for the following Wednesday evening, and a hot lunch with Mr. and Mrs. Klooster.

Just a word about this class: It has doubled in membership in the last three months and there is plenty of room for more and a cordial welcome will be given any who wish to join. They are organized with efficient officers and are alive and interested in the study of God's word.

CHARLEVOIX HIGH WINS DEBATE

AFFIRMATIVE TEAM CARRIES DAY HANDS DOWN.

Big Crowd Hears Spirited Discussion of Military Training Question.

Wednesday evening, March 21, Boyne City and Charlevoix met in debate at the high school, on the question: "Resolved, That Compulsory Military Training Shall Be Established in the High Schools of the United States." Charlevoix high school had the affirmative, while Boyne City the negative.

Miss MacNeill opened the debate for Charlevoix, and her part of the debate was on the mental and physical advances of the proposed system. She gave a very fine speech.

She was followed by Mr. Saracen of Boyne City, who gave a forceful talk. Mr. Weed from Charlevoix came next and dwelt on the money vnlue of the idea. Mr. Wooden of Boyne City followed and tried to show how military training is bnd for students morally.

Kenneth Widdifield came next and all will agree who heard him, that it is a treat to hear him. His part of the debate was on the morni side of the question, and he upheld his part well and forcefully. Wilkins from Boyne City was next and he undoubtedly spoke the best for the Boyne City team.

Saracen from Boyne City had the negative rebuttal and although he did not spenk the alloted ten minutes, he certainly spoke well.

Widdifield spoke laat for Charlevoix, and the manner and "pep" with which he gave it, wns good to hear.

A short program followed and then the judges passed in their decision, two for the affirmative and one for the negative.

Tenms: Charlevoix High School—Miss L. MacNeill, Mr. O. Wood, Mr. K. Widdifield.

Boyne City High School—Mr. Saracen, Mr. Wooden, Mr. Wilkens.

Chariman, A. L. Fitch. Judges, Supt. Kelder, Supt. Chaffee and Rev. Chandler.

At East Jordan, where Charlevoix High School had the negative aide, the debate was very close. The decision first opened was for the negative, the second for the affirmative, and the third read, "by one point I give my decision to the affirmative."

The East Jordan speakers in order were Fowler, LeMlur and Danto. Their points were good and clearly made.

Wilma Stevenson, Hugh Chaffin and John Walker were our speakers. They were all exceptionally good, and Walker's debate wns ensily the best of the six. Commendations for

BROKE DOWN SAYING FAREWELL

REV L. C. VINYARD DELIVERS LAST SERMON.

Resolution Passed by Church Presented—Has Made Good Record —Departure Regretted.

The Rev. Lloyd C. Vinyard preached his farewell sermon last Sunday morning at the Baptist church, which was crowded to the doors. In the course of his remarks, Mr. Vinyard broke down completely and many of his audience were visibly affected at the thought that he who had been their good friend, comrade and counselor, was so soon to leave them.

Petitions bearing nearly seven hundred signatures of people in all walks of life, both in the city and the country districts, were presented to Mr. Vinyard at this service, urging him not to lay down the work which he has begun nnd continued so faithfully. A resolution was also presented to the pastor on behalf of the Baptist church of Charlevoix, and signed by a committee representing the church people, in token of their nppreciation of his efforts and their desire to have him remain with his charge.

It is Mr. Vinyard's intention to leave todny (Wednesdny) for Kalamazoo, to attend the state Sunday School and B. Y. P. U. conventions. With him on this trip will go six members of the Charlevoix Union—Messrs. Thurlow Weed, Earl Bedwin, Lawrence Taylor, Byron Bowdish, Miss Irene Gregory and Miss DeWitt.

On Sunday next both services will be in charge of the B. Y. P. U., and, the evening will be devoted to "Echoes from the Kalamazoo Convention," given by the returning delegates. On Easter Sunday, Mr. Vinyard will supply the local pulpit, at which time he will administer the rites of baptism to a number of persons who desire to enter the church.

The text of the church's resolution follows:

Resolved, By the First Baptist church of Charlevoix, Michigan, that, whereas, our pastor, Rev. Lloyd C. Vinyard, who has labored faithfully among us for the past two years and a half, has declared his intentions to sever his connections with the church and leave us, we express our henrty approval of his administration as pastor of our church; our strong appreciation of his untiring efforts; and our deep regret at the decision he has made.

Be It Further Resolved, That the church adopt the following summnry of the work accomplished during Brother Vipynrd's pastorate and that the same be spread upon the records of the church and sent to our local and denumination al papers for publication.

During this time several evangelistic enmpnigns have been conducted, which, together with the unremitting personal efforts of the pastor, have resulted in more than 300 professions of religion. The membership of the church has been raised from 109 to 246; the church has received much needed instruction along denominational lines, and its spiritual life has been greatly increased. The Five Year Program has been adopted by the church; an every member canvass made, resulting in a definite pledge from 75 per cent of the membership, and a list of 30 tithers whose contributions will grently increase the offerings the coming year. An annual budget of $2,400.00, which, in addition to current expenses, will cover nearly half of the indebtedness of the church, has been adopted and subscribed.

The Sunday school has been graded nnd seven classes organized; the attendance hns been doubled; the standard of excellence adopted und 95 per cent of that standard attained.

Smoke Stack Blew Down.

During the heavy wind of Saturday of last week the smokestack on the electric light power plant at East Jordan blew down, landing safely on the roof of the plant without going through. The stack had been leaning for some time nnd plans had been made to erect a new one this spring. To the surprise of everyone a small portion of the stack remained (resembling n steam barge stack) and this provided sufficient darft for the hoilers to allow them to stenm freely. The atack of the old Coopcrage has been purchased and Superintendent Balch will utilize this for n while.

Purchase Land Near Petoskey.

Dr. J. S. Weber, physician nnd surgeon, of Davenport, Iowa, and president of the Dnvenport State bank, and his borther, Dr. A. H. Weber, of DesMoines, Iowa, have been in Petoskey for several days during the past week completing the purchase of three hundred and twenty acres of farm land in Littlefield township from the Quinlan Company of Petoskey.

The men make stock raising, farming and alfalfa raising their hobby and are heavy landholders in various states. They have heard so much about Emmet county as an alfalfn and stock raising section that they decided to invest in lands there.

They will devote the entire half section to stock raising and alfalfa and while there arrange for the spring work.

Award Money Still Hung UP.

The awarding of a reward for the capture of Hary Powers last spring was again brought up in the circuit court at Traverse City last week and discussed, but nothing further was done in the matter. The reward has been in the hands of the clerk of the court for some time, swaiting the decision of the judge as to where it belongs. Five parties claim this reward as having helped in the capture of Powers in this city and as the Grand Traverse county board of supervisors did not cnre to take the responsibility of making the award, the matter was passed to the circuit court, where it now stands.

Boys Find Dead Body.

The dend body of Wm. Covert was found in his home on Charlevoix street, North Boyne, at noon Wednesday of last week. Little Burt Drayton wns sent to the home with some bread nnd found the body. He cnlled Roy Caldwell and they notified others.

The man had evidently died early in the evening ns the lamp was still lighted and the evening papers were still where the newsboy had left them.

Mr. Covert was presumably about seventy-five yenrs of age. He lived alone in his North Boyne home. He has a step-daughter, Mrs. Clickner, who resides near Wildwood Harbor, the only known relative. Friends and neighbors have taken chnrge of the remains awaiting word from Mrs. Clickner and other possible relatives.

Expect a Big Year.

John John, of Newaygo, manager of the Newnygo Cement company and his salesmnnager, Mr. Lockley, were in Petoskey Wednesday of last week, pnying a visit to the plant of the Petoskey Crushed Stone company. They cnme to make a survey of wenther conditions to ascertain how soon the Petoskey plant could be placed in operation. It is expected that fully 150,000 tons of crushed rock will be shipped from Petoskey to the Newaygo firm during tbe aummer.

Superintendent John Nyman reports that the plant will be placed in operation again as aooa as the anow bas settled sufficiently to allow the men to work the quarries with any degree of success. It is expected the plant will enjoy its biggest year during 1917.

United Doctors Specialist

Brings the knowledge of a Great Medical Organization and Their Experience in the Successful Treatment of

Thousands of Chronic Disease Cases

Offers Services Free of Charge

Licensed by the State of Michigan

The United Doctors is an organization of reputable, licensed, physicians for the treatment of certain diseases.

They are all specialists. The United Doctors treat, without Surgical Operations or hypodermic injections, diseases of the blood, skin, and all Internal organs, rheumatism, sciatica, tape-worm, leg ulcers, weak lungs and all long standing, deep seated diseases.

Thirty-five years' experience and the complete records of thousands of cases successfully treated prove that the methods of the United Doctors are right. They were among the first to be called "Bloodless Surgeons."

Each member of the United Doctors staff has at his command the knowledge and resources of the whole organization.

Many people go on suffering from diseases that can be allevated just because they cannot afford to go to high priced specialsts at a distance from home.

No community has a sufficient number of sufferers from the diseases mentioned to support special hospitals for their treatment and cure.

The United Doctors have solved the problem. Their highly trained specialists travel from place to place. They diagnose and prescriba a course of treatment for the sufferers in each community and teach them how to take cnre of themselves at home.

Worn-out and run-down men or women, no matter what your ailment may be, no matter what you have been told, or the experience you have had with other physicians. If your case is incurable they will tell you so. Consult him upon this visit.

It costs nothing.

CHAPTER III.

What Happened at the Water Hole.

The newcomers exchanged a word or two in Spanish, then the second rider flung himself from his saddle and made for the water. He was lying prone and drinking deeply when out of nowhere came a sharp command.

"Olga! Hands up, both of you!"

The first arrival jumped as if a rattlesnake had buzzed at his back, the second leaped to his feet with an oath.

"Drop your gun, companero!"

Both Mexicans cried, as if at a cue, "Who speaks?"

"A Ranger."

The fellow Law had addressed let fall his rifle; two pairs of dark hands rose slowly. Then the Ranger went on in Spanish:

"Anto, lower your left hand and unbuckle your belt." Anto did as he was told, his revolver and cartridge belt dropped to the ground. "And you, compadre, do the same. Mind you, the left hand! Now face about and walk to the chaco, both of you. Good!"

Law stepped into view, his Winchester in the crook of his arm. He emptied the three discarded weapons, then, walking to Anto's horse, he removed the second carbine from beneath the saddle-flap and ejected its shells into his palm.

This done, he addressed the stranger. "Now, friend, who are you, and why are you riding with this fellow?"

"My name is Panfilo Sanchez, senor. Before God, I have done nothing." The speaker was tremendously excited. In the midst of his incoherent protestations Mrs. Austin appeared.

"He is telling you the truth, Mr. Law," she said, quietly. "He is one of my men."

Both Mexicans looked blank. At sight of the speaker their mouths fell open, and Panfilo ceased his gesticulation.

Mrs. Austin went on: "He is my horse-breaker's cousin. He couldn't have had any part in that murder in Jim Wells county, for he was at Las Palmas when I left."

Panfilo recovered from his amazement, removed his sombrero, and blessed his employer extravagantly; then he turned triumphantly upon his captor. "Behold!" cried he. "There you have the truth. I am an excellent, hard-working man and as honest as God."

"Surely you don't want him," Alaire appealed to Law. "He was probably helping his countryman to escape—but they all do that, you know."

"All right! If he's your man, that's enough," Dave told her. "Now then, boys, it will soon be dark and we'll need some supper before we start. It won't hurt Anto's horse to rest a bit, either. You are under arrest," he added, addressing the latter. "I won't tie you unless—"

"No, senor!" Anto understood perfectly, and was grateful.

"Well, then, build a fire, and you, Panfilo, lend a hand. The senora will need a cup of tea, for we three have a long ride ahead of us."

No time was lost. Both Mexicans fell to with a will, and in a surprisingly short time water was boiling. When it came Law's turn to eat, Alaire, who was eager to be gone, directed her employee to fetch the ranger's horse. Panfilo acquiesced readily and buckled on his cartridge belt and six-shooter. He was about to pick up his rifle, too, but finding Law's eyes inquiringly fixed upon him, he turned with a shrug and disappeared down the arroyo. It was plain that he considered his friendly relations well established and resented the ranger's suspicion.

"How long has that fellow been working for you?" Law jerked his head in the direction Panfilo had taken.

"Not long, I—don't know much about him," Alaire confessed. Then, as if in answer to his unspoken question, "But I'm sure he's all right."

"Is he looking up range for you?"

"N—no! I left him at the ranch. I don't know how he came to be here, unless— It is rather strange!"

Dave shot a swift, interrogatory glance at Panfilo's traveling companion, but Anto's face was stony, his black eyes were fixed upon the fire.

With an abrupt gesture Law flung aside the contents of his cup and strode to Panfilo's horse, which stood dejectedly with reins hanging.

"Where are you—going?" Alaire rose nervously.

It was nearly dark now; only the crest of the ridges were plain against the luminous sky; in the brushy bottom of the arroyo the shadows were deep. Alaire had no wish to be left alone with the prisoner.

With bridle rein and carbine in his left hand, the ranger hailed, then, stooping for Anto's discarded cartridge belt, he looped it over his saddle-horn. He vaulted easily into the seat, saying:

"I hid that mare pretty well. Your man may not be able to find her." Then he turned his borrowed horse's head toward the brush.

Anto had squatted motionless until this moment; he had not even turned his eyes; but now, without the slightest warning, he uttered a loud, call. It might have served equally well as a summons or as an alarm, but it changed the ranger's suspicions into certainty. Dave uttered an angry exclamation, then to the startled woman he cried:

"Watch this man! He can't hurt you, for I've got his shells." To his prisoner he said, sharply: "Stay where you are! Don't move!" The next instant he had loped into the brush on the tracks of Panfilo Sanchez, spurring the tired gray pony into vigorous action.

It was an uncomfortable situation in which Alaire now found herself. Law was too suspicious, she murmured to herself; he was needlessly melodramatic; she felt exceedingly ill at ease as the pony's hoof-beats grew fainter. She was startled by hearing other hoof-beats now; their drumming came faint but unmistakable. Yes, there were two horses racing down the arroyo. Anto, the fugitive, rose to his feet and stared into the dusk.

"Sit down!" Alaire ordered, sharply. He obeyed, muttering beneath his breath, but his head was turned as if in an effort to follow the sounds of the pursuit.

Next came the distant rattle of loosened stones—evidently one horse was being urged toward the open high ground—then the peaceful quiet evening was split by the report of Law's thirty-thirty. Another shot followed, and then a third. Both Alaire and her prisoner were on their feet, the woman shaking in every limb, the Mexican straining his eyes into the gloom and listening intently.

Alaire had begun to feel the strain of the situation and was trying to decide what next to do, when David Law came riding out of the twilight. He was astride the gray; behind him at the end of a lariat was Bessie Belle, and her saddle was empty.

Mrs. Austin uttered a sharp cry.

Law dismounted and strode to the prisoner. His face was black with fury; he seemed gigantic in his rage. Without a word he raised his right hand and cuffed the Mexican to his knees. Then he leaped upon him, as a dog might pounce upon a rabbit, rolled him to his face, and twisted the fellow's arm into the small of his back. Anto cursed, he struggled, but he was like a child in the ranger's grasp. Law knelt upon him, and with a jerk of his rinta secured the fellow's wrists; rising, he set the knot with another heave that dragged the prisoner to his knees. Next he booted Anto to his feet.

"I've a notion to bend a gun over your head," Law growled. "Clever little game, wasn't it?"

"Where—? Did you—kill him?" the woman gasped.

Alaire had never beheld such a demoniac expression as Law turned upon her. The man's face was contorted, his eyes were blazing insanely, his chest was heaving, and for an instant he seemed to include her in his anger. Ignoring her inquiry, he went to his mare and ran his shaking hands over her as if in search of an injury; his questioning palms covered every inch of glistening hide from forelock to withers, from shoulder to hoof, and under cover of this task he regained in some degree his self-control.

"That hombre of yours—didn't look right to me," he said, finally. Laying his cheek against Bessie Belle's neck, as a woman snuggles close to the man of her choice, he addressed the mare: "I reckon nobody is going to steal you, eh? Not if I know it. No, sir; that hombre wasn't any good, was he?"

Alaire wet her lips. "Then you—shot him?"

"I didn't say I shot him," he told her, gruffly. "I warned him first, and he turned on me—blew smoke in my face. Then he took to the brush, afoot, and—I cut down on him once more to help him along."

"He got away?"

"I reckon so."

"Oh, oh!" Alaire's tone left no doubt of her relief. "He was always a good man—"

"Good? Didn't he steal my horse? Didn't he aim to get me at the first chance and free his compadre? That's why he wanted his Winchester. Say! I reckon he—needs killin' about as much as anybody I know."

"I can't understand it." Alaire sat down weakly. "One of my men, too."

"This fellow behaved himself while I was gone, eh?" Law jerked his head in Anto's direction. "I was afraid he—he'd try something. If he had—" Such a possibility, oddly enough, seemed to choke the speaker, and the ferocity of his unfinished threat caused Mrs. Austin to look up at him curiously. There was a moment of silence, then he said, shortly: "Well, we've got a horse apiece now. Let's go."

The stars had thickened and brightened, rounding the night sky into a glittering dome. Anto, the murderer, with his ankles lashed beneath his horse's belly, rode first; next, in a sullen silence, came the ranger, his chin upon his breast; and in the rear followed Alaire Austin.

Under the stars, at the brink of the arroyo, three hundred yards below the water hole, a coyote was slinking in a wide circle around the body of Panfilo Sanchez.

CHAPTER IV.

At Las Palmas.

Although the lower counties of southwest Texas are flat and badly watered, they possess a rich soil. They are favored, too, by a kindly climate, subtropic in its mildness. The Rio Grande, jaundiced, erratic as an invalid, wrings its saffron blood from the clay bluffs and gravel canyons of the hill country, but near its estuary winds quietly through a low coastal plain which the very impurities of that blood have richened. Here the river's banks are smothered in thickets of huisache, ebony, mesquite, oak and almo.

Railroads are so scarce along this division of the border that to travel from Brownsville north along the international line one must, for several hundred miles, avail oneself of horses, mules or motorcars, since rail transportation is almost lacking. And on his way the traveler will traverse whole counties where the houses are jacals, where Mexicans plow their fields with crooked sticks as did the ancient Egyptians.

That part of the state which lies below the Nueces river was for a time disputed territory, and long after Texans had given their lives to drive the eagle of Mexico across the Rio Grande much of it remained a forbidden land. Even today it is alien. It is a part of our Southland, but a South different to any other that we have. Within it there are no blacks, and yet the whites number but one in twenty. The rest are swarthy, black-haired men who speak the Spanish tongue and whose citizenship is mostly a matter of form.

The stockmen, pushing ahead of the nesters and the tillers of the soil, were the first to invade the lower Rio Grande, and among these "Old Ed" Austin was a pioneer. Like the other cattle barons, he was hungry for land and took it where or how he could. Those were crude old days; the pioneers who pushed their herds into the far pastures were lawless fellows, ruthless, acquisitive, mastered by the empire-builder's urge for acres and still more acres.

As other ranches grew under the hands of such unregenerate owners, so also under "Old Ed" Austin's management did Las Palmas increase and prosper. It comprised an expanse of rich river-land backed by miles of range where "Box A" cattle lived and bred. In his later years when the old man handed Las Palmas to his son, "Young Ed," as a wedding gift, the ranch was known far and wide for its size and richness. Las Palmas had changed greatly since Austin, senior, painfully scrawled his slanting signature to the deed. It was a different ranch now to what the old man had known; indeed, it was doubtful if he would have recognized it, for even the house was new.

Alaire had some such thought in mind as she rode up to the gate on the afternoon following her departure from the water hole, and she felt a thrill of pride at the acres of sprouting corn, the dense green field of alfalfa so nicely fitted between their fences. They were like clean, green squares of matting spread for the feet of summer.

A Mexican boy came running to care for her horse, a Mexican woman greeted her as she entered the wide, cool hall and went to her room. Dolores fixed a bath and laid out clean clothes with a running accompaniment of chatter concerned with household affairs. She was a great gossip, and possessed such a talent for gaining information that through her husband, Benito, the range boss, she was able to keep her mistress in fairly intimate touch with ranch matters.

Alaire, as she leisurely dressed herself, acknowledged that it was good to feel the physical comforts of her own house, even though her homecoming gave her no especial joy. She made it a religious practice to dress for dinner, regardless of Ed's presence, though often for weeks at a time she sat in solitary state, presiding over an empty table. Tonight, Ed was at home. It was with a grave preoccupation that she made herself ready to meet him.

In the dining room, Ed acknowledged his wife's entrance with a careless nod, but did not trouble to remove his hands from his pockets. As he seated himself heavily at the table and with unsteady fingers shook the folds from his napkin, he said:

"You stayed longer than you intended. Um-m—you were gone three days, weren't you?"

"Four days," Alaire told him, realizing with a little inward start how very far apart she and Ed had drifted. She looked at him curiously for an instant, wondering if he really could be her husband, or—if he were not some peculiarly disagreeable stranger.

Ed had been a handsome boy, but he was growing fat from drink and soft from idleness; his face was too full, his eyes too sluggish; there was an unhealthy redness in his cheeks. In contrast to his wife's semi-formal dress, he was unkempt—unshaven and soiled. His preparations for dinner this evening had been characteristically simple; he had drunk three dry cocktails and flung his sombrero into a corner.

SCHOOL COMMISSIONER'S NOTES

Miss Dell of North Bay writes that Earnie Preble, an eighth grade boy of her school, had earned 3365 home credits in five months, and that Albert Stoldt earned 974 in one month. Seventeen pupils in the school have earned 25,000 credits together in five months and they are proud of their school. They also ask for 12 large certificates for four months of perfect and punctual attendance.

Miss Rothenberger of the Robinson school is the first Boyne Valley teacher to report the serving of hot noon lunches in her school. This is the eighth school doing this this winter, but it is spring now and we hope that next year will find all the schools eating something warm on cold winter days at midday.

Golda Jensen of Walloon reported only one absence in an entire month.

Ten four month certificates of attendance sent to Horton Bay.

The Burgess director, Amandus Evers, requests a "Preferred List of Books for District Libraries."

A furnace company "came across" with the statement: "No, we shall not install any more basement furnaces with floor registers in school houses. They shall be installed with improved plans or we won't sell. It hurts business."

A new desk and chair came for teacher at the Miles school. We knew it was ordered some time ago. And are the boys and girls comfortable?

Ten attendance certificates of award sent to Walloon Lake primary room at request of Miss Scroggie.

The commissioner goes to Ann Arbor this week to attend the state superintendents' meeting. The Home Work Committee will also meet at this time to draft a state outline for city and rural credit work.

Miss Kerry of Pleasant Valley is highly pleased with the new Bubbler fountain which has arrived. A good attendance record lately, too.

Miss Allen of the Springvale school has her pupils divided into two teams with their respective captains to keep track of the score with a definite number of points given in the tally for attendance, spelling, neat desks, keeping everything but food out of the mouth, being always polite, running on tip toes only, keeping hands, finger-nails and teeth clean. The losing side is to give the winning side a little treat. She says that the spirit is such that her boys and girls always notice if one passes in front of another without saying, "excuse me," or hands another a pair of scissors point first, or puts a pencil in his mouth at any time. The captains chosen were those who had had the best spelling record for the year.

Reports from the Beavers indicate that the improvement germ has begun to multiply during the past year.

The last copy of the Moderator Topics contains a long comment on teachers who are "unprofessional enough" to desire an amendment or repeal of the pension law. Have you read it?

It's a logical time now to sing every patriotic song in the knapsack except "John Brown's Body." We can afford to forget that relic of bygone prejudice and sing with dignity but not bombast every truly beautiful and inspirational patriatic song which the poets of America have ever written. We are building the citizens of tomorrow. Let us build true.

It is rather difficult to sort out the best students on a basis of one examination, especially when that examination came after school terms of unequal length, in different places, and in the midst of illness, or conflicting interests in others. The fact that the date of the spring test is noted in the directory will partly do away with this difficulty. A few of our boys and girls have, however, done work which seems especially worthy of note. Those whose standings have seemed better than the average and more than praiseworthy, are as follows:

Stanley O'Dell, Afton.
Richards Shepard, Afton.
Percy Batterbee, Afton.

The following article from the Janesville, Wis., Gazette is going the rounds of the press and all "the boys" are giving it a hearty amen!

"When other folks donate a hall, donate the lights, donate the heat, donate the music, donate the speaking, donate the decorations, donate the feed, donate the invitations, donate the programs, in fact everything connected with the entertainment, and no charge is made for admission, or there is nothing to sell, it ought to be clear to all fair-minded people that then it is perfectly fair to come to the Gazette and ask it to donate its service in bringing the crowd that is necessary to make a success of the affair.

"How many times will be be necessary for the Gazette to explain that when a thing happens it is news? Announcing it before it happens is plain and simple advertising, a service which the Gazette is pleased to offer for sale at a moderate price, just the same as a merchant offers his goods for sale. There is no more reason for the Gazette giving away its advertising than there is for the merchant to stand behind his counters and give away his merchandise to all who come and ask for it.

"The Gazette is not finding fault with anybody, because the public is not to blame. For years some newspapers have simply gone down on their knees, so to speak, chased folks all over a ten acre lot, and begged them to carry away their advertising write-ups, free. Conditions have so changed that this generosity is no longer possible even if it was sensible."

THE PUBLIC MUST PAY.

The railroad managers yielded to the demands of the brotherhoods because the international situation called for a sacrifice by somebody. We are to have no strike now because the railroad managers showed a finer spirit than the brotherhoods did. How soon another threat of a strike will be advanced, no man can tell. But this much is certain: the managers cannot always yield, the railroad cannot always make the sacrifice. Some day the brotherhoods will have to make some concessions. The reason why the managers were compelled to give way this time is that the Democrat congress refused to pass legislation which a Democratic president last fall promised to the third party to the controversy—the public—who were assured of laws which would prevent a strike becoming operative until a full and fair investigation had been held. Mr. Wilson presented this suggestion to his congress when it assembled in December; but he never pressed it upon their attention. He spent his time trying to get legislation which would give him and his cabinet more money to spend and more power to exercise. Once again the public must pay.

THE NEXT DUTY.

And now comes the task of raising the forces that are vital to American safety. We have paltered and played with the problem for more than two years. We have dreamed about it and talked about it for a generation. We have walked squarely up to the issue in the past and shied around it. This time there can be no shying, no more paltering with volunteer citizen soldiery, no more reliance upon a paid regular army hardly big enough to be a police force, no more creating an army on paper and blissfully hoping that nothing will happen.

Compulsory service is just around the next turn in the road, and that turn is not distant. The duty of congress is very plain. Its first act should be the passage of a compulsory military service measure. Its next step should be the creation of a war credit providing funds for the mobilization, the equipment, and the instruction of the firstclass of American youths to be called to the colors. Immediately thereafter there should be a body of laws that will permit the organization of this nation in all its industrial capacities for war.

These things will come as a shock to a people bound up in the traditions of a past that relied upon the volunteer armies. It will come as a shock to Americans who have always associated compulsory service and huge armies with the doings of kings and emperors. It will be an agony to the pacifist groups and a deep sorrow to all men who hate war.

By the time they get through fixing over that railroad law, the unions will probably be strictly forbidden to strike unless they think it is all right for them to do so.

Those congressmen who are proposing to raise the tax on newspapers didn't talk that way when they were begging for free publicity before the last election.

BIRTH OF R. F. D. TO BE CELELRATED

Climax, Kazoo County, Scene of Event July 26 Next.

Battle Creek and the village of Climax are going to celebrate the 20th anniversary of rural free delivery service in the United States on July 26th next.

December 3, 1896, the U. S. Post office department first started the experiment in Michigan of delivering mail to the farmers homes. Climax village was one of the very first in all the states of the union to take up this then novel feature.

It is planned to erect a monument there, built of stones taken from the buildings of the 400 farm homes on the three routes now in service. Each stone will be tagged with the owner's name when delivered and the tag removed when it goes into the wall. But each of the four sides of the monument will be photographed and sketched during the construction and the tags marked on the photograph in their proper place on each individual stone, so that for years to come, each of the 400 families and their descendants will be able to pick out the family stone in the monument.

There will be a big program at the unveiling of this monument and representatives from the granges, historical and patriotic societies and members of chambers of commerce from all over the state are expected to be present, together with delegates from the rural carriers' associations.

C. H. S. WENT DOWN TO DEFEAT

BUT WELCOME AT BELLAIRE ALLAYED STING.

Gingery Mass Meeting Starts Team Off for Ann Arbor Tuesday Morning.

The basket ball team went down to Bellaire a week ago last Friday, and met defeat at the hands of the Bellaire team by the score of 52-34. They met with a fine reception and have only good things to say about the hospitality of the Bellaire boys. It was rather a strange experience for our boys to play basket ball on a floor of indefinite extent, like "run-sheep-run," but of course we blame no one for that.

The whole high school was down to the train to meet the visiting team, and escorted them to the schoolhouse where they were made welcome visitors. The boys were royally treated, and received with open arms, especially during the game when they went right up into the crowd and became acquainted. The referee became righteously indignant at the boys once or twice in the course of the game, because they did not seem to appreciate him. For this they are sorry. Let it never be said that the boys of Charlevoix fail to appreciate an absolutely neutral referee. We extend our thanks to Bellaire for the good time we had, and the spirit of fairness and good natured rivalry evident throughout the stay.

One of the "peppiest" mass meetings of the school year was held Tuesday morning, March 20th, at the third hour, just before the boys left for Elk Rapids on the way to Ann Arbor. Talks were given by members of the faculty and student body.

In behalf of the senior class, John Walker gave to the boys $25.00 to help defray their expenses. This was a sum which was left in the treasury of the Boy's Club when it became defunct, and which the boys turned over to the senior class. Such a spirit is to be heartily commended.

This is the first time in recent years, at least, that Charlevoix has attempted anything of this kind, and we appreciate the universal boosting spirit which makes it possible. That this does not necessarily mean an over-development of the athletic side of the school at the expense of the other phases is clearly shown by the fact that several of the high school students are going to take the long ride to East Jordan Wednesday evening with the debating team. The whole school is behind the basket ball team, and is solidly backing the two debating teams, which debate here and at East Jordan. The debate will be over by the time this paper is in your hands, but the account will be in this week's issue.

Here's to the basket ball team, the debaters, and the never-failing Charlevoix school spirit, exemplified in "The Red and White Forever."

Report cards were out Tuesday. Several sick recently, for which the changing spring weather is probably to blame. Some are even getting the spring fever already.

each participant and for the debate as a whole, were heard afterward. One much experienced man said that he had never heard a debate in which such good English was used, and yet it was not "stilted."

The crowd was small, about 75 and did not compare with our home audience. We have a right to be proud of our six debaters, our school spirit, and the enthusiastic support of the townspeople.

The debate at Boyne City was also won by East Jordan. The judges were Supt. Gee of Bellaire, Mr. Aultman of Boyne City and Prin. Curtis of Traverse City.

High School Notes.

The boys on the trip were too busy to send any messages back, regardless of the fact that there are several people in Charlevoix who helped send them, who would have liked to hear what they were doing, and when they were going to arrive.

CHARLEVOIX PLAYERS ROYALLY ENTERTAINED

Charlevoix H. S. Team Has Big Time in Ann Arbor.

The Charlevoix basket ball team who visited Ann Arbor a week ago last Tuesday to attend the State Convention of Inter-Scholastic Basket ball teams and play against Ann Arbor, were entertained by the Delta Sigma Phi fraternity and report a royal good time.

Those going from here were Glenn Loomis, the coach, Irving Hallett, Percy Durance, Brace Felts, Harold Cartier, Leo Butler and Franklin Weaver.

The boys left Ann Arbor Saturday. Brace Felts and Harold Cartier went to Detroit, where they will spend a couple of weeks with friends and relatives. Leo Butler and Percy Durance spent Sunday in Detroit, and returned home Monday last. Irving Hallett and Franklin Weaver spent Sunday at Lake Odessa at the home of Mr. Loomis, returning home last Tuesday afternoon.

I will save you money this year on automobiles, tires and supplies. Benj. Brown.—Adv.10tf.

Submarging a Submarine.

A submarine submerges by admitting water to various tanks, making it so heavy that it will not float. When it desires to rise powerful electric pumps empty these cylinders. Breathable air while submerged is insured by many cylinders containing compressed pure air or oxygen. In the latest submarines there is machinery to purify breathed air, the carbonic acid gas being absorbed from it by potash and the purified air being cooled and reoxygenated.

The farm implements recently purchased for use on the Waller farm are now at the Charlevoix depot. They include an I.H.C. 10-20 h. p. tractor (the first farm tractor, by the way, to be used in the county), a three bottom John Deere plow and a 31 blade Clark cutaway disc. J. R. Cooper was the agent.

IS A LOVER OF WILD LIFE

SENATOR PENNEY VOICES HIS VIEWS ON GAME LAWS.

Makes Suggestions Which Should be of Great Value to Hunter and Law Maker.

Below we reproduce a somewhat lengthy article from the pen of Senator Harvey A. Penney of Saginaw, a true sportsmen and lover of wild life. The suggestions should be of considerable value to the law makers now remodeling the present game laws:

I have been plensed to notice the interest shown hy the sportsmen of Saginaw ln proposed game legislation. Game law is n subject upon which there is ulways a lively interest at each session of the legislatnre. The true sportmen studies the real situation each season with reference to nature's supply of game and wishes laws pessed and enforced which will permit everyone toget out of doors and have his healthful hunting sport nnd recreation. He wishes to protect wild life during the season of propagation, in order that the species may not be diminished and the sport of the hunter last for years to come. He would like to see those predatory animals and vermin destroyed, which prey upon game and do more real damage than the hunter. He desires to see our game department use every means to establish game covers. As civilization pushes nlong, sweeping away the forest, cutting down the brush and other natural elements which go to nnke game refuges, some effort should be made by the public to encourage and feed the birds. This enn he done by the planting af black berries, raspberries, hazelbushes, berberries, mulberries and other things of that nature along every fence where possible. Bird life is one of man's greatest assets in the destruction of harmful insects.

I hnve hunted birds more or less all my life. My futher always kept several birl dogs and hounds and shot birds on the wing up to his 87th year Often going with him, I had an early start. I begun hunting deer about eight or nine years ago. Two years ago, while a member of the honse of representatives, I served upon the game committee and eame in contact with discussions upon nearly every phase of game legislation.

From my own observation and in coming in contact with hunters from all parts of Michigan, I um thoroughly convlnced that partridge are very scurce and need far greater protection than they now have. They nre scurce in several other stutes besides our own. If we expect to continue having them as a game bird, I believe, as good sportamen, we should bewilling to forego the pleasure of partridge hunting for at least one yeur and possibly two and give our finest game bird n chance to come back. I know that a large percenlage of hunters would like to have the quail season opened in case the partridge season were to be closed. But, like many others who know the situation, I am thoroughly convinced that the farmers in the legislature huve undoubted control of such legislature and will not permit the quail season to be re-opened, possibly even not after 1920, when the present closed season is supposed to terminate. The farmer has come to regard the quail us his special friend and as u valuable asset to his farm. He hns been taught by bulletins sent out by the ngricultural department at Washington that the quail eats a couple af bushels of foul weed seeds and insects every year and that he is not in favor of shooting the quail. He has plenty of votes in the legislature to back up his wishes, and like many others who understund this, I am of the opinion that Mr. Farmer Legishtor will not loosen up on quail shooting as soon as our hunters would like to see them. Then we come to this point. If the quail season cannot be opened, nre we to keep on shooting partridge only year after year until they are all gone, or should we have a clused season for a llmited time, or some other restriction to keep them from extermination. Every sportsman knows that the climatic conditions during the past two seasons have been unusually severe upon the partridge. A hard crust on the snow two years ago prevented birds from getting to the ground to find seeds und other feed. Then two unusually long cobl rainy seasons which chilled the birds eggs, preventing them from hatching, and also killed many of the young birds, tells the tnle.

Under the present inw a hunter may kill six partridges per day; have fifteen in his possession at one time und kill a total of 25 in a season. As long as a hunter may kill six per day and his license is good for the entire season, there is absolutely no means for determining how muny hunters quit shooting partridge when they have reached their limit of 25. If we are not to huve a closed seeson, theh I believe thet the limit should be reduced per day und per season, end some system of tags provided, almilar to the deer tag system, so that when the hunter hns reached his limit he will have to stop shooting or become a game law violator.

When we consider that over 140,000 gun licenses and about 21,000 deer licenses were issued last year for hunting in Michigan, and that in addition to these licensed hunters many resident hunters, living in isolated places, undoubtedly hunt without a license, it is easy to understand why regulation is necessary.

If there is not to be a short closed seuson upon partridge, I am opposed to the change in the partridge season proposed by the game department, making it from October 1st to November 9th, instead of December 1st, as now. I would prefer the season to be cut off at the beginning instead of at the end, if at all.

I am opposed to the bag limit proposed upon ducks and to the bill which prohibits the use of live decoys, inasmuch as the treaty between the United States and Canada with reference to migratory birds has been ratified, and because in the absence of spring shooting ducks have begun to show an increase in numbers.

If the bill should pass, giving the Public Domain Commission power to make and regulate closed seasons according to its discretion that would undoubtedly take care of the protection of game of all kinds and require less future legislation as to open and closed seasons.

During the last session of the legislature I secured the passage in the house of representatives of a one deer bill, and afterwards through my efforts pulled the senate one deer hill through the house of representatives which then became a law. I hope I may be pardoned if I refresh the memories of your readers by stating that during the last session of the legisalture I was the author of u bill which provided u bounty for the killing of the common rat. This bill was referred to the game committee, passed, and became u law. I think with such a record I should very properly be considered as a true conservationist.

Harvey A. Penney.

(Mr. Penny put up a strong flight against the buck law which was recently defeeted in both house and senate. The defeat of this bill, which was opposed by a majority of deer hunters in the state, leaves the law the same as last year—one deer—regardles of horns.) Ed.

WORK ON THE DIXIE HIGHWAY

HUNDREDS OF TOURISTS EXPECTED THIS SEASON.

Will Be Given a Heerty Welcome at Charlevoix—All Demand Good Roads.

Work is progressing merrily nowadays on the Dixie Highway, particularly on the southern end, where weather conditions do not make road making difficult.

Visitors to the seat of uction at Miami, Fla., from California, who are accustomed to good roads in their own state, are atrong in their praise for Florida roads und think that the work being done by the Dixie Highwey Association is simply wonderful and will go down in the annals of history as one of the greatest achievements of a marvellous period of progress.

Work on the northern end of the route will open up in the late spring and we may look for many hundreds of tourists from the various states through which the route passes. If they will stop off ut Charlevoix on their way to Mackinac, they may be assured of a hearty welcome, and we are sure they will find no more attractive spot on their whole trip than Charlevoix, "the Beautiful."

It is planned to paint the telegraph poles along the route with the distinctive marker of the Dixie Highway—three stripes of red and white, each six Inches in width, to extend two-thirds of the circumference of the pole; three inch letters—"D. H."—to be stenciled in white on the red stripe at a distance of eight feet from the ground. Not less than three poles to the mile will be marked, nor more than three successive poles on each side of road or street intersection or turn, should be painted. Stenciled letters "Right" and "Left" with arrow may also be used to indicate turns. Painted metal markers mounted on posts are to be used within city limits, as they look better and have a distinct advertising value for the community.

THE MEANING OF FEDERAL HELP

Quite Recently Public Roads Were a National Disgrace.

INFLUENCE OF MOTORCARS

Road Associations, the Automobile, the Farmers' Demands and Other Influences Have All Contributed to the Pressure Which Has Finally Brought About Government Co-operation.

Until the motorcar—until, indeed, within the last ten years—the public roads of the United States have been a national disgrace. They are so yet, not quite 11 per cent of our more than 2,273,731 miles of roads deserving the name, writes C. H. Claudy in the Scientific American.

But road associations, the motorcar, an insistent demand from the farmer for help (it often costs him more to haul a ton of wheat from farm to market on a muddy road than to ship that ton from New York to Liverpool), the mounting cost of living, the increase of motor truck transportation, have all contributed to the pressure which has finally made the United States as a whole do for itself what forty-eight states have been trying to do, in forty-eight degrees of bewilderment and incompetence, for two decades.

Forty-eight road commissions, forty-eight ideas of what a road is and is not, some number less than forty-eight varieties of road graft, have not led us anywhere in making a comprehensive system of roads. We have a few good road states and a lot of poor road states. We have a few good road departments and a lot of so called commissions of which the less said the better. Now the nation has extended federal aid to states in building roads. Whether federal aid to states as opposed to a system of national highways built, controlled, maintained and repaired and owned by the nation is the wise step only time can tell. Federal aid became a fact July 11 of last year, when legislation which will result in the spending of $150,000,000 for roads was passed by congress and signed by the president.

To spend $150,000,000 in five years' time, spend it wisely, economically, efficiently, is not an easy task. It is not one which could be begun instantly upon the passage of the federal road bill, first, because an organization had to be perfected by the federal government under the direction of Logan Waller Page, director office of public roads, and, second, because only one state, California, was in a position to submit a project and ask for some of its apportionment of money immediately on the passage of the act.

Nor have the forty-eight states as yet all asked for any of their portion of federal aid, although practically all have signified their intention to do so. Some of them have no highway commissions—and a highway commission or department a state must have before it can get any federal money. Indiana, Texas and South Carolina, for instance, must create and organize highway departments or commissions. Other states were in another sort of difficulty — Kansas, Wyoming and South Dakota were unable under their constitutions to spend state money on interual improvements which were considered strictly county matters. The last two states altered this law at the last election, but Kansas, as a state, is still unable to negotiate with the government. To get its proportion of federal aid Kansas must work through a highway department created by her counties rather than her state legislature—unless she changes her organic law.

The federal government has appropriated $5,000,000 for road expenditures in 1917, $10,000,000 for 1918, $15,000,000 for 1919, $20,000,000 for 1920 and $25,000,000 for 1921, of which 3 per cent is for administrative purposes, leaving $72,750,000 for roads. The law provides that the federal government shall not contribute more than 50 per cent to the financing of any road project in any state. The money is apportioned on a three factor basis—population, area and mileage of rural star routes, each factor having a one-third weight.

The state must submit its project, its plans and specifications for a certain road or roads which it believes will serve it well and on which it is willing to spend enough money, matching the federal government dollar for dollar, to produce the kind of road which will be satisfactory to the secretary of agriculture.

If after consideration the project of the state is not considered one which will be of material benefit not only to the state as a state, but to the state as one of forty-eight states, then federal participation can be and will be denied. Thus a state planning a short piece of road interconnecting two central counties, which pieces of road formed no part of any state system or possible national system, would doubtless be refused federal participation in its building.

Pennsylvania Active For Good Roads.

A bond issue totaling $50,000,000 is now proposed by Pennsylvanians prominent in the good roads movement. An amendment of the state constitution will have to be passed by the state legislature in order to accomplish this object.

Benj. Brown Garage sold cars last week to G. F. Kimball of Eveline, Fred Boss of Ellsworth, Warren I. Hand of Hayes and Albert Reynolds of Charlevoix. Ben and his staff of hustlers would have done better if it hadn't been for the bad roads.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Leavenworth drove to Charlevoix Monday from their home in Boyne City. They came in a Ford car over the ice and made the trip in less than three quarters of an hour. They had purchased a Maxwell car through a Boyne City agent, and came to Charlevoix to get an idea what one looked like.

E. A. Ruegsegger, Samuel C. Smith and Merle Silverstein of Boyne City, and W. H. Porter of East Jordan, are in town today (Wednesday) on business. Messrs. Porter and Smith, we understand, hold mortgage leins against the Hotel Michigan property and were in consultation with their attorneys and representatives of the insurance companies this morning at the court house, at which time Mrs. Biossat was present to answer such questions as they might care to ask her.

First and above all else we are Americans. In this time of national peril party differcace will he forgottea. In this hour of national distress our watchword will be 'America First.' The party of Lincoln, the party of Grant, the party of McKinley will aot he un-American. It will not give aid and comfort to our enemies. It favors peace, but in the name of peace it will not advocate treason and dishonor. By strife or criticism it will noi 'add to the burdens of those in authority. It will he true, loyal, patriotic and dependable."

JOHN W. BEAUMONT

For Member of the State Board of Agriculture

Mr. Beaumoat, of Detroit, was horn at Elizabeth, New Jersey, July 20, 1858, of English parentago. He attended the Michigan Agricultural College, from which institution he graduated in 1882. Since August, 1886, he bas beea engaged in the practice of law at Detroit. Mr. Beauaont is married, and has resided in Michigaa since 1875. He served in the Spanish-American war, on board the U. S. S. Yosemite. Mr. Beaumont was elected a member of the state board of agriculture April 3, 1911, by a plurality of 131,170.

JASON WOODMAN

For Member of the State Board of Agriculture.

Mr. Woodman, of Paw Paw, was horn in Paw Paw, Van Buren county, Michigan, in 1860, of New England parentage. He was educated in the public schools and the Michigan Agricultural College, from which institution he graduated in 1881. He was lecturer of the Michigan State Grange for eight years, and served as chairman of the Van Buren Republican county committee for several yenrs. He was also a member of the state sennte during the sessions of 1903 and 1905. Mr. Woodman is married. At the electioa held on April 3, 1911, he wns elected a member of the state hoard of agricalture by a pluarity of 130,286.

SPRING DRIVES OF 1917.

The Years of Warfare Have Taught the Armies Valuable Lessons.

To sny that any of the belligerent armies, the best of them, were prepared for contest in the sense lhat they are now prepared would he to throw experience to the winds. Only a small percentage of the troops outside of the Balkan coatingents had been in campaigns and knew the sensation of winning advanee, losing retreat and had the grip oa themselves to take punishmeat without loss of elaa. Thero nre things not to be tnught to soldiers on parade and drill nor to officers in military schools. Reviewers of the future will deal harsbly witb the false passes of the first twelve to twenty months. Soldiers hnve been ordered to do too much, sometimes, and again hava attempted on their own volition to do the impossible, aot taklag it into account that the enemy is as capable as themselves. But other elements than fighting experience will eater into the preparations for drives at this stage. The rate of consumption and wastage has been studied and not alone reserves in men, but in food, munitions, motors and weapons, have been created. Oaa day'a defeated and battered divisions and corps will next day muster as reformed, rejuvenated and indomitable units, vastly more officieat for completing the unfinished job than fresh imported reserves ignorant of the ground and pitfalls in front. So the drives of sprlag and of any and all seasons should be driven homo aad great in results as well as great in sweep, in numbers engaged aad in losses suffered.

Although coal shortage is usually blamed on operators and middlemen, financial shortage is often at the bottom of the empty coal bin.

The membership in the B. Y. P. U. has been increased from 30 to 240; 85 per cent attained in the standard of excellence; the group plan adopted; a Blue Bird Society organized; the number of subscriptions to service raised from one to 62, and the society has been represented in both state and international conventions; is persuing the Bible Readers Course, the Christian Culture Course, and is training for efficiency in all lines. The various other departments of the church have done excellent service and many worthy objects have been accomplished. We feel that this is a record of which any church may justly be proud and knowing that its achievement is largely due to the untiring eflorts, the inexhaustible enthusiasm and the unmounded vision of our pastor, we wish to give him full credit for its accomplishment.

Nor have Brother Vinyard's efforts and influence been confined to his own church. As Master of the Boy Scout movement, he has done a work among the boy life of the community which has won the commendation of the entire better element and endeared him to the hearts of not only the boys, but all who have an interest in the welfare of boy life. He has conducted a relief campaign which has won the sympathy and co-operation of the entire community and by means of which during the past winter 60 children have been wholly or partly clothed, and many needy ones supplied with cheer and comfort.

While strongly denominational in belief and precept, he is broadly liberal in sympathy and fellowship, and has welcomed to his service those of all denominations, or of no denomination, as cordially as those of his own denomination, and has won loyal friends among all classes. Especially has he been zealous in seeking out the unfortunate and lowly to lend a helping hand and brotherly service wherever it was needed, and his departure will be regretted by the hosts of friends whom he has won from all classes.

Given by order of the church and read and unanimously approved by the church, March 25, 1917. Committee: Jessie M. DeWitt, D. E. Ingalls, Chas. Taylor, M. K. Chew, Mrs. Rose Kibbe, Mrs. David Schweitzer.

CLIP THE YOUNG PLANTS.

Clipping the young alfalfa crop is considered a good practice. It keeps down weeds, which, if allowed to get their full growth, might smother out the young plants. It encourages the growth of a more stocky plant and greater root development. Set the sickle bar of the mowing machine high and go over the field several times during the summer.

No hay crop should be removed the first year unless very early seeding has been done on unusually rich soil. It is safest to leave a good growth on the ground as a cover during the winter. Late summer seeding needs no attention. The entire growth should be left as a winter cover and should not be grazed.

POULTRY GOSSIP.

Two-year-old hens to four-year-old hens make the most reliable turkey breeders.

Turkeys are reliable for both incubating and brooding.

The poultryman who can make his hens lay eggs in the winter, when they bring the highest prices, is the one that shows his capacity. Any one can make hens lay in the summer.

Remember that it takes more than sunshine to produce eggs. It needs pure, solid grains and lots of them.

It is a noted fact that if the gobbler is present when the first clutch of eggs is laid the second clutch will be fertile without his presence.

A few signs of spring: M. R. Nelson reports finding a robin's nest with seven young birds and nine eggs. E. H. Boss was piloting "Henry" towards the garage and Rock Miller was discovered in the back yard trying out his salary wing in preparation for the start of the fishing season.

To Get Best Results With Potatoes.

It is amazing how few even good cooks and still fewer housewives know of the following aid in cooking:

Never put salt in the water when boiling potatoes. When entirely done, drain, shake in the air for a second, then sprinkle generously with salt and return to a slow fire. This makes even a poor variety palatable. If you doubt it, just try it once.—New York Sun.

MR. VOTER, TAKE NOTICE

Amendments to State Constitution as Planned.

The following amendment to constitution required to enable Michigan to receive federal aid, will be voted on at the election next Monday. Every voter should consider the change and vote in favor of the amendment.

That Michigan's constitution does not give the state highway commissioner authority to originate plans for and to build roads as required by the federal aid road bill, which offers to Michigan $2,186,756 during the next five years, is the claim made by the department of agriculture in a recent letter to Governor Sleeper.

To remedy this defect and some other affecting the Covert (assessment district) act and sale of bonds by townships, a joint resolution has been unanimously passed by both houses of the legislature to submit to the voters of Michigan at the coming April election an amendment to Section 26, Article 8 of the state constitution.

The amendment makes but slight changes, but remedies all the defects mentioned. It is, therefore, very important to the road cause of Michigan that this amendment to the constitution be made at this time.

NEW GARAGE NOW OPEN FOR BUSINESS

James Elzinga Has Best Wishes of Community In Venture.

With the arrival last week of a carload of automobiles, the new Ellsworth garage, built last fall by J. H. Elzinga, started its first year.

The automobile owners of this section of the county may congratulate themselves on the fact that at last they have a place where repairs may be made and accessories purchased, as in the past they have been obliged to visit Central Lake, East Jordan or some other place for even minor parts or to have repairs made on cars unless the repairs were so simple that they could do the work themselves.

Last year was Mr. Elzinga's first venture as an auto salesman, and the fine building erected by him at considerable expense last fall is surely a proof of his success.

The building is practically fireproof. It is 35x50 feet, built of concrete, with floors of the same material and is covered by a steel roof, and although not completed until late in the fall, twelve cars were housed therein during the winter.

It is centrally located, being only one door east of Mobilo's blacksmith shop and almost directly opposite the New Orient Hotel.

The owner is preparing to put in oil and gasoline and to carry a good line of auto supplies of all kinds, and with the up-to-the-minute mechnic, who will be employed, there is no reason why this new institution should not only be an accommodation to motorists, but also a boost for the village of Ellsworth.

DE YOUNG—RUBINGH.

Pretty Home Wedding Celebrated on Thursday last.

A pretty home wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James DeYoung last Thursday afternoon, when their daughter, Miss Ada, became the bride of Mettus Rubingh of Essex.

The service was read by the Rev. Henry Rubingh, a brother of the groom. The bride wore a beautiful gown of royal blue silk poplin.

After the ceremony a nice supper was served to the relatives and friends present, and in the evening the Young People's society of the Holland church of Essex, of which the bride and groom are both members, were entertained.

Mr. and Mrs. Rubingh have gone to live with the groom's parents at Essex.

The third grade are taking division this week in arithmetic.

Roley Baumbach was absent from school Monday.

The eighth grade are tnking Form of Government in geography.

Lloyd Parsons was absent from school last week on account of sickness.

The eighth grade are reviewing denominate numbers in arithmetic tbis week.

Earl Baumbach is helping his father. Better come to school, Earl.

We have found two enterpilliars. We are keeping them for butterfles.

Last week Thursday was a great day for accidents. Elliott Mason and two other boys were riding down Mr. Montgomery's hill, and losing control of the sleigh, ran into the barbed wire fence. Elliott'a face was badly cut. In the afternoon Lester Brooks ran against a fence post, rupturing his left kidney. Dr. Vis of Central Lake was called, and though some better, Lester is still confined to his bed. The schoolyard is now good enough for the pupils to coast on.

PLEASANT HILL.

Mr. and Mrs. John Fielstra visited in East Jordan, Wednesday.

Harm Fielstra returned to Detroit Monday, after visiting at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Fielstra and attending the DeYoung-Rubingh wedding.

MILES DISTRICT.

We have received an addition of forty-five new library books.

Sadie and Anna Murphy spent Sunday with Sarah and Jessie Sherman.

Talk about typical spring, fall and winter days. Friday was perfect in all. The fall came on the ice.

Minnie und Mary Cineush have returned to school, after being absent on account of their brother-in-law, (Mr. Eaton's) death.

Some people are trying to hasten spring by taking buggies instead of cutters. They gave up the nttempt before arriving at their desinntion.

One of the girls in coming to school was taking a short cut. Her progress was impeded between the willow tree and the mail boxes. The boys came to her resuce but none escaped without wet feet.

We want to buy your wood. Come in and see us. Ellsworth Produce Co.—Adv.7tf.

POULTRY and EGGS

CHOOSING AN INCUBATOR.

Fertile Eggs the Prime Need of the Artificial Hatching of Chicks.

If a good make of incubator is used and properly operated the cause of poor hatches is generally due to some outside condition that has affected the eggs, writes a correspondent of the Country Gentleman. The incubator, no matter how good, cnuaot vitalize eggs with weak germs, nor can it hatch the best of eggs without intelligent operation. But if the eggs are hatchable the machine will hatch them fully as well as the hen and in much larger quantities.

Many persons expect too much from incubators. Hatches of 95 to 100 per cent are the exception, aot the rule, and it should be remembered that the average is much less. When small flocks are kept and allowed freedom, as on most farms, hatches of 75 to 80 per cent are very good. Many of the large poultry plants do not average more than 60 per cent. When the batch fails, though the machine has been properly operated, look to the stock for the cause.

Minorcas are one of the great egg laying breed. They are larger than the Leghorns, the males weighing from 7½ to 9 pounds and the females from 6½ to 7½ pounds. They are supposed to have originated in Spain, or, according to some authorities, in the island of Minorca, off the coast of Spain. The Minorcas have been brought to their highest perfection in England, from where they were imported to America in 1878. The cock shown is a Black Minorca.

The prospective purchaser of an incubator is, if without experience, greatly perplexed by the claims made for various types of machines. There are two general classes of incubators—hot air and hot water heat, each class having machines of the moisture and the nonmoisture type.

The hot air heated machines are those in which fresh air is taken in at the lamp, heated by it and passed through the egg chamber, usually first passing over a metal radiator above the eggs, then over the eggs and out through variously arranged outlets. In some hot air machines the heated air only passes over the radiator above the eggs, never entering the egg chamber. The hot water machines are heated by tanks or pipes above the egg trays in which water heated by a lamp circulates.

Incubators of the radiator type, either hot air or hot water, obtain ventilation through special opealags. The ventilation of machines in which the heated air enters the egg chamber is through this heated current of air. It has been claimed by some that this method of allowing the heated air from the lamp to enter the egg chamber is detrimental to a good hatch on account of the liability of the lamp's throwing off gases. This, however, does not prove to be the case, for one of the most successful incubators manufactured has this method of heating and ventilation. I have in mind three prominent makes of machines, one of each type, that have given in our experience equal results when worked under the same conditions with eggs from the same stock preserved for hatching by methods that assure equal fertility.

The question of whether a machine using moisture is better than one of the nonmoisture type is one that the buyer must decide. There are in use as many of one as of the other, and they give equally good results. The questions of moisture and heating are really matters for personal solution. Experience has shown us that incubators built to use moisture pans do not give good results when the pans are not used. Nor are nonmoisture machines improved by the use of moisture pans.

Mammoth incubators are all heated by hot water circulating from coal stoves. Most of them are of the nonmoisture type, though one manufacturer has recently included moisture pans as part of the regular equipment of his machines, believing moisture has proved somewhat helpful in securing good hatches. But both types have given good results.

Placing Hen Roosts.

It matters but little where the roosts are arranged provided they are out of the way of those who are compelled to pass in and out. The roosts should be in such a position that the fowls will be warm and comfortable, the main object being to avoid drafts or currents of air.

ANTRIM CITY.

Everybody seems glad to see the snow going so fast.

Mrs. John Simon, who has been quite sick, is able to be up again.

Mr. Rice took a load of furniture over to their new home, Saturday.

Mrs. Montgomery had an attack of grippe, but is some better at this writing.

Mr. Baumbach has been hauling some big loads of hay, while sleighing was good.

Some of our young men were at the "hard time" party at Atwood, and report a good time. Young folks are only young once.

A number of young people gathered at the home of Mr. Rice, Tuesday evening, and had a jolly time before they left in the small hours of the morning.

Some big time in our town. A number of friends were at Mr. Knight's Monday evening to a birthday party. Some valuable presents were given, such as beans and potatoes.

Lester Brooks, who had an argument with a fence post while sliding down hill, is able to be around the house again. The fence post was too much for Lester. But we are all glad to hear he is getting better.

Mr. Phelps, we are very sorry we made a sad mistake some time back. But we were not informed different until it had gone to print. So now we beg your pardon. You should not blame a person for what they don't know. We are sorry it occurred.

MORE FUNSTONS WANTED.

The last bill of the sixty-fourth congress which President Wilson signed was a measure to pension Gen. Funston's widow at the rate of $100.00 a month. This seems a slender stipend with which to measure Funston's services to the nation; yet there were some members who objected even to this, on the ground that it would set a precedent. We are entirely willing that such a precedent should be set and that any man hereafter who shall render as much and as creditable service to the country as Funston did shall know that his widow will receive a pension at this figure.

THE WRONG REASON.

In the interview given out by him immediately after the adjournment of congress, President Wilson said that because of the senate filibuster the executive and legislative departments have been paralyzed. The executive department has been paralyzed or worse than paralyzed for four years, but not on account of any senate filibuster.

You Can Make Excellent Cake with Fewer Eggs

Just use an additional quantity of Royal Baking Powder, about a teaspoon, in place of each egg omitted.

This applies equally well to nearly all baked foods. Try the following recipe according to the new way:

CREAM LAYER CAKE

Old Way	New Way
1 cup sugar	1 cup sugar
½ cup milk	1 cup milk
2 cups flour	2 cups flour
2 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder	4 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
3 eggs	1 egg
½ cup shortening	2 tablespoons shortening
1 teaspoon flavoring	1 teaspoon flavoring

Makes 1 Large 2-Layer Cake

DIRECTIONS—Cream the sugar and shortening together, then mix in the egg. After sifting the flour and Royal Baking Powder together two or three times, add it all to the mixture. Gradually add the milk and beat with spoon until you have a smooth pour batter. Add the flavoring. Pour into greased layer cake tins and bake in a moderately hot oven for twenty minutes. This cake is best baked in two layers. Put together with cream filling and spread with white icing

THEATRICAL.

Second in the series of George McManus' famous cartoon comedies "Bringing Up Father in Politics," comes to the Charlevoix Theatre, April 5. It is entirely new this season from beginning to end. New story, new scenery, costumes and music, as well as some new faces; but the principal characters which have made the famous cartoons are retained as a matter of course. This offering may well be described as a continuous succession of "Screams of Laughter," a rattling, sure, quick fire musical potpourri of the comical side of politics, with hits and misses timed to the minute and geared to the second, presented in three rallys and a punch. Some of the special features are: "The Political Parade" with a never ending panarama of ludicrous situations and funny characters. "Father's Suffragette Speech," which is funnier than than any stump speech you have ever heard. Mother's new Parisian gowns and father's odd political opinions; Oswald in the bal masque as a ballet girl. These are all set to lingering and entrancing melodies which are sweetly sung by a chorus of charming damsels, about whose beauty there can be no question. This is by far the best and most pretentious production Gus Hill has offered, in fact it is the most entertaining and likeable musical comedy attraction you are likely to have an opportunity to attend this season.

Hell to Pay Austin.

Hell to Pay Austin is a lumber king who earns this sobriquet because of his "mailed fist" attitude toward his underlings in camp. He is a man of the world, has seen much and sown wild oats. To the little orphan of the camp, who is nicknamed Briar Rose, he exhibits another side of his character. To her he is not a bully and a brow-beater but a thoughtful, kind and courageous man. She is very much in love with him but another woman who comes out from the past throws her unhappy shadow across their path to the altar. By a kindly fate the shadow of the scheming woman is soon removed and Cupid's mission is fulfilled.

Many of the scenes of this production are laid in the lumber country and vibrate with elemental and highly dramatic situations. At the Majestic, Thursday, March 29.

FIVE AMENDMENTS TO BE VOTED ON HIGHWAY AMENDMENTS OF SPECIAL IMPORTANCE.

Voters Should Read All Carefully Before Casting Ballot at April Election.

Bills are up about town bearing the text of the five amendments to the state constitution which will be presented to the voter for his decision at the April election.

The first on the list is an amendment to Article VIII, adding thereto a section (to be known as Section 15a), authorizing any drainage district, established under provision of law, to issue bonds for drainage purposes within such district.

The second is an amendment to Section 1 of Article III, providing that no duly qualified elector of this state shall lose his vote by reason of absence from his place of residence while in the actual service of the United States, or of the State of Michigan, giving the legislature power to determine the manner in which and the time and place at which the said absentee voter shall cast his vote and also to pass laws covering qualified electors who may be necessarily absent from other causes than the one specified above.

The third is an amendment to Article X, contemplating the addition of a new section to be known as Section 20, giving to the state the right to acquire, purchase, take hold and operate any railroad, or railroad property, belonging to any railroad or railway company in this state heretofore organized under a special charter, still in force and effect and constituting a contract between the state and said company, when to the legislature it shall appear that such purchase or acquisition is necessary to conserve the rights and interests of the state under such charter or contract.

Number four, an amendment to Section 26 of Article VIII, is in relation to the construction, improvement and maintainance of highways. We give the full text of this amendment below, as it is of special interest to Charlevoix county voters:

Section 26. The legislature may by general law provide for the laying out, construction, improvement and maintainance of highways, bridges and culverts by the state and by the counties and townships thereof and by road districts; and may authorize counties or districts to take charge and control of any highway within their limits for such purposes. The legislature may also by general law prescribe the powers and duties of boards of supervisors in relation to highways, bridges and culverts; may provide for county and district road commissioners to be appointed or elected, with such powers and duties as may be prescribed by law; and may change and abolish the powers and duties of township commissioners and overseers of highways. The legislature may provide by law for submitting the question of adopting the county road system to the electors of the counties, and such road system shall not go into operation in any county until approved by a majority of the electors thereof voting thereon. The tax raised for road purposes by counties shall not exceed in any one year five dollars upon each one thousand dollars of assessed valuation for the preceding year.

The fifth and last amendment provides for the increasing of the salaries of the governor and attorney general to $5,000.00 per annum and those of the secretary of state, state treasurer and auditor general to four thousand dollars; that they shall receive no fees or perquisites whatever for the performance of any duties connected with their offices, and that it shall not be competent for the legislature to increase the salaries provided in this amendment.

NEIGHBORS HELP CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Shapton Surprised by Friends.

The Charlevoix people living in Flint have not forgotten how to get up a surprise party. Tuesday morning of last week the news spread that Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Shapton would celebrate their 28th wedding anniversary on Wednesday, March 21, so on that date at 7:30, from street car, mud and side walk, we all gathered on the corner of Green street and crept silently upon the porch of the Purdy home and walked in.

To say they were surprised would be putting it mild. Charlevoix gossip flew so fast the air was blue, or perhaps it was the wedding cigars which the men enjoyed. I do not think Mr. and Mrs. Shapton were the only one who enjoyed the party. Ice cream, cake and coffee were served by Mr. and Mrs. Purdy, and at a late hour we departed, all voting to do it again.

The happy couple were presented with a beautiful hyderanga and cut flowers. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. J. Belling, Mr. and Mrs. Durgan and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. W. Black and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Campbell and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. V. O. Cram, Mr. and Mrs. L. Cram, Mrs. Frank Hardy, Milton O'Brien, Mrs. Julia Cram and Mr. and Mrs. Dan Durance.

We are having beautiful spring weather, the ground is getting a little green and robins have been here for three weeks.

Swiss Cowbells.

It is the custom of Swiss mountaineers to hang bells on the necks of their cows, and so accustomed and attached do the animals become to these bells that the deprivation of them is felt as a punishment. If any cow has been guilty of straying or unseemly behavior, a breach of discipline or any vicious trick the displeasure of the herdsman is not testified by blows, but by temporary deprivation of her bell, and this seldom fails to reduce her to order and to prevent a repetition of the offense.

DIED AFTER ILLNESS OF WEEK'S DURATION

Bronchial Pneumonia Causes Death of Little Sutton Girl.

Florence Evelyn, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Sutton, died at the home of her parents in Flint of bronchial pneumonia, Tuesday, March 13, after an illness of only a week's duration.

The little girl was a mere baby, one year and eleven months old, the youngest of three children, and with a child of this age pneumonia goes very hard and acts with dreadful swiftness.

Funeral services were held at Alanson, Michigan, where the little body was laid to rest. After the funeral, Mr. Sutton went back to Flint and the bereaved mother came on to Charlevoix to visit her mother-in-law, Mrs. William Sutton, Sr., on the Norwood road.

Mrs. Sutton was caught in the tie-up on the G. R. & I. and had been on the road from three o'clock a week ago Wednesday until Thursday night, when she arrived in Petoskey. She returned to Flint last week.

C. C. A. ENDORSES GOOD ROADS PLAN

RESOLUTION WAS WIRED TO SENATOR MORFORD.

Association Goes On Record In Favor of Concrete Construction for Dixie Highway.

We won't insult nny man's intelligence by asking him to compsre a concrete road that will last fifty years with an ordinary dirt roud which has to be repaired commencing the second year of its life and every year thereafter and finally has to be rebuilt entirely in a few years. We need only polnt to the shining exsmple in our town, preaented by the two hundred feet of concrete roadway laid on Bridge street, opposite the Hotel Michigan, which has been down eight years, and the one mile on Dixon Avenue which has been in use for seven years—both of which are as good today as the day they were laid, burring a few crucks which have opened up in the Dixon Avenue pavement and which only need cleaning with a wire broom and filling with asphalt to present again a perfect wearing surface.

At a meeting of the Charlevoix Commercial Association held Friday evening last, two sets of resolutions were drawn up, adopted and the first one telegraphed to the senator from this district, J. Lee Morford. Both resolutions are reproduced below for the benefit of our readers:

WHEREAS:

This Association recognizes the value of organization in County Road construction and maintenance and

WHEREAS:

Senate Bill No. 274 now in the hands of the Senate Roads and Bridges Committee appears to perfect such organization. Therefore be it

RESOLVED:

That this Association heartily favors the passage of said bill and that the President and Secretary be and are hereby instructed to telegraph Senator Morford urging his support and influence.

WHEREAS:

This Association recognized the benefits to be derived by Charlevoix County from the application of Federal Reward to our State and County Trunk line roads and

WHEREAS:

It is demonstrated that this fund may be made available only by constitutional change. Therefore be it

RESOLVED:

That this association heartily supports the proposed change in Constitution to be voted on Monday April 2nd and that the President appoint such committees as may seem necessary in support of the change.

Federal aid became a fact July 11th of last yenr, when legislation which will result in the spending of $150,000,000 for roads was passed by congress and signed by the president. The law provides tbst the federal government shall not contribute more than fifty per cent to the financing of any road project in any state, and the ronds to be built with such federal moneys must be pnrt of a nntional state system. The state puts up fifteen per cent of the required amount and Charlevoix County must find the remaining thirty-five per cent. Now, the legislature at Lansing, in order to get Michigan in line for federal aid has drafted an amendment to tho constitution, giving the state greater powers over the local road officials of the state and a latitude over general road construction sufficiently broad to measure up to the Federal government's requirements in this direction. The amendment was submitted to the people Monday and we hope it passed, as it means much to Michigan as a state and Northern Michigan in particular. The full text of this amendment was printed in our last issue and the voter is by this time familinr with it.

The association members, at their meeting Friday night unanimously fnvored the plan of building concrete ronds in order to avail ourselves of state and national aid, and vigorously condemned the practice of throwing away the people's money in the building of gravel roads, nnd which are here today and gone tomorrow.

Patient waiting is false economy in everything and it is very desirable that every foot of the Dixis Highwsy should consist of a permanent roadway. This mesns concrete in all places except where paving brick are obtainable at a small expense.

Charlevoix County offers greater inducements to tourists as well as investors, we believe, than any ether county on the Dixie Highway and the West Michigan Pike. While it is estimated that ten thousand tourists went into Florida by rail last season and sixty-four thousnd cars carrying on an average four passengers each, we believe that at least as many people will come to us over the Dixie Highway when it is finished and, after they have made the trip around Pine Lake, there is no reason wby they should not be induced to build just as elegant residences and buy as much property here as they have in Florida. This will be a business game of playing Michigan aguinst Florida—in other words, both ends against the middle nnd rely on the roads crossing the two main north and south arteries of travel to furnish the pawns for the players.

In order that the tourist may see for himself and be convinced, it is proposed to erect signs at the north and south ends of the town. At the corner of Antrim street and tho Dixie Highway, a sign will read, "Be Sure and Drive Around Pine Lake Before Going Farther North." A sign two blocks below will urge the tourist to read the sign at the next corner. On the North side of the city, a similar sign will advise him to make the trip around Pine Lake before going farther south.

While speaking of Charlevoix County and its advantages, we do not underestimate the value of the Muckinac trail, because, without a doubt, Boyne City and East Jordan will both emulate the plan we have adopted here of directing every tourist to be sure and make a drive around Pine Lake before he goes further on his journey.

We have been told of a farm of 100 acres in Florida between Winter Haven and Bartow, where they raised four crops during last season of cabbage, potatoes, lettuce, and celery and made a profit of eighty thousand dollars. The Dixie Highway from Traverse City to Mackinac will run through one of the best all around fruit sections of the State. We state emphatically thnt our cherries excel everything put on the market and they pay a profit of from three to five hundred dollars per acre.

Charlevoix County will welcome all visitors over the Dixie Highway or Mackinac Trail and will be pleased to have them register nt the Courier office in Charlevoix city, where maps and information will be cheerfully furnished. Hotel men who are up to date and can furnish first class accommodations enn be assured of a large business in this county and the matter is well worth investigating.

GERMAN II FEED A SUCCESS

Don't Forget to Ask Socrates About The "Dogs."

The Kaiser's chef would have blushed for shame if he could have partaken of the banquet that the German II class enjoyed at the Domestic Science room last Thursday evening. Only German eatables were on the bill of fare, which made it more fitting for the occasion.

Through the kindness of Miss Horst, many German dainties were prepared, which each member of the class did justice to.

Mr. Craig wns the guest of honor and entertained us by his limited German vocabulary. After the supper each member perpetrated a German joke. The conversation was entirely in German, which kept a number silent.

The evening was very pleasantly and profitably spent and all pitched in and did the work. If further information is wanted, ask Walker about the biscuits and Socrates about the dogs!

Much Smoke, Little Fire.

Saturdny afternoon nt two o'clock the fire department was called to the house on West Garfield Avenue occupied by "Chub" Lusk (formerly the old Green mansion thnt stood in the park on Bridge street) to find u mattress on fire and lots of smoke and scnre but not much blaze. The bedding was thrown out the window the population went back down the hill and the "best little city anywhere" resumed its normal Saturday nfternoon occupation of entertaining our rural visitors.

UNCLE SAM COMES TO CITY

PRIVATE OR AN MC GINNIS WANTS "ROOKIES."

Office In Levinson Block Where Banner Floats Bearing Summons to Colors.

Rumors of war are in the air and on Bridge street a new banner has been flung to the April breozes (snd showers) proclaiming Uncle Sam's need of hsrdy Michigan ynuths to swell the ranks of the nation's defenders.

First Class Private Oran McGinnis has been sent from Grand Rapids recruiting station to get men for the United States Army. He has opened an office in the Levinson block and will be right on the job to answer any and all questions about the service that the prospective recruit wants to ask. He is also qualified to examine all applicants und send them to the main station at Grand Rapids.

From latest advices, aa this article is being written, we are actually at war with Germany. Now, while it is always a ticklish proposition to urge the other fellow to enlist (the idea being, "Why don't you go yourself") we want to say that now we are into this mill, it is up to every individual citizen to get on his war togs, whether he goes to fight in the first line of defense or has to stay at home and keep the ball rolling at the base of supplies. We want to show Kalser Bill that this isn't any pink tea or old ladies' sociable he has blundered into and that he is going to get a run for his money. If past history counts for anything it is safe to say that notwithstanding what the allies bave been disposed to hand us about our slowness at getting our dander up, when we actually get ever there and start "playing ball' there'll be something doing nll the time and plenty of "smoke" for the rest of the bunch to watch. Don't you believe for a minute boys, that old Uncle Sammy has lost his "puneh" He's still there with the goods, and you ean bet he has a few tricks up his sleeve that the War Lord isn't next to.

So, you fellows who are planning to stick around Charlevoix this summer, grab up some easy money and then loaf this winter or visit with "friends" in Detroit or somewhere else, come down to earth and prove your right to exist in this great free country of opportunity we live in by "doing your bit." The country needs you in this work, just as it needs the loyal service of every man woman and child within its confines.

WARNING TO AUTO OWNERS

License Now Or License Plus Fine Later.

Once again the Chief of Police would warn owners of automobiles and "Lizzies" that 1917 license tags must be in their proper places on the cars before they are brought out of storage this month.

Closer attention will he paid this matter of licenses this year than ever before and the first man caught is likely to become a horrible exumple for the others to avoid. Remember, the price of a license now is less than license fee plus a stiff fine later on. Economy and safety first.

FEATHERED VISITORS COMING

BIRDS MIGRATING DAILY FROM SOUTHERN HAUNTS

And Some Go Farther North This Month—Warns Ruthless Boy Gun Is Proof of Guilt

One of our lady readers has turned in the following contribution, which is quite timely and interesting and we are glad to reproduce it below under the caption which she has chosen:

Some Facts About Birds

Old winter is saying Adieu, the snow is disappearing and in the sheltered nooks, bits of green are showing, or here and there peeping out from a cover of leaves and one feels within himself something which responds to Nature's awakening—nn indefinable longingto get out into the woods or fields nnd to learn more of nature's wonderful gifts.

With the spring come the birds, and migrations nre soon in full swing. The small list of birds remnining with us here during the winter, is daily augmented with new arrivals from the south, while a few of our winter visitors have taken their departure. Among these latter nre the Pine Grosbecks, Bohemian Waxwings, and Snow Buntings. Our most common winter visitors are perhaps the Redpolls, and when one has made their acquaintence, he is possessed with a feeling of the greatest good cheer. These little birds feed in the happiest manner upon the seeds of the weeds and shrubs which protrude above the snow. They are still here, but will have gone to their Northern breeding places by the end of April.

We are sorry to state that only last week several of these charming songsters fell before the guns of ruthless boy hunters. It is well that boys should know that the killing of any birds, even the English Sparrows, is unlawful after March 1st. and any boy seen nfter that date with a gun of any kind is liable to arrest and appearanco before the Probnte Court, upon the complaint of any eyewitness to such depredation. In nn eager search for English Sparrows, one unfamiliar with birds mny mnke many mistakes, notably in the Redpnlls above mentioned, in the Horned Larks, which nre numerous in the fields and on the roadsides, and in the Vesper, Song and Chipping Sparrow.

After all, why do we not learn to love the birds? Everyone loves the Robin and welcomes his return in the Spring as an old and trusted friend. Other early arrivals nre the Song Sparrow and "the little nut brown Wren" who delight us with their lovely music and cheery ways, and we do not have to leave our door yards to make their acquaintance.

Let us protect these feathered friends as one of nature's most acceptable gifts.

COMMUNITY REVIVAL A GREAT SUCCESS

Rev. Zoller and Associates Draw The Crowds.

The Zoller Evangelistic Party have carried the town by storm. Crowds packed the big garage room at Hooker's Sundny morning and have filled it each evening since, joining heartily in the singing of the good old hymns, led by the inimitable Mr. Sutherland and his big choir nnd listening with rapt attention to the wonderful playing of the blind artiste whose very soul seems to be in his fingers. Mnny may be seen there nightly who never darken the doors of n church, drawn by the splendid music and the forceful straight-from-the shoulder preaching of the Rev. Zoller, who has a messnge for the people and does not mince matters in its delivery.

Charlevoix hns not had such nn inspiring intellectual nnd musical trent since the last Chautauquá and we are glnd to see that the people nre responding with such enthusiasm to the efforts which have been made to quicken the religious life of the community.

PIONEER OBSERVES 80TH. BIRTHDAY

MRS. SYLVIA WHITMOYER CELEBRATES EVENT.

At California Home—Came Here To Pine River In 1870, Taught First Term of School

Upon the occasion of her eightieth birthday, Mrs. Sylvia Whitmoyer wns tendered a reception at the home of her daughter, Mrs. F. P. Merrill, 606 Cherry street.

The rooms were decorated with flowers and foliage in season. Over an archway was a beautifully decorated banner bearing the dates 1837—1917. In one corner of the darkened dining room on a vine clad ladder brightly burned eighty wax tapers, a striking visual evidence of the many years in the life of an octogenarian.

The house was filled with relatives and friends, and the presents were numerous. Among the collection were letters of congratulation from friends in California and from her former home in Michignn.

Rereshments were served, and as a part of the entertainment, a sketch of Mrs. Whitmoyer's life was read.—Chico Record, Chico, Calif.

Mrs. Whitmoyer was one of the pioneers of Charlevoix County, having come to what was then Pine River in 1870. She taught the first term of school in the frame school building that was destroyed by fire in 1887. Some of the prominent business men of Charlevoix today were among her pupils. Since the death of her husband in 1907 she has spent most of her time with her son and daughter living in California.

Mrs. Whitmoyer's many friends in Charlevoix will be pleased to know she is well preserved in mind and body after such a long and useful life.

Boat Schedule.

The steamer Columbia will operate on the following schedule as soon as the ice permits:

Leave Beaver Island, 7:00 A. M.
Arrive Charlevoix, 10:00 A. M.
Leave Charlevoix, 1:30 P. M.
Arrive Beaver Island, 4:30 P. M.

This schedule is subject to change. Adv-14tl.

PUTTING BRAKE ON WAR REPORTS

NO INFORMATION OF VALUE TO AN ENEMY

Is To Be Published in Newspapers of the United States During Present Crisis.

An official request to the press of the country to refrain from publishing "Information, rumors of reports tending to disclose the military and naval activities of the United States," was last week submitted to the American press through the press associations by the state, war and navy departments following a conference last week with heads of press associations.

The regulations framed by the board and submitted today read:

"In view of the dssire of the press of the country to refrain from publication of information harmful to the public interest and with the intention of securing the maximum publicity with the least possible lajury thereto, the following reguiations are hereby issued for its guidnnce, which it is earnestly requested be elosely observed.

"1. No information, reports or rumors shall be published which will tend to disclose the military pollcies of the government of the United States. (This regulation is directed against the publication of any news or comment which might reveal the stragetic disposition of operation of nrmies or their sub-divisions, or the fleet or their subdivisions; any measure which might be adopted in consonnnce with the department of state for the furthernnce of American defense, and in general, any plans for the use of the army and navy during the existence of a national emergency.)

"2. No information, reports or rumors should bo published which tend to disclose:

(A) Movementa or employment of armies and their sub-divisions, fleets and their sub-divisions.

(B) Movements of vessels of the navy or their arrival at or dsparture from any port.

(C) Departure of merchant vessels should not be mentioned and it is desired thnt the name of the port of arrival be omitted.

(D) Assignment or movement whether as groups or individuals; of officers nnd men of the military and naval establishments.

(E) Transportation of mails, supplies or munitions.

(F) Information of any designs, inventions, or testa tbereof; or of manufacture, transport or distribution of implements of war.

(G) Concentrations of military or naval supplies, or locntions of such supplies.

(H) Activities in and about arsenals, fortifications, army posts, naval magaziaes, navy yards, naval bases and radio stations.

"3. Publication of any maps, diagrams or photographs, which in any way migbt seem of military er naval value.

"4. No moving pictures should be displayed which might be of military or naval value.

"5. Any doubtful matter should be submitted to the authorized representatives of the department concerned, who shall give an immediate decision thereon, and keep the inquiry made strictly confidential.

"6. It is requested thnt no information, reports, or rumors, attributing a policy to the government in any international situation, not authorized by the president, or a member of the cabinet, be published without first consulting the department of state."

Secretaries Baker and Daniels of the war and navy departments; Frank Polk, counselor of the state department; representatives of the United Press, the Associated Press and two other news distributing agencies voluntarily agreed to observe the regulations and to use influence to have newspapers thruout the United States observe them.

RECORD OF THE PAST

No Stronger Evidence Can Be Had In Charlevoix

Look well to their record. What they have done many times in years gone by is the best guarantee of future results. Anyone with a bad back; any reader suffering from urinary troubles from kidney ills, should find comforting words in the following statement.

Mrs. M. Olney, 310 W. Hurlburt St., Charlevoix, says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills on different occasions for kidney trouble. I suffered from severe backaches and Doan's Kidney Pills greatly benefited me." (Statement given October 25, 1911.)

USES DOAN'S AGAIN

On October 4, 1916 Mrs. Olney said: "I have never found a kidney medicine that can equal Doan's Kidney Pills. The occasional use of this medicine as a tonic keeps my kidneys in good condition. I will never go back on what I have said before in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills."

Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Olney has twice publicly recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Patsy Flannagan is overseeing the building of a boat dock on the lake frontage of Mr. Lord's farm.

The Misses Pansy and Inez Hammond spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. William Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Howe.

Miss Bessie Allen, who has been teaching during the winter months at Springvale, is spending the Easter vacation with her parents.

There is to be a ten cent tea at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. Alexander Thursday evening. Everyone come and bring those precious little dimes.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Barnum are spending a few days at the home of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Alexander, before going to Lake City, which will be their future home.

Mrs. Jack McCall and two children returned home Friday after spending a few weeks with her father, Frank Richardson.

Harry Pearl returned home Tuesday to Chicago. His niece, Mrs. George Perry, accompanied him and will spend a couple of week's at the former's home.

Beware of Ointments For Catarrh That Contain Mercury

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Sold by Druggists. Price 75c per bottle.

HEART of the SUNSET

By REX BEACH

Author of "The Spoilers," "The Iron Trail," "The Silver Horde," Etc.

"I've been busy while you were gone," he announced. "Been down to the pump house every day laying that new intake. It was a nasty job, too. I had Morales barbecue a cabrito for my lunch, and it was good, but I'm hungry again." Austin attacked his meal with an enthusiasm strange in him. He was a heavy and a constant drinker at all times. What little exercise he took was upon the back of a horse, and, as no one knew better than his wife, the physical powers he once had were rapidly deteriorating.

By and by he inquired, vaguely: "Let's see. . . . Where did you go this time?"

"I went up to look over the Ygnacio tract."

"Oh, yes. Think you'll lease it?"

"I don't know. I must find some place for those La Feria cattle."

Austin shook his head. "Better leave 'em where they are, until the rebels take that country. I stand mighty well with them."

"That's the trouble," Alaire told him. "You stand too well—so well that I want to get my stock out of federal territory as soon as possible."

Ed shrugged carelessly. "Suit yourself; they're your cows."

The meal went on with a desultory flow of small talk, during which the husband indulged his thirst freely. Alaire told him about the accident to her horse and the unpleasant ordeal she had suffered in the mesquite.

"Lucky you found somebody at the water hole," Ed commented. "Who was this ranger? Never heard of the fellow," he commented on the name. "The rangers I'm acquainted with are not used to it."

"This fellow would do credit to any organization." As Alaire described how expeditiously Law had made his arrest and handled his man, her husband showed interest.

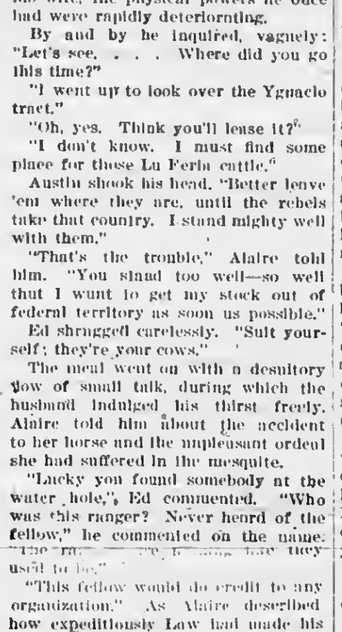
"Nicolas Auto, eh?" said he. "Who was his companero?"

"Panfilo Sanchez."

Ed snorted. "That's strange! They must have met accidentally."

"So they both declared. Why did you let Panfilo go?"

"We didn't need him here, and he was too good a man to lose, so—" Ed



"Who Was This Ranger?"

found his wife's eyes fixed upon him, and dropped his own. "I knew you were short-handed at La Feria." There was an interval of silence, then Ed exclaimed, testily, "What are you looking at?"

"I wondered what you'd say."

"Eh? Can't I fire a man without a long-winded explanation? Just because I've let you run things to suit yourself—"

"Wait! We had our understanding." Alaire's voice was low and vibrant. "It was my payment for living with you, and you know it. You gave me the reins to Las Palmas so that I'd have something to do, something to live for and think about, except—your actions. The ranch has doubled in value, every penny is accounted for, and you have more money to spend on yourself than ever before. You have no reason to complain."

Austin crushed his napkin into a ball and flung it from him; with a scowl he shoved himself back from the table.

"It was an idiotic arrangement, just the same. I agreed because I was sick. Dad thought I was all shot to pieces. But I'm all right now and able to run my own business."

"Nevertheless, it was a bargain, and it will stand. If your father were alive he'd make you live up to it."

"You talk as if I were a child," shouted her husband; and his plump face was apoplectic with rage. "The title is in my name. How could he make me do anything?"

"Nobody could force you," his wife said, quietly. "You are still enough of a man to keep your word, I believe, so long as I observe my part of our bargain?"

Ed, slightly mollified, agreed. "Of course I am; I never welched. But I won't be treated as an incompetent, and I'm tired of these eternal wrangles and jangles."

"You have welched."

"Eh?" Austin frowned belligerently.

"You agreed to go away when you felt your appetite coming on, and you promised to live clean, at least around home."

"Well?"

Alaire went on in a lifeless tone that covered the seething emotions within her. "I never inquire into your actions at San Antonio or other large cities, although of course I have ears and I can't help hearing about them; but these border towns are home to us, and people know me. I won't be humiliated more than I am; public pity is—hard enough to bear. I've about reached the breaking point."

"Indeed?" Austin leaned forward, his eyes inflamed. His face was raised, heedless of possible eavesdroppers. "Then why don't you end it? Why don't you divorce me? I never see anything of you. You have your part of the house and I have mine; all we share in common is meal hours, and—and a mail address."

Alaire turned upon him eyes dark with misery. "You know why I don't divorce you. No, Ed, we're going to live out our agreement, and these Brownsville episodes are going to cease." Her lips whitened. "So are your visits to the pumping station."

"What do you mean by that?"

"You transferred Panfilo because he was growing jealous of you and Rosa."

Ed burst into sudden laughter. "There's no harm in a little flirtation. Rosa's a pretty girl."

His wife uttered a breathless, smothered exclamation; her hands, as they lay on the table cloth, were tightly clenched. "She's your tenant—almost your servant. What kind of a man are you? Haven't you any decency left?"

"Say! Go easy! I guess I'm no different to most men." Austin's unpleasant laughter had been succeeded by a still more unpleasant scowl. "I have to do something. It's dead enough around here—"

"You must stop going there."

"Humph! I notice you go where you please. Rosa and I never spent a night together in the chaparral—"

"Ed!" Alaire's exclamation was like the snap of a whip. She rose and faced her husband, quivering as if the lash had stung her flesh.

"That went home, eh? Well, I'm no fool! I've seen something of the world, and I've found that women are about like men. I'd like to have a look at this David Law, this gunman, this Handsome Harry who waits at water holes for ladies in distress." Ed ignored his wife's outflung hand, and continued, mockingly: "I'll bet he's all that's manly and splendid, everything that I'm not."

"You'd—better stop," gasped the woman. "I can't stand everything."

"So? Well, neither can I."

"After—this, I think you'd better go—to San Antonio. Maybe I'll forget before you come back."

To this "Young Ed" agreed quickly enough. "Good!" said he. "That suits me. I'll at least get a little peace at my club." He glowered after his wife as she left the room. Then, still scowling, he lurched out to the gallery where the breeze was blowing, and flung himself into a chair.

* * * * * * *

Ed's marriage to Alaire had been inevitable. They had been playmates, and their parents had considered the union a consummation of their own lifelong friendship. Upon her mother's death Alaire had been sent abroad, and there she remained while "Young Ed" attended an eastern college. For any child the experience would have been a lonesome one, and through it the motherless Texas girl had grown into an imaginative, sentimental person, living in a make-believe world, peopled, for the most part, with the best-remembered figures of romance and fiction. There were, of course, some few flesh-and-blood heroes among the rest, and of these the finest and the noblest had been "Young Ed" Austin.

When she came home to marry, Alaire was still very much of a child, and she still considered Ed her knight. As for him, he was captivated by this splendid, handsome girl, whom he remembered only as a shy, red-headed little comrade.

As Las Palmas had been the elder Austin's wedding gift to his son, so Alaire's dowry from her father had been La Feria, a grant of lands across the Rio Grande beyond the twenty-league belt by which Mexico fatuously strives to guard her border. And to Las Palmas had come the bride and groom to live, to love and to rear their children.

But rarely has there been a shorter honeymoon, seldom a swifter awakening. Within six months "Young Ed" had killed his wife's love and had himself become an alcoholic. Other vices so multiplied that what few virtues the young man had inherited were soon choked. To the bride the truth had come as a stunning tragedy. The wreck of her hopes and glad imaginings left her sick, bewildered, in the face of "the thing that couldn't."

Nor had the effect of this transformation in "Young Ed" been any less painful to his father. When the truth was borne in upon him unmistakably, and the girl-wife remained firm in her refusal to divorce her husband, the understanding had been reached by which the management of Las Palmas was placed absolutely in her hands.

Of course the truth became public, as it always does. "Young Ed" Austin's life became a scorn and a hissing among his neighbors. They were not unduly fastidious, these neighbors, and they knew that hot blood requires more than a generation to cool, but everything Ed did outraged them. In trying to show their sympathy for his wife they succeeded in wounding her more deeply, and Alaire withdrew into herself. She had changed. The alteration reached to the very bone and marrow of her being. At first the general pity had wounded her, then it had offended, and finally angered her. That people should notice her affliction, particularly when she strove so desperately to hide it, seemed the height of insolence.

The management of Las Palmas was almost her only relief. Having sprung from a family of ranchers, the work came easy, and she grew to like it—as well as she could like anything with that ever-present pain in her breast. Las Palmas had prospered to admiration, and La Feria would have prospered equally had it not been for the armed unrest of the country across the border. No finer stock than the "Box A" was to be found anywhere. But Alaire had not confined her efforts to cattle; she had improved the breed of "Box A" horses, too, and hand in hand with this work she had carried on a series of agricultural experiments. For instance, she had started a grove of paper-shelled pecans, which was soon due to bear; the ranchhouse and its clump of palms was all but hidden by a forest of strange trees, which were reported to ripen everything from mothballs to bicycle tires. Blaze Jones was perhaps responsible for this report, for Alaire had shown him several thousand eucalyptus saplings and some ornamental rubber plants.

"That Miz Austin is a money-makin' piece of furniture," he once told his daughter Paloma. "I'm no mechanical adder—I count mostly on my fingers—but her and me calculated the profits on them rucher — what's their name trees?—and it gave me a splittin' headache. She'll be a drug queen, sure."

"Why don't you follow her example?" asked Paloma. "We have plenty of land."

Blaze, in truth, was embarrassed by the size of his holdings, but he shook his head. "No, I'm too old to go rampagin' after new gods. I ain't got the imagination to raise anything more complicated than a mortgage; but if I was younger, I'd organize myself up and do away with that Ed Austin. I'd sure help him to an untimely end, and then I'd marry them pecan groves, and blooded herds, and drug-store orchards. She certainly is a heart-breakin' device, with her red hair, and red lips an—"

"Father!" Paloma was deeply shocked.

* * * * * * *

Complete isolation, of course, Alaire had found to be impossible, even though her ranch lay far from the traveled roads, and her Mexican guards were not encouraging to visitors. Business inevitably brought her into contact with a considerable number of people, and of these the one she saw most frequently was Judge Ellsworth of Brownsville, her attorney.

It was perhaps a week after Ed had left for San Antonio that Alaire felt the need of Ellsworth's counsel, and sent for him. Ellsworth was a kindly man of fifty-five, with a forceful chin and a drooping, heavy-lidded eye that could either blaze or twinkle. Judge Ellsworth knew more than any four men in that part of Texas; information had a way of seeking him out. He was a good lawyer, too, and yet his knowledge of human nature he considered far more important than law. His mind was like a full granary, and every grain by where he could put his hand upon it.

United Doctors Specialist

Brings the knowledge of a Great Medical Organization and Their Experience in the Successful Treatment of

Thousands of Chronic Disease Cases

Offers Services Free of Charge

Licensed by the State of Michigan

The United Doctors is an organization of reputable, licensed, physicians for the treatment of certain diseases.

They are all specialists. The United Doctors treat, without Surgical Operations or hypodermic injections, diseases of the blood, skin, and all internal organs, rheumatism, sciatica, tape-worm, leg ulcers, weak lungs and all long standing, deep seated diseases.

Thirty-five years' experience and the complete records of thousands of cases successfully treated prove that the methods of the United Doctors are right. They were among the first to be called "Bloodless Surgeons."

Each member of the United Doctors staff has at his command the knowledge and resources of the whole organization.

Many people go on suffering from diseases that can be allevated just because they cannot afford to go to high priced specialists at a distance from home.

No community has a sufficient number of sufferers from the diseases mentioned to support special hospitals for their treatment and cure.

The United Doctors have solved the problem. Their highly trained specialists travel from place to place. They diagnose and prescribe a course of treatment for the sufferers in each community and teach them how to take care of themselves at home.

Worn-out and run-down men or women, no matter what your ailment may be, no matter what you have been told, or the experience you have had with other physicians. If your case is incurable they will tell you so. Consult him upon this visit. It costs nothing.

Married ladies must come with their husbands and minors with their parents.

WHAT WE HAVE TO FIGHT WITH.

The Russian empire has eighteen million men available for military service. Yet it is outclassed, outfought, by a nation which can put no more than six and a half million men in the field. Austria-Hungary has a war strength of about five million men. But it has not made nearly the showing of the five million men England has taken from shops and mines and farms.

Industrially, Russia is at least fifty years behind the times. Its small and highly efficient enemy, Germany, is a giant idustrially. Austria-Hungary has scarcely been concerned in the great industrial movement of recent years, while England has been in the van of it.

Considering these things we refuse to feel very dismal over our country's military unpreparedness though that gives concern. This war is not on the lines af the war with Spain. It resembles the American Civil war only in that in the war of the sections military men first begnn, to realize the worth of organizing a natian far fighting and adapting industry to the purpose of crushing a foe. The Europeaa war has developed organizatioa to a stage such as has not been dreamed of in any previous conflict. It has leaned upon industry, made use of the experience of industrial leaders brought into the struggle the labor af men, womea and children. It has been called the war of muaitions. But that is to say it is the war of organization and labor. One has financed, designed and taught the making of munitions. The other has made them.

In entering the war, our military contributions may be small. They will be made largely for sentimental reasons, to show we have the will to fight, to save use from the slur of huying sacrifice. But aur industrial contributions can be enormous. We have the factories and mills, the trained and willing labor, the experience at organization and co-operation. We have that which wins against armies of the old type.

MAKING "BAD BOYS" GOOD.

There are ao bad boys. We make this statemeat confidently, knowing that it will be endorsed by educatars and all those who have spent tbeir lives in working on the bay problem. We will defend it in spite of all the broken wiadows, stolen oranges and canned dogs in Christendom.

There are weak boys, boys who lack resourcefulness, hoys whose ideals of right and wrong are distorted, but there never was a boy who did not naturally—coasciously or unconsciously—do the things which he believed to be right.

The trouble comes, as the scaut leaders have found, when parents teachers and tho others who are responsible for the youngsters development fail to fill bis time with useful activity. The farces of nature must operate. We cannot stop them while we take our afternoon nap. The wind must blow, the water must flow, and the boys brain and muscles must work. We put a windmill in the path of the wiad and the unseen force draws water as joyously as it upsets the chairs on the veranda and whisks the family wash from the liae. We put a waterwheel in the sriteam and it grinds the grain with the energy wnicn it would otherwise dissipate in washing out its banks and raoting out the trees. These things we know, yet too often we permit the youthful eaergy, our most valuable asset, to run riot. We even attempt to dam it and then complain because it slops over and daes damage.

Every town has a liar or twa; a smart alec; some pretty girls; more loafers than it needs; a woman who tattles; an old foggy that the town would do better without; men who stand around on street corners and make remarks about women; a man who laughs everytime he says any thing; scores of men who stand around with the caboose of their trousers worn off as thin as glass; men who cnn tell you how the war question ought to be settled and how to run other people's business, but who make a dismal failure of their own.

ROBERT REED DEAD

Pioneer Resident Passes Away After Long Illness

Charlevoix people were shocked this week to hear of the death of one of our oldest residents, Robert Reed, who died at three o'clock Thursday morning, March 29th, after a long illness, at the age of seventy-seven. Pernicious aenemia was the cause of death. The funeral services were held from the home of the decensed daughter, Mrs. Thomas Milner, on Clinton street, Monday, Rev. Quinton Walker officiating.

Mr. Reed was a pioneer settler in this region and more particulars of his life and history will be published in next week's issue.

C. H. Minnis will do yau fine shoe repairing at 211 Antrim street.—Adv.1312

A PATRON OF ART.

He Was a Good Bluffer, but De Wint Called His Hand.

Peter de Wint, the English landscape painter, was accustomed each year to have a semiprivate show of his pictures before sending them to the Water Color society's exhibition. On such occasions his friends frequeatly baught pictures, which, of course, appeared at the public exhibition marked "Sold."

Among the paiuter's friends was a wealthy mau who wanted to appear a patroa of art aud at the same time to keep his money. He managed thia by loudly admiring the paintings already sald. He was always a bit too late to buy tho pictures that pleased him most aud, having seen them, he could never content himself with less beautiful works.

De Wint at inst suspected the man's sincerity, and when the next show day came round he concluded to test bim. After pleuty of time had beeu allowed for De Wint's friends to make their purchases, the rich man nrrived. As usual, his eye soon fell on two "perfect gems" marked "Sold." Turning to the artist, he said, "Now, De Wint, those are exactly the things I should like to possess; what a pity they are not to be had."

"My dear sir," said the painter, slapping him on the back, "I knew yau would like them, so I put the tickets on them to keep them for you."

A LESSON IN THRIFT.

How a Young Man Can Lay the Foundation of an Old Age Income.

In "The Family's Money" in the American Magazine a father asks his son why he does not increase his lucome every year in the following manner: "Suppose you save $250 a year, or about $5 a week. You could do that and not suffer. Invest that money in a sound 6 per cent security. During the second year it will earn for you $15, giving you an increase of $1.25 a month. Add your interest gain to the principal, and at the end of the second year you will have $515 working for yau.

"At the close of the fourth year you will have a capital invested of $1,092, which during the fifth year will give you $65, or more than $5 a month. Of course each year is adding to your principal and your income. When the eighth year comes to an end you will possess capital of $2,470, which during the ninth year will earn $148, or more than $12 a month, and that is not aa amount to laugh at.

"At the end of the twentieth year yau have $9,180, which during the following year will earn $550, or more than $45 a month. When that year closes you will possess capital of practically $10,000, which will give yau an income increase of $600 per annum, or $50 a month."

Boys and Girls.

The difference is apparent early. A boy has as much fun in stoning a cat as a girl has in hunting for violets. A boy's curiosity is directed to the ice box; a girl would like to see what is in the top bureau drawer.

A girl can give the impression when away from home that her parents are wealthy; a boy cannot.

A girl is never so young that she will reveal to guests at a party that the spoons are borrowed; a boy child never grows so old that he fails to.

Give a boy a dollar, and he will eat it; give his sister one, and she will wear it.

When brothers fight it is over the larger share of pie. When sisters quarrel one has worn something belonging to the other without asking permission.—Youth's Companion.

Gratitude!

An unusual form of testamentary gratitude is recorded in the diary of Henry Greville. "A man who had spent much of his time in fishing left a direction in his will that as he had derived much nourishment as well as pleasure from the fish he had caught at Chertsey it was only fair to the descendants of those fish that he in return should become their food. He therefore desired that his body should be cast into the Thames at Chertsey."—London Tatler.

Had to Say Something.

Jack Timid (presumptnously in love with his employer's daughter)—Is Mr. Cashleigh in? Butler—Yes, sir. Jack Timid (horribly disappointed)—Well, I'm glad to hear it. He might catch cold outside—beastly weather. Good night.—Boston Transcript.

A Good Reason.

"Why don't you buy a car, Walker?" "I will tell you. All my neighbors think I can afford one, and I don't want them to find out that I can't."—Exchange.

Collars a Feature on the

New Spring Coats

Garments that can be worn open as well aa buttoned closely to the neck are emphasized in our stocks.

Styles are on straight lines, eapecially in the more staple garments that appeal to American Women. Belts and double belts, odd-shaped pockets, a few rowa of stitching, a few well-placed buttons—all of these touches contribute to Spring's new Styles.

Coats are ao new, so distinctive, that you will not want to wear the old one any longer. The new Baige shade will delight many this season. Other colors—Rookie, Periwinkle, Penelope, Young Leaf Green, Majenta and the perenially popular Navy.

WORK OF A SHALLOW-PATE JOKER

Report of Shore-Ives Marriage Is Nothing But a Petty Hoax

In last week's issue, we published an account of the marriage of Mr. William Ives to Miss Winifred Shores of this city.

The basis for this article was an anonymous notice, received through the mail, and though it bore no signnture we never thought for a moment to doubt the genuineness of the facts it contained.

As a matter of fact, the reported marriage never took place nor had the supposedly contracting parties ever authorized auch a statement.

For our regrettable error we wish most fully to apologize, but for the benefit of the petty-minded miacreant who, we presume, composed the falsehood we were unfortunately gulled into publishing we would state in terms that we hope can penetrate his or her nccessarily constricted and adamantine brain cavity that such a trick is not a joke. In fact if the persons who were the innocent victims of his crude humor care to take the matter up through the post office department they can make it extremely unpleasant for him. If we could discover the name of this person we might push the matter to a painful conclusion for him ourselves.

We would like to state for the information of our readers, who rely on us to print the truth and not the vaporings of some crippled brain, and of our possible contributors, that no article or item or advertisement will hereafter be published in this paper unless the original bears the legible signature of the sender, who thereby becomes responsible for the statements contained in his contribution. Please remember this.

CHASE S. OSBORN TO SPEAK HERE IN JUNE

Will Address Class of 1917, C. H. S. At Commencement Exercises.

Ex. Governor Chase S. Osborn hns been extended an invitation to address the graduating class of the Charlevoix High School on next Commencement day, the date of which has not yet been definitely decided—probably June 8th or 9th.

Mr. Osborne hns accepted this invitation nnd the class of 1917 are to be congratulated on having secured so forceful and distinguished a speaker. All who hear him are assured of a rare treat, and he may be relied upon to leave with the graduates a lasting inspirntion for good and to arouse in them a desire to realize in their own lives the highest and best things for which our American citizenship stands.

ELLSWORTH ITEMS OF INTEREST—WHEN YOU AND I WERE YOUNG

Taken From Central Lake Paper Under Date of June 1st, 1896

A wet rain last Tuesday.

The travelling bears were in town one day last week.

Adolph Supernaw and family have moved to Elk Rapids (a small town over on the bay) to live.

C. H. Ferguson and friends visited in town on Monday and took a ride on the steam yacht.

Rev. Eagle of Norwood preached a missionary sermon last Sunday night at the M. E. church.

Asa Darling is smiling about a darling boy who came to reside with them the other night.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Coon now have another little coon. She is a girl coon and arrived at the coon house last Thursday night.

ANTRIM CITY SCHOOL.

Esther Parsons and Earl Baumbach are absent from school this week.

The R. F. D. man, E. S. Carrol, left mail at the school house as he had to go this way Monday.

Lester Brooks is up and about again though his side is still very painful. It is hoped he will soon be fully recovered.

Only two months more of school after this week. If nothing interferes school will close May 31st, after a nine months term.

The 6th grade reading class will take up Montgomery's beginners history next week. Next month they expect to finish the first book in geography.

Bessie Elkington was detained at home one day last week, as her parents returned to Richmond, Va., Saturday. They stop at Niagara Falls en route.

Miss Brant will typewrite the next issue of our school paper, the Antrim City Telescope. The last two issues were suspended on account of the illness of associate editor, Lester Brooks.

Our items appear to have gone astray the last two weeks, also our copy of the Courier. As Antrim City has been morooned the past two weeks on account of poor mail service, it probably was this cause.

Form Cement Company

The Petoskey Portland Cement Co., of Petoskey has been organized with an authorized capital of $1,000,000. The organizers are A. B. Klise, president; Homer Sly, vice-president; John L. A. Galster, secretary and treasurer. The company holds options on the lime property owned by L. G. Grimes and others. A drill will be put to work on the property at once, the property carefully prospected and analyzed. If the stone proves to be what is confidently expected the stock will be placed on the market at an early date.

No specific plans for the plant have yet been made but it will probably be built with a 2,000 or 3,000 barrel per day capacity and later increased to 5,000 barrels per day. This is one of the natural resources of Petoskey that has never been fully developed.

The raw material is convenient and shipping facilities will be of the best.

It is planned to have both railroads, besides water transportation, giving the prodoct a large outlet both by rail and water.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Klooster called at the home of Mrs. Klooster's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Job Jackson Sunday.

Dick O'Neill, Clint Blanchard, Sam Straw and L. Aardema went to Ellsworth on business Saturday of last week.

We take special notice of the fancy riding goods Ralph Davis is carrying in stock nowadays. Must be going to start a riding school, for he has purchased Sol Peter's mule. He Haw! Maud.

"Doc" Wilkinson of Charlevoix is getting much credit from the people of this community for walking from the Pete Block corner to the Meggison home, about three miles, on account of the poor roads.

Tom Matchett returned from his wild goose chase around the country to buy a span of horses. He went to Grand Rapids, Cadillac, Petoskey Traverse City and Thompsonville and at the latter place found a span of mules and a horse.

Sam Petter had an exciting few moments after coming from the mill the other day. Sam stopped at the store, threw the blanket on his horse. He was about to go into the store when he caught sight of the blanket in flames. He put it out laughing at the good joke, but did not notice that the collar pad was also afire. He called for help, but was too late to save the pad which was destroyed, although the horse was not injured.

ROCK ELM SCHOOL NOTES

Twenty four members of the Bird Club were present at its last meeting.

Casper Jennings has returned to school. He is making his home with Mr. Fisher's family for the present.

A recent visitor at our school, whose name we did not learn gave the pupils a very intcresting talk on the subject of mosquitoes.

The boys have tapped a number of maple trees on and near the school grounds and are boiling the sap on the schoolroom stove.

The pupils gave a box social at the schoolhoose Friday evening. Owing to bad roads there were but twenty one in attendance, so the receipts were small.

THINK EXISTING LAWS SHOULD BE CHANGED

Election Expense Not Necessary Where One Ticket Appears.

About the tamest thiag endured by Ellsworth along with numerous other towns in the state is its annual township election. This year it was no exceptioa and as usual there was only one ticket in the field making the election simply a formality and it seems an unnecessary expease.

With no opposition, all candidates nominated at caucus are sure of election, except in rare cases where the sticker system is used. Whenever a man is nominated on a lonely ticket, he is sure of at least his own vote and that one is almost sure to elect him.

Never-the-less money has to be spent to comply with other law and to pay for an election that could just as well be done away with, and it is the opinion of a large percent of the tax payers that the election law should be changed to govern elections in small villages where a condition of this kind exists.

When the caucus was held March 10th only one ticket was nominated and everyone was satisfied and the different offices were conceded without exception to the men chosen to fill them.

The same thing happened last year and will happen again next year and so on. Good citizens are selected by popular approval to look after the interests of the township but at the same time public money has to be spent to place them in office, when it might be better used for some other purpose.

Banks Township this year as usual is to be congratulated on its choice of officers. Some good worthy citizen was selected for each township office, and although some new faces appear on the roll, it is still a hard bunch to beat, both as to ability and efficiency. H. S. Peebles is still supervisor, Albert Harwood, treasurer and Hayler Whitney succeeds himself as justice. Geo. Heller is the new highway commissioner and D. E. Clow replaces H. J. Timmer as clerk. Mr. Timmer, however was elected a member of the Board of Review and Joe McElroy with D. E. Carpnter and E. R. Harris as understudies, will decide when the next town caucus is to be held and will call the meeting to order and appoint a chairman.

CORRESPONDENCE

MAPLEVILLE.

Mr. and Mrs. Allie Kloster are the proud parents of a bahy boy.

Nick Brock is home from Detroit, where he has been working the past winter.

Julius Elzinga, who is attending school at Mt. Pleasant, spent a week vacation at home.

Rev. Ferday from Three Oaks, is expected here to preach in the Dutch Reform church Sunday.

The mail carrier did not come through here very often last week on account of bad roads.

Guy Empey expects to return to Detroit this week after spending a few weeks vacation at home.

Mary Groenink from Charlevoix and Rose Groenink from Hortons Bay, spent Saturday and Sunday of last week at home.

Mr. and Mrs. John DeGroot and children, Harry Kloster, Guy, Crist, and Percy Empey called at the home of Walter DeGroot last Thursday evening.

George Postema from New Era, and Miss Barbara Groenink formerly from here, were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents last Saturday, April 23, by Rev Pickard from Atwood. The happy couple left Wednesday for the south part of the state where they hope to make their future home.

ROCK ELM.

Mrs. Charles Donaldson and little daughter, Edna, called on Mrs. Lawton and family Sunday.

Owing to road conditions this district has been without an R. F. D. for about ten days. Hence no items for the Courier.

C. H. Dewey went to Central Lake recently to visit his daughter, who is teaching the 5th and 6th grades in the Central Lake school.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Donaldson returned to East Jordan Saturday, nfter spending a week with his brother, Charles and family.

Many of our spring birds have returned to cheer our winter weary hearts with their sweet songs though the snow still lies deep in places.

We hope to reorganize our Sunday School next Sunday. Every one in the neighborhood is urged to be present and assist in making the work a success.

RANNEY DISTRICT.

No mail these days on account of the bad roads.

Mr. Smith sold his driving horse to Mr. Wymburg of Springvale.

Mr. and Mrs. Winifred Nickols now live in the Jake Strong house.

James Isamaa is home after spending the winter in New York.

Fraak Green has moved his family and now lives in the Wm. Barkley house.

Miss Eunice Liskum is home from Charlevoix to spend the spring vacation.

The Moore brothers have moved from Springvale and are now on their farms again.

Mrs. L. Stamper entertained in honor of Ervin Bancroft with a surprise party on Mar. 28.

WILDWOOD.

Mrs. Frank Deane and children of Bellaire visited friends here the week end.

Bert Sinclair and family spent Saturday afternoon and evening at the Crawford home.

Miss Katie Wilson of Bellaire is spending her easter vacation with her brother Jim and family.

Word from Mrs. Cross says she is in Detroit again and feeling much better and that we may look for her home about April 15.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis T. Lehman spent several days last week with their aunt, Mrs. C. B. Fisk, at "The Lodge" on Central Lake.

Miss Jayne Crawford has accepted a position for the remainder of the year in the Elk Rapids school as teacher of the 5th and 6th grades.

John Petrie, an old pioneer, died at his home in Echo on Friday of last week. He was an uncle of the Wilson family here and the funeral which was held from the Pleasant Valley school house on Sunday was attended by Joe Wilson and his sister, Katie, who, owing to the condition of the highways, made the trip on horse back.

"Uncle Dunk" Crawford feels that he is receiving a little more than his share of the "bumps" of life and this is the reason why. When he was returning from Central Lake on Saturday night Mar. 24, with a sack of groceries on his shoulder, he slipped his left foot into a deep hole made by a horse "slumping" in the soft snow, and fell over far enough to give his ankle an extremely bad sprain. He is temporarily "laid up," and stopping at the Wilson home for the present.

ELLSWORTH SCHOOL NOTES.

Garrit Drent has returned to school.

The fourth grade is now reading the story of "Daniel Boone."

Miss Peck visited the Primary and intermediate rooms Tuesday.

The Primary Room have finished reading the story "Black Beauty."

The second and third grade girls are making dresses for their dolls for sewing.

The sewing class have finished their aprons and are now making dusting caps.

Gertrude Oris and Lina Martin have left school, their parents having moved to East Jordan.

The fifth grade is reading Jacksnipes and the sixth grade is reading "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow."

The seveath and eighth grades have chosen sides for a debate on, Resolved, that the plow share is of more importance than the spear. John Ruis is captain of the affirmative and John Beuker of the negative side.

ATWOOD SECTION

ATWOOD

Ben Vander Heide sold a cow to J. H. Smith last week.

Paul de Vries bought a plow at the Village store Saturday.

Winter and no roads is past and Spring with no roads is here.

Claude Mitchell has hired out to John Farrell for the coming season.

We wish to congratulate Alex Klooster and wife over the arrival of a bnby hoy.

Lena Pol has been working at the Harris Pierce home in Norwood the past two weeks.

J. T. Oldbert has commenced his annual job making maple syrup. He had a good run Saturday.

Mr. S. Haaksma, who visited with Paul de Vries a few weeks, returned to his home in Winnipeg, Canada.

John Klomp of North Atwood was passing through town Friduy with a horse he purchased of John Farrell.

Will Hofman and Murrill Richardson have rented the 160 acre farm of Mrs. J. Sprik for the coming season.

Fred Ladue has been our mail carrier for a week or so. He carried the mail from J. Farrell's to Atwood.

We have been setting our watches by the Jangleville mill whistle the past week. They have the shingles all cut.

W. Brown, who worked the entire Byers farm last season has rented 40 acres of it to his son, Will, from Pontiac, Mich.

Mrs. A. Bos spent Monday with Mrs. Rev. Pickart. Grace Essenberg is staying there during the absence of Rev. Pickart.

Rev. Smith was unable to get to Atwood Sunday on account of the roads. No services and not enough present to hold Sunday school.

J. T. Oldbert does not intend to hire a farm hand this season. He expects to let his land on shares. He has a few parties negotiating for it now.

P. Faber & Son, the Atwood blacksmiths, report a dull winter for horseshoeing. It may be that John will try a hand at farming this coming summer.

Henry Klooster, Egbert Vander Streek, Conrad Klooster and John Bos walked to Maple Hill to attend the afternoon meeting of the Reformed church.

Egbert Vaade Streek has four fresh cows at present and we will expect to have him break some of the records of production and profit made this winter.

John Petter is looking for a good young team. He reports that the low price of horses exists only in peoples minds as everybody asks big prices for their horses.

Rev. Pickart walked to Ellsworth Friday to take the southbound train for Grand Rapids. He expected to preach in Moreland, Mich., Sunday, and come back the first part of the week.

Last Friday the cream was hnuled to the creamery in the usual maaner on cutters and sleighs. People had been bringing it the week before on cutters but with men pulling them instead of horses.

Albert Sneller had his building formerly the Atwood feed mill, moved to his lot north of the M. E. church last week. John Essenburg had the job and Bert Weiten and Joe Vienstra helped him.

J. H. Smith is helping towarda a greater Atwood. He now has two married men in his employ, Mr. M. Welsh expects to move in the house Bert Welten has occupied since last summer. Bert Weiten intends to move in the cottage owned by Mr. H. Klooster a mile east of the store as soon as the roads will permit.

What was the matter with the Atwood section last week? Don't know unless the correspondent got nervous when he telegraphed it in and didn't give it all. There were about 47 receivers down. We are going to try and use up last week's share of the $140 per ton paper this week.

Speaking of charity how is this? Seven men put in about four hours shoveling snow for the township of Banks one afternoon last week. The reason was thut the township board decided not to spend any moncy for snow shoveling. They changed their minds the day after this gang shoveled and you can imagine how these fellows feel.

A. Bos & Son are lending a little more argument in favor of the winter cow. Seven of their cows produced 20,723 lbs of milk the first three months of 1917. The average test was 4.37 per cent fat, making a total of 906.4 lbs of butter fat. This gives an average of 230 pounds of milk n day and 10.05 lbs of butter fat for the seven cows. Some record.

Evidently the Ellsworth reporter does not understand the unassuming and modest disposition of some of the Atwood people. The faet that A. Bos & Son bought a little sheet iron driver to replace a driver sold last fall wns not considered to be worthy of space in the paper. A lot of folks make the remark you have to get a shave or a haircut if you want to see your name in the Ellsworth columns. Guess we'll try it.

PLEASANT HILL.

The friends that loved us always
In good times and in bad,
The friends that loved us always
Are the friends that keep us glad;
The friends that cling in tempest
As they do in calms, are those
That have made the paths of hardships.
Seem the path of song and rose.

Some of the neighbors say they have heard the frogs, a sure sign of Spring.

John Feilstra and John Prince are both back at their old jobs at the clay pit.

A number from this district attended the sale of Mr. Rubingh, at Essex last week.

Misses Margaret and Velma Curtus of Advance, who are visiting in Ellsworth spent Sunday at the home of their cousins, H. H. Fales and family.

See us for your Job Printing.

Uncollected Taxes Heavy.

A glance at the uncollected taxes for 1916 reveals the astonishing fact that $34,860.80 of the Emmet county tax roll is unpaid, snys the Petoskey Evening News. The figures at the county treasurer's office reveal that Cross Village was unable to collect 39 per cent of their spread 1946 tax, Maple River returned 36 per cent, and Redmond 32 per cent. The county as a whole averages 12 per cent uncollected.

Facing the fnct that the various treasurers could not callect this $34,860.80, Emmet county is asked to enter iato a bonding proposition involving an expenditure of $50,000. Many taxpayers argue that it would be better to get busy and pay up the delinquent taxes which are a lien on their property, before entering into any further obligations of the $50,000 calibre.

Cutting High Cost of Living.

Down at Mount Pleasant thoy have a thrifty citizen who insists that he has found a way to cut down the price of potato seed almost to the vanishiag point. Paul Lafromboise is the name of the discoverer of the potato seed saving. He explains that when Mrs. Paul Lafromboise prepares potatoes for cooking, she just cuts off the soed end of each potato nad places the cuttings away to dry. For several sensons the Mt. Pleasant man has been planting these seed ends and his potato harvest he declares, has been quite equal to the results that would have followed the plantiag of entire potato pieces. It might he better, however, for growers of this section to experimeat a little with the Mount Pleasant scheme before they risk their time or their potato ground to the planting of dried potato parings and so-called "seed eads."

Ground Broken For Building.

Grouad was broken Tuesday of last week and twelve men are now husy excavating the 130x40 basemeat over which will be reared the big Arnold warehouse and storage plant at Boyne City. It is expected the building will be completed about the middle of July aad at that time will have cost approximately $10,000. The construction will be of tile and cement and the buildiag will house two coldstorage rooms, capable of holding large quantities of perishable produce. This fall Mr. Arnold expects to haadle large shipments of fruit, vegetables nad grain and from the start the new building will probably be taxed to its utmost capacity.

The site is a strip of laad 210 feet long and 40 feet wide, facing the railroad between Boyne Ave., and Grant street. The public entrance to the warehouse will he on Boyne Avenue and will opea into a neatly appointed office.

Died At Grand Rapids

Mrs. A. Thorn Swift, wife of Postmaster Swift, of Harbor Spring died at a Grand Rapids hospital at 5 o'clock last Friday morning from aa operation.

She went to Grand Rapids enrly in the week aad anticipated a quick recovery. Her husband, relatives and host of frieads were severely shocked at word of her sudden and unexpected death.

Mrs. Swift was Miss Susie Southard, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Southard, and sister of John S. Southard, of Harbor Springs

Not only was she popular in church and lodge circles in her home village but was well known and well liked in Petoskey and all Northern Michigan.

FIFTY-SIX NEW FORDS AND OVERLANDS

Benjamin Brown Has Sold That Many Since August First.

The Benjamin Brown Agency announce the following sales of 1917 model cars, commencing with August 1, 1916 and continuing to date.

Charlevoix people have a right to be proud of this hustling, home-grown concern and, in fact, we think there are few, if any, auto agencies in Northern Michigan that can show a better record. Here are the names of the purchasers of 1917 models:

Millard Olney, Frank Sneathen, H. R. Fox, George W. Smith, Charles Novak, Henry Wood, Joe Mosher, C. R. Newcomb, Fred Hull, Neil McAulay, Mrs. Robert Bonthon, Dr. Levi Lewis, T. J. Scroggie, Mrs. Sophia Lafrenier, George Block, Art Van Alsburg, Robert S. Minier, Earl A. Young, Robert B. Matchett, Clarence Elliot, Frank Huyck, H. B. Jacobs, Charles Burnett, Alonzo Powers, A. A. Swinton, Edward Boss, Vern Spencer, Grant Ferguson, F. V. Alexander, John Bottema, Harry Potter, Albert Beattie, Emil Chvatil, Gilbert Ferris, William H. Shields, A. B. Clark, E. E. Orvis, Wilbur Speidel, William Wiles, Charles M. Pierce, Clarence H. Miller, Frank E. Richardson, Sanitary Engineering Co., Guy Sneathen, J. R. Guild, W. F. Smith, D. F. Newman, Lewis Shapton, Fred Boss, Warren I. Hand, Albert Reynolds, Harry L. Oldham, Dr. R. B. Armstrong, M. B. Hooker & Son, D. T. Bush, and one that name is not given. W. T. Driggett, International Oil Truck.

Six car loads of Fords will be delivered here this month and two car loads of Overlands. Just think what Bridge street will look like Saturday afternoons this summer. A good, lively job for a traffic officer anyway.

CLASS OF '17 PARTY A MEMORABLE EVENT

Home of F. N. Metcalf Scene of Happy Social Affair.

The class of '17 C. H. S., were royally entertained Wednesday evening, March 28th, by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Arnold and Mr. and Mrs. F. N. Metcalf at the home of the latter on Park Avenue, in honor of Allen Arnold.

The house was benutifully decorated. The living room was adorned with the high school colors, with red and white carnations. The parlor aad dining room were decorated in pink aad green.

The eveaing was very pleasaatly spent in games and fortune telling. Our dignified English teacher was the clairvoyant and did her part as oae much experieaced. Our champion bean bag man was Robya Merriam. "Susannnah," who was dressed in the class colors, was the cause of much admiration. She passed the refreshments, to which the seniors did full justice. All enjoyed themselves to the highest degree and claimed their hostesses were the best to be found anywhere.

A Letter To You

While the following letter was addressed to us, there is a message in it for every woman interested in economy and good cooking, so we address it to you through the newspaper.

"I must write and tell you of my experience with economical Lily White Flour. I say economical because I have found it so in this way.

"I received a sack of Lily White, sent me in error by my grocer, and when using it in a recipe that I had always used with other flours I found my dough too stiff. I used the same quantity as usual, so next time I used less and have been delighted with the results ever since.

"In these days of the high cost of living I think it would be well for all housewives to know that Lily White Flour goes farther and makes more than any other flour I ever used."

(Signed) MRS. L. B. ROBBIN,
751 College Ave., Grand Rapids, Mich.

Mrs. Robbin is a new convert to Lily White Flour and her testimony is very significant in view of the fact that heretofore she has used two kinds of flour—a so-called bread flour for bread, and a pastry flour for pastry—and has found Lily White better for all purposes than the special flours were for special purposes.

Every sack of

Lily White

"The Flour the Best Cooks Use"

is sold on the guarantee your money will be returned if you do not like it as well or better for both bread and pastry baking than any flour you ever used.

Packed in 5 lb., 10 lb., 24½ lb., 49 lb. and 98 lb. sacks.

Crazy Fanatic Takes Two Pot Shots At Train While Passing Through Chicago.

(By Harold W. Usher)

Fort Wayne Barracks, April 8.—"After receiving the notice that the date set for the Thirty-third had been changed, we had not expected the start home for some time. However, when at drill Thursday we received orders to return to camp and prepare to leave the next day and Company I was lucky for once and was in the first section to leave.

"We went aboard the Pullmans Friday night at about eight o'clock. We went to sleep in El Paso and when we awoke we were well in the Texas desert. Our first stop of any importance was Fort Worth. We reached this city after traveling a day and a half through lands of cactus and sage and were allowed about two hours to walk about and see the town. We left about five P. M., passing through Dallas, one of the largest places in Texas. When we awoke the next morning, we had left Texas and were now in the swamps of Louisiana.

"Due to the fact that we were not to get into New Orleans until the next morning, we stopped in Boyce, La. for six hours. Boyce is a very small town on the banks of the Red River. We spent an enjoyable afternoon here, just the same, as the place was well inhabited by young ladies and shade trees.

"Leaving Boyce, we traveled all night through Louisiana and, just at daylight, the train was placed upon a large, side-wheeled ferry boat to be taken across the Mississippi into New Orleans. There was much fog so early in the morning and a drizzly rain was falling. The sun came out later though and we spent one of the most interesting days of our lives exploring the quaint, old city. The streets here are narrow and the houses are of the Spanish and old French style. The new business district, however, is very fine.

"After looking around to our heart's content, we left New Orleans with its whistling tugboats and soft-speaking people about four P. M. For miles after leaving New Orleans we traveled across the delta formed by the Mississippi. Here there were many bridges and thousands of duck arose as our train came by. We crossed the end of Lake Ponchartrain over a large trestle and went for miles beside the gulf, enjoying the balmy breeze off the water. In the distance, we could see large ocean going vessels on their way to sea and closer at hand were the small oyster fishing craft.

"At last we reached Mobile at about six P. M. and had a look at historic Mobile Bay. During the night following this, we traveled nearly the whole length of Alabama and were in Birmingham when we awoke.

This is a very busy manufacturing city, one of the largest in the south. We left Alabama that morning and arrived in Nashville that evening. We were allowed two hours here to walk about, after which we started for Chicago. We went through Kentucky and were well into Indiana by morning.

We arrived in Chicago about two P. M. and spent about eight hours in the Chicago railroad yards. While crossing 37th street in Chicago, some fanatic fired two shots at the train. Both, however, landed in the caboose. We left Chicago that night and arrived in Detroit the next day. We at once moved into Fort Wayne barracks and prepared for a long stay.

Due to the war with Germany there is no telling when the Thirty-Third will get home. But it is certain that if a body of troops are sent to Germany, this regiment will be among the first to go.

(In another communication Private Usher advises the editor not to get excited and enlist himself, as one member of the family is enough. We agree with him entirely. If each family in Charlevoix were represented by as much as one member, we should have done our full duty—Ed.)

CLEAN UP YOUR RUBBISH PILE OR BEWARE

City May Do It If You Don't At Your Expense.

Now that spring has come and the snow has gone, look to your backyards and remember your duty to your neighbor as well as yourself. Piles of refuse, garbage, dirty bottles and tin cans make excellent breeding places for the ever present disase germ, to say nothing of the mosquito, and the deadly house fly stands rendy to act as common carrier. Besides, dirty back yards and alleyways make a mighty poor advertisement for the "best little city anywhere" as a resort.

Don't be like the society girl whose best beau waiting in the parlor heard her yell down the back stairs to her mother to ask whether she should "wash for a high of a low neck," but clean up the back of your home or business place the same as you do the front.

And if you don't, why just remember that the city has the power to do it and charge the expense to you. Police Chief Howard says they will be hot on the trail of the rubbish heap and the garbage pile this summer and there will be "doings" for the man who neglects his back door.

EVELINE LOSES PIONEER RESIDENT

MRS. CARRIE E. ORVIS PASSED AWAY LAST FRIDAY.

Leaves Ten Children—One Son On Duty With Thirty-Third Regiment—Was Sixty Five

Eveline Township mourns the loss of one of its enrliest settlers in the death of Mrs. William Orvis, which occurred on Friday, April 6th, at the close of over n year's illness. An attack of pneumonia, aggravating valvular heart trouble of long standing brought the sufferer's life to a close nt the age of sixty-five.

Carrie E, Groger was born in Lansing, Michigan, April 22, 1852. She was married to William Orvis, at Portland, Michigan, in 1877 and in 1885 she came with her family to Charlevoix county and located on the present homestead in Eveline Township.

In November, 1897, she was left a widow with the care of ten children, all of whom have reached maturity: William H. Orvis, of Lansing, Everett E. of Eveline, Vaughan A., of Ironton and Frederick Mortimer, who is serving his country with the Thirty-Third Michigan Infantry; Mrs. Ella J. Miller and Mrs. Josephine O. Metz of Los Angeles, California, Mrs. Eulalia O. Hipp of Enst Jordan and Carrie P., Mary E. and Gertrude M. Orvis of Eveline. An only brother, Emery Joslin of Ionia, was also present at the funeral, which was held on Wednesday at one o'clock from the house, Rev. C. E. Taggart of Charlevoix officiating.

PAVILLION DOCK FOR PINE LAKE TRAFFIC

P. M. Plans New Structure To Replace Old Eyesore.

We are officially advised that the Pere Marquette Railroad are planning a big attractive feature for Charlevoix's resort patrons and a substantial addition to the town's equipment for their entertainment and comfort.

The present boat dock in front of the Inn on Pine Lake will be torn down, and in its place a big pavillion dock for the accommodation of all lake passenger traffic will be erected. Work on this splendid structure will be begun in the near future.

Charlevoix will have in this pavillion what she has long needed—a proper dock for the accommodation of the boat traffic both up and down Pine Lake and from one side of town to the other. The P. M. are to be congratulated on this important step in the right direction.

TABERNACLE WAS FILLED EASTER

ZOLLER PREACHES POWERFUL SERMON SUNDAY.

Evangelistic Meetings At Garage Becoming Vital Feature In Community's Life.

The tabernacle meeting on Easter morning was a success from every point of view.

The large room was packed with people and the choir benches filled to capacity. The singing was spirited and inspiring. Mr. Sutherland is certainly a master of the conductor's art, and the acoustics of the room are admirably adapted to chorus singing.

Easter bonnets were much in evidence, until Mr. Sutherland wittily assured the ladies that they (the hats) were very pretty but that he was sure the audience had all seen them and probably wanted to get a better view of Mr. Zoller; whereupon the hats came off.

After the prayer and the singing of several fine old hymns by the choir, the congregation joining in the choruses, Mr. Zoller addressed the meeting. His remnrks were straightforward, forceful and appealing. He declared that many a man must be brought to the verge of an open grave before he would consent to cast away the last link of the chain that bound him to earnal pursuits and pleasures and accept God into the fullness of his life, giving the experience of a man of his own acquaintance who saw his children slip away into eternity, one by one, until all were taken, before he would consent to turn his face to the light and surrender his life to his maker.

At the close of the sermon an invitation to come forward and make open profession of faith was extended and many responded, the choir meanwhile singing that splendid and powerfully inspiring old hymn, "Onward Christian Solders."

The Zoller meetings are becoming and important and vital feature in our community life and we would urge upon our readers who have not as yet attended them to go and see for themselves that the Rev. Zoller and his associates are doing a good work and one sorely needed in the city.

MRS. SAUMSBY DIED AS RESULT OF CANCER

Resort Township Woman Passes Away At Her Home.

Mrs. Mark Saumsby died last Saturday at her home in Resort Township, Emmet County, after a several months struggle with a fatal cancer.

Etta Yahr was born January 31, 1870 at Waterloo, Ont., and when a child came to Michigan with her parents, where they located in Barry County, moving to Charlevoix County in 1882, where they purchased a farm in Hayes Township.

She was married the 16th of February, 1890, to Mark Saumsby and they resided on their farm in Hayes Township until they moved to Petoskey, remaining there a couple of years, after which they purchased a small farm in Resort Township, where the deceased lived at the time of her death.

Her husband and little daughter, Ruth, survive her, her brothers, Edward and Fred Yabr and sister, Mrs. Shauntz of Bayshore; another brother, John Yahr, of Grayling, and a sister, Mrs. John Billeau, of Resort Township.

Mrs. Saumsby was n devoted wife and mother and will be greatly missed by her neighbors and friends. The funernl services were held from the home Tuesday last, at ten o'clock.

W. B. A. Meets 14th.

The next regulnr meeting of Charlevoix Review No. 61, Woman's Benefit Association of the Maccabees, will be held next Saturday afternoon April 14th, at two-thirty in the Odd Fellows' Hall. All members are requested to be present.

We are now prepared to serve lunches and meals at all hours and also tenms feed, at William Lucia's, Norwood, Mich. 15t3

TERRIBLE ACCIDENT MONDAY

MRS. O'NEIL HORRIBLY BURNED BY BLAZING LEAVES.

Spinal Column Bared of Flesh As Clothes Fell In Cinders From Her Body.

Monday morning at about half past eleven occurred one of the most grewsome accidents, so say eyewitnesses, that Charlevoix has ever known.

Eugene Bedwin, accompanied by Tom Linn and Perry Weed, drove up Antrim street to the Chris Solsburg home with a load of household furniture belonging to Malcolm A. MncDonald, who is moving in there this week and as they passed the Lamphear house, opposite L. E. Crandall's store, now occupied by Guy Olney and family, they noticed Mrs. O'Neil, Mr. Olney's mother, standing in the front yard, raking leaves. This they thought nothing of.

On their return, however, they found that the woman had set fire to the leaves and was trying to keep them in bounds by means of a wet mop. The flames had, unperceived by her, crept around behind her and she was now standing in the centre of a ring of fire with no avenue of escape. Realizing her danger, Mr. Bedwin yelled a warning to the woman and pulling off the mackinaw which he wore, jumped from the dray and ran towards her, the others following. She turned quickly to face them and it was then seen that her dress was aflame. Running through the blazing leaves Gene threw his mackinaw around her shoulders and strove to drag her to safety. The flames however, spread like lightning over her body and Mr. Bedwin in attempting to tear the burning waist from her shoulders was severely scorched about the hands and arms. By this time, Jim Bogart, Charley Graham, Silas Swailes and others had come and taking a rug from the dray they wrapped it about Mrs. O'Neil's body and finally smothered the blaze.

Though frightfully burned all over her body, the injury to her back and spine was the worst, the flesh being literally peeled from her backbone. It is thought that the tar from last year's road treatment, mixed with the leaves, caused them to burn more fiercely and made the flames more difficult to extinguish.

Mrs. O'Neil was taken Monday afternoon to the Petoskey hospital where but slight hopes are entertained of her recovery.

GERMAN ALIEN ENEMY IS SAFE HERE

So Long As He Behaves Himself And Keeps His Mouth Shut.

The following communication has been received at this office from the United States Marshal at Grand Rapids.

April 6, 1917

To All United States Attorneys and Marshals:

Dear Sir:

You are hereby directed to give full publicity to the following statement:

No German alien enemy in this country, who has not hitherto been implicated in plots against the interests of the United States, need have any fear of action by the Department of Justice so long as he observes the following warnings:

Obey the law; Keep your mouth shut.

Respectfully,
T. W. GREGORY,
Attorney General.

DEATH CLAIMS FAMILIAR FIGURE

H. C. Smith, Pioneer and Old Soldier Passed Away Friday Last.

Henry C. Smith died last Friday April 6th, at the home of his son on Antrim street. Residents of the street will miss the fine old gentleman who was a familiar figure with them as he sat on the porch, always ready to exchange a pleasant greeting with the passer-by.

Mr. Smith was born in Madison, N. Y., seventy-six years ago. He came to Sanlac county, Michigan in 1875 and to Charlevoix in 1899. In 1867, he had married Julia A. Weedmark, and to this union were born eight children, of whom only four are now living; Mrs. Edward De Sorda of New York, Joseph D. and W. L. Smith of Charlevoix, and Mrs. Amanda Burke of Duluth, Minnesota. The deceased was a member of the G. A. R. and the M. E. church. His wife, who is in Duluth, was unable to attend the funeral on account of poor health.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at one thirty, from the home of his son, Joseph D. Smith, with whom the old man was living. Rev. Quinton Walker, his pastor, officiated.

FLING "OLD GLORY" TO THE BREEZE

FLAG SHOULD FLOAT OVER HOME AND OFFICE.

In Canada the "Union Jack" Flies Everywhere, Are We Less Patriotic In U. S.

"Show your colors," has been the slogan for some time past in most of the larger cities. Charlevoix has been slow to take it up. Many favorable comments have been made about the flags which have been displayed on Bridge Street for the past few days. The court house, the city hall and the school buildings should be marked by the "stars and stripes" every day of the year.

In some cities, manufacturing concerns or their employees have put up flags just to show that in this time of national crisis they are standing back of the government. Coming home from a several years sojourn in Canada, an American was heard to remark recently, that he rode for miles through Michigan, passing a number of towns and cities, before he caught the glimpse of "Old Glory" for which he had been longing since seeing the ever present "Union Jack" during his trip through Canada.

You cannot look at a flag without feeling your bosom swell with pride and loyalty, and it is a feeling which needs to be cultivated by a more constant vision of our national emblem. The children in the schools and the foreigners scattered throughout the country cannot be inspired with love for our country without our making some show of it ourselves. Let every Charlevoix resident dig up a flag. Wear one on your coat lapel or unfurl one to the breeze in front of your home or business place.

TOP NOTCH PRICE FOR FERTILIZER

But Expert Farmers Know It Must Be Used.

The Argo Milling Co. were recently in receipt of an invoice for $400 a ton, covering a shipment of fertilizer consigned to the Eveline Orchads.

While this price is terrible, Mr. L. H. Taft, manager of the Eveline Orchards, who is an experienced agriculturist, evidently saw the necessity of using it, and this purchase in the face of the enormous price only goes to prove that expert opinion considers some form of artificial replenishing absolutely necessary for our Northern Michigan soils.

ANOTHER PIONEER PASSES AWAY

MRS. ROBERT MATCHETT ON SUNDAY THE 8TH.

All But One Of Her Children At Bedside When End Came At 8:40 P. M.

Mrs. Robert Matcheet died at her home in Barnard, Marion Township; last Sunday, April 8th, 8:40 P. M., at the age of sixty-seven, from a complication of ailments.

Eleanor Burns, daughter of Burnard and Abigail Burns, was born in Holland, Holland Township, county of Gray, Ontario, Canada, March 13, 1850. From here, with her parents, she moved to Arron, Bruce county, Ontario living on a farm for several years. The family then moved to Southnmpton on Lake Huron, where Mr. Burns was engaged in business until the time of their removal to Michigan in 1864. Miss Burns met Mr. Matchett in 1865, he having come up over the blazed trail from Grand Rapids. Three years later, on July 3, 1868, they were married and were assisted by her father in locating on their present homestead in Barnard. The Burns family at that time occupied what is now a part of the William Burns farm at Barnard, having previously located for a short time at Antrim City.

Mr. and Mrs. Matchett were among the first pioneer settlers in Northern Michigan, and have lived continuously on the farm at Barnard since their marriage, nearly forty-six years ago.

Mrs. Matchett was always a loving Christian wife and mother and will be greatly missed by her children and her many warm friends in this section. Two of her children died in their infancy, but she leaves eight children, of whom seven were at her bedside when the end came. Her husband also survives her.

The daughters are Mrs. Abbie Trimble and Mrs. Ella Taylor of Charlevoix, Mrs. Ruth Dougherty of Barnard and Mrs. Lizzie Hollenbeck of Iola, Colorado. There are four sons: Thomas, Robert and Frank at Barnard and A. D. Matchett, of Miami, Fla. The oldest son, Thomas, has been in Colorado for sixteen years and had just returned on October 1st last. Besides her children, Mrs. Matchett leaves three sisters: Mrs. Richard Williams of Ironton, Mrs. William Scroggie, of Detroit and Mrs. Pierce Kinsella of Iuka, Mississippi, and four brothers: William Burns, at Barnard, Nat and George Burns of Charlevoix and Ed. Burns, now at Palmetto, Fla.

The funeral was held Wednesday at nine o'clock at the home of the deceased at Barnard with services following at the Barnard church, Rev. William Smith of Barnard charge officiating, with interment in the local cemetery.

FAVORITE HYMNS SUNG AT FUNERAL

Robert Reid Loved Eighth Chapter of Romans—Born In Ireland

Robert Reid, who died on March 29th last, was born in Armagh County, Ireland in November 1838. He came to Leeds county, Ontario, Canada at the age of five years. In 1860, he married Mary Ann McMorran and moved to Alpena, Michigan in 1877, later removing to Burgess, where he lived for five years and finally to Charlevoix, of which place he has been resident for the past thirteen years.

Six children survive him; Miss Elizabeth Reid, of Charlevoix, Mr. Robert Reid, of Detroit, Michigan, Mrs. Samuel Rife, of Winnipeg, Manitoba, Mrs. William Rife, of Vancouver, B. C., Mrs. Thomas W. Milner of Charlevoix and Mrs. Joseph Reid, of Kaslo, B. C. His only living sister, aged 83, lives in Sandusky, Ohio.

The funeral was held April 1st from the home of Thomas Milner, 310 Clinton Street, Rev. Quinton Walker officiating. The deceased's favorite chapter in the Bible, 8th Romans, was read at the funeral and his favorite hymns were sung, "Saved by Grace," "Washed in the Blood of the Lamb," and "Calvary." Interment was at Brookside.

Outstanding! In every community the name Certain-teed stands conspicuously for quality, good value, satisfaction, and fair dealing.

Certain-teed Paints and Varnishes

get their quality from the character of materials used in their manufacture and from the exactness with which they are mixed.

The formula of ingredients printed on the label shows honestly and unmistakably the real worth of the paint.

Modern, up-to-date machinery eliminates the uncertainties of mixing by hand and insures absolute conformity to the experts' printed formula.

The price of CERTAIN-TEED Paints and Varnishes is based on the most favorable manufacturing, distributing and selling costs, plus a margin of profit smaller than is generally customary. This low price would not be possible if we had to depend upon an exclusive paint organization to market our paints and varnishes.

CERTAIN-TEED Paints and Varnishes are guaranteed to give satisfaction. This guarantee is backed by the enormous resources of the Certain-teed Products Corporation.

Whether you do your own painting or employ a professional painter your interests will be best served if you insist upon getting CERTAIN-TEED Paints and Varnishes.

Any good dealer can sell you CERTAIN-TEED Paints and Varnishes. If he doesn't carry them in stock, he can get them for you.

Certain-teed Roofing

For factories, office buildings, farm buildings, garages, etc., CERTAIN-TEED is the efficient roof. It costs less to buy, less to lay, and less per year of life. It is light-weight, clean, sanitary, weather-proof, and fire retardant. For residences CERTAIN-TEED Slate Surfaced Shingles have all the advantages of CERTAIN-TEED Roll Roofing, plus artistic beauty. CERTAIN-TEED is guaranteed for 5, 10 or 15 years, according to thickness (1, 2 or 3 ply).

If you are building, or need a new roof, it will pay you to investigate CERTAIN-TEED before deciding upon any type of roof. Sold by leading dealers all over the world.

He motored out from Brownsville, and after ridding himself of dust, insisted upon spending the interval before dinner in an inspection of Alaire's latest ranch improvements. Not until dinner was over did he inquire the reason for his summons.

"It's about La Feria. General Longorio has confiscated my stock," Alaire told him. "I was afraid of this very thing, and so I was preparing to bring the stock over. Still—I never thought they'd actually confiscate it."

"Hasn't Ed done enough to provoke confiscation?" asked the judge. "I have it pretty straight that he's giving money to the rebel junta and lending every assistance he can to their cause."

"I didn't know he'd actually done anything. How mad!"

"Yes—for a man with interests in federal territory. But Ed always does the wrong thing, you know."

"Then I presume this confiscation is in the nature of a reprisal. But the stock is mine, not Ed's. I want your help in taking up the matter with Washington."

Ellsworth was pessimistic. "It won't do any good, my dear," he said. "You won't be paid for your cattle."

"Then I shall go to La Feria."

"No!" The judge shook his head decidedly.

"I've been there a hundred times,

"I Wonder If You Ever Met a David Law?"

The federals have been more than courteous."

"Longorio has a bad reputation. I strongly advise against your going. You'd better send some man."

"Whom can I send?" asked Alaire. "You know my situation."

The judge considered a moment before replying. "I can't go, for I'm busy in court. You could probably accomplish more than anybody else, if Longorio will listen to reason, and, after all, you are a person of such importance that I dare say you'll be safe. But it will be a hard trip, and you won't know whether you are in rebel or in federal territory."

"Well, people here are asking whether Texas is in the United States or Mexico," Alaire said, lightly. "Sometimes I hardly know." After a moment she continued: "Since you know everything and everybody, I wonder if you ever met a David Law?"

Ellsworth nodded.

"Tell me something about him."

"He asked me the same thing about you. Well, I haven't seen much of Dave since he grew up, he's such a rounder."

"He said his parents were murdered by the Guadalupes."

"Yes. It happened a good many years ago, and certainly they both met a violent end. I was instrumental in saving what property Frank Law left, but it didn't last Dave very long. He's right careless in money matters. Dave's a fine fellow in some ways—most ways, I believe, but—" The judge lost himself in frowning meditation.

"I have never known you to damn a friend or a client with such faint praise," said Alaire.

"Oh, I don't mean it that way. I'm almost like one of Dave's kin, and I've been keenly interested in watching his traits develop. I'm interested in heredity. I've watched it in Ed's case, for instance. If you know the parents it's easy to read their children." Again he lapsed into silence, nodding to himself. "Yes, nature mixes her prescriptions like any druggist. I'm glad you and Ed—have no kiddos."

Alaire murmured something unintelligible.

CHAPTER V.

A Journey, and a Dark Man.

Alaire's preparations for the journey to La Feria were with little delay. Owing to the condition of affairs across the border, Ellsworth had thought it well to provide her with letters from the most influential Mexicans in the neighborhood; what is more, in order to pave her way toward a settlement of her claim he succeeded in getting a telegram through to Mexico City—Ellsworth's influence was not bounded by the Rio Grande.

Alaire took Dolores with her, and for male escort she selected, after some deliberation, Jose Sanchez, her horse-breaker. Benito could not well be spared. Sanchez had some force and initiative, at least and Alaire had no reason to doubt his loyalty. The party went to Pueblo by motor. On the following day, Alaire secured her passports from the federal headquarters across the Rio Grande, while Jose attended to the railroad tickets. On the second morning after leaving home the party was borne southward into Mexico.

The revolution had ravaged most of northern Mexico; long rows of rusting trucks and twisted car skeletons beside the track showed how the railway's rolling stock had suffered in this particular vicinity; and as the train penetrated farther south temporary trestles and the charred ruins of station houses spoke even more eloquently of the struggle. Now and then a steel water tank, pierced with loopholes and ripped by cannon balls, showed where some detachment had made a stand. There was a military guard on the train, too—a dozen unkempt soldiers loaded down with rifles and bandoliers of cartridges, and several officers, neatly dressed in khaki, who rode in the first-class coach and occupied themselves by making eyes at the women.

At its frequent stops the train was besieged by the customary crowd of curious peons; the same noisy hucksters dealt out enchiladas, tortillas, goat cheeses and coffee from the same dirty baskets and pails; even their outstretched hands seemed to bear the familiar grime of ante-bellum days. The coaches were crowded; women fanned themselves unceasingly; their men snored, open-mouthed, over the backs of the seats, and the aisles were full of squalling, squabbling children.

As for the country itself, it was dying. The ranches were stripped of stock, no carts creaked along the highways, and the fonds, like the little farms, were growing up to weeds. Stores were empty, the people were idle. Over all was an atmosphere of decay, and, what was far more significant, the people seemed content.

All morning the monotonous journey continued—a trial to Alaire and Dolores, but to Jose Sanchez a red-letter experience. He covered the train from end to end, making himself acquainted with everyone and bringing to Alaire the gossip that he picked up.

It was not until midday that the first interruption occurred; then the train pulled in upon a siding, and after an interminable delay it transpired that a northbound troop-train was expected.

Jose brought this intelligence: "Soon you will behold the flower of the Mexican army," he told Alaire. "You will see thousands of Longorio's veterans, every man of them a very devil for blood. They are returning to Nuevo Pueblo after destroying a band of those rebels. They had a great victory at San Pedro—thirty kilometers from La Feria. Not a prisoner was spared, senora."

"Is General Longorio with them?" Alaire inquired quickly.

"That is what I came to tell you. It is believed that he is, for he takes his army with him wherever he goes. He is a great fighter; he has a nose for it, that man, and he strikes like the lightning — here, there, anywhere." Jose, it seemed, was a rabid Potosista.

"When the train arrives," she told her horse-breaker, "I want you to find General Longorio and ask him to come here."

"But, senora!" Jose was dumfounded, shocked. "He is a great general—"

"Give him this note." Quickly writing a few lines on a page from her notebook, she gave him the scrap of paper, which he carefully placed in his hat; then, shaking his head doubtfully, he left the car.

Flushed with triumph, Dolores took the first occasion to enlarge upon her theme.

"You will see what a monster this Longorio is," she declared. "It was like him to steal your beautiful cattle; he would steal a crucifix."

"I've heard that," Alaire said gravely.

In the course of time the military train came creaking along on the main track and stopped, to the great interest of the south-bound travelers. It was made up of many stock cars crowded with cavalry horses, and jammed in with them were the women and the children. The soldiers themselves were clustered thickly upon the car roofs. Far down at the rear of the train was a rickety passenger coach, and toward this Jose Sanchez made his way.

There began a noisy interchange of greetings between the occupants of the two trains, and meanwhile the hot sun glared balefully upon the huddled figures on the car tops. A half-hour passed, then occurred a commotion at the forward end of Alaire's coach.

A group of officers climbed aboard, and among them was one who could be none other than Luis Longorio. As he came down the passageway Alaire identified him without the aid of his insignia, for he stood head and shoulders above his companions and bore himself with an air of authority. He was unusually tall, at least six feet three, and very slim, very lithe; a young man; his cheeks were girlishly smooth and of a clear, pale, olive tint; his eyes were large, bold, brilliant; his nostrils thin and sensitive, like those of a blooded horse. Disdain, hauteur, impatience, were stamped upon the general's countenance as he pushed briskly through the crowd, turning his head from side to side in search of the woman who had summoned him.

Not until she rose did he discover Alaire; then he halted; his eyes fixed themselves upon her with a start of startled amazement.

Alaire felt herself color faintly, for the man seemed to be scanning her from head to foot, taking in every detail of her face and form, and as he did so his expression remained unaltered. For what seemed a full minute Longorio stood rooted; then the stiff-vizored cap was swept from his head; he bowed with the grace of a courtier until Alaire saw the part in his oily black hair.

"Senora! A thousand apologies for my delay," he said. "Caramba! I did not dream—I did not understand your message." He continued to regard her with that same queer intensity.

"You are General Longorio?" Alaire was surprised to note that her voice quavered uncertainly, and annoyed to feel her face still flushing."

"Your obedient servant."

Longorio, with a brusque command, routed out the occupants of the seat ahead, and, reversing the back, took a position facing Alaire. Another order and the men who had accompanied him withdrew up the aisle. There was no mistaking his admiration. He seemed enchanted by her pale beauty, her rich, red hair held him fascinated, and with Latin boldness he made his feelings crassly manifest.

"You probably know why I wished to see you," Alaire began.

Longorio shook his head in vague denial.

"It is regarding my ranch, La Feria." Seeing that the name conveyed nothing, she explained, "I am told that your army confiscated my cattle."

"Ah, yes! Now I understand." The Mexican nodded mechanically, but it was plain that he was not heeding her words in the least. As if to shut out a vision or to escape some dazzling sight, he closed his eyes. Alaire wondered if the fellow had been drinking. She turned to Dolores to find that good woman wearing an expression of stupefaction. It was very queer; it made Alaire extremely ill at ease.

Longorio opened his eyes and passed a brown hand across his brow as if to brush away perverse fancies that interfered with his thoughts. Alaire noticed that one of his fingers was decorated with a magnificent diamond-and-ruby ring, and this interested her queerly. No ordinary man could fittingly have worn such an ornament, yet on the hand of this splendid barbarian it seemed not at all out of keeping.

"Dios!" Longorio continued. "Your ranch has been destroyed; your cattle stolen, eh? We will shoot the perpetrators of this outrage at once. Bueno!"

"No, no! I don't want to see anyone punished. I merely want your government to pay me for my cattle." Alaire laughed nervously.

"Ah! But a lady of refinement should never discuss such a miserable business. It is a matter for men."

She endeavored to speak in a brisk, businesslike tone. "La Feria belongs to me. I am a woman of affairs, General Longorio, and you must talk to me as you would talk to a man. When I heard about this raid I came to look into it—to see you, or whoever is in charge of this district, and to make a claim for damages."

"Valgame Dios! This is amazing."

"There is nothing extraordinary about it, that I can see."

"You consider such a woman as yourself ordinary? The men of my country enshrine beauty and worship it. They do not discuss such things with their women. Now this sordid affair is something for your husband—"

"Mr. Austin's business occupies his time; this is my own concern. I am not the only practical woman in Texas."

Longorio appeared to be laboriously digesting this statement. "So?" he said at last. "When you heard of this—you came, eh? You came alone into Mexico, where we are fighting and killing each other? Well! That is spirit. You are wonderful, superb!" He smiled, showing the whitest and evenest teeth.

Such extravagant homage was embarrassing, yet no woman could be wholly displeased by admiration so spontaneous and intense as that which Longorio manifested in every look and word. Alaire knew the susceptibility of Mexican men, and was immune to ordinary flattery; yet there was something exciting about this martial hero's complete captivation. To have charmed him to the point of bewilderment was a unique triumph, and under his hungry eyes she felt an adventurous thrill.

While he and Alaire were talking the passengers had returned to their seats; they were shouting good-bys to the soldiers opposite; the conductor approached and informed the general of his train orders.

Longorio favored him with a slow stare. "You may go when I leave," said he.

"Si, senor. But—"

The general uttered a sharp exclamation of anger, at which the conductor backed away, expressing by voice and gesture his most hearty approval of the change of plan.

"We mustn't hold the train," Alaire said quickly. "I will arrange to see you in Nuevo Pueblo when I return."

Longorio smiled brilliantly and lifted a brown hand. "No, no! I am a selfish man; I refuse to deprive myself of this pleasure. Now about these cattle." He thought for a moment, and his tone altered as he said: "Senora, there seems to be an unhappy complication in our way, and this we must remove. First, may I ask, are you a friend to our cause?"

"I am an American, but what has that to do with my ranch and my cattle? This is something that concerns no one except you and me."

Longorio was plainly flattered by her words, and took no trouble to hide his pleasure. "Ah! If that were only true! We would arrange everything to your satisfaction without another word." His admiring gaze seemed to envelop her, and its warmth was unmistakable.

"Why Did You Take My Cattle?"

OUR PLAIN DUTY.

At last we are facing war, there was no honorable way in which it can be avoided. We, therefore, must fight.

But with the conflict a reality, it will be well if we as a people are disposed to profit by the experience of the nations across the water.

It seems like a prosiac matter for discussion, but really one of the greatest factors that will enter into the matter is our food supply. We are already faced with prices as high as it would seem we can possibly endure; with a pronounced shortage in many lines of our products; and if a large army and navy is to be recruited from our industrial workers the situation is likely to become serious.

It is, however, fortunate that the crisis should come at this season of the year, when the people can plan to meet the situation. The farming season is just opening, and every man, woman and child in the United States should be brought to feel that on his or her shoulders rests a very tangible portion of the responsibility that faces the nation.

OUR PEOPLE MUST BE FED. In an ordinary year this matter would automatically take care of itself. But not so in this instance. Aside from the fact that thousands and thousands will be drawn from the ranks of the workers we will have also to reckon with the restlessness and excitement that will inevitably prevail throughout the country. This is not conductive to successful work.

What our people must realize is that no calamity can be allowed to touch us AS A WHOLE. An army may be mobilized, and the navy strengthened, but affairs will move along in the same grooves in all lines of industry. Hence, with the increased demand for food supplies that is sure to come, the FIRST THOUGHT of ALL the people should be to see that every available foot of tillable soil is made to produce a crop.

And this should not only apply to farmers. Millions of people in the cities and towns can contribute largely to the result. Unused back yards, vacant lots, fallow fields, even railroad rights of way can be made to add their quota. Every dweller in a city or town who can by any means secure a plot of ground should do so and devote a portion of his or her time this season to producing something to eat. None should evade this duty, for a DUTY it is.

Let none delude themselves with the belief that there will be any material lowering of the prices of foodstuffs unless there is an INCREASE IN PRODUCTION. The demand is too great. There are yawning markets the world over for every bushel of wheat, corn potatoes, or any other article of food that we can produce, and even should we escape a long war, at least as long as the conflict continues in Europe that demand will be urgent.

We can, we should, we MUST make of ourselves that which we glory in proclaiming—a nation of farmers.

NEWSPAPERS AND WAR.

The newspapers of America are exceedingly alert and it is a big problem what to do with their efficient news services in case of war. As a part of their contract with the reading public, they will of course print all the news they can get hold of, except in so far as they are asked to submit to a legal or voluntary censorship.

Unquestionably the Mexicans in the recent border clashes got much valuable information of troop movements from our newspapers. The Germans would be more alert, and any newspaper statement would in some way or another immediately find its way to our foes.

At the same time, the newspapers for public good must be given a certain amount of leeway. The English have found that to stir public interest in the war, they must allow the papers to print something more than official bulletins. When the English newspapers were allowed to tell more of what was going on at the front, the result was greatly to stimulate recruiting and get a much better popular support for the war. It would be the same here.

Many of our newspapers published the other day a story how a wealthy German-American living in Washington was under surveillance for his pro-German activities, and alleged possession of military maps and plans. In cases like that, the secret service should not have its hand forced, but it should be permitted to conduct its investigations quietly.

The newspaper will be willing to submit to a reasonable censorship, and will ask only that it be applied equally to all press dispatches. The journalistic world is intensely loyal in its Americanism, and it asks only that censorship be applied with some common sense and knowledge of human nature.

Just about the time an article of diet reaches a sufficiently high price to be really toothsome and appetizing, along comes some meddlesome highbrow and declares it fatal to one or more of the pet ailments of mankind. Spuds are now declared to have a special grudge against the little catarrh devils and we are warned against eating them.

You say, Mr. Merchant, that you don't have to advertise because you have been in business so long that everybody knows you. Well, there is a certain mail order concern in Chicago that has probably been in business as long as you have, and we will bet a nickle to a ginger cake that every person that reads these lines can tell the name of that firm. And we will bet, further, that over half of your customers have catalogues of this firm in their homes right now. They see the value of advertising. Can't you?

We have stood on the brink of war so long we have become dizzy and are tumbling in.

DOINGS OF C. C. ASSOCIATION

At Their Meeting Last Friday Evening—Important Business.

At the meeting of the Charlevoix Commercial Association last Friday evening, several matters of importance were taken up, along with matters of lesser import.

A vote of thanks was given to George H. Van Pelt in recognition of his good work in getting new member for the association.

The committee on the transfer dock reported, and a committee was appointed to correspond with the Grand Rapids Association of Commerce to make arrangements for advertising Charlevoix in the Michigan Trade Union this year.

Van Pelt gave a talk on good roads and a proposition for a canning factory to be brought to Charlevoix was referred to the new Industrial committee to report at the next meeting.

The executive committee was empowered to appoint one member to attend the Michigan Tourists Bureau to be held at Grand Rapids on May 8th and Mr. Van Pelt voluntarily promised to attend the meeting without any expense to the association, which was very gladly accepted. The matter of road signs was discussed but left for decision until a later meeting.

RHEUMATISM IS TORTURE

As Many a Charlevoix Reader Knows Only Too Well.

Many pains that pass as rheumatism are really due to weak kidneys—to the failure of the kidneys to drive off uric acid thoroughly. When you suffer achy, bad joints, backache too, dizziness and some urinary disturbances, get Doan's Kidney Pills, the medicine that is publicly recommended by over 150,000 people in many different lands. Doan's Kidney Pills help weak kidneys to drive out uric acid, which is often the cause of the backache, rheumatism and lumbago. Charlevoix people have learned their worth. Read this Charlevoix resident's experience.

Rome Pappin, 117 Garfield Ave., Charlevoix, says: "About three years ago I got wet while watching a fire and about a week later was on my back suffering from rheumatic pains. For eight weeks I was in such bad shape I could hardly move. My kidneys were weak and irregular in action and the kidney secretions highly colored and unnatural. Dizzy spells came over me and spots floated before by eyes. Doan's Kidney Pills straightened me up in a short time, curing all symptoms of the trouble."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that cured Mr. Pappin. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

PRICE OF ALL FOOT GEAR GOES SOARING

When the great war began, shoes for Europenn soldiers cost in the neighborhood of $2.85 a pair; today the same shoes cost approximately $6.

A soldier in the trenches wears out a pair of shoes in about four weeks—practically 12 pairs a year, or 15 to 20 million pairs a month for all the warring armies.

It is not surprising in view of these facts, and the even more vital one that leather is hard to get at any price, that in England they are establishing huge reclamation factories to make new shoes from old.

Worn shoes are brought from the front in burlap bags, the soles ripped off, the uppers soaked in vats, new soles put on and the shoes returned to the front.

The situation in leather is so bad that in some parts of Europe they are wearing shoes with wooden soles in others bundles of woolen rags tied around the feet.

And should the war end tomorrow who can tell how many millions of pairs of boots and shoes would have to be shipped to Europe in the next two or three years, to supply the demands for every day civil wear?

Come to the Junior Supper at the Congregational Church, Thursday, April 12, twenty-five cents 15t1

American physicians who have been engaged in hospital work in Germany contend that the food shortage has operated to improve the health of the people. They could have learned that much at home. American newspapermen are noted for health and longevity.

DOES IT PAY TO FEED stock at present prices???

THAT'S the question that is bothering you Mr. Farmer.

Some feeds are not dear. Oil meal and Cotton Seed Meal have not advanced. Today they are much cheaper than corn or oat feeds.

Our poultry feeds were bought before the recent advance and are now selling by the sack for less than the car load price.

We have low prices on hay by car lot or ton.

Have bought a car of Schumacher Stock feeds. Can quote you a close price on this. Investigate before buying.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN NOTES.

Beet Growers Get Raise.

Another battle has been won through organization and this time right here in Michigan. Following a conference with Governor Sleeper in Lansing, called by the governor, representatives of practicnlly all sugar compnnies in Michigan agreed to the demnnds of beet growers throughout Michigan for a uniform price of $8 per ton.

The netion came after the governor had nppealed to the mnnufacturers on the strength of recent requests sent out from Washington thnt the agriculturnl interests of the country he furthered in view of the threntened wnr with Germnny.

As a result the mnnufacturers' nction the farmers will be paid the higher rate this year. The decision ends the battle waged between the growers of sugar beets and the manufacturers of this state since last January. The prevsiling price has been $6 per ton, but the farmers refused to plant their crop this year unless a more fsvorahle agreement was reached.

A strong orgnnization of beet growers was perfected throughout southern and eastern Mlehigan snd the contracts signed by farmers at the old price for the 1917 erop were few and far between.

Joins Artillery Guard.

Postmaster Lewis, of Boyne City, acting as recruiting officer, has accepted for the army, Joseph H. Smith, 618 East Main St., who has left for Grand Rapids where he will join the coast artillery squad. This is the first enlistment from this vicinity to aid the world's war that our country is now entering.

Furnace Workers Strike.

Tuesday morning of last week most of the men employed at the Charcoal Iron Furnace at Boyne City, walked out and have not returned to work. The furnace is running, being operated by Manager Dunn and a picked-up crew. We are informed that the men had not notified the company of their intention to stop work their action therefore was a surprise.

Mrs. L. A. Kenyon Dead.

Mrs. L. A. Kenyon, who hns been quite ill for the past six months, pnssed away at her home in East Jordan Monday of last week, the immediate cause of her death being heart failure.

Lasira A. Kenyon was born nt Mnnnsville, Jefferson County, N. Y., March 19, 1844, her parents being Luther and Charlotte Potter. She was united in marriage to Hosea Kenyon, Nov. 1, 1865 at Mannsville, N. Y. Two children were born to the union—Frank A. Kenyon now residing at Mackinac Island, Mich., and Mrs. Mary J. Roy of Goshen, Ind. The husband and father died April 30, 1876.

Mrs. Kenyon resided at her birthplace until 1870. Since then she resided at Winfield, Ingham Co., Mich., 1870-74; at Vermontville 1874-76; Mnnnsville 1876-87; and at East Jordan from 1887 until the time of her death.

Deceased was one of East Jordan's most esteemed residents. She wns a charter member of the Ladies of the Maccabees, a member of the Eastern Star, the Pythian Sisters and the Woman's Relief Corps. In church affiliations she was a member of the Congregational church of Mannsville, N. Y.

Funeral services were held from the Presbyterian church Wednesday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock conducted by the pastor, Rev. R. S. Sidebotham The pall hearers were Messrs. Wm. Harrington, Anton Walstad, Martin Ruhling, Jacob Rogers, Jesse Carpenter and Robert Price. Interment was made at the East Jordan cemetery.

Adopt Carrie Nation Tactics.

Mackinac Island experienced n visit last week from understudies of Cnrrie Nation of hatchet fame. Mrs. Nellie O'Leary, and daughter, Frances O'Leary, armed with hatchets, entered the Sullivan saloon, and with remarkably good aim for their sex, threw their weapons at the plate glass mirror. It went out of business at first shot, as did the electric lights, plncing the whole institution in darkness. The contents of the building were damaged to the extent of nbout $125.

MOUNTAIN DIST.

No notes last week for our mail man fniled to appear.

Mrs. Myers and son Clnude were at East Jordan last Mondny.

Backed Auto Off Dock.

Mrs. Charles Drake was drowned in Cheboygan river Thursday night when she backed her automobile off the McArthur dock in that city. The accident was not discovered until 7:30 o'clock Friday morning.

The top of the car was up and the woman was caught behind the steering wheel and was unable to free herself before being overcome by the water.

Capt. E. J. Laway of Cheboygan with his diving outfit went into the river and removed the body and later the automobile was hauled off the bottom of the river.

The woman was twenty-one years of age and her parents reside at Bellaire.

Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Melosh have moved back to the farm, after spending the winter at Boyne City.

Mrs. Isa Alward spent Tuesday night and Wednesday with her mother, Mrs. Chas. Smith, of Ellsworth.

Some of the items are old instead of news, but we are hoping they will be news to some of the readers.

Melvin Smith and family, who have been spending the winter in Boyne City returned to their home here.

Leo Stevens, who has been spending a few weeks at the Thos. De Montpied home, went to Cadillac last week.

The roads have been so bad that our mailman has not been through for some time, and although we have gotten our mail nearly every day it has been too uncertain a service to get our news items mailed.

SCHOOL NOTES.

Busy times nowadays. Only two weeks more of school.

The second and third grades are reading "Four Little Cotton Tails."

The eighth grade have begun a review of agriculture and grammar.

We had two visitors at school last Monday, Alida Besuker and Eva Wijsley of Ellsworth.

"Build the Maintenance Into the Road."

Many road officials are buried in skepticism and refuse absolutely to alter their time-worn ideas even in the face of proven facts, in direct contradiction of those ideas. They persist in repeating their mistakes and, when roads are concerned, to build roads that are impermanent, temporary and bigh in ultimate cost.

Cheapness in first cost, so often used, is a poor criterion in selecting the type of road. Ultmate cost should be the final determining factor, which means initial or first cost plus the yearly cost of maintenance and the interest on the money invested. In this respect the following conclusions of the U. S. Government, as printed in Bulletin N. 136, U. S. Department of Agriculture, should be of financial aid to you in investing your road funds:

"The average interval for resurfacing macadam or gravel roads is between six and seven years."

"The total annual repair and maintenance of gravel roads is from $180 to $280 per mile."

"The sum of $525 per mile on an average, should therefore, absolutely maintain macadam roads if the changes and increase of traffic are not excessive.

"It is clear, therefore, that $700 per mile is not an excessive estimate at present for the annual cost of all repair and maintenance of bituminous macadam roads."

"If the surface is built with the proper mix of concrete and carefully placed, it apparently should last indefinately."

Such expressions of truth apply not only to one locality, but in general throughout the country, the inevitable result of present day traffic which is rapidly becoming all rubber tired.

Permanent concrete roads should be the answer to such truths and will, we believe, be adopted by you.

ATWOOD.

Jack Smith had his wood buzzed one day last week.

C. De Vries sold two cows to Joe Veenstra last week Friday.

The snow storm last week would have done January credit.

Wm. Hofman, Jr., delivered three calves to H. Klooster Wednesday morning.

Graddus Petter commenced working for C. Sprik at Mapleville last week Tuesday.

Mrs. C. De Vries will leave for Chicago soon to visit her daughter residing there.

Murrill Richardson moved his goods to the Sprik farm the first part of last week.

Harry Klooster bought a plow and a spring tooth harrow at the village store last Saturday.

Jim Json of Eastport delivered a calf and n hog to the Atwood store Tuesday of last week.

Services were held at the Christian Reformed church, Good Friday and were well attended.

Rev. and Mrs. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Jones of Norwood were in Atwood last week Friday.

John Fuher has about ten acres of J. T. Oldbert's land which he will work on shares this season.

Miss Etta Pol, who has been employed in Kalamazoo this winter, returned to her home this week.

Joe Veenstra moved his stock and belongings to the farm he rented for the coming season, last week.

Snm Von Houten took advantage of the snow Friday by hauling a small load of logs to Jangleville on sleighs.

James Heeres and family visited his parents Friday and attended the services at the Holland church in the afternoon.

Otto Morse of Bay View bought a power sprayer of A. Bos & Son this week. He traded in a pump engine toward the outfit.

Last Tuesday was farming day for a few hereabouts. C. De Vries done some ploughing and Garrett Essenberg disced a while.

The Everett B. Clark seed company's representative was in Atwood Tuesday, contracting for the growing of beans and radish seed.

Mr. Welch moved a load of his household goods to Atwood Friday. He went to Central Lake Sunday to get his family arriving in Atwood Sunday evening.

A fair attendance at the services held at the M. E. church Sunday morning. Here's hoping the roads will soon be so people living at a distance will be able to attend the weekly meetings.

The Y. P. S. of the Christian reformed church are practicing for a program to be rendered at a banquet they will have some time in the near future.

Conrad Klooster made a trip to Charlevoix for his father Saturday. He will be a business man some day. as he delivered some eggs and sold some pork and beef while there.

Snm Van Houten has commenced dairying in earnest. He bought two cows and their calves of Capt. Brant of Antrim City last week. He has fifteen head of stock at the present

Miss Jennie Zylstra and little Agnes Sneller visiting with friend ter a few week's visiting with friend and relatives in Oakland and other towna in southern Michigan.

Miss Jeanette Morrow, the Atwood school teacher, made a trip to Petoskey Saturday. On her return from there she went to her home near Central Lake, returning to Atwood Sunday evening.

A charivari naturally follows a wedding in these parts. About sixteen fellows took part in drumming $4.00 out of Joe Veenstra's pocket last Wednesday evening. They were rained wet and if they purchase some wet goods with the money, we may have to get out life preservers for the bunch.

Joe Veenstra and Miss Minne Van Houten were married last Wednesday at the home of the bride, a mile south of Atwood. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Pickart and was attended by a few of the relatives of the young people. They will live on the H. Blow farm, between Atwood and Norwood. We all join in wishing them a bon voyage through life.

ATWOOD.

We hail thee, O' Spring.

Edna Jolifee is at Ellsworth for a few days.

Miss Stella Brown is reported sick—hope not serious.

Miss Janet Morrow went to Petoskey on Saturday last.

Some of the farmers commenced to plow on Monday last.

Plenny Genett finished cutting timber at Jangleville on Monday.

Floyd Parsons is sick with pneumonia. Mrs. Lynklip of Charlevoix is caring for him.

We are very sorry to learn of the death of Mrs. Robert Matchett, Sr., of Barnard. We take this way of expressing our sympathy to all of the bereaved ones.

You Can Make Excellent Cake with Fewer Eggs

Just use an additional quantity of Royal Baking Powder, about a teaspoon, in place of each egg omitted.

This applies equally well to nearly all baked foods. Try the following recipe according to the new way:

CREAM LAYER CAKE

Old Way	New Way
1 cup sugar	1 cup sugar
½ cup milk	1 cup milk
2 cups flour	2 cups flour
2 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder	4 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
3 eggs	1 egg
½ cup shortening	2 tablespoons shortening
1 teaspoon flavoring	1 teaspoon flavoring

Makes 1 Large 2-Layer Cake

DIRECTIONS—Cream the sugar and shortening together, then mix in the egg. After sifting the flour and Royal Baking Powder together two or three times, add it all to the mixture. Gradually add the milk and beat with spoon until you have a smooth pour batter. Add the flavoring. Pour into greased layer cake tins and bake in a moderately hot oven for twenty minutes. This cake is best baked in two layers. Put together with cream filling and spread with white icing

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

THEATRICAL

Facts Worth Knowing.

The most absorbing scenes ever recorded on films will be presented by Lyman H. Howe at the Majestic Theatre on Monday, May 14. They depict Sir Douglas Mawson's Expedition to Antartica in a manner that far excels any hunt, travel or exploration pictures ever obtained. Here are just a few facts which justifies these claims. The scenes were photographed 2,000 miles from the nearest human habitation in a land never before seen by the eye of a man. The birds and animals depicted cannot be seen in any zoo in the world. The film shows in perfect photography a raging blizzard in the stormiest spot on earth—Adelie Land, Antartica—where the wind attained a velocity of 216 miles per hour. It shows the largest icebergs ever photographed. It tells the story of a one thousand mile sledging journey that is unequalled in the history of polar exploration. No other travel pictures combine so much real and natural humor and comedy. For the penguin, the odd-looking sea-fowl of this frigid region, is the originator of the Charlie Chaplin walk—and thousands of them are shown. The expedition was the largest in the history of exploration. It was composed of 36 university graduates. It covered a period of 2 years and 3 months and cost $300,000. Every foot of the film is photographically perfect and abounds with tense thrills. Not an inch of it is posed or fictitious. It rings true from beginning to end just because it is absolutely true and natural.

Notwithstanding the enormous outlay Mr. Howe has incurred to present this remarkable film to his patrons, he has not yielded to the popular tendencies to raise the price of admission. The prices will remnin the same as always although this fenture in itself is worth many times over the small admission fee, and besides, by way of extraordinary valûe, there will be a most pleasing diversity of other subjects including. speetaeular automobile raees over the steep and winding course of Giant's Despair, Wilkes-Barre, Pa., as well as a liberal measure of quaint humor and merry-making provided by Howe's exclusive "comics" which are cleverly interspersed throughout the program.

SAVED BY ABSENCE HIGH WIND

HOTEL CHARLEVOIX HAS NARROW ESCAPE.

Monday Morning Blaze Startles A Thrill-Weary Throng—Place Badly Wrecked.

Charlevoix's jaded nerves, already wearied with arson, war and scandal, were jarred into feverish activity again Monday morning, when the fire bell rang at ten-thirty o'clock, and it began to be borne in upon the town's collective and individual consciousness that the Charlevoix Hotel was burning.

Hardly had the first notes of the bell died away before people could be seen coming out of the front door with chairs, dresser drawers, window curtains, rugs mattresses and bedding, depositing their burdens in the gutter on the other side of the street and then filing back again, some walking, some running and some peeling off their coats to get the better down to business—a "thin black line of heroes," while sarcastic comments in which "insurance" was the prominently figured word began to be bandied from lip to lip in the crowd idly watching.

Thick smoke seemed to rise simultaneously from all parts of the roof, shot here and there with ominous sheets of flame. Hardly a breath of air stirred, and this alone saved the building. It was a slow, creeping affair, this blaze, with just a hint of latent destructive power in the occasional flame spurts to make it "shivery" to the onlooker. Finally the hose came and after a short, brief battle between the antagonistic elements, the attention of the firemen and the crowd turned to the rear of the building where the flames were roaring fiercely from cellar to garret and which proved out of reach of the first line of hose.

There was some delay in making connections with a second line of hose and for a time it was feared that the fight would be lost after all. Then the water started and the two men at the nozzle end struggled with the writhing hose which thrashed and strained in their hands like some sinewy boa-constrictor under the fierce pressure. Charred fragments whirled skyward and windows shattered like brittle ice under the terrific impact of the stream. Duller grew the angry glare of the flames and thicker and blacker rolled the smoke as the fire demon retreated under the fierce onslaught of its ancient enemy. Someone dropped a lighted cigarette in the grass behind the building, a minature blaze started, and the firemen reluctantly brought their unweildy nozzle to bear upon it, much to the dismay of the "kids" who were slow in getting out of range.

Inside the hotel was chaos. The office now stripped of its furniture awam in an inch of dirty water, rapidly rising under a steady downpour from the ceiling, giving hint of the disaster overhead. Something had crossed the wires lending to the announcer and the bell in the office rang with weird insistence above the noise of shouts and the tramping of feet, giving the ever-present joker a chance with cries of "Front" and jeering remarks as to the poor quality of the "bell-hop" service.

As far as known, the fire started in the roof next to a chimney in the rear of the building and confined itself, with the exception of the rear portion to the roof. Most of the damage was done by water. In fact a great portion of the upper floor showed no signs of damage and guests already there were assigned other rooms where their own had to be vacated. The serving of meals started again Tuesday morning, delayed for a while owing to the fact that a large part of the furniture was piled in the dining room. Business is now going on about as usual. The entire extent of the damage has not been estimated but it is expected to be great.

Some small amount of humor allayed the seriousness of the affair in the preventive measures being taken next door where Joe Lemieur stood on the roof of his store playing a garden hose on the shingles in lonely isolation. But 'Fate' again saved the street from the destruction that we have erstwhile predicted would some day surely befall it.

WHEAT CROP IS NOT SUFFICIENT

Country Faces Peril of Distressing Shortage This Year.

The latest government crop report indicates an alarming prospect ahead of us in a shortage of wheat.

Even with a normal crop of spring wheat in the Northwest, the year's total estimated wheat crop will be insufficient for the country's needs not only as regards consumption, but for seed as well.

The situation that confronts the United States is serious in the extreme and this seriousness is aggravated by the pressing needs of the war now upon us. It can only be met by an earnest effort on the part of the farmer backed by the business man and assisted by the labor of the man who can't enlist to get every available bit of land that will raise wheat under cultivation.

The Department of Agriculture at Washington has been urged to take active steps immediately to see that every available foot of ground in the Northwest is seeded with wheat, even if it is found necessary to import the seed from Canada for the purpose. Prompt action without red tape is necessary to avert what looks like threatened national disaster. Days are precious.

CHARLEVOIX MAN MORTALLY WOUNDED

Ed. Seaman Shot Three Times In Fracas Over Woman.

We reprint the following rather startling bit of news from the Grand Rapids Press of April 17th.

MANISTEE, April 16.—With three bullet wounds in his body, Edward Seaman, 39, proprietor of the local skating rink, lies in the hospital with little chance for recovery as a result of a midnight shooting scrape.

Fonde Broome, 25, proprietor of a news stand, is accused of firing the shots. Broome declares that when he returned to his rooms unexpectedly, he found Seaman and his wife together. Seaman is married. (This is the man who ran the Charlevoix rink last year and with whom local people are well acquainted.—Ed.)

MRS. HIMEBAUCH DIED SUDDENLY

JOY AT BIRTH OF SON CHANGES TO SADNESS

Taken In the Prime of Life the Deceased Leaves Many To Mourn Her Loss.

Mrs. Harmon Himebauch died at her home in Phelps, Marion Township, last Saturday, April 14th, at 4:30 P. M., at the age of 37 years, following the birth of her child early that morning.

Sarah Francis Cunningham, daughter of Thomas and Emily Cunaingham, was born in Barnard, Marion township, June 9, 1880. She was married to Harmon Himebauch, February 1, 1900, and to this union were born six children, three of whom died in their infancy.

Mrs. Himebauch was always a loving wife and mother and leaves to mourn their loss, her husband, two daughters, the little boy who came into the world almost as his mother left it, four step children; her father, mother, one brother and one sister, all of Marion township.

The deceased was a member of the Quality Arbor of Gleaners, as well as of the Marion Center grange.

She was loved and cherished by all who knew her, and she leaves a host of friends who extend their heartfelt sympathy to the sorrowing family in this, their hour of need.

The funeral was held at the Barnard church at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, followed by the interment in Barnard cemetery. Rev. C. E. Taggart was the minister officiating.

We are now prepared to serve lunches and meals at all hours and also teams feed, at William Lucia's, Norwood, Mich. 15t3

BIDS FAREWELL TO VOLUNTEERS

CHARLEVOIX CITIZENS PARADE IN HONOR

Of Its First Recruits—All Have Passed And Are Now In Training At Columbus

The town witnessed it's first patriotic demonstration of the war last Saturday, when the first four recruits enrolled at the local office were escorted to the station on the way to their next step in their development from citizen to soldier at Grand Rapids.

The enterprising young patriots who represent Charlevoix's first contribution to the defense of the nation's honor were Ray Solomon and Glenn See of Charlevoix, Archie Gravelin of this township and Frank Vosburg of Marion.

Parade was formed at 11:15 and a long line of automobiles bearing the Boy Scouts and all of the business men who had cars or could find place in one with flags flying and a drum and fife corps composed of Scouts and two veteran fifers of '61 furnished the martial music, made a flying loop through the residence district and then started up the hill where they made another detour to give north side residents a chance to see the unusual sight.

The "rookies" were distinguished from the stay-at-homes by the little flag decorations worn on their hats, the gift of Baxter Relief Corps No. 173, presented by its president, Mrs. C. R. Bellinger, before they started for the train.

When the train rolled in hasty (and in some cases tearful) goodbyes were said and our first sacrifice for the Old Flag and Uncle Sam was on its way.

From latest reports, the boys passed their second examination in Grand Rapids successfully and were sent on Sunday afternoon to the barracks at Columbus, Ohio, where they will receive their uniforms and some rudimentary drill while awaiting assignment to some definite command.

HENS PASS AWAY

Two Hundred Egg-Layers Go Up In Smoke With Coop Friday.

Early Friday morning, a chicken coop belonging to A. T. Jeffrey burned to the ground at his place on State street and about two hundred chickens passed into eternity along with the coop.

Friday, the 13th, was surely unlucky for "Jeff." The fire started at about four forty-five A. M.—presumably (as there was but little insurance on the coop and its contents) from cinders dropping from the door of the heater which was installed in the little building. Mr. Jeffrey managed to put out the flames, unaided by the department, but not until the heavy loss, above described, became unavoidable.

LOTS OF PEP YET IN THIS OLD VET

CAPTAIN BERDAN WOULD RAISE HOME GUARD

Asks Governor's Permission To Enlist Regiment of Volunteers For Interoal Service.

One of our home town veterans has come forward with a proposition worthy of the record he won back in '61. Capt. Harrison Berdan is a real soldier and a stout one too. His still youthful ardor chafes under the restraint of bodily limitations and though he can't go to the front to fight is bound to get into the game and do something for the old flag. Would there were a host of young fellows made of the same kind of metal in this town.

Read this letter the captain wrote to Gov. Sleeper and then see if you don't feel like throwing your hat in the air and giving three good husky ones und a tiger for "Cap." We did. Here is the letter:

April 12, 1917.

Hon. Albert E. Sleeper, Gov.,
Lansing, Michigan.

My dear Sir:

In the event of the present war being carried to a successful finish, all of our younger men will be required for the army or for employment, either in the factories or on the farms, and I believe that the safety and interests of the State can be protected at home by the older men.

I myself, am a veteran of the Civil war and was captain of Company H-Fifth Michigan Cavalry, being one of the four Michigan regiments belonging to General Custer's Brigade.

I desire at this time, or whenever the safety of our State and country needs the services of more men, to raise a regiment of volunteers amongst the veterans of the Civil war to act as a home guard to perform such military services as the goverament of the state might require or the government of the United States, at any place within the nation were needed, and would appreciate very much, if you would advise me, or furnish me with the proper authority to raise such a regiment.

Respectfully yours,
HARRISON BERDAN.

We hope the governor will accept the Captain's splendid offer and that we may be there to see the "boys in blue" come swinging down the street behind the band some day in the near future.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS

Mrs. F. T. Biossat, who figures so prominently in the recent arson case is now out on bail, eight men having gone on her bond.

The home talent play, "All a Mistake," at Maple Grove Grange hall last Friday, was a great success and aroused much favorable comment, the acting of Dee Sneathen and Miss Milton being particularly good.

Charlevoixites living in Flint last Saturday evening sprung a pleasant surprise on Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Campbell, now living in that city, the occasion being their 18th wedding anniversary. The only thing lacking, they say, was the rest of the bunch from "up home."

BARNARD GIRL MARRIED MONDAY MORNING

Ethel Shapton Becomes Bride Of George Sands.

At eleven o'clock Monday morning last, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Shapton, a quiet wedding took place and Miss Ethel May Shapton thereby became the bride of Mr. George Sands, Rev. C. E. Taggart performing the ceremony.

Those present at this occasion were Mr. and Mrs. James Bogart, the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Samson Godhold, Miss Isabelle M. Smith, of Barnard, who acted as bridesmaid, Leslie Shapton, brother of the bride, who was best man, George and Howard Bennett and the bride's parents.

The bride wore a beautiful gown of crepe de chene. She has lived all her life in Barnard and is highly esteemed by all who know her while the groom is also popular in the community.

After the ceremony, a bountiful wedding dinner was served. The young couple will soon be at home on the north side of town to their friends. Heartiest congratulations are extended to them for a happy and prosperous married life.

The farmers of the county have organized to take advantage of the Federal Loan act.

At a meeting held at the home of M. C. Woodgate, 203 Alice street, Charlevoix, last week, a county Federal Loan association was organized and the following officers were elected:

President: Joseph Clarke; Vice President, Pliny Geneit; Loan Board, William Shapton, Joseph Clarke, Pliny Ganeit; Directors, R. Baumback, George Metcalf, E. Shapton, W. Shapton, J. Clarke, P. Geneit; Sec'y and Treas., M. C. Woodgate.

This Federal Loan proposition is a mighty good thing and we are glad to see the farmers taking hold of it. It represents one of the few acts of the present administration that we can unreservedly commend.

MEETING A ENJOYABLE EVENT

OFFICERS ELECTED FOR ENSUING YEAR.

Historical Program Given By Young People Much Enjoyed By All Members Present

At the meeting of the Charlevoix Historical Society, held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Paddock on Friday evening last, the following officers were elected:

Mr. Brayton Saltonstall, president Mrs. H. C. Cooper, 1st vice president; Mrs. R. W. Paddock, 2nd. vice president; Miss Mary E. Clarke, secretary; Miss Addie Holly, Ass't. Sec'y.; Mr. A. F. Bridge, treasurer.

Finance Committee—Mr. A. F. Bridge (ex-officio), Mrs. M. L. Washburn.

The program presented under the management of Miss Laura Cole of the high school staff was much appreciated by the members present and much credit is due her and the young people who took part in it and contributed so effectively to the evening's entertainment.

The program was introduced by a cornet solo, "Lo, a Voice Is Calling" by Perry Mason, with piano accompaniment by Miss Margaret Saunders—encore, "Ill Trovatore."

Songs, accompanying the pantomimes, Mrs. Archie Livingston—piano accompaniment, Miss Margaret Saunders.

"Annie Laurie" was beautifully pantomimed by Miss Beatrice Harrington.

CHARGE WITH CONTEMPT OF COURT

EVANGELISTS AND LOCAL MEN HAVE HEARING.

Charlevoix's Much Talked of Contempt Case Aired in Court Today—Decision Later.

Two members of the Zoller Evangelistic party, Rev. John E. Zoller and Loya Sutherland, who have been holding meetings in Hooker's garage for sometime past, together with the Rev. Quinton Walker and Dr. A. M. Wilkinson, who were instrumental in getting the party to come here and who have been closely associated with them during their stay in this city, were brought before Judge Mayne this morning in the circuit court on a charge of contempt.

This charge arose out of the reading on last Wednesday night to an assemblage of men at the "Tabernacle" a sworn affidavit which the respondents in the case had secured from one of the boys of the town alleging that the Baptist minister, Rev. Lloyd C. Vinyard, had been guilty of taking gross and indecent liberties with his person.

The Rev. Mr. Vinyard had been arrested for the offense charged and released on bail a short time previous to the reading of the above mentioned affidavit to the men's meeting. The basis for the charge of contempt is the fact alleged that Rev. Zoller, Rev. Walker, Mr. Sutherland and Dr. Wilkinson assented to and took part in the reading of the affidavit, with full knowledge of the arrest of Mr. Vinyard and of the fact that the case would be tried in the circuit court in due time, and for the purpose of creating an opinion adverse to the Rev. Mr. Vinyard in the minds of the some 200 men present, from whom, as it is alleged they knew, the jurors for the case would probably have to be taken. This, would of course make it impossible to pick an unbiased jury from among those who had heard the reading of the affidavit.

Court opening at 10:30, the Rev. Mr. Zoller was first called to the stand. He was asked a few preliminary questions by the prosecutor, bearing on the genuineness of the affidavit in question and the nature of the remarks he made about it at the meeting.

The Judge then took up the examination of Mr. Zoller, whose repeated assertion was that no contempt was intended. The testimony of Mr. Sutherland, Dr. Wilkinson and Mr. Walker was substantially the same as that of Mr. Zoller.

Lisle Shanahan represented Mr. Vinyard and supported the prosecutor. Benjamin Halsted, Jr., of Petoskey, was counsel for the respondent. As we go to press, all the evidence is in and the attorneys in the case have ten days in which to file their briefs, after which decision will be rendered.

FIRE STARTED FROM BURNING CHIMNEY

Farm Home of John Nasson Goes Up In Smoke.

The farm home of John Nasson, some eight miles south and east of Charlevoix, on the East Jordan road was totally destroyed by fire Friday afternoon of last week.

During the forenoon the chimney burned out, but as this was not considered of any serious danger, little was thought of it. But later in the afternoon, a fire started in the attic presumably from the heat of the burning chimney or by sparks, and had gained such headway before being discovered that little could be done to save the building. Mr. and Mrs. Nasson were in the house at the time the fire was discovered and spread the alarm.

Practically all the household goods on the lower floors were saved, but the fierce heat kept them from saving anything of value upstairs. The loss is partially covered by insurance, and will be a severe one to Mr. Nasson.

Ted and Hime Pearl have bought out Archie Lomieur's barber shop and will go into the business for themselves.

A Good Word From Wisconsin

The following letter from Rev. E. Jesse Harris, of Florence, Wisconsin, speaks for itself:

"Please send me your lowest price for your flour, the Lily White. Will take at least two barrels, possibly three.

"You certainly have the best flour we've ever used."

This is Indisputable evidence of the high quality of Lily White Flour, but better still your dealer is instructed to sell

Lily White

"The Flour the Best Cooks Use"

under the guarantee to return your money if you do not like it as well or better for both bread and pastry baking than any flour you ever used.

We mean just what this guarantee says. Furthermore, our reputation and resources are behind every sack and every ounce of Lily White Flour.

Lily White is probably the best family flour made, and we want you to try it. You will wonder why you didn't begin using it sooner.

THEATRICAL.

BIRD AND ANIMAL COMEDIANS

The most remarkable picturea of the regions of eternal ice and snow ever recorded on films will he presented by Lyman H. Howe at the Majestic Theatre on Monday, May 14. They tell the story of Sir Douglas Mawson's expedition to Antnrtica so perfectly and so vividly that spectators are held spellbound from beginning to end. So gripping is this film that hundreds of patrons have come again and again to see it. Every inch of it is so extraordinary and so unusual that it cannot possibly he described, yet, for instance, if anybody doubts the inability of birds and animals to be funnier than any human comedians, this film conveys proof of the most positive kind. There are few things funnier and more appealing than the antics of the peaguina and sea-elephants that are shown. Every one of them is an unconscious comedian. All are absolutely tame and the unaccustomed sight of a human being or even the clicking camera seems to fill them only with naive curiosity but not at all with fear simply because they are innocent of the fear inculculated in animals in other climes. By way of proving this, when an infant sea-elephant is awakened from a comfortable sleep on his bed of ice or couch of rock by the persistent prodding of one of the men, the subject at first merely waves his flipper as much as to say "Don't bother me." The tickling process is continued and the baby sea elephant rolls over on his back, supported by one flipper, while with the other he clumsily rubs his face with a circular motion. Having cleared his eyes of any cobwebs which may have been there, the infant prodigy takes stock of his surroundings, his large gaze finally resting on his tormentor or directly on the lens of the camera. Large slow tears roll down his baby face, and he again passes his flipper before his eyes. His face then seems to express "Oh look who's here" and then he goes back to sleep.

No less amusing and human are the penguins. One portion gives the impression that not all of them lead a sober and proper existence. For three of them were filmed just after being caught in a blizzard. Their black and white clothes are all awry and their whole appearance sadly dishevelled just as though they had indulged too freely.

A most pleasing diversity of other subjects will also he presented including spectacular automobile races over the steep and winding courae of Giant's Despair, Wilkes-Barre, Pa., as well as a liberal measure of quaint humor and merry-making provided by Howe's exclusive "comics" which are cleverly interspersed throughout the program.

HEART of the SUNSET

By REX BEACH

Author of "The Spoilers," "The Iron Trail," "The Silver Horde," Etc.

"Why did you take my cattle?" she demanded, stubbornly.

"I was coming to that. Your husband, senora, is an active Candelerista."

For a moment Alaire was at a loss; then she replied with some spirit: "We are two people, he and I. La Feria belongs to me."

"Nevertheless his conduct is regrettable," Longorio went on. "Probably evil men have lied to him."

For the first time Dolores stirred. She had watched her countryman with a peculiar fascination. Now she said, as if freed from a spell:

"Pah! Nobody pays heed to Senor Ed. We do not consider him."

Alaire turned upon her with a sharp exclamation, conscious meanwhile that the woman's tone, even more than her words, had enlightened Longorio to some extent. His lifted brows were eloquent of surprise and curiosity, but he held his tongue.

"Am I to understand, then, that you rob me because of my husband's action?" Alaire asked.

"No. I shall help," Longorio beamed enthusiastically. "It shall be the object of my life to serve you, and you and I shall arrange this matter satisfactorily. I have influence, believe me. Duty calls me to Nuevo Pueblo, and you shall return with me as the guest of my government." He rose to his feet, but his eagerness soon gave place to disappointment.

"Thank you," said Alaire, "but I must first go to La Feria and get all the facts."

"Senora! It is a wretched journey. See!" He waved a contemptuous gesture at the car, crowded to congestion. "There is no food; you have no one to wait upon you. In my company you will be safe. Upon my honor, you will enjoy the highest courtesy—"

"Of course. But I must go on. I have Dolores and Jose to look after me." Alaire indicated Sanchez, who had edged his way very close and now stood with admiring eyes fixed upon his hero.

"Yes, mi general," Jose exclaimed, eagerly, "I am here."

Longorio scrutinized the horse-breaker critically. "Your name is—?"

"Jose Sanchez."

"You look like a brave fellow."

Jose swelled at this praise, and no doubt would have made suitable answer, but his employer held out her hand, and General Longorio bent over it, raising it to his lips. He called one of his subordinates closer and ordered that a lieutenant and six soldiers be detached to act as an escort to Mrs. Austin's party. "Senora, the hours will drag until I may see you again and be of further service. Meanwhile I shall be tortured with radiant dreams. Go with God!" For a second time he bowed and kissed the hand he held, then, taking Jose Sanchez intimately by the arm, he turned to the door.

Dolores collapsed into her seat with an exclamation. "Caramba! The man is a demon! And such eyes. Ugh!"

Dolores was interrupted by Longorio's voice beneath the open window. The general stood, cap in hand, holding up to Alaire a solitary wildflower which he had plucked beside the track.

"See!" he cried. "It is the color of your adorable eyes—blue like the sapphire gem." He placed the delicate bloom in Alaire's fingers and was gone.

"Cuidado!" breathed Dolores. "There is blood on it; the blood of innocents. He will burn for a million years in hell, that man."

Jose Sanchez came plowing into Alaire's car, tremendously excited. "Look, senora!" he cried. "Look what the general gave me," and he proudly displayed Longorio's service revolver. Around Jose's waist was the cartridge belt and holster that went with the weapon. "With his own hands he buckled it about me, and he said, 'Jose, something tells me you are a devil for bravery. Guard your mistress with your life, for if any mishap befalls her I shall cut out your heart with my own hands.' Those were his very words, senora. Caramba! There is a man to die for."

Nor was this the last of Longorio's dramatic surprises. Shortly after the train had got under way the lieutenant in command of Alaire's guard brought her a small package, saying:

"The general commanded me to hand you this, with his deepest regard."

Alaire accepted the object curiously. It was small and heavy and wrapped in several leaves torn from a notebook, and it proved to be nothing less than the splendid diamond-and-ruby ring she had admired.

"God protect us, now!" murmured Dolores, crossing herself devoutly.

CHAPTER VI.

Blaze Jones and His Neighbors.

Blaze Jones rode up to his front gate and dismounted in the shade of the big ebony tree. He stepped back and ran an approving eye over another animal tethered there. Of course the youths of this day were nothing like the youths of his own, and yet—Blaze let his gaze linger fondly on the highbred mare and her equipment—here at least was a person who knew a good horse, a good saddle and a good gun.

As he came up the walk he heard Paloma laugh, and his own face lightened, for his daughter's merriment was contagious. Then as he mounted the steps and turned the corner of the "gallery" he uttered a hearty greeting.

"Dave Law! Where in the world did you drop from?".

Law uncoiled himself and took the ranchman's hand. "Hello, Blaze! I been ordered down here to keep you straight."

"Pshaw! Now who's been giving you orders, Dave?"

"Why, I'm with the Rangers."

"Never knew a word of it. Last I heard you was filibustering around with the Maderistas."

Blaze seated himself with a grateful sigh where the breeze played over him. He was a big, bearlike, swarthy man with the square-hewn, deep-lined face of a tragedian, and a head of long, curly hair, which he wore parted in a line over his left ear. Jones was a character, a local landmark. This part of Texas had grown up with Blaze, and he possessed a splendid indifference to the artificial fads of dress and manners. He was plainly an outdoor man.

"So you're a Ranger, and got notches on your gun." Blaze rolled and lit a tiny cigarette, scarcely larger than a wheat straw. "Well, you'd ought to make a right nice thief-catcher, Dave, only for your size—you're too long for a man and you ain't long enough for a snake. Still, I reckon a thief would have trouble getting out of your reach, and once you got close to him— How many men have you killed?"

"Counting Mexicans?" Law inquired with a smile.

"Nobody counts them."

"Not many."

"That's good." Blaze nodded and relit his cigarette, which he had permitted promptly to smolder out. "The force ain't what it was. Most of the boys nowadays join so they can ride a horse cross-lots, pack a pair of guns, and give rein to the predilections of a vicious ancestry. They're bad runs, most of 'em."

"There aren't many," said Paloma. "Dave tells me the whole force has been cut down to sixteen."

"That's plenty," her father averred. "It's like when Cap'n Bill McDonald was sent to stop a riot in Dallas. He came to town alone, and when the citizens asked him where his men was, he said 'Ain't I enough? There's only one riot.' Are you workin' on a case, Dave?"

"Um-m—yes! People are missing a lot of stock hereabouts."

"It's these blamed refugees from the war! A Mexican has to steal something or he gets run down and pore. If it ain't stock, it's something else."

Dave Law's duties as a Ranger rested lightly upon him; his instructions were vague, and he had a leisurely method of "working up" his evidence. Since he knew that Blaze possessed a thorough knowledge of this section and its people, it was partly business which had brought him to the Jones home this afternoon.

Strictly speaking, Blaze was not a rancher. He had speculated heavily in raw lands, and for several years past he had devoted his energies to a gigantic colonization scheme. It was by no means a small operation in which he was engaged. The venture had taken foresight, courage, infinite hard work; Blaze was burdened with responsibilities that would have broken down a man of weaker fiber.

But his pet relaxation was reminiscence. His own experience had been wide, he knew everybody in his part of the state, and although events in his telling were sometimes colored by his rich imagination, the information he could give was often of the greatest value—as Dave Law knew.

After a time the latter said, casually, "Tell me something about Tad Lewis."

Blaze looked up quickly. "What do you want to know?"

"Anything. Everything."

"Tad owns a right nice ranch between here and Las Palmas," Blaze said cautiously.

Paloma broke out impatiently, "Why don't you say what you think?" Then to Dave: "Tad Lewis is a bad neighbor, and always has been. There's a ford on his place, and we think he knows more about 'wet' cattle than he cares to tell."

"It's a good place to cross stock at low water," her father agreed, "and Lewis' land runs back from the Rio Grande in its old Spanish form. It's a natural outlet for those brush-country ranches. But I haven't anything against Tad except a natural dislike. He stands well with some of our best people, so I'm probably wrong. I usually am."

"You can't call Ed Austin one of our best people," sharply objected Paloma. "They claim that arms are being smuggled across to the rebels, Dave, and, if it's true, Ed Austin—"

"Now, Paloma," her father remonstrated mildly. "The regulars and the river guards watched Lewis' ranch till the embargo was lifted, and they never saw anything."

"I Believe Austin Is a Strong Rebel Sympathizer."

"I believe Austin is a strong rebel sympathizer," Law ventured.

"Sure! And him and the Lewis outfit are amigos. If you go pirootin' around Tad's place you're more'n apt to make yourself unpopular, Dave. I'd grieve some to see you in a wooden kimono. Tad's too well fixed to steal cattle, and if he runs arms it's because he's a 'galvanized Gringo' himself—married a Mexican, you know."

When mealtime drew near, both Jones and his daughter urged their guest to stay and dine with them, and Dave was glad to accept.

"After supper I'm going to show you our town," Blaze declared. "It's the finest city in south Texas, and growing like a weed. All we need is good farmers. Those we've got are mostly back-to-nature students who leaped a drag counter expecting to 'light in the lap of luxury. In the last outfit we sold there wasn't three men that knew which end of a mule to put the collar on. But they'll learn. Nature's with 'em, and so am I. God supplies 'em with all the fresh air and sunshine they need, and when they want anything else they come to Old Blaze. Ain't that right, Paloma?"

"Yes, father."

Paloma Jones had developed wonderfully since Dave Law had last seen her. She had grown into a most wholesome and attractive young woman, with an honest, humorous pair of brown eyes. During dinner she did her part with a grace that made watching her a pleasure, and the Ranger found it a great treat to sit at her table after his strenuous scouting days in the mesquite.

"I'm glad to hear Jonesville is prosperous," he told his host. "And they say you're in everything."

"That's right; and prosperity's no name for it. Everybody wants Blaze to have a finger in the pie. I'm interested in the bank, the sugar mill, the hardware store, the ice plant— Say, the ice plant's a luxury for a town this size. D'you know what I made out of it last year?"

"I've no idea."

"Twenty-seven thousand dollars!" The father of Jonesville spoke proudly, impressively, and then through habit called upon his daughter for verification. "Didn't I, Paloma?"

Miss Paloma's answer was unexpected, and came with equal emphasis: "No, you didn't, father. The miserable thing lost money."

Blaze was only momentarily dismayed. Then he joined his visitor's laughter. "How can a man get along without the co-operation of his own household?" he inquired naively. "Maybe it was next year I was thinking about." Thereafter he confined himself to statements which required no corroboration.

Dave had long since learned that to hold Blaze Jones to a strict accountability with fact was to rob his society of its greatest charm. A slavish accuracy in figures, an arid lack of imagination, reduces conversation to the insipidness of flat wine, and Blaze's talk was never dull. He was a keen, shrewd, practical man, but somewhere in his being there was concealed a tremendous, lopsided sense of humor which took the form of a bewildering imagery. An attentive audience was enough for him, and, once his fancy was in full swing, there was no limit to his outrageous exaggerations. A light of credulity in a hearer's eye filled him with prodigious mirth, and it is doubtful if his listeners ever derived a fraction of the amusement from his fabrications that he himself enjoyed. Paloma's spirit of contradiction was the only fly in his ointment; now that his daughter was old enough to "keep books" on him, much of the story-teller's joy was denied him.

Make every vacant space produce food product of some kind.

The Secretary of Agriculture Says:

"Means must be devised promptly to insure the largest possible production of food supplies. It must be recognized that the man or boy who puts all his energies into the increased supply of food is as truly a soldier of the republic as he who, in uniform, fights in the ranks."

WILL YOU DO YOUR FULL SHARE?

Fully recognizing the situation this bank earnestly desires to assist the farmer by making loans, where required, to increase his crop acreage.

"Our Country! In her intercourse with foreign nations may she always be in the right; but our country, right or wrong."

—Stephen Decatur.

CONSCRIPTION.

Yes, let's have it. It is the only fair and just way to raise an army. If the mistake is made of calling for volunteers, it will be all the brightest and best young men of the nation that will respond, while the cigarette-smoking, pool-room Charlie-boys, and such other worthless trash will stay at home. It is the latter class that the war will do the most good, because it will either make men of them or kill them off, and in either event the country will be the gainer.

Just because there are, or may be, 500,000 young men in this country who are willing to volunteer in the hour of the country's need, it does not follow that they prefer war to peace; the firing line to the commercial, industrial or professional line. It means that these young men have the right spirit; the spirit that made and that saved this republic. But the nation should not expect or accept this volunteer service. Military duty should be made compulsory by conscription, and then each and every one would be meeting his responsibility.

FOR HONOR'S SAKE, ENLIST.

In spite of the most vigorous campaign ever conducted enlistments in the army and navy are negligible.

This community, which led the nation to victory in the civil war, today is falling behind its great tradition.

More men are applying for marriage licenses to avoid service than are enlisting. People who clamored for war show no disposition to fight it. Young girls who should be knitting socks for soldiers have been wasting their time on amateur theatricals in company with young men who should be wearing those socks.

We have declared war on the most powerful and most cruel nation that has ever existed, and our contribution to the war so far consists in shouting opprobrious epithets from behind our allies' backs.

Where is the spirit of the men who risked Libby prison and of the men who stormed Missionary Ridge?

Is all our manhood being buried in the graves of our civil war veterans?

The volunteer system is unjust, inefficient, and a failure, but that will not excuse the miserable showing made by our young men at the recruiting offices.

It is better to enlist than to be conscripted.

For the Honor of Michigan, enlist!

Fertilizers

There is evidently a great deal of misunderstanding regarding fertilizers. The question is often asked, "What is the price of fertlizer this year?" One might as well ask a clothier, "What is the price of a suit of clothes this year?" There are hundreds of kinds of fertilizers.

Nitrate of soda, Ground Bone, Tankage, Dried Blood, Acid Phosphate, Sulphate of Potash up to the German Kainit. We have these for sale at prices running from $19.00 per ton to the latter which cost us $400.00 per ton.

We have bought this large supply because we believe it required to get the largest crop. The demand has been the heaviest ever known. Since we sent out our first advertising on this matter, we have been forced to buy one more car though we had such a large stock. If you have never used a commercial fertilizer, try this year. Try on a small piece and give it a fair test. If you get one bushel of beans extra, it will pay for your test.

We have it at every station, Charlevoix, East Jordan and Central Lake, Mich.

Even When Prices Are the Same It Will Pay You to Buy Here

With most people price is the leading factor in every transaction. With others Quality and Service rank first. For this is true economy.

We at all times endeavor to undersell the rest—but sometimes prices are the same throughout the city. Yet it is economy to buy from us in this event. And in many cases when prices are a trifle lower than ours.

For one thing you are sure of fresh clean goods. You get prompt delivery. You receive cordial treatment. You get full weight and honest measure. Try us and see for yourself.

EDWARD KLOOSTER

There are thousands of young men (?) all over the country who are rushing to the marriage altar these days to escape military service "War grooms," is what McCutcheon has labeled them in one of his cartoons. And "war grooms" should forever be the brand of infamy and cowardice in America.

Most people are always waiting for "lightning to strike them," and when a flash does come near them they shiver and jump like a dog having a nightmare.

Good Advice: People who never look before they leap should refrain from jumping. — dah Ilyers, Cornelia Dutcher and Dorothy Rinehart—afforded a great deal of pleasure.

"Comin' Through the Rye"—Miss Leona McNeil, in a highland costume charmingly represented a Scotch lassie.

"Battle Hymn of the Republic," was beautifully pantomimed by the freshman girls of the high school.

"The Last Rose of Summer," by Miss Ruth Hammett, was a charming interpretation of the love and affection that clings to the last rose of the season.

"The Origin of the Star Spangled Banner" was spiritedly given by Mr. Kenneth Widdifield.

"Star Spangled Banner," pantomimed by the Misses Bessie Hammett, Jane Ferguson and Irene Auld, aroused the true American enthusiasm and delightfully closed the evening's entertainment.

KAPPA ALPHA THETA

Convention Meets at Charlevoix Inn June 26th.

This city is to be honored this summer in its selection as the place of convention for the Kappa Alphn Thetas.

This is one of the largest and oldest of college fraternities, having thirty-nine chapters, and is represented in almost all of the leading colleges and universities of Michigan, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Associations of alumnae from Detroit, Cleveland, Columbus, Pittsburg and Cincinnati will be the hostesses of the occasion. It is expected to be the biggest convention event in the history of Charlevoix and will meet June 26th to July 1st at the Inn.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to thank our friends and neighbors for their many acts of kindness during our recent bereavement, especially are we grateful to the K. of P. lodge, and our friends for the many beautiful flowers. Words fail to express our appreciation.

REVIVAL STILL ATTRACTING CROWDS

Many Interesting Features Are Presented.

Last Sunday six meetings were held; two at the Congregational church and four at the tabernacle. Nearly four hundred men heard Evangelist Zoller give his great message, "The Price of a Man," in the afternoon. At the same time Mr. Sutherland talked to the ladies in the Congregational church. His message was inspiring and uplifting. The big chorus choir under the direction of Mr. Sutherland, was an inspiration to all who heard them. The wonderful playing of Mr. Holmes accompanied by the orchestra, added much to the attractiveness of the services.

Hundreds of people in this vicinity will never have the opportunity of hearing again such wonderful music as is being rendered daily at the tabernacle meetings Thursday night Mr. Zoller will preach on "The Unpardonable Sin." On Friday night a special musical evening will be given. On Sunday morning the subject will be "The Relation Between the Present War and the End of the World." In the afternoon "The White Life"—a message to men only. In the evening a great mass meeting,—come early if you want to get a seat.

Now that the roads are better, the people from the country are urged to come in and attend these meetings. Everyone should improve the opportunity to hear the wonderful music and inspiring messages that are being given.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN NOTES.

Farmer Instantly Killed.

Thomas E. Russell, a promiaent young farmer of Torch Lake township met a tragic death last Tuesday morning. He was drawing manure and when going down a hill over the rough frozen ground, was thrown from the wagon, the rig running over him, his neck and right arm being broken. He also suffered several abraisons and contusions of face, head and neck.

Deceased was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Russell, 24 years of age and leaves a wife and two children, and was held in high regard in his home community. The bereaved parents and the young wife bave the heartfelt sympathy of a wide circle of warm friends.

Form Home Guard.

The following petition signed by twenty-five young single men of Petoskey has been received and as a result a meeting has been held and a company of Home Guards, composed entirely of young single men eligible for service under the colors of their country organized.

"We, the undersigned, do hereby signify our intention of at once joining the Company of Home Guards to be raised Wednesday evening, April 11, 1917. We think that now is the time to start something."

Robert Tripp is backing the movement on behalf of the United Spanish American War Veterans and Wm. R. Montgomery in behalf of Civil war veterans, and Lieut. Joseph Murphy on behalf of the civilians.

The meeting was held at the high school building, some 90 young single men signed up as members eligible for service.

The whole city is invited.

Ask Newspapers to Help.

The newspapers of the country have been appealed to by Secretary of the Navy Daniels to lend aid in carrying out President Wilson's order that the U. S. Marine Corps be increased 17,000 men at once, and the Courier is one of those asked to lend such aid. The appeal is as follows:

"The president has signed an executive order directing the authorized strength of the marine corps be increased to 17,400 men.

"He was authorized by congress, in case of emergency, to direct such increase in enlistment.

"The United States marine corps is the soldier branch of our 'first line of defense.' Marines serve both ashore and afloat, and are trained as infantry, heavy and light artillery, and machine gun companies. They form the landing parties from ships of the navy, are the first men detailed for expeditionary duty, and defend all naval bases.

"Each capital ship of the navy carries one company of marines. There has been a net increase of over 3,000 in the strength of the marines since the president authorized an increase, but over four thousand more are needed and needed now.

"Will you please emphasize the needs of this important branch of our naval service by giving prominence in your paper to the president's order?

"The marine corps offers exceptional opportunities to young men of grit and ambition to serve their country in the first line of defense.

"In this emergency you have the opportunity and privileges of performing this public service, and I am confidently appealing to you for your cordial and helpful co-operation."

Alanson Man Kills Big Lynx.

On Saturday of last week, L. D. Williams caught a large lynx in one of his traps set in the mouth of the river near Alanson. For a long time it has been known that there was one or more of these animals at large in that vicinity, and Mr. Williams who does considerable trapping was somewhat surprised and pleased when he went to his traps to find the animal caught by one front foot. He shot it and brought it to Petoskey for the bounty, which is five dollars. The animal was a female of great size, measuring five feet four inches from tip to tip as it lay stretched out on the floor. It had an ugly looking head much resembling that of a tiger, with pretty black tassels on the ears, and the foot was nearly as large as a man's fist, and was armed with long sharp claws, capable of doing great damage on short notice. It was very poor and probably has realized the hard winter and the scarcity of food. It will be mounted and put on exhibition in a hardware store.

RAISE MORE BEANS IS CRY

GOOD PRICE SHOULD BE SOME INDUCEMENT.

Farmers of This Region Will Undoubtedly Make Good With Potato Crop.

With our country practically at war, the demand for food stuffs for years to come is going to be enormous and the number of producers will be limited.

Foods having condensed values such as beans, are urged to be grown to as great an extent as possible. Every boy and girl should have their little plot of from one-half to an acre of land to grow beans. If the boys and girls can organize a bean club in their school district or in their neighborhood, let them do so and write Mr. E. C. Lindemann, of East Lansing, Michigan, for particulars, or take it up with your nearest bank and elevator men. Beans have always been known as a strong food. The army and navy fight with the strength of them. Let the west grow her grains, but let Michigan grow her beans. It is our natural crop and not only will you be doing a service to your country in supplying food stuff, but you will be reimbursed with a mighty fine profit. With beans up to nearly 15 cents per pound, and the tremendous demand for them, Michigan farmers should be realizing from $100 to $200 per acre for their beans. In fact no crop that they can produce will bring as many dollars, nor be as much service as the bean crop.

As for getting seed, if you cannot get the real choice seed, which is not plentiful, get beans from your neighbors or from some of your elevator men. Remember, on real heavy land, one-half bushel of beans will seed an acre. On lighter soil, forty-five pounds. In the latter case, if beans are up to say $10 per bushel, it only means $5 to $7.50 per acre, while it would cost you from $30 to $40 to plant an acre of potatoes. The diseases were practically "stewed out" by the hot weather last year, therefore, any ordinary beans you can get from your neighbors will reproduce, but get the best seed possible. Don't experiment with Yellow Eyes or Red Kidneys, if you can get the Navy Bean as that is the bean of commerce.

Millions of bushels of beans are being consumed by the armies in Europe, and American armies must have beans. It is the army ration. Farmers will be doing their patriotic duty by raising all the food stuff possible, and under no consideration forget the "bean."

Therefore, let everybody get busy to produce the best food for nerve, brain and muscle that soil produces—the Michigan Pea Bean. Michigan has the best soil and climate of any country on earth for bean production which means we produce the Best Beans in quality and nutrition that are produced in the world, so everybody please get busy at once and quick, as nothing will taste so good to our boys who have been called to the colors as Michigan Pork and Beans flavored with Michigan Tomato Sauce as a daily ration.

Just the Hat you want this spring—we have them. Weiss Dept. Store.—Adv. 16tf.

H. Klooster went on a buying expedition Monday. We don't know if he is buying for the Allies or Germany.

Miss Jennie Zylstra was at her customary place Sunday as organist Mrs. John Bos took her place during her visit.

Henry Genett, who is farming near Norwood, was at the blacksmith shop Monday getting one of his teams shod.

Edward Klooster of Charlevoix was in Atwood Thursday. He was out buying beef and bought a cow of J. Heeres on his trip.

Mr. Davis, mailman on Central Lake Route 2 used his Ford for the first time Monday. He had some engine trouble and was in Atwood about three hours.

The L. A. S. of the Christian Reformed church met at the home of Dina Van Der Heide last Thursday afternoon. Quite a number of members were absent on account of bad roads.

Minard Van Der Heide and Rev. Pickart were delegates to the classes of the Christian Reformed curch at Muskegon. They left for Muskegon Monday and returned the latter part of the week.

A large number of Atwood farmers attended the sale of Frank Peebles Friday of last week. J. Petter bought a pair of four year old horses at this sale after spending about four weeks looking for a team.

We will have a real automobile in Atwood when Elzinga Bros. get their Baby Grand Chevrolet. They have a new hen house built which a few predicted was to be a garage but have found out their mistake.

J. Essenburg went to Ellsworth Thursday to meet Rev. Pickart on his return from Muskegon. Mr. Pickart stopped at Fremont on his way home to see his father who had been very ill and found him a little better.

A "stag party" was the latest social event in town, but as nobody is supposed to know except those who attended there are no details. It was held Saturday evening at Bachelor Hall, about a mile and a half north of Atwood.

Mr. and Mrs. Brat and family arrived here Thursday afternoon. They stopped with Minard Heeres until after Frank Peeblea vacated the house. Two of the boys were unable to come at this time on account of not feeling very well and intend coming as soon as possible.

Albert Blow made a trip to Ellsworth Friday and nearly met with an accident. One of the bolts dropped out of the tongue of the wagon and the other side broke off at the axle and the team commenced to run, but Albert succeeded in stopping them before the wagon could swerve out of the road. The tongue was wired up and he got home without further mishap.

ONLY ONE PER CENT IMPROVED

OF TOTAL ROAD MILEAGE IN U. S. TO-DAY

Ten Thousand Miles of This Percentage Won't Stand Heavy Rains.

In the name of a "Bigger, Better Charlevoix," we reprint the following article from the pen of H. C. Osterman, Secretary of the Lincoln Highway Association. Mr. Osterman is in a position to know what he is talking about and there is much food for careful cogitation in his remarks.

"There are over two million miles of so-called roads or highways in the United States, but there are only about 30,000 miles that can be described as "improved." Ten thousand miles of this 30,00 are not traversable after a heavy rain.

"Europe has long considered efficient road systems, as public utilities, quite as essential to national defense as to the civilized life of its communities. We are thus furnished with a precedent and object lesson.

"The task before this country in developing an efficient national road system is a tremendous one and its solution will require constant co-operation between the states and the nation. The absolute lack of unity of aim in carrying out road improvement in the past has prevented efficient road construction in this country and it is hoped that the federal aid made possible by the Bankhead-Shackleford act will result in a comprehensive plan whereby a national system of highways will ultimately result. Instead of building the capillaries of a national system of transportation first and neglecting the main arterial roads as we have done, we should concentrate our first attention upon the first and most important main lines of communication and let the development of the innumerable feeders of only local importance follow.

"There are 3,969,500 registered automobiles in the United States, or one to every twenty-five in population. A $5 contribution from each would complete the Lincoln Highway in Nevada, Utah, Wyoming, Iowa and Illinois with a ribbon of concrete. With these sections completed, the Lincoln Highway will be a boulevard drive from New York to San Francisco and each contributor would effect a tire saving alone of $5, should he drive only five hundred miles of the highway to say nothing of the comfort, peace of mind and the saving in temper affected by such perfect conditions on America's famous transcontinental highway.

The benefits which would accrue to each village, town, city, county and state traversed along the way would be enormous, to say nothing of the increased rural school attendance and the boon to the farmer who now pays three to four times as much as is necessary per ton mile for the transportation of his products.

COLDS AFFECT THE KIDNEYS

Many Charlevoix People Have Found This to be True.

Are you wretched in bad weather?
Does every cold settle on your kidneys?
Does your back ache and become weak?
Are urinary passages irregular and distressing?
These symptoms are cause to suspect kidney weakness.
Weakened kidneys need quick help.
Doan's Kidney Pills are especially prepared for weakened kidneys.
Charlevoix people recommend them.

Mrs. Albert Lemieur, 704 State St., Charlevoix, says: "A heavy cold settled on my kidneys, causing me much suffering. My back got so sore that I could hardly get around. Spots appeared before my eyes, blurring my sight. I can never forget how badly I felt. I had dizzy spells also. Mornings I felt more tired than upon retiring. On the advice of a druggist I tried Doan's Kidney Pills and three boxes removed the trouble."

Mrs. Anna Nordrum Leaves Great Grand-Children—Died Wed. At Daughter's Home.

Mrs. Anna O. Nordrum, widow of Dr. E. Nordrum, formerly of Onekama, Manistee County, Michigan and mother of Mrs. Oluf Nordrum of this city, died at her daughter's home on Park Avenue, Wednesday, April 11th, at the age of 87 years and six months. Her husband died some twelve years ago. She was born in Norway, and came to this country 57 years ago in a sailing vessel, took up her residence in Chicago and later settled at Green Bay and Manistee.

She is survived by one sister in Norway and six children; H. G. Nordrum, of Milwaukee, Mrs. P. K. Hovalt and Mrs. C. A. Hovalt, both of Ludington, Katherine Eierdam, of Los Angeles, Mrs. O. Nordrum of Charlevoix, with whom deceased was living at the time of her death, and Marie Amunds, of Washington. There are also 12 grand-children and 13 great grand-children.

Funeral services were held from the Nordrum home in Charlevoix Friday morning at ten o'clock, Rev. Quinton Walker officiating, after which the remains were taken to Manistee for interment in Oak Grove cemetery. Messrs. Sutherland and Wilkinson sang at the services, accompanied on the piano by Mr. Holmes, the blind pianist of the Zoller Evangelistic party.

Mrs. Nordrum was a member of the M. E. church, a fine Christian character and earnest worker, especially among the poor. Her loss will be keenly felt by all who knew her.

Missionary Society.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Congregational church will meet Friday afternoon at 3:30 at the home of Mrs. Forrest Fowler on Antrim street. Topic: "Pilgrim Deeds and Duties." Leader, Mrs. Frank Hull.

C. S. HAMPTON DEAD AT DETROIT

WAS DISTINGUISHED LAWYER AND EX-EDITOR.

Charles S. Hamptnn Succumbs to Operation Fnllowing Long Illness.

Charles S. Hampton, brother of W. E. Hampton, of this city, and whose home was formerly at Petoskey, died at his residence in Detroit last Saturday, after an illness of many weeks duration, and aa the immediate resuit of an operation to which he recently submitted. The fuaeral was held today in Petoskey.

Mr. Hampton came to Emmett county in the early days and in 1875 became head of Petoskey'a first graded schools. He took charge of the Harpor Springs Independent, when it was established in Harbor Springs and conducted it as editor and proprietor. This paper was sold to Petoskey business men and was brought there and consolidated with the Petoskey Democrat in 1887.

He also founded the Daily Resorter, at that time called the "Pink of Perfection," it being printed on pink paper. Mr. Hampton was at one time very active in Democratic eircies. He was appointed state game warden by Governor Winans and served one term in the state legislature as representative of Emmet county.

From Petoskey,, Mr. Hampton went to Detroit, where he engaged in the practice of law with considerable success. He was candidate for mayor of Detroit at the last election.

W. E. Hampton, brother of the deceased left for Detroit Saturday and accompanied the body to Petoskey, together with Mrs. Charlea Hamptoa, Mrs. Haroid Hampton and infant son, and Hugo Hampton, the party arrived in Petoskey yesterday and were met at the train by a aumber of K. P's from Charlevoix who went over in a body for that purpose. Funeral services will be held today in that city.

TO USE WILD FRUIT

Missaukee Cnunty Girls Have Big Idea.

Lake City, Mich., April 18.—In view of the possible scarcity of food due to the war conditions, girls of the Missaukee county canning clubs propose to utilize the great variety of wild fruit which formerly has been allowed to go to waste. This fruit is abundant and of delicious flavor. It will be canned plain, or put up as preserves, jam, mnrmalade conserve, etc. The fruit available for this purpose consists of strawberries, raspberries, bluebcrries, huckleberries, blackberries, gooseberries, currants, and cranberries. The club work is being promoted by County Agent H. L. Barnum, with the assistanee of school commissioner J. Q. Zuck and Supt. C. C. Wells of the Lake City high school.

JOINT AGENT FOR NEIGHBORING COUNTIES

Charlavoix and Emmet To Ba Under One Head.

Charievoix and Emmet countles aow havo a county agent in common. Hc is not exactly a county agent, either, but appointed by ths farm director of the M. A. C., pursuant to the recent request of the preparedness board formed by Gover-or Sleeper that such an agent be appointed in every county not already having a regular county agent. He will be under the orders of a state agent and his salary will be paid entirely from the $5,000,000 war fund, drawing a compensation of $133.00 per month for six months together with expenses when away from his home.

The man selected for this important position is Georga A. Kilborn, who will make his headquarters at Petoskey. Mr. Kilborn ia now on the job and has already called on County Clerk Lewis for a list of the supervisors of Charlevoix county. Ilis dutiss will be to assist in securing farm labor and seeds for those unable to secure them and to help in financing and marketing crops.

The reason for grouping the two counties under one agent ia that neither has a county agent. The citizens of Emmet county are aow seriously considering the county agent proposition and it is to be hoped that Charlevoix farmers will wake up to its possibilities before long and the state will no longer need to do that which our own good common sense and our observation of the experienca of other couaties shouid lead us to do for ourselves.

EAST JORDAN COMPANY HIGHLY HONORED

Set Tn Guard Part Hurnn Tunnel—Received High Praise.

Company I, Thirty-third Infantry, M. N. G., has been detailed to guard the Grand Trunk railroad tunnel at Port Huron. Captain H. L. Winters received orders Thursday to proceed with his command to that point, leaving a small detachment of his company at Fort Wayne to assist in the training of recruits.

Owing to the fact that tunnels are regarded as of prime military importance at this time and also that only the best soldiers are detailed for such important places, Captain Winters and his men havo reason to be proud of their assignment to this task.

The government is now discbarging sucb men as bave families dependent upon them, irrespective of their desire to stay in the servico. Some of the members of Company I refused to take the Nationai Defense oath, required by the Act of June 3rd, 1916 which changed the status of the nationai guard and these men are now being given their discharges.

The commanding officer of the Thirty-third has received communications from both the District Commander and Secretary of War Baker complimenting the regiment on its excellent showing, spirit and condition. It takes Western Michigan to deliver the goods all along the line.

Enlist and Do Your Duty

Will it be necessary for the Kaiser to send Zepplins here to awaken America?

Must the United States resort to the draft in order to secure enough men to protect the National honor?

If not, it is time they started to enlist.

For two weeks America bas been at war, yet enlistments have not reacbed anything like the number needed.

This war is HERE and NOW! If the Government cannot get the right men by calling for them, it can by tapping them on the shoulder and saying, "You're wanted, son." DON'T WAIT TO BE DRAFTED.

The President gives the patriotic youth of America a glorious opportunity to show their mettis by calling for Volunteers. It is his FIRST APPEAL. May there be no need for a second!

If you are single and abie bodied, between the ages of 18 and 40 DO YOUR DUTY by the nation which has protected and motbered you to manhood. Witb your parent's consent you can enlist between 16 and 18.

Before you go to enlist, however, make sure your going will not leave want behind. The Government seeks no soldiers among those with dependeats. Another tbing—If you hava been raising food on the farm be sure your going will not reduce the productivity of that farm. The Agricultural Army is the first line of National Defense, because it will feed us and our allies.

No married men need apply—YET! There will never be any need for them if the young men DO THEIR DUTY. Uncle Sam wants to talk to his young men, unmarried, independent sons, the boys who can drop out of industry with least disturbance and become competent defenders of the Nation in the shortest possible time.

The Red Cross needs more home helpers everywhere, but that gives no concern.

EVERYONE KNOWS THAT THE WOMEN ALWAYS DO THEIR DUTY!

WILL THE YOUNG MEN DO LESS?

PREPARE FOR CLEAN-UP WEEK

ABOLISH THE UNSIGHTLY RUBBISH PILE.

This Means You—The Time Is Now Ripa and Self-Respecting Householders Will Act.

Did you know "Clean-Up Week" was coming? No, you didn't? Well it is. In fact, its here right now. That old pile of tin cans, bottles, rags, paper and old shoes out yonder in your back yard. Don't it make you squirm in your sense of decency when you look at it. The merciful white snow has covered it for nearly five long months, but—now that it lies exposed to sunlight and eyesight—isn't it disgraceful.

This little dissertation isn't for the women folks. Oh, no. They know "Clean-Up Week" is at hand—in fact, they've known it for generations. Just as surely as the thought of youth turas lightly to love in the merry springtime, so do those of a woman turn to the task of setting her house in order at this season of the year. But mere man has no such stirrings in his soul. He lags far behind in this respect. In fact, if he has any sensations at all at the approach of the cleaaing season they are those of wholesome dread, as witness the pitiful bleat, which we reprint below from an exchange:

Woman, in thy hours of ease,
Coy, uncertain, hard to please;
But when the clean-up comes, Oh, wow!
You make the sweat ooze from our brow.

Don't falter at the task, gentlemen, but "do your bit" and meet the issue as bravely as you would a foreign invader. You may not win spurs or laurel wreaths in this fight for civic cleanliness, but many will rise up and call you blessed.

POMONA GRANGE MEETS WITH MAPLE GROVE

State Speakers Booked for Interesting Discussions.

Pomona Grange will meet with Maple Grove Grange on May 5. This meeting will be full of enthusiasm from beginning to ending. Mrs. O. J. C. Woodman of Paw Paw will speak twice during the meeting. Any one having heard the state grange chaplain before knows she will have something worth our while.

Miss Schneider of Horton Bay and Mr. Hines of Boyne City will lecture on "Home Economics" and "Live Stock on Every Farm." Both lectures will be pininly illustrated by the use of specially prepared charts. Many other numbers are on the program and a full day for all Grangers.

LOCAL RECRUITS ARE REJECTED

RAY SOLOMON ONLY CANDIDATE ACCEPTED.

Rejected Ones Are Home Filled With Disappointment—Two More Are Sent.

Only one of the recruits that Charlevoix sent to the front a week ago Saturday was able to pass the stiff physical examination they had to submit to at Columbus, Ray Solomon alone of the four who went "making the grade." He is now at Columbus, Ohio, awaiting assignment to a definite command.

The remaining three returned to Charlevoix last week. They are Glenn See, Frank Vosburgh and Archie Gravelin. Glenn says that a fellow has to be "some man" to pass the exam. All the rejected ones were badly disappointed, as when they got to Grand Rapids and saw the bunch that was there, their enthusiasm and desire to "get in the game" was strong.

Two more recruits—Richard Cobe and Wesley N. Keller of Levering, were sent from the Charlevoix recruiting office last Tuesday and left Grand Rapids for Columbus on the 19th. No report has been received on them as yet and it is thought they got through all right.

FIRST TILE BUILDING ERECTED IN CITY

Myrtle Young & Son Erecting Fine Store Structure.

Public curiosity, aroused by the excavating and building operations which have been going on next to the Central Drug Store on Bridge street for the past two weeks, may now be satisfied.

Earl Young is erecting on his property at this point a one-story fire-proof store building, which is to be an ornament to the street, being the first example of vitrified tile construction in the city.

The front of the building will have ample show windows and tapestried vitrified tile in three shades of brown will be used for the trim. The south half of the building will be occupied by Fred G. Bellinger's jewelry store and, as Mr. Young expects to remain in his present quarters for the summer, the north half will be for rent and we understand there are already several applicants for it. It is expected that the place will be ready for occupancy by the first of June.

This is a fine start in the right direction. We hope the day will come when Bridge street will be brick or stone for the entire length.

VERY MUCH ALIVE AND COMING BACK

Ed. Seaman Recovers—Claims Shooting Was Frame-Up.

A post card received from Ed Seaman, who figured so prominently in the shooting scrape at Manistee, that we spoke of in these columns last week, states that he is not dead yet but out of the hospital now, getting along fine and planning to be in Charlevoix soon.

Mr. Seaman has made a statement to the Manistee authorities in which he brands the affair as a frame-up He claims that he went to the apartments of Mrs. Broome to collect the amount of $25 which he had loaned her at her request unbeknown to her husband, for the purpose of paying their rent. He states that as he entered the rooms where the woman lived with her husband, Mrs. Broome locked the door. Suspicious that there was something wrong, Seaman questioned her and she began to talk and act in a peculiar way. He says he had not been there three minutes before her husband appeared from a closet in the bedroom and commenced shooting, after ordering Seaman to throw up his hands.

Saaman claims that the couple were crazed by the reading of dime novels, that Broome was always talking about killing somebody by various methods learned from his constant study of cheap, sensational stories and that on a recent occasion he had gotten up a disguise in approved detective story style and followed his wife to Traverse City to see what she was doing there.

Seaman denies, in his statement to the authorities, that he had ever visited Mrs. Broome before during the absence of her husband and asserts that there was absolutely nothing between them. He promises sensational developments at the trial of Broome, which is to be held shortly, in regard to the real motive for the shooting.

CHARLEVOIX GIRL HAPPILY MARRIED

Miss Smith Becomes Bride of Red Cross Nurse.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith of Marion township, announce the marriage of their daugbter, Marion, to Mr. Ira Goheen, which took place in Detroit at eight o'clock, Saturday evening, April 14th, at the home of the bride's brother, Edgar Smith, 1871 Russell street.

Miss Smith will be remembered as a sister of Mrs. P. R. Ross of this city and was operator during 1916 at the local telephone office in Charlevoix. During her stay in Detroit she has held a similar position in a Detroit exchange.

Mr. Goheen is a nurse in the American Red Cross service. He has served his three year enlistment but expects to be called back into the service at any time.

The bride's brother, Arlie, was best man and the bridesmaid was Miss Flo Smith of Detroit. The bride was gowned in white taffeta silk and carried a boquet of pink and white roses. About thirty-five guests were present at the wedding, a fine supper was served and there were many beautiful presents.

Unless Mr. Goheen receives a previous summons to report for duty, the happy couple will start for Charlevoix the first of next week for a short visit to the bride's parents. They will reside in Detroit.

MRS. O'NEIL DEAD.

TABERNACLE FILLED TO DOORS

MEETINGS THIS WEEK WELL ATTENDED.

Fine Chorus Singing and Zoller's Forceful Preaching Still Attract Crowds.

The revival campaign now nearing its close at the Tabernacle has attracted the attention of many hundreds towards the higher life and nearly two hundred have publicly taken their stand for Christ during these meetings.

Last Sunday was another big day the building being well filled at both morning and evening services. The big choir, led by the happy hearted Sutherland and the blind pianist, Mr. Holmes, are proving wonderful attractions, nothing like this musical combination ever having been seen in Charlevoix before. Mr. Holmes has responded to encores a number of times. His rendering of "How Firm a Foundation" on Sunday, for the second time, with variations and imitations of bell chimes received a tremendous ovation.

The big choir with every one of its 135 members in place on Sunday evening did its best work of the campaign. Probably the favorite number sung thus far was "The Battle of the Centuries" which is sung by the entire chorus. Mr. Sutherland says he never had a more talented and enthusiastic chorus choir than Charlevoix has given him.

Mr. Zoller speaks at each of the meetings and a more fearless and forceful evangelist never addressed the crowds in Charlevoix county, as they flock to hear this man of God. His address on Sunday afternoon to men only, on "The White Life" was listened to with rapt attention by nearly three hundred men. Tuesday night, he spoke on the amusement question to a large concourse of people.

Tonight (Wednesday) is to be Boyne City night and a half dozen car loads of people will be over from our sister city. Friday night of this week will be music night and a fine program is being prepared, to eclipse, if possible, the meeting of one week ago. Three great services next Sunday will close this campaign. No one should miss them.

Courier Automobile Number

The May 16th issue of the Courier bids fair to be a record breaker and we are already booking orders for extra copies for automobile enthusiasts around the county. If you desire extra copies send in your order for them NOW or, as last year, you may be disappointed with the edition being exhausted before the week end. It is to be a handsome souvenir number which you will take pride in sending to your friends.

AUTOMOBILE AGENTS

Every automobile agent is looking forward to the best sales year in history and has filled out far larger contracts for cars than ever before. This means the keenest kind of competition in following up every prospect.

The mild weather of the last few days has brought out dozens of cars and those who are in the market for a car this year are beginning to examine their neighbor's car with new interest and cast about for the machine which "Just Suits Them."

GARAGE MEN

There are dozens of auto owners who are now finding that they need new tires for their car, or have decided to put on other new equipment. A good many whose cars have stood all winter without overhauling are now finding that the valves need grinding, cylinders need cleaning, radiator needs repairing or hundreds of other minor troubles which automobiles have and it is a part of your business to put in shape.

PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN STARTED

AGRICULTURAL PREPAREDNESS CAMPAIGN ON.

Public Must Be Roused To Realization Of Nation's Pressing Food Needs.

The primary aim of publicity phase of the crop promotion movewill he to rouse the public to a realization of the pressing food needs of the nation. This will he followed by a presentation of methods by which production may he increased. On the one hsnd, city folk and townspeople will he told how they may make their unused lots yield returns; on the other, the farmers will ba offered suggestions pointing out ways for forcing their lands to hear every pound of grain and forage possible. In the case of the farmer, however, the recommendations will not be so much toward putting more land in till, as towards the adoption of efficiency methods. Through wide publicity in every possible medium he will he informed how plant diseases, as tha smut of oats and wheat may he controlled, how potato blight can he checked; how seed may be tested for germination, and so on. It is nnderstood of course, that by means of field workers and extension men, these methods will he demonstrated as far as possible hy actual illustration. Steady publicity will he employed to drive these lessons home, and to make it appreciated that practice of these methods is not merely a part of businesslike farming but an actual patriotic service to the country.

Publicity will he made use of also to make plain to teachers in the public schools what they can do; other press and circular matters will set forth to bankers, business men and city and county officials the roles which they can play. Similar information will he communicated to Grange, Farmer's Club and Gleaner officials, and finally interest the aid of such public agencies as honafide development bureau and railroads will be enlisted. Every part of the state will he reached, not once, but daily.

Another effort will ba put forth to place in the hands of every housewife practical pointers illustrating how food may be conserved in the home.

These afore-mentioned items indicate, in a meagre way, what will he striven for, hut as the campaign advances, other avenues for aiding the public will he daveloped.

Most of the publicity work will he done through the medium of the daily and weekly press and the farm journals. News letters will he sent out at regular intervals—daily if possible. The country weeklies will he served through plate matter.

Augmenting press copy, the publicity department will issue numerous circulars upon particularly timely and important matter. This will be sent to farmers and housewives individually, to schools, and to farm and civic organizations. No persons who can read will be left in ignorance. It is estimated that this work as indicated can be accomplished by an expenditure not exceeding $8,000.

Following is an outline of the proposed program, and the persons, organizations and institutions which it is intended to reach:

Daily and Weekly Press

These will be made use of through daily news letters, patent insides and special articles.

City Organizations.

Under these will come mayors, chambers of commerce, bankers, elevator men, and so on. These, by personal letters and circulars setting forth plans, will be urged to cooperate and to promote production in their particular communities and districts.

Public Schools.

It is intended under this head to get into touch with county commissioners, and to induce them, through the superintendent of public instruction, to line up teachers for the campaign. The teachers, in turn, will he asked to interest the school children.

Farmers Organizations.

It is expected through the farmers' organizations such as the grange, the farmers clubs and the gleaners, to get information on the farm labor situation, and to give this particular phase of the problem special publicity. The press matter will be used to assist county agents and field men in lining up labor for the agricultural districts.

Boys and Girls Clubs.

The co-operation of the Boys and Girls clubs will be secured through the boys and girls club department of the college. By means of publicity an attempt will be made to interest a much larger number of Michigan children in this work, and to give them the idea that the program is not so much one for personal profit as for patriotic service.

Development Bureaus.

These organizations will he furnished with publicity matter, and urged to use it in connection with their regular publicity. Bureaus which it is intended to reach are the Western Michigan Development Bureau, the Northeastern Michigan Development Bureau, and the Cloverland Development Bureau.

Railroads.

Railroads, hoth steam and electric will be asked to make agricultural matters a part of their publicity, hoth through posters and through the transportation publications which they issue to the public. It is believed they can he made a potent factor in the futherance of the campaign.

Mailing List.

Through the mailing list, on which the college has the names of at least 60,000 Michigan farmers, circular matter bearing on agricultural problems of moment will he sent direct to the producers.

U. S. ARMY NEEDS SKILLED LABOR

MEN WANTED FOR NEW RESERVE CORPS.

Quartermaster's Department Calling For Recruits Skilled In Many Vocations.

Besides the better known arms of the service like the infantry, cavalry naval reserves, etc., that part of the U. S. army that ministers to the physical needs of the soldiers, both in war and peace, the Quartermaster's department calls as earnestly to the man who would serve his country in her hour of need.

Men are wanted for the Quartermaster Enlisted Reserve corps, the object of which is to obtain a high class of intelligent specialists, to form them into various units required, according to their previous training and knowledge and to he so prepared that in the event of the president calling for their services they will be ready to render efficient service without further training.

The Quartermaster Enlisted Reserve corps requires men skilled in practically every trade and business and military training as a soldier is not required before enlistment. The members of this section are required to perform the duties of their particular trade or business incident to the transporting of troops, furnishing them with supplies of every kind, including their food, clothing, equipment and their pay, and are not required to drill with rifles, perform guard duty, or other purely military duties which fall to the lot of the soldier in the infantry, cavalry and other branches of the army, except in an emergency.

The Quartermaster corps may be likened to a large business concern, reservists being required to handle the increased business resulting from war.

Enlistment is for a period of four years, unless sooner discharged by proper authority and promotion to higher grades is rapid in the case of men skilled in their particular trade or vocation.

While not actually on duty, the reservist is required to keep himself physically fit for military service, attend each year (if ordered to do so) an army encampment for a period of two weeks only (for which duty he will be paid) and present himself for active duty at the proper place when called for.

The pay ranges from $15.00 per month for privates to $75.00 per month for quartermaster seargeant (senior grade). All enlisted men, in addition to their regular pay, receive rations, quarters, clothing, fuel, bedding, medicine and medical attendance when required. In time of war the peace pay is increased twenty per cent.

Owing to the nature of the service, a large proportion of the men enlisted in this reserve will be noncommissioned officers. Full particulars regarding enlistment in this branch of the service may he obtained at the local recruiting office.

George Santoes took a load to Charlevoix for Frank Cnrmon on Monday.

Dick Supernaw of East Jordan spent Sunday with his parents at Lake View farm.

Will Santoes had the misfortune to cut his finger quite severely on the saw while buzzing wood at A. Lohr's.

Quite a number of the yonng people from Norwood and vicinity, attended the card party at the Arnold West home Saturday night. A good time is reported hy all.

Mr. R. L. Foreman, State Agent,
The Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company,
Atlanta, Ga.

Dear Sir:

I am deeply grateful for the check for $898.28 in payment of policy No. 536,842, on life of my husband, William R. Bonner. To know the record of this policy any one can appreciate the fair and just treatment accorded its policyholders hy the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company under its very liberal non-forfeiture system—in other words in giving a dollar's worth of insurance for every dollar paid in.

My husband took out his policy in 1910 and only paid in cash the 1910 and 1911 premiums. When the 1912 premium fell due he borrowed the amount necessary from the Company as it was not convenient for him to pay the premium in cash on account of a short crop. He also borrowed sufficient to cover the 1913 and 1914 premiums. When the 1915 premium fell due he did not have the money to pay it and decided to let his policy go hy. On Novemher 25th, 1915, the policy lapsed. I did not know it had any value until I took the matter up with your agent, Mr. J. S. Peters, and was informed that the insurance was in force under the Company's liberal extension feature, and am to-day in receipt of your check in full payment of the policy.

The Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company is truly a great institution in so carefully looking after the interests of its policyholders.

With many thanks for the satisfactory settlement of this claim,
Yours, very truly,
MRS. MAMIE J. BONNER.

Mr. and Mrs. George Perry and daughter, Aita, spent Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. William Lucia and family.

The farm home of Mr. Schriener was totally destroyed by fire last Saturday morning. The blazs was caused, it is thought from an incubator. Practically everything on the ground floor was saved by neighbors and members of the family who quickly responded to the alarm. The loss was partially covered by insurance.

Norwood seems bound to lose their storss by fire. Saturday the store and contents of W. H. Supernaw, opsrated by Frank Carmen, was burned to the ground. With the heavy wind blowing at the time, little could be done to save the building and contents. The blow is a severe one to the owners, as no insurance was carried on the contents and but $300 on the buiiding.

Why They Come to the Sanitary Engineering Company

Jim Dix was feeling rather sore
He just came from the Plumbing Store,
Says he, "I've been to all but one,
And all my stuff is on the bum,
My Bath Tub has refused to fill,
My closet looks like Kaiser Bill,
The closet tank's beyond repair,
The valve is whistling funeral airs,
The basin has enamcled cracked,
The waste pipe too is out of whack,
Through all the day I'm full of fears,
My faucets are all shedding tears.
"It now has been more than a year,
No more I walk about in fear,
For I have found the firm that's right,
Now all my work is good and tight,
The Sanitary Engineering Company came,
Their work's quite fitting to the name,
There are no flaws about their work,
Their plumbers too, they never shirk,
I am now more than satisfied,
That theirs is just the place to buy,
The shop of quality and service.

PATRIOTISM AND FLAGS.

Is Charlevoix behind other communities in the width and depth of it's patriotism?

This is the charge mildly hinted by Charlevoix people who have had occasion recently to visit other cities.

They return with the story that in other places every business house and most of the homes are decorated with flags and patriotic meetings are being held.

Possibly Charlevoix hos been a little slow in getting started in this direction, but this does not necessarily mean that patriotism is not up to standard.

Patriotism—the real kind—can be svideneed in other wnys thnn by unfurling the flag. Sacrifices hnve been made and nre being made every day that prove this.

But the flag ideo is all right. In times like these, when wo are all getting behind Uncle Sam with every ounce of energy we can muster, the flag is a hig inspiration. It is a lesson to those who are hesitating because of nlien leanings.

Charlevoix should start buying flags. They should be flung to ths breeze in all pnrts of the city, and made the principal decoretion in the homes.

Our flog is obout to take port in new world history. It stands for freedom and justice, and as an emblem of the right has an untarnished record.

We all love the flag, bnt let's show this love in some special way jnst now.

JOIN THE ARMY.

Young man, if you want to fight on land, join the army.

You will put yourself in the best war school on the continent under the most capable teachers the country can furnish.

You will be made into a finished soldier at the smallest possible cost of time and physical discomfort.

Your health will be guarded as if you were the lone son of an aged and fond millionoire. Your teeth, your feet, your diet and your sleeping quarters will receive the most expert attention. You will not be allowed to catch typhoid, and a good many other diseases which menace the civilian, will be held at baynoet's length from you.

You moy be killed, but your life will not be wasted, and if you live, you are putting yourself in line for promotion. You hovs a chance to go to West Point, and even if you fail in this—through the fact that some comrades are better fitted for the place—the country needs thousands and thousands of officers to drill and lend its citizen soldiers; and the only plnce to get these officers is in the ranks of the regular army.

JOIN THE ARMY.

LOOK AROUND.

Look around you and see if there is not a slice of your own dooryord or a voeant lot nearby, in which you could plant something thot would be "good to eat." Here is a patriotie duty. The coming season will be one of very serious drnfts on the food supplies of the world. There can be no overproduction. No over supply will be possible. Young women often enjoy the manogement of o garden. Schoolboys get surprising results from "moking things grow." Many a man in the factory or office occomplishes wonders in the few minutes that he con squeeze out of his waking hours. Thiak over your own possibilities.

It would be decidedly interesting to have an Americon army, commanded by one T. Roosevelt, over in Europe. But one W. Wilson would see political danger to the Democratic party, so it is very safe to assume that Roosevelt's laudable ambition will not be realized.

There was a time that young men would not join the national guards because there was nothing for the guard to do but drill once a week, and now there are some fellows who will not join because they are afraid they will have to go to war.

SHORES-IVES WEDDING NOW A REALITY

Essler-Kibbe Nuptials Take Place Some Evening In Petoskey.

Two Charlevoix couples were married in Petoskey last Monday evening, April 23rd, Miss Winifred Beatrice Shores becoming the bride of Mr. William Ives. Miss Ola Essler and Ernest Kibbe immediately following them. Both the ceremonies were performed by the Rev. Ferris.

Mr. and Mrs. Ives will reside here this summer, where Mr. Ives has a position with Benjamin Brown. Mrs. Kibbe will remain in Charlevoix a short time and then join her husband who left Tuesday for his post of duty at the Coast Guard station at South Haven. Both the happy pairs have our sincerest good wishes for a joyful married life.

NEW INDUSTRIES COMING HERE

CHARLEVOIX POSSIBLY TO HAVE THREE

Hatchery, Cement Plant and Canning Factory Projected—Plan Needs Boosting.

An omnibus bill for the establishment of fish hatcheries, introduced by Senator Fletcher, of Florida, contains an item of $40,000.00 for Michigan.

It is up to the commissioner of fisheries to pick the location of the hatcheries, but it is a well known fact that Charlevoix is a favored spot with the fish "sharps" and as there is a good chance that the bill may be passed this session, we may confidently look for pleasing developments in this direction before long.

We, ourselves, do not know of a more suitable location for this industry than our own lake-surrounded little town. If the fates have decreed that we are not to be blessed with factories, for heaven's sake lets accept anything that will add to the yearly pay-roll and enable our permanent population to remain with us for the full twelve months of every year.

We understand that the Newaygo Portland Cement people are making serious efforts to acquire our local lime plant and the some 500 acres of A-1 rock land that surround it. In fact, it has been stated that they will come here, whether or not they can make a favorable deal with the bond holders of the Rock Product Company.

Negotiations are also being pushed through the medium of the commercial association with certain parties who desire to place a canning factory in this community and if the farmers and business men who are not already committed to the enthusiastic furtherance of this plan will get behind it with all their might, forgetting their doubts and fears, we may put Charlevoix on the map yet.

MOUNTAIN DISTRICT.

Edward Dunlop was at Boyne City last Monday.

Miss Mabel Dunlop visited school Monday afternoon.

Miss Marcia Goss spent the week end at the Flora home.

W. Scott is skidding wood on the Newville farm this week.

Jack Jardine is plowing on the McDonald place this week.

Mrs. Dunlop and son went to Charlevoix on Tuesday.

We are going to clean the yard today. Next week we will tell you of our success.

Miss Marion Orvis and Mr. Albert LaLonde were Sunday visitors at the Jardine home.

Everyone is indeed glad to hear that the ferry at Ironton is again open for use.

E. Newville from Boyne City is moving on the Flora farm this week. The Flora family will move to their new home in Boyne the last of the week.

Everyone was surprised last Saturday afternoon to hear the unexpected blowing of a boat. It proved to be the iron ore boat which was at East Jordan during the winter.

About ten young ladies spent an enjoyable afternoon last Saturday at the Jardine home. The time was spent in sewing and playing games. After the lunch all departed for home, promising to come again.

Our notes failed to appear in the Courier last week, owing to the fact, we will mention again that Miss Stewart visited school last week and gave us a very interesting talk, after which all joined in singing some patriotic songs.

A farewell party was given at Flora's last Tuesday. About fifty people were present. The evening was spent in singing and playing games, after which a bountiful lunch was served. Every one reports having a lovely time. The entertainment of the evening began by all joining in the song we all love "America."

Three Lose Lives In Fire.

Three people were burned to death in a fire in a camp in Antrim county, eight miles from Mancelona April 20.

The dead are Mrs. David O'Connell, 21 years old, and her two children, five months and 20 months old. Barney Marks who attempted to save them, was severely burned about the hands and face.

Mrs. O'Connell had stepped over to a neighbor's house when it is thought an explosion from a stove set the place on fire. She rushed into the house and returned as far as the door when she was overcome by smoke and dropped with the youngest child in her arms. The house was completely destroyed. Mr. O'Connell was at work in the woods and knew nothing of the fate of his family for some time afterwards.

Of course his proclivities occasionally led to misapprehensions; chance acquaintances who recognized him as an artful romancer were liable to consider him generally untruthful. But even in this misconception Blaze took a quiet delight, secure in the knowledge that all who knew him well regarded him as a rock of integrity. As a matter of fact, his genuine exploits were quite as sensational as those of his manufacture.

When, after supper, Blaze had hitched a pair of driving mules to his buckboard, preparatory to showing his guest the glories of Jonesville, Dave said:

"Paloma's getting mighty pretty."

"She's as pretty as a blue-bonnet flower," the father agreed. "And she runs me around something scandalous. I ain't got the freedom of a peon." Blaze sighed and shook his shaggy head. "You know me, Dave; I never used to be scared of nobody. Well, it's different now. She rides me with a Spanish bit, and my soul ain't my own." With a sudden lightening of his gloom, he added: "Say, you're going to stay right here with us as long as you're in town; I want you to see how I cringe."

In spite of Blaze's plaintive tone it was patent that he was inordinately proud of Paloma and well content with his serfdom.

Jonesville proved to be a typical Texas town of the modern variety, and altogether different to the pictured frontier village. All in all, the effect was much like that of a prosperous, orderly northern farming town. To its happy founder it seemed well-nigh perfect, and its destiny roused his maddest enthusiasm. He pointed out the Odd Fellows hall, the Palace Picture theater, with its glaring orange lights and discordant electric piano; he conducted Law to the First National bank, of which Blaze was a proud but somewhat ornamental director; then to the sugar mill, the ice plant and other points of equally novel interest.

Everywhere he went Jones was hailed by friends, for everybody seemed to know him and to want to shake his hand.

"Some town and some body of men, eh?" he inquired, finally, and Dave agreed:

"Yes. She's got a grand framework, Blaze. She'll be most as big as Fort Worth when you fatten her up."

Jones waved his buggy whip in a wide circle that took in the miles of level prairie on all sides. "We've got the whole blamed state to grow in. And, Dave, I haven't got an enemy in the place! It wasn't many years ago that certain people allowed I'd never live to raise this town. Why, it used to be that nobody dared ride with me—except Paloma, and she used to sleep with a shotgun at her bedside."

"You must have been a responsibility to her."

"But I'm as safe now as if I was in church."

Law ventured to remark that none of Blaze's enemies had grown fat in prosecuting their feuds, but this was a subject which the elder man invariably found embarrassing, and now he said:

"Pshaw! I never was the bloodletter people think. I'm as gentle as a sheep." Then to escape further curiosity on that point, he suggested that they round out their riotous evening with a game of pool.

* * * * * * *

The next morning at breakfast Paloma announced, "Father, you must help Dave hunt down these cattle thieves."

"Ain't that sort of a big order?" Blaze queried.

"Perhaps, but you're the very man to do it. Ricardo Guzman is the only person who knows the Lewis gang as well as you do."

Jones shook his head doubtfully. "Don Ricardo has been working up his own private feud with that outfit. If I was the kind that went looking for a fight, I wouldn't have paid freight on myself from the Panhandle down here. I could have got one right at home, any morning before breakfast."

"Ricardo Guzman is something of a black sheep himself," Law spoke up.

"Pshaw! He's all right. I reckon he has changed a few brands in his time, but so has everybody else. Why, that's how 'Old Ed' Austin got his start. If a cowman tells you he never stole anything, he's either a good liar or a bad rider. But Ricardo's going straight enough now."

"He has lost his share of stock," Paloma explained, "and he'll work with you if father asks him. You go along with Dave—"

"I'm too busy," Blaze demurred, "and I ain't feeling good. I had bad dreams all night."

"I don't want you around me here this morning. That new dressmaker is coming."

Jones rose abruptly from the table. "I reckon my business can wait. Hustle up, Dave." A few moments later, as they were saddling their horses, he lamented: "What did I tell you? Here I go, on the dodge from a dressmaker. I s'pose I've got to live like a road-agent now, till something happens."

* * * * * * *

Don Ricardo Guzman was an American, but he spoke no English. An accident of birth had made him a citizen of the United States—his father having owned a ranch which lay north instead of south of the Rio Grande. Inasmuch as the property had fallen to Ricardo, his sons, too, were Yankees in the eyes of the law. But in all other respects Don Ricardo and his family differed not at all from the many Guzmans who lived across the border. The Guzman ranch comprised a goodly number of acres, and, since live stock multiply rapidly, its owner had in some sort prospered. On the bank of a resaca—a former bed of the Rio Grande—stood the house, an adobe structure, square, white and unprotected from the sun by shrub or tree. Behind it were some brush corrals and a few scattered mud jacals, in which lived the help.

Ricardo had just risen from a siesta when his two visitors rode up, and he made them welcome with the best he had. In the cool of the afternoon Ricardo rode with his visitors, and then, cordial relations being now established, he began to divulge information of value to Law.

Yes, he had endured many depredations from thieves. It was shameful, but doubtless God willed that a certain amount of stealing should go on in the world. The evildoers were certainly favored by nature, in this locality, for the great expanse of brush country to the north and east offered almost perfect security, and the river, to the south, gave immunity from pursuit or prosecution. The beeves were driven north into the wilderness, but the horses went to Mexico, where the war had created a market for them. The federals had plenty of money to buy mounts.

Whom did Don Ricardo suspect?

The old man was noncommittal. Suspicion was one thing, proof was quite another; and conviction was difficult under the best of circumstances. Why, even a cow's recognition of her own calf was not evidence for a court, and alibis were easily proved. Unless the thieves were caught in the very act there was no case against them, and—por Dios!—one could not be forever on guard. Who could tell where the malefactors would strike next? Now, in Mexico one could afford to kill an undesirable neighbor without so much formality. But, thank God! Don Ricardo was not a Mexican. No, he was a good American citizen. It was something to make him sleep well in these war times.

"Just the same, I'll bet he'd sleep better if the Lewis outfit was cleaned up," Dave ventured, and Blaze agreed.

Guzman caught his enemy's name, and nodded.

"Ah! That sin verguenza! He sells arms to the Candelaristas and horses to the Potosinos. Perhaps he steals my calves. Who knows?"

"Senor Lewis doesn't need to steal. He has money," Jones argued.

"True! But who is so rich that he would not be richer? Lewis employs men who are poor, and he himself is above nothing. I, too, am a friend of the rebels. Panchito, the Liberator, was a saint, and I give money to the patriots who fight for his memory. But I do not aid the tyrant Potosi with my other hand. Yes, and who is richer, for instance, than Senor Eduardo Austin?"

"You surely don't accuse him of double-dealing with the rebels?" Blaze inquired curiously.

"I don't know. He is a friend of Ted Lewis, and there are strange stories afloat.

Just what these stories were, however, Ricardo would not say, feeling, perhaps that he had already said too much. The three men spent that evening together, and in the morning Blaze rode home, leaving the Ranger behind for the time being as Guzman's guest.

Dave put in the next two days riding the pastures, familiarizing himself with the country, and talking with the few men he met. About all he discovered, however, was the fact that the Guzman range not only adjoined some of Lewis' leased land, but also was bounded for several miles by the Las Palmas fence.

It was pleasant to spend the days among the shy brush-cattle, with Bessie Belle for company. The mare seemed to enjoy the excursions as much as her owner. Her eyes and ears were ever alert; she tossed her head and snorted when a deer broke cover or a jackrabbit scuttled out of her path; she showed a friendly interest in the awkward calves which stood and eyed her with such amazement and then galloped stiffly off with tails high arched. Law had many times undertaken to break Bessie Belle of that habit of flinging her head high at sudden sounds, but she was nervous and inquisitive, and this was the one thing upon which she maintained a feminine obstinacy.

On the second evening the Ranger rode home through a drizzle that had materialized after a long, threatening afternoon and now promised to become a real rain. Ricardo met him at the door to say:

"You bring good fortune with you, senor, for the land is thirsty. To-morrow, if this rain holds, we shall ride together—you, Pedro and I. Those thieves do their stealing when they leave no tracks."

The sky was leaden, the rain still fell in the morning when Dave and his two companions set out. Until afternoon they rode, their slickers dripping, swaying to the tireless fox-trot of their steaming horses, their eyes engaged in a watchful scrutiny.

At last Pedro, who was ahead, reined in and pointed; the others saw where the barbed-wire strands of the fence they had been following were clipped. A number of horse and calf tracks led through the opening, and after an examination Ricardo announced:

"There are two men. They have come and gone, with the calves tied neck and neck."

"That is Las Palmas, isn't it?" Law indicated the pasture into which the trail led.

Father and son answered, "Si, senor."

For a time the Ranger lounged sidewise in his saddle, studying the country before him. Perhaps a half-mile away a long, narrow patch of woods, with the tops of occasional oaks showing, ran parallel with the fence for a considerable distance.

"They took them in yonder, to brand," he said, straightening himself. "Maybe we'll be in time."

Side by side the three men rode off Guzman's land, following the tracks to the nearest point of woods; there Law stopped to give his directions.

"Pedro, you ride down this side; Ricardo, you skirt the outside. I shall keep to the middle. Walk your horses, for I shall go slowly." With a dubious shake of the head Ricardo rode away, while Dave guided Bessie Belle into the grove.

CHAPTER VII.

A Ranger's Horse.

Onward through the dense foliage the two friends wound. Now and then they stopped to listen, but the rain was heavy enough to drown all other noises. Encountering fresh tracks finally, Dave leaned from his saddle and studied them. He had gone perhaps half a mile when Bessie Belle raised her head, and he noted that her nostrils were working sensitively. Law fancied that he could detect the smell of a wood fire. Farther along they came to a place where the brush was low, and there, rising through the treetops beyond, he saw a wavering plume of blue smoke.

The Ranger rode into sight of the branding fire with his repeater across his saddle horn and his thumb upon the hammer; what followed came with almost the blinding suddenness of a lightning crash. First there was the picture of a sandy glade, in the center of which burned a fire with branding irons in it, and a spotted calf tied to a tree, but otherwise no sign of life. Then, without warning, Bessie Belle threw up her head in that characteristic trick of hers, and simultaneously Dave saw a figure rise out of the grass at his left with a rifle leveled. With the first jerk of his horse's head his own gun had leaped to his shoulder—he was not conscious of having willed it to do so—and even as he pressed the trigger he felt Bessie Belle give way. The next instant his feet, still in the stirrups, were on the ground and his horse lay between them, motionless. That nervous fling of her head had saved Dave's life, for the rustler's bullet had shattered her skull in its flight, and she lay prone, with scarcely a muscular twitch, so sudden had been her end.

For a moment the Ranger was dazed. He stood staring down at his pet; then the truth engulfed him. He realized that he had ridden her to her death, and at the thought he became like a woman bereft of her child, like a lover who had seen his sweetheart slain.

A shout—it was a hoarse, inarticulate cry; a swift, maddened scrutiny that searched the sodden scene of the ambush; then he was down beside the mare, calling her name heartbrokenly, his arms around her neck, his face against her warm, wet, velvet hide.

Law knew that two men had entered the thicket, and therefore one still remained to be reckoned with, but he gave no thought to that. From the corner of his eye he could see a pair of bootsoles staring at him out of the grass, and they told him there was not need for investigation. Near the body he heard the calf stirring, but he let it struggle.

Bessie Belle's bright eyes were glazing; she did not hear her lover's voice. Don Ricardo and his son burst out of the brush from opposite directions almost at the same moment, to find the Ranger with his face buried in his horse's mane.

"Caramba! What is this?" The old man flung himself from the saddle and came running. "You are injured?"

Pedro, too, bent over the officer, his brown face pale with apprehension. "Mother of God!" breathed the latter. "It was a wild thing to do, to ride alone—"

"I'm all right," Law said, rising stiffly, whereupon both Mexicans voiced their relief.

"The saints be praised!".

"Si! What happened? There was a shot! Did you see nothing?"

Law jerked his head in the direction of the fallen man at his back and Pedro uttered a loud cry.

"Look!" Father and son ran through the grass, then recoiled and broke into a jargon of oaths and exclamations.

"Right in the mouth! The fellow was in death before he realized it."

"See! It is as we thought, Pedro; one of Lewis'! Tse! Tse! Tse! What a sight!"

"Who is he?" queried the officer.

"Pino Garza, one of the worst!" chimed the two Guzmans.

Ricardo was dancing in his excitement. "I told you that Lewis knew something. The other one got past us, but I cannot shoot like—this."

It was difficult to secure a connected story from Ricardo, but he finally made it plain that at the first report the other thief had fled, exposing himself only long enough for the old man to take a quick shot in his direction. Ricardo had missed, and the miscreant was doubtless well away by this time. He had ridden a sorrel horse, that was all Ricardo could remember.

Law looked only briefly at the gruesome results of his marksmanship, then he turned back to the body of his beloved mare. Ricardo noticed at length that he was crying; as the Ranger knelt beside the dead thoroughbred, the old Mexican whispered to his son:

If Boyne City, Boyne Falls and East Jordan with a goodly number of interested farmers in all sections of the county will do as well in their commercial associations as "Charlevoix, the Beautiful" has done, we certainly can hope for great results. I think perhaps one thing we might do that would relieve a great deal of unnecessary talk and unjust condemnation, would be for all the county officials who handle the funds of the county, which of course are the county's funds, and not their own, to voluntarily publish a weekly financial statement of all the money they have received during the week and of the names to whom they paid money, and for what it was paid for. I would think that they would be glad of the opportunity to do this, thereby placing themselves squarely before the people, just the same as our council does. This would do away with all suspicion of graft and it is why I did it when we built the cut-off road by the Waller farm to Burgess.

I have thought so many times since my visit to Charlevoix last week and asked myself the question—how can any man drive over the two pieces of concrete road in Charlevoix which have been down six and seven years each and say it is not the cheapest. One day when I was there I saw Col. Hamilton with a couple of men breaking a hole in this concrete road at the top of the hill beyond the Charlevoix Lumber Co.'s mill and it was surprising to see how hard they had to work with heavy sledges and chisels to break off pieces as large as an egg up to the size of your hand. A water pipe had frozen during the winter and the Col. said that this is one of the hardest jobs he had in getting to the pipes. There was scarcely any show of wear on top of these broken pieces and although I have said many times that this pavement would last fifty years, I now honestly believe it would last a hundred years, and the beauty of it is that not one cent has been spent in the upkeep of this piece of road. The broken pieces showed the stones broken inside the concrete and that the concrete was really stronger than the stone. I want the friends of the gravel roads we are now building to watch the Argo Milling Co.'s new truck when it goes out some day to take a five or six ton load from Charlevoix to Boyne City or East Jordan. Just watch what it does to the road, and after so doing ask yourself what will several trucks do when they go over the road several times a day, bearing in mind this fact—that trucks are here to stay, and we have got to build roads for them as well as for the heavy touring cars and there is only one kind of road that will stand this business and that is concrete, and the beauty of it is that the first cost of it to our county will be but a trifle more than the cost of a gravel road, and that the up-keep of the cement will be next to nothing, and in the case of the gravel this, in a very few years will be a good deal more than the original cost.

I saw a man in Chicago yesterday who had driven up in our country last year—a friend asked him how he found the roads? He replied—"Very good indeed, when I went up in June, but when I came back the first of September many of them were in very bad condition, showing plainly that one summer's wear will put a good dirt road out of commission."

I would suggest that Charlevoix county needs a county agent and that he will pay for himself the first year, because I know that I do not know what kind of a crop is best adapted to any piece of land or which will grow the most profitable crop, and I am egotistical enough to say that if I do not know, having been brought up on a farm, what does the average farmer know? A good county agent can tell when he analyzes the earth what is the best crop to grow on it because he is educated in that line of business and at the present time there is absolutely nothing more essential or necessary not only for Charlevoix county but for all the world to know, and it is our duty to grow all that we possibly can. Some ground will grow a big crop of onions but not of beets, and so on all down the line. The United States now needs all that it can possibly raise of the best of everything out of the ground as well as all the fruit on the trees and fish in our lakes and rivers as well. Our citizens should be patriotic and support our government, no shirking, no holding back. Plow both early and late, plant everything that you can take care of, never forgetting what is worth doing at all, is worth doing well, and ever keeping this in view that we will get all the money we can now from Uncle Sam to help us build permanent roads while we have the opportunity. Possibly if this war should continue for several moons the expenses thereof would be so great that he might not be able to carry out his National Good Roads project.

Yours,
VAN PELT.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN NOTES.

Aged Physician Dead.

Dr. Alfred J. DeLacy, a resident of Boyne City for thirty years, died last week at the home of his daughter, Mrs. L. McIntyre on South Lake street. Dr. DeLacy was 81 years of age on Monday last week and seemed to be in his usual health until when he complained of severe pains in his ear. He grew worse rapidly. The doctor lived in Boyne City for thirty years and was president of the village at one time. He enjoyed a wide acquaintance and leaves one daughter and family and a host of friends. The remains were taken in charge by the Masons who will have charge of the burial ceremonies. Funeral was held at 2:30 P. M. Friday.

Saw Mill Destroyed By Fire.

The big saw mill plant of the Anderson handle and lumber company at Alba was completely destroyed by fire early last Thursday morning. The watchman discovered the fire at 1:15, but the fire fighting means of the mill and village were insufficient to cope with the flames, and the whole plant was soon reduced to ashes. The cause of the fire is unknown.

The loss is estimated at $15,000, with $10,000 insurance. The company had 2,000,000 feet of logs in the yard and the prospects are reported good for the rebuilding of the plant.

This mill was Alba's only industry and it's loss would be a serious blow to the welfare of the village.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to thank our friends and neighbors for their kindness and practical sympathy shown to us after the recent destruction of our home by fire.

SCHOOL COMMISSIONER'S NOTES.

Flags out everywhere! Teachers preparing patriotic closing day exercises, flag demonstrations, flag salutes and flag songs.

Eighth grade examinations, May 10th to 11th rooms of East Jordan high school building, Rooms S. and T in Boyne City Central school, in Charlevoix County Normal room of Charlevoix. In all cases inquire of superintendent for information. All teachers have programs of tests. Paper furnished. Bring pen and pencils only. Begin at regular school time, 8:30 central standard times. Tests as usual in St. James.

In three schools flags were mended by loving hands last week. The wind may prove harmful to the flag but it will be cared for even then. New poles are being erected. Politics to the winds. We are back of Uncle Sammy and the Union is All.

Thirty-four visits made in the past three weeks and everything is moving nicely.

Teachers have bird lists, flower lists, bird houses, fancy work clubs free hand cutting, drawing, seed tests, garden plats, flag drills, soldier boys and what not? Busy, of course, but the busiest looked the happiest too.

A number of directors and teachers have replied that they can indeed give good American answers to the patriotic test of the school circular. Many of them have said that they think it will be entirely possible to arrange for the floating of the flag during the summer months.

The teachers have already been rehired in many of the school districts. There are comparatively few changes this year and most of those who remain do so will a substantial increase in salary.

The eye tests have been ready for some time but our editors have evidently thought them too statistical and too much work for general county wide printing. The commissioner has finally decided to have them put up in pamphlet form and placed in the hands of teachers and officers.

Hudson No. 4 voted to establish a library this year.

The Robinson school has an attendance record of 95 per cent according to the last report. They have an interesting music class for morning exercisee which may have something to do with the punctuality, too.

A new pencil sharpener in Horton Bay.

Miss Greene of Springwater reports a succeseful fire drill.

Following is a copy of a letter received from Supt. Keeler of Lansing, such as is being sent now to every commissioner in the state:

"In his letter to the American people the other day Pres. Wilson makes a plea for the mobilization of all our resources but especially those which pertain directly to the production of food supplies. In this matter I believe the rural schools of Michigan can lend a hand very effectively.

"The course of study for the teaching of Agriculture in rural schools as given on page 98 of the manual outlines for the spring work instruction in the testing of seeds, such as corn, oats, etc. I am writing you this letter to suggest that you urge each teacher that she make this work of as practical a nature as possible. Impress upon her that through her efforts she may prevent the planting of anything but good seed in her district. Perhaps no opportunity will come to her which will enable her to render so effective service to her country as by this effort.

"The extension Department of the Michigan Agricultural college will furnish simple directions for testing seed to any locality upon request.

Spring tests were given the 19th and 20th, passed just one day as these notes go to press, but five of the reports are already in the office.

The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN

I don't have to sell The Country Gentleman. It sells itself. When farmers open a copy and see the wealth of practical farm talk between its covers, they want it right off. So will you.

Poultry, livestock, field methods, market gardening, farm machinery—they're all talked over by successful farmers from far and near in regular departments of The Country Gentleman. Besides, there are always six to ten special agricultural articles by special writers.

And the stories and hints and advice for the farmer's wife and kiddies, the suggestions for community get-togethers—I tell you, there's nothing like it. I believe in The Country Gentleman, in the good it is doing and the help it is giving. That's the reason I'm getting so many subscribers. To me and the folks who have subscribed a dollar looks pretty small by comparison.

If you want a sample copy, don't be bashful, ask for it. And if you'd like to invest a dollar where it will bring you ten, or more, I'll put your subscription through in record time and you'll receive the first of the 52 big issues in a jiffy. How about it?

CONTRIBUTORS WANTED

Contributors of good automobile experiences wanted for the Courier's Souvenlr Automobile Issue of May 16. Any auto owner or auto enthusiast is invited to send in a sketch of any of his trips to the Courier for publication. Don't feel that this sketch has to be a western tour or anything as elaborate to be worthy of writing, for we desire to make this issue one of practical and timely interest to all Charlevoix automobile owners, and your experiences with your machine in that short fishing excursion are just as newsy as the long touring trips taken by others. Or if you are planning on a touring trip this summer, write us your proposed trip and the points of interest you will visit.

Send us any good snap shots you have taken of an auto trip.

Everyone is urged to do this at once. The Courier's issue of May 16th will from all indications be a "hummer" and tbe earlier you can get your story to us the better.

GET IN YOUR COAL NOW

Greatest Demend For Dusky Diamonds In History of U. S.

A lot of people are hurrying this month to get their next winter's supply of coal, especinlly those who use Pochontas, and there is no summer price on coal of any kind and probably will not be. Pochontas is worth $7 per ton and hard coal $8.50 The coal mines are rushed with orders and have been for a year, the demands from factories being unprecedented. An agent was recently in town who had been to the Virginia mines and he said that not only were the mines running twenty four hours per day but that any number of new shafts had been sunk even where there are no railroad facilities, and horses and wagons are used to carry tbe coal varying distances to the tracks. Every foundry and machine shop, some of which have been idle for years, is now going full blast and the demand for soft coal is great. If the war continues active the demand will be even greater and the supply very limited. Many people think they are fortunate to get what they need for next winter at present prices.

FRIDAY WILL BE MUSICAL NIGHT

Petoskey Talent To Assist In Interesting Program.

On Friday evening a specinl musical program will be rendered surpassing anything yet attempted.

A talented young musician from Petoskey, has been engaged to assist in the program. Miss Bird, an instructor and a violiniste of unusual ability, will appear, bringing her own accompnaist with her.

A delegation from Petoskey will also attend the service.

The girls quartette which has taken every body by surprise on previous occasions will sing. Also the ladies quartette, the Charlevoix malo quartette in many nttractive musical selections. This in addition to the big chorus of 135 voices, the almost miraculous pinying of Mr. Holmes, the blind pianist, and a solo by Mr. Sutherland, who conducts the big choir, will complete one of the finest musical feasts in the history of our city.

Jack Zoller "the little Dutch Cleanser" as he has been named will deliver an evangelistic messago in his energetic style.—Contributed.

The new styles appear first in Wirthmore dollar waists

And that essential fact coupled with their exceptional worth, is the reason for their remarkable demend—each week.

The four new styles tomorrow are seasonable and different from all previous ones—they seem to be made of prettier and better febrics, too—and how you will admire the unusual quality of the trimmings.

The only "value rival" of the Wirthmore dollar waist is the Welworth $2 blouse.

LARGE CROWD DESPITE ROADS

AT BOARD OF TRADE BOOSTER MEETING

Business Men and Farmers Mast and Talk Over Affairs of Common Interest

The booster meeting and supper given by the Ellsworth board of trade at Harris Hall on Wednesday evening of last week, was one of the most enjoyable affairs ever held by this organization.

Unfortunotely the roads were bad and the weather not all that could be desired, but never-the-less about one hundred and fifty people were in attendance.

The band, recently out of winter quarters, made their first public appearance for 1917, and kept the crowd in good humor, while the tables were being prepared, and when at last all was in readiness, one hundred and forty-two standard gauge Michigan appetites started a drive which will go down in history as being on a par with anything the warring nations of Europe can possibly exhibit.

It is worthy of note that this supper showed the true value of military preparedness, as our three men recently returned from border service, viz: Beuker, Patterson and Chelis, surrounded more of the enemy (of hunger) than all the rest of the party. Beuker and Chilis were at lost forced to retire, which they did in good order, but Patterson started an encircling movement with his left wing, which, it is stated on good authority, he kept up on his way home.

The speakers of the evening were all local talent, the principal ones being President VanSkiver, C. E. Bearss and D. E. Clow. They told in a clear concise way of their recent trip to the southern part of the state as delegates from the board of trade and following their talks Secretary G. C. Townsend called on the farmers for their ideas and among those to respond were H. S. Peebles, D. E. Carpenter, W. P. Smith and several others.

One of the best of the good things of the evenings entertainment was the singing. The secretary had, much to the surprise of all, arranged a short musical program and Miss Effie Larson being called on sang, "Memories," and so delighted her listeners that she was forced to respond to an encore and sang, "You Sing to the World of a Summer Time." Miss Edna Joliffe then joined Miss Larson, and her lovely alto voice blended perfectly with Miss Larson's soprano in the vocal duet "A Birth of a Nation," with Miss Lillian Patterson accompanying them at the piano. This closed the evenings meeting.

It is a fact much to be regretted but none-the-less true, that affairs of this nature are too few and far between, and it was the expressed wish of nearly all present that the board of trade would issue a call for another meeting in the near future.

AUTO FUTURE ON FIRM GROUND

OVER PRODUCTION NOT PROBABLE FOR SEVERAL YEARS.

Estimated There Are 7,000,000 Possible Buyers In Towns and Cities.

So much has been written relative to the development of the motor car industry and so many prophecies have been ventured without proper consideration of vital and controlling factors that a clear and simple analysis of the subject may serve to dissipate much of the unfounded conjecture.

The automobile market is divided into two broad fields. First the rural class, which includes all persons engaged in farming and others in various businesses who live in towns of less than 500 population; second, the urban class, which comprises all people in any but farming pursuits, who live in towns of 500 or more population.

In the rural or farming market, there are 6,500,000 families. One million of these now own motor cars and one and one-half millions are poor, illiterate, or Negroes, who for the purpose of this study may be excluded from the prospective buying class. There remain then, 4,000,000 farm families who are possible automobile buyers.

7,000,000 Possible Buyers.

In the urban class, covered by 11,000 towns and cities of more than 500 population, there are about 5,000,000 home owners of which number only 2,000,000 now own cars. Accordingly, there remain 3,000,000 prospective buyers in this class, or a total actual unsold market in both rural and urban classes of 7,000,000 possible automobile buyers.

The accepted average life of an automobile is about five years in the hands of the original owners; and as the man who once owns a car will not thereafter be without one, we must include the reorder market which in the calendar year for 1917 will be about 600,000, this being 20 per cent of the 3,000,000 now in use.

For the year 1917, therefore, the automobile business will face a market of about 7,600,000 possible buyers. Not more than 1,600,000 cars will be built in the coming year leaving a possible excess market of 6,000,000 buyers at the beginning of 1918.

These figures are decidedly conservative because they take no consideration of (1) any export outlet, (2) the people who have or will have two or more machines, (3) increased population, (4) increased prosperity, (5) a million or more

The stars and stripes can now be seen floating over our school.

Miss Katherine Mobio visited school last Thursday.

Miss Josie Jensen visited Miss Manila Miles last Tuesday.

Miss Josie Jensen and her sister, Mrs. Joe Hyit, have returned home from Detroit.

Examinations were given last Thursday and Friday. Most of the pupils did very well.

Revival meetings are being held in the school house this week. They have been well attended so far.

Last Friday afternoon the school held a regular clean-up day. The school house looked very different when we finished.

The children were all glad to see their former teacher DeWitt Patterson. He has promised to show them the interesting specimens he obtained during his stay in Texas and we are all eagerly looking forward to his visit.

Following is a short essay about our flag written by a fifth grade boy: "Our flag stands for the freedom of our country. We should all love and reverance it. Every school should have a flag. To-day it is now on high and the men are with it."

WRIGHT DISTRICT.

Farm work has begun and everyone is busy.

Henry Black cut some wood for Frank Boss last week.

Chas. Greeley and family spent Sunday at the Isa Alward home.

Miss Bessie Postmus is helping Mrs. Jos. Bergma in house cleaning.

Mrs. C. Feltenberger spent Tuesday at the home of her mother, Mrs. A. Wright.

Mrs. Isa Alward spent Friday night and Saturday in Ellsworth at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Smith.

Next Tuesday will be the last day of school and a picnic dinner is to be held at the school house. A cordial invitation is extended to all residents of the district.

town and city families who do not own the homes in which they live, but are well able to buy and maintain a motor car, (6) the business houses, retail and wholesale merchants who use thousands of roadsters for salesmen, and many thousands more of delivery cars (regular automobile chassis with commercial body), (7) taxicabs and other cars for public hire.

An Important Fact.

An important and noteworthy fact is vouched for by a well known trade authority, which has been making a careful analysis of the comparative nature of automobile service. It states that of the 3,000,000 motor cars of all kinds in service in the United States today over one half of the mileage of the 3,000,000 cars is used for business purposes. Literally this means that of the 3,000,000 automobiles running in this country today one half or 1,500,000, are used for business purposes. This leaves only one and a half million in use for pleasure or social transportation purposes.

In considering the 1,500,000 automobiles in use today, which may legitimately be classed as "pleasure cars," an important fact should be borne in mind, namely: the so-called pleasure car of today has a distinct economic use, it being only reasonable to deduce that the time and the money spent in motoring for pleasure or social intercourse almost invariably takes the place of some other form of expenditure of less actual economic value. Motoring is a pleasure that makes for broader visions, saner and more helpful diversions, and a more sympathetic social life. A nation without its sane pleasures is hopeless. Therefore, it is far from logical to consider the so-called pleasure car of today as the added luxury.

Overproduction Point Far Off.

If production increases at the average rate maintained for the past five years—which is unlikely, due to greater manufacturing problems and to inability of the selling and distributive branches to keep pace with greatly augmented manufacturing volume—the point of saturation will not be reached for five, six or even seven years. And some of the leaders in the industry predict that it will be a matter of 10 or 12 years.

All signs point to a continued development for several years to come—for just how long it is difficult to say, but as in many other new fields limitations and curtailment of expansion, arbitrarily predicted, are merely evidence of a shortened vision or unfamiliarity with all of the facts.

It is true that materials and labor are more expensive and increasingly hard to secure. This condition is not serious, nor it is likely to be. The makers of medium and high-priced cars overcome the difficulty by an advance in their selling prices. The manufacturers of low-priced cars build in much greater quantities, are protected by contracts until the end of the automobile year, July, 1917, and are able to absorb additional expense by spreading it out over a great number of units and by increasing their manufacturing efficiency.

PLAN THE SILO EARLY.

Structure Should Be All Ready to Fill When Corn Is Ripe.

More silos are built in the latter part of August and the first part of September than at any other time of the year, writes C. Fisher in the Farm and Fireside. The desire to see how the corn crop will turn out is largely responsible for the very short time that elapses between the time silos are built and the time they are filled.

But a serious risk is involved in building too late in the season. Silos built of concrete or tile should always stand empty at least two weeks before filling the first time. Tile silos are guaranteed only when this time elapses in order to allow the mortar joints to thoroughly harden. Besides, silo masons are so busy in the fall that many farmers are obliged to wait their turn, and by the time the silo is finally filled the corn has lost its succulent properties.

"The best time for erecting such a silo," says one expert, "is just after corn planting, though it is a good plan to get the material on the ground in the early spring while sledding is good and when the farmer can haul the material on hard roads and at a time when he has most leisure."

Monolithic concrete silos may be built at any season of the year, but the best time is spring or summer, so they will have ample time to harden.

Metal silos may be built at any time of year. Stave silos are best put up in the fall, as the hot weather of summer causes the wood to shrink when the silo is empty. But in all cases decide on the size of silo and make the concrete foundation for it early in the season, so there will be no delay on that account.

MIXING FERTILIZERS.

Precautions Necessary to Avoid Making Undesirable Compounds.

Home mixed fertilizers will prove just as efficient in every way as factory mixed goods of equivalent composition, provided some simple precautions are used against undesirable mixtures.

The Pennsylvania State college school of agriculture and experiment station cautions against the use of lime in home mixing. If it is desired to neutralize soil acidity the lime should be applied separately and not mixed with the fertilizer. Such a mixture does not add value to the lime or fertilizer and in most cases the mixing would be detrimental.

Wood ashes, since they contain lime, should be applied alone and not mixed with the various fertilizing materials. Certain commercial materials, as basic slag, cyanamide and calcium nitrate, which contain an excess of lime, should be avoided in home mixing. The observance of these precautions will obviate the danger of lumping, the loss of plant food through volatilization or the changing of available into unavailable plant food through chemical action.

Stable manure or other fresh organic matter should not be considered in the home mixing of fertilizers. Manure in itself is a complete fertilizer, but a poorly balanced one. It should be reenforced with acid phosphate, rock phosphate or bonemeal. This is the only mixing of manure and fertilizer that should be considered.

Manure Should Be Conserved.

Much care should be exercised in handling manures in order to secure the greatest returns from their use. A few suggestions are offered by the Pennsylvania State college experiment station for the proper conservation of manure. First, save all the liquid manure; second, prevent leaching and fermentation; third, if possible haul manure on the land as rapidly as it is made; fourth, buy nitrogen in concentrated feeds rather than in commercial fertilizers; fifth, re-enforce the manure with a phosphate so as to make it a balanced ration for plants.

ATWOOD.

At last we have the long delayed and much talked of spring.

Henry Petter went to Ellsworth on business last Wednesday.

M. B. Hooker of Charlevoix was in Atwood Friday looking for horses.

A prayer meeting was held at the M. E. church last Thursday evening.

George Telgenhof, Jr., from near Central Lake, was in Atwood Tuesday.

Wm. Montgomery has been hauling wood for H. Klooster the past week.

The consistory of the Christian Reformed church met last Tuesday afternoon.

Albert Harwood bought two bushels of seed potatoes of A. Bos & Son last Friday.

A. W. Hartwell made a trip to Isa Alward's near Ellsworth one day last week.

Seymour Bennett of Maple Hill was in the village Thursday getting three horses shod.

Miss Jeanette Morrow spent the week end and Sunday at her home near Central Lake.

Robert Blow has hired out to Mr. Hammond of Charlevoix for the coming summer season.

J. T. Odbert butchered two veals Monday of this week and took them to Charlevoix Tuesday.

James VanderHeide has been hauling the lumber which they had cut at the Jangleville mill.

Murrill Richardson has been hauling his hay from the H. Blow farm north of Atwood the past week.

Wm. Montgomery and family of Antrim City took dinner at the Henry Klooster home Sunday.

Andrew Essenberg spent Saturday afternoon and Sunday at the home of his uncle, Herman Telgenhof, near Central Lake.

Ed. Hofman, who spent a year and a few months in California, got back last week. He expects to work for his brother, Will, the coming season.

Mrs. J. T. Odbert's sister, Mrs. Green, from Elk Rapids, and her daughter, Mrs. Wood from Bellaire, are spending a few days at the Odbert home.

We are lucky to have the chance to perform our patriotic duties right on the farm. Make the most of the chance boys, and do your bit toward feeding the nation.

Conrad Schremer, whose farm and apiary are situated a few miles northwest of Atwood, had the misfortune to lose his house and contents by fire last Saturday morning.

Mrs. Ida Blow is visiting with relatives and friends in this vicinity before her departure for the state of Washington. Her son, Henry, will accompany her on the trip, which they intend to take about May 1st.

Peter Visser, who formerly lived in Atwood, was looking after his interests here this week. He baled his hay last Saturday and will dispose of it and some oats at a sale he will hold at his place.

Ed. VandenBerg and Alex Klooster of Mapleville delivered some pork and beef to H. Klooster last Wednesday and J. Petter brought a hog on Thursday. Meat products are still to be had it seems, in spite of predictions of no meat.

Just the Hat you want this spring—we have them. Weiss Dept. Store.—Adv. 16tf.

RANNEY DISTRICT.

Everybody is farming now.

It seems good to see the Lizzie's running at large again.

Archie White made a business trip to this vicinity on Friday.

Mr. Hosler has been buzzing wood for different parties in this place the past week.

Ervin Bencroft drove to his sister's home, Mrs. Alfred Williams, on Sunday last.

There was a very quiet wedding when Miss Nore Stamper became the wife of Mr. Clinton LaValley Saturday evening. The young couple drove to Charlevoix, attended by Miss Bernice Isaman and Mr. Spencer. Then the newly weds drove to the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Stamper. On Monday morning the couple left for Flint. Their friends wish them a long and happy married life.

ROCK ELM.

Mrs. Cruthers who has been ill with grippe, is improving.

Jesse Lawton has just received a new five horse power Thermoil engine.

Mr. Metz and family visited Jo Whitfield and wife Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Robert Dewey is going to work Mrs. Mina Donaldson's farm for her this year.

The Sunday school is slowly growing yet there is room for more. All both old and young are cordially invited to attend.

Three new pupils enrolled last week.

The pupils are struggling with the spring examinations.

Fewer Eggs are required with

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

In many recipes the number of eggs may be reduced with excellenf results by using an additional quantity of Royal Baking Powder, about a teaspoon, for each egg omitted. The following recipe is a practical example:

Chocolate Sponge Roll

1¼ cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
2 squares melted chocolate
2 tablespoons melted shortening
¼ cup hot water
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder

The old method called for 4 eggs and no baking powder

DIRECTIONS—Sift flour, baking powder and salt together three times. Beat whole eggs. Add slowly sugar, then boiling water slowly; add next vanille, melted chocolate and melted shortening, without beating. Sift in dry ingredients, and fold in as lightly as possible. Pour into large baking pan lined with oiled paper, and bake in slow oven twenty minutes. When done, turn out on a damp, hot cloth, spread with white icing and roll.

DAYTONA BANK SMASH HITS HERE

SEVERAL LOCAL PEOPLE ARE CAUGHT IN IT

Think Florida Institutioo Looted From Inside aod Cashier Played Goat for the Bunch.

Severs1 Charlevoix people were hard hit by the recent failure of the First National Bank of Daytona, Fla., which cloaed its doors on March 29th laat.

The attention of Daytona people had been turned to this bank as early as the middle of February, when reports were rife that a gang of crooks who had gravitated to Daytona during the winter from eastern citics had attempted to loot it. It was claimed by the bank people that the building had been broken into and blood had been found on the floor.

Just before the disappearance of the cashier, W. L. Sullivan, on March 1st, there was a second scare; Sullivan's two sons going into the building at night with their revolvers to catch the supposed marsuders. The next day the cashier climbed into an auto on the town'a outskirts and has not been seen since. Immediately after his departure, it was discovered that about twenty thousand dollars of the banks funda were misaing, besides honds and other securities to an amount which we are not able to ascertain.

This episode led some of the bank's customers to withdraw their deposits but when the doors of the Institution closed on March 29th, many were caught with the savings of years. The bank held the funda of most of Daytona'a business concerns, Including the Daytona Puhlic Service Corporation, who carried a balance of some fifteen thousand. Severol Charlevoix people, among them Mrs. Ed. Eagleton, Mr. Egbert Carpenter, Mrs. George Babcock and Alex. Samara and wife, lost amounts ranging from $50.00 to $1500.00. The Samaras had their entire savings in this bank. The working people of the city, and many resorters were also among its depoaitors.

A meeting was held recently by the depositors and two husiness men of the city appointed as receivers, to correspond with depositors and make the adjustments which naturally must be made. They seem confident that all customers of the bank will be paid in full, although some of the latter are selling their claims at 85c on the dollar.

The general impression seems to be that all the directora and officers of the First National are mixed up in the deal, and that the cashier was simply the goat, who shouldered the sins of the others as well as his own and fled the country. It is ala rumored that some of the bank'a securities were very far from being of the "gilt-edged" variety.

What would you do girls, if you had to work for a living as a stenogrspher and were so good looking that every man just succumbed to your charms and proposed to you right on the spot? Rather annoying, eh? Well, this is exactly the predicament of the Social Secretary (allas Miss Norma Talmadge) in the photo-play of that name coming soon at the Majestic.

NEW TEACHING SYSTEM SHOWN

Elson-Runkle Reading Instruction Marks Revolution in Training Methods.

The invitations recently sent out to parents by Superintendent Craig of the Charlevoix puplic schools to visit the schools on Friday of last week and observe Miss Ethel Zipp's presentation of a portion of the work done in the chart class was respondad to by about sixty people. The program consisted of several dramatizations, some motion songs aod games. An excellent opportunity was afforded to see the splendid work done in this grade, under Miss Zipp's able guidance.

The dramatization part of the program exemplified the workings of the new system of primary inatruction in reading, now employed in the local schools. It is called the Elson-Runkle system and the new primers have been in use in the chart classes of the various schools since the opening of the school year. The results obtained by this new system have more than justified the recommendations made by the superintendent last June for a change in the methods of teaching this subject in the schools.

Under the old regime, the stress was placed upon mechanical memory to the neglect of the development of thought power. The child's interest—his only motivo for learning, was ignored. Any method of teaching that ignores interest is extremely wasteful of energy, for interest is the most powerful impelling force and when it is lacking, its place must be taken by external compulsion, resulting in repeatsd drills, laborious to the teacher and tsdious to the child. A sentence was set for the pupil to learn and although finolly he might come to be able to pronounce each word and recognize it when he saw it in print, his idea of the precise meaning of ths sentence was usually hazy, as this his immature mind could not obtain from the mere form of the letters and arrangment of the words. He might learn to read rapidly, but when he cams to put thoughts into words he could not select the words to express them.

In the Elson-Runkle way, the teacher uses a text book containing a number of complete stories, told in simplo language and containing matter of keenest interest to the childish mind of five or six years. The pupils are thoroughly familiarized with this story, which is read to them several times or told to them in the teacher's own language, if in her judgement it can thus be made more interesting or vivid. The primer which the children use contains pictures descriptive of the various stories and under the pictures are a series of short, simple yet comprehensive sentences which contains the gist of each story in most concise form and are really the key aentences of the story with which the children have already become familiar. Each sentence develops a distinct thought and recalls certain features of the story. In this way, the child renda each sentence with full consciousness of the thought wbich it expresses and as each sentence takes up a new development of the story, his power of consecutive thought is gradually developed. Now, as there is no one thing in the equipment of a young man or woman entering life's struggle which is more important than the habit of continuous, consecutivo thought, nor anything which the average persons lacks more frequently, it can readily be seen that the new reading methods marks a revolution in child training, and we can confidently look for greater results in the future at a cost of much less time and nervous strain on the part of both pupil and teacher than could ever have been attained in the past.

To help the little mind in its mastery of the most important of the three "R's" various pupils take the part of different characters in the atory, some impersonating birds, others cats, dogs, etc. and a simple drama is enacted, based on the entrancing story which the little folks now know by heart and the connecting link between thought and printed word is yet more firmly forged.

In Miss Zipp's chart class, 360 pages of the primer have already been covered and the class will without doubt have covered nearly 450 before the end of the school term. Creat credit is due the faculty for for the intreduction of this important improvement in teaching methods. It shows they are thoroughly alive, on the job and in love with their work, and it is up to parents to give them all the encouragement in their power, for they certainly deserve it.

BAPTIST REVIVALS STILL GOING STRONG

House Too Small to Hold Crowds —Noval Feature This Week.

The revival meetings at the Baptist church still continue with undiminished attendance, the church being actually too small to hold the Sunday evening crowds.

Rev. L. C. Vinyard has made the following proposition to his congregation. For this coming week, including next Sunday morning and evening, some one from the audience will, when Mr. Vinyard has come to the platform, hand to him the subject and text from which he will preach, without knowing what his sermon is to be until the moment for his beginning to preach.

It is the pastor's beliof that a thorough knowledge of the Bible is better equipment for a preacher than sermons of the "cut and dried" sort.

Next Sunday morning, a large class will take their first communion and be given full fellowship with the church. Several will be baptized in the evening service. There will be preaching at Burgess in the afternoon.

TOURIST BUREAU TO BE FORMED

MEETING AT GRAND RAPIDS MAY 8TH

Business Men Should Attend and Help Boost This Section's Main Industry.

On May 8th, at 10:00 A. M., at the Pantlind Hotel, in Grand Rapids, there will be held a meeting of business men and others, for the purpose of organizing a Western Michigan tourists buresu.

Such states os Colorado, California and Vermont have organized bureaus of this character that are very active and right now are seeking to divert from Michigan all the tourist business they possibly can. If Michigan is going to hold her own, this can only bs done through organized effort.

The business men from Western Michigan, as well as those from other sections of the state, are cordially urged to be present at the Grand Rapids meeting and take part in the formation of such a bureau for this state. All those nttending will be considered as delegates.

Michigan hss the climate, the scenery, the hotels and good roads are coming fast. All that remains is to let the tourist know that we are on the map and ready for him. The very life-blood of this section is in the resort business, but it will grow sluggish without the stimulation of intelligent advertising. Do what you can, therefore, to help this movement along as it vitally affects your interests, Mr. Business-man, and can do nothing without your co-operation.

OUR BOYS ROLL UP GOOD SCORE SATURDAY

Charlevoix Players Though New In Their Positions Show Splendid Form in Opener.

Charlevoix played their first game of baseball at Bellaire last Saturday. The ground was somewhat rough, accounting for soma of the errors. The men who were all playing their first game at their respective positions did exceptionally well. H. Cartier with three hits and three runs, was the big gun of the offense while Parsons helped him out with two two-baggers. Weaver and Hallett contributed one each of these, also.

Hallett, pitching his first game, allowed seven hits, and struck out five men. Parsons caught him like a veterao. Weaver and Finucan took care of all that came their way, while Hampton pulled down a couple of long drives in center field.

AUDUBON PROGRAM

Shakespeare Club's Closing Session Pleasing Affair.

The retiring officers of the Shakespeare study club entertained the club at the home of Mrs. J. A. Auld, vice president, on Antrim street, last Monday afternoon.

The leader of the day, Mrs. Crane had an interesting program on Audubon, assisted by Mrs. Swinton, giving an excellent talk on the different kinds of birds of our time and surroundings.

The officers elected for the ensuing year were as follows: Mrs. Priest president, Mrs. Bridge, vice president, Mrs. George A. Crouter, secretary.

The work for the coming year will be the three remaining Shakesperian plays, thus completing all of Shakespeare's plays.

Light refreshments were served by the officers of the club, Mrs. Shanahan, Mrs. Auld and Mrs. Iddings, which were enjoyed by all and made a pleasant closing of the year's work.

Senior Class Dance.

The Senior class of the Charlevoix high school gave a very successful program dancing party at the bank hall last Friday evening, at which twenty-four couples were present.

The rooms were very prettily decorated in the class colors, green and pink, the programs bearing the patriotic red, white and blue. Everybody expressed themselves as having had the time of their lives. Admission was charged, the proceeds going into the class treasury.

STRICT RULES FOR THE ALIEN

HE WILL BE CLOSELY CIRCUMSCRIBED.

Must Not Approach Within Half Mile of Court House or Government Vessel.

Directions issued by the attorney general's office for the enforcement of the president's proclamation of April 6, 1917, in regard to alien enemies; copies of which are now in the hands of the county and state authorities of the various states, call particular attention to the following provisions and prohibitions:

1. An alien enemy shall not have in his possession, at any time or place, any firearm, weapon or implement of war, or component part thereof, ammunition, Maxim or any silencer, bomb or explosive, or material used in the manufacture of explosives;

2. An alien enemy shall not have in his possession at any time or place, or use or operate any aircraft or wireless apparatus, or any form of signalling device, or any form of cipher code, or any paper, document or book, written or printed in cipher, or in which there may be invisible writing.

4. An alien enemy shall not approach or be found within one half mile of any federal or state court, camp, arsenal, air craft station, government or naval vessel, navy yard, factory or work shop for the manufacture of munitions of war, or of any product for the use of the army or navy.

12. An alien enemy whom there may be reasonable cause to believe to be aiding or about to aid the enemy, or who may be at large to the danger of the public peace or safety or who violates or attempts to violate, or of whom there is reasonable grounds to believe that he is about to violate any regulation duly promulgated by the president, or any criminal law of the United States, or of the state or territories thereof, will be subject to summary arrest by the United States marshal, or his deputies, or such other officer as the president shall designate, and to confinement in such penitentiary, prison, jail, military camp, or other place of detention as may be directed by the president.

MORE WEDDINGS IN CITY THIS WEEK

Two More Couples Enter the Blissful State Recently.

Wieland-Stebbens.

On Monday at the Methodist parsonage, Rev. Quinton Walker united in marriage Martin Wieland, of East Jordan and Miss Vera Stebbons of Eastport. The young couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Henry VanderArk of Ellsworth.

Mr. and Mrs. Wieland expect to make their home in East Jordan, where they are well and favorably known and their large circle of friends wish them many long years of happiness and prosperity.

Shockley-Crichlow.

The many friends of Dr. Albert J. Shockley, of this city, will be pleased to know that on Mondoy evening last, hs was married to Mrs. Ellen Crichlow, of Indianapolis by the Rev. Quinton Walker at the M. E. parsonage. Dr. and Mrs. Shockley expect to make their home in this city, where all join in best wishes for their future happiness and prosperity.

33RD. REGIMENT NOW HAS LARGEST FLAG

Flag Gift of Dr. A. V. Seymour—Raised With Ceremonies.

The Thirty-third regiment now possesses the largest American flag in Michigan. The flag was the gift of Dr. A. Victory Seymour and was raised with appropriate ceremonies at Fort Wayne, Saturday afternoon, April 14. In addition to the flag, Dr. Seymour gave the regiment a silver bugle.

Under command of Maj. August Gansser, the regiment was formed in company front at 3 o'clock and after a brief introduction by Chaplain Thomas E. Swan, Dr. Seymour who wore the uniform of the Academey Francaise, of which he is a member, made a short presentation address. The acceptance on behalf of the regiment was by Maj. Gansser. "The colors" were then sounded with the saluting and the now flag was given to the breeze.

The flag is 35 by 20 feet and was made especially for the regiment. It is of the finest bunting and as it is regimental property can be taken to any post or station to which the Thirty-third may be sent.

MICHIGAN HAS CONSCRIPTION

OLD LAW REVIVED IN CULVER BILL.

Few Members Knew Provision Was Included In Measure Passed by State Legislature.

Tucked away in the Culver military bill which became a law last week when it was signed by Governor Sleeper is a provision authorizing the governor to draft men for Michigan's quota of troops for the national guard should sufficient volunteers fail to respond to the call for troops. While the military authorities claim this is simply a re-enactment of the now law that was on in the statute hooks in 1861 and 1898, a very few members of the logislature were aware of this provision when the Culver bill went through during the closing hours of the session.

The governor is authorized to appoint the number by draft according to the population of the several counties and shall notify the sheriff of each county from which any draft is requested of the number of persons his county is to furnish. Upon the requisition of the governor being received by the sheriff, he shall immediately personally notify the county clerk, who shall copy by name or number from the supervisors' roll of each township, city or ward of such county, all persons who are so returned as liable to military duty, such names or their corresponding numbers shall be placed on slips of paper in a box and the number requested to fill such draft shall be drawn in the same manner as jurors are now selected. All persons so drawn and liable to perform military duty, shall be determined to be legally held to serve in the manner and for the purpose and time specified in the requisition, and the sheriff shall notify the persons so drafted, at what time and place they shall appear.

RECRUITS APPLYING AT LOCAL OFFICE

But Not From Charlevoix—Waiting For Conscription.

"Rookies" are coming in at the local recruiting station, but not from Charlevoix. The latest youthful patriots are Marion D. Thompson, aged 19 years, and William H. Coffin, aged 18, both of Levering. These young men passed the examination at the local office Monday and left for Grand Rapids Tuesday. Victor H. Stonebrumer, aged 18, also of Levering, made application Monday but failed to pass on account of a slight physical defect. Lawrence Ditlefson, of Detroit, a nephew of Oluf Nordrum of this city, also failed to pass the test.

FISH HATCHERY COMING SOON

ONLY WAITS ON ADJUSTMENT AS TO SITE.

Government Officials Here Last Week Favor Present Location —To Build July 1st.

Henry O'Malley, of Washington, D. C., assistant in charge of the U. S. division of fish culture and W. W. Thayer, superintendent of U. S. fish hatcheries in the State of Michigan, who is stationed at Northville, were entertained last Thursday evening at a banquet at the hotel Charlevoix by several members of the council and some of the business men of the city, Mr. J. L. Crane presiding at the occasion.

The proposition of a big fish hatchery for Charlevoix was thoroughly discussed together with other matters of vital interest. Among other things, Mr. O'Malley stated that the contemplated hatchery would be the largest individual establishment of its kind in Michigan. He also confessed that in the opinion of himself and others in authority, Charlevoix is the logical location for this branch of the government fisheries work, that it is practically an assured thing and that work will begin on the new hatchery by the first of July next if favorable adjustment can be made in the matter of a site for the buildings between the city authorities and the government. Several other speeches were made and the evening passed very pleasantly.

The visitors had previously been escorted by the councilmen and business men about the city with a view to choosing a proper site. Their first choice was the location of the present hatchery near the coast-guard station. Their next choice was the property owned by O. E. Wilbur and George W. Weaver on Belvedere Avenue.

AGED CITIZEN PASSES AWAY

FATHER OF L. E. CRANDELL DEAD.

Was Former Resident of Banks Township—Lived In Charlevoix Six Years.

Edwin H. Crandell, father of L. E. Crandell, of this city, died last Friday afternoon at three o'clock at the home of W. T. Crandall, where he has been staying since last fall.

Mr. Crandell was well advanced in years, having been born in 1837 at Palmyra, N. Y. He came to Michigan with his parents at the age of seven years and the family settled in Hillsdale county. At the time of his marriage in 1858, he moved to northern Michigan and settled in Banks township, Antrim county. Two sons and two daughters were born to him, of whom only one son survives, L. E. Crandell of this city, who has taken care of his father for the past six years.

Rev. A. C. Pontius of the Church of God conducted the funeral services, which were held from the Crandall home Monday, April 30th. The interment was at Ellsworth cemetery.

MAYOR'S PROCLAMATION

I, Simon M. Rose, Mayor of the City of Charlevoix, do hereby set aside Thursday May 10th, 1917, as "Clean Up and Fire Prevention Day" and I urgently request every resident to observe the day.

On Friday, May 11th, the City of Charlevoix will collect and cart away all rubbish except ashes and tree limbs that has been collected in convenient piles in all the streets and alleys within the city free of charge. Kindly "clean up" and pile your rubbish in the streets convenient for the city to cart away.

Approved by the Common Council.

CO-OPERATION IS NOW NEEDED

FARMERS ASKED TO MAKE REPORT.

Newly Appointed State Agricultural Agent Needs Information to Carry On His Work.

The present national crisis must he met not only by the mobilization of soldiers and munitions, hut by the enlistment of food producers In a nstional campaign for maximum crop production. The Federal government has urged this upon every stats. In response to this need, Governor Sleeper issued a call for a coaference on the suhject, and later appointed a committee of seven, and known as the "Food and Farm Products Committee" to take charge of the state-wide campaign.

The successful experience the Agricultural College hae had in promoting crop production in the twenty seven counties having County Agricultural agents, clearly indicated the need for a State Agricultural agent In each of the remaining counties during this emergency. Therefore, the State Farm Preparedness Board instructed the State Board of Agriculture to employ thirty additional Agricultural Agents as a war measure and to finance the plan from the war fund provided hy the State legislature. The appointment and supervision of theee temporary agents was placed with the extension division of the Agricultural College, and they are responsible to the director of that division while acting as such agents. Through the extension division of the College theee agents are connected with the United State Department of Agriculture, and its plans for promoting food production will he transmitted to them. These additional agents were appointed for a period of six months and were selected from the countiee In which they are to work.

The Extension Division was given power to appoint these men on April 17th with the recommendation that they be on the job hy April 23rd. This has heen done. It was necessary to hurry the appointment in order that they be of use during seeding time. Whiic necessarily the selection was hurried it was attempted, in all cases to appoint a man who by his past record had shown himself to ho a leader in his community hoth in puhlic and agricultural matters, and to he n man of good character, and one commanding the respect of his neighbors. Religious, social or party affiliations were given no consideration in making the choice. From the fact that there were more than thirty counties without county agents, while provision was made for only thirty additional agents, it was necessary to group counties together in several cases. Emmet and Charlevoix counties were grouped together and one man placed in charge of the work in the two counties. Mr. George Kilborn of Petoskey was the man chosen to carry on tha work In this group. He will he supported and sided in the work hy an advisory committee in each county known as the "County Farm Preparedness Board," appointed hy the agent, and composed of men representing different lines of industry and agricultural organizatione within the county. It is also hoped to find men In each twnp. to hecome co-operative in this work, who grouped together will form a larger county organization. These men will represent the agent in their respective territories and will aid him in carrying out bis plans.

Thc work of the temporary state agricultural agents receatly appointed will not he to act so much ae agriculturnl advisors as to become a means hy which the needs of the farmer that limit his production may he determined, and to get to the farmer the things necessary to meet these needs. He wili act as a local representative of the "Statc Farm Preparedness Board" to carry out the plans they may have to aid in increasing food production this year. It is planned to determine the amount and kind of lahor needed in the farms and to supply it; to aid in the location and distribution of good seed; and to work out means of getting deserving men credit.

We are at war. A ahortage of food exists hecausc the surplus In all countries has been used up to feed tha forty million and more men In the armice of the belligerents, who were removed from productive labors and to supply the neede of those formerly dependent upon them. The other countries at war have felt the pinch of hunger and it is firmly helieved by prominent men who have studied the problem carefully that unless production is increased there will he suffering In this country from the lack of food within a year.

There is no danger of an overproduction. Even if this were possihle, steps have already heen taken to regulate the distrihution of food products and to prevent speculation in farm products. Loss from this cause, therefore, need not he feared. It is the patriotic duty of every farmer and landowner to produce all within his power. It is the patriotic duty of others to help with lshor, credlt or any other means within their control. The co-operation of all is asked in this impending crisis.

Let us work as ons big wbole for the good of all.

The agricultural agent asks your immediate co-operation. He asks ths husiness men and others In tha clties and towns to be ready to help solve local problems and he asks the farmers to furnisb him lnformation needed hy the "State Farm Preparedness Board."

In order to get the work under way will you please cut out the following hlank, fill it out and send it to your agricultural agent?

He asks your co-operation. It is for the good of all that this information may ha ohtained.

Dear Sir:

I am deeply grateful for the eheck for $898.28 ln payment of policy No. 536,842, on lifa of my huehand, William R. Bonner. To know the record of thie policy any one can appreciate tbe fair and just treatment accorded its policyholders hy the Mutual Benefit Lifa Inauranee Company under its very liberal non-forfeiture system—in otber words ln giving a dollar'e worth of insurance for every dollar paid ln.

My husband took out his policy in 1910 and only paid in eash the 1910 and 1911 premiums. When tha 1912 premlum fell dus ha horrowed the amount necessary from the Company as it was not convenient for him to pay the premium in cash on account of a short crop. He also horrowed sufficient to eover tha 1913 and 1914 premlums. When the 1915 premium fell due he did aot bave the money to pay it and decided to let hls policy go hy. On November 25th, 1915, the policy lapsed. I did not know lt had any value until I took the matter up with your agent, Mr. J. S. Peters, and was informed that the insuranco was in force under the Company's liberal extenaion feature, and am to-day in receipt of your ebeck in full payment of tha policy.

The Mntual Benefit Life Insurance Company is truly a great Institution in so carafully looking after tha interests of its policyholders.

With many thaaks for the satisfactory settlomeat of this claim,
Yours, very truly,

SCHOOL COMMISSIONER'S NOTES

There were nineteen candidates at the Teacher's Examinations, nine of these appiying for second grade certificates.

Miss Jessie Barkley, of the Clark school, has a good flag that she got by having her pupils sell buttons. She laments the absence of a rope.

Mrs. Thomas Seroggie, of the Barnard school, is buying a beautiful 6 x 10 foot flag from social money in her possession, provided the schooi board will get the rope.

On the 4th day of May, Marion No. 4, at Nowland Lake plnns a big flag raising and picnie. New Flag. New pole. Big program and eats.

The Gill school in Chandler will close with scheol iunch and program.

The Tainter school has procured a new pole.

Get your teacher early. We cannot exactly predict the supply of school ma'ams, even though we knew just what the demand will be.

Several of the rural schools have been observing clean-up day for some time, but the yards could be still improved during Clean-Up week in the first week in May.

Six schools out of forty-six, had lists of birds on the blackboard, with the names of the children and date when first seen this spring.

The annual triplicate reports made by the teacher to tha director and school commissioner, ware mailed Saturday April 28th to school officers, for the concluding of the scheol term.

Twelve schoel visits made April 23, 24 and 25. Each visit about one hour in length. All things moving nicely.

BARNARD.

John Holiday made a business trip to Harbor Springs the fore part of last week.

Wm. Lewis of Boyne City, is spending this week at his farm home with his family.

Albert Beattie purchased a fine new Overland Model 90 of Benj. Brown last week.

Quite a numher of our people have been attending and enjoying the revivnl services nt the tabernnele in Charlevoix.

First Boat Through Straits.

The first boat to force passage through the Straits of Mackinaw this year was the fish tug Isabelle M., of Charlevoix. During a southwest wind the boat found a narrow stretch of open water the entire distance through the Straits and by making innumerable turns was able to navigate without difficulty. She was enroute to Harbor Beach for the early spring season.

CORRESPONDENCE

MARION.

Several men went down Sunday to see Arthur Wooden, who is very low.

Sherman Howa commenced working fer Frank Sneathen last Monday morning.

Harry Dogger of Grand Rapids is visiting at the home of his sister, Mrs. Dee Sneathen.

Mr. Knowles and Mr. Dean of Boyne City were callers in this locality last Thursday.

Logan Dunn of Chicago arrived at the home of his sister last Wednesday for a short visit.

A surprise was given on Miss Stephane Keleeri at the home of Mrs. Rose Wrightman last Thursday. It was the same jolly crowd of ladies and a good time was had. It was a pot luck dinner and Mrs. Wrightman served bananas and cream.

A sad accident happened at school Wednesday. The teacher was playing with her scholars during the noon hour and in some way she twisted her ankle causing one bona to be broken and another ena cracked. She has the grit though and went on crutches to take the examination and is teaching school at present.

A surprise party was given on Miss Stephane Keleeri last Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Winnick . A grand time was had till the wee heurs of the morning. Miss Stephanie expects to go back to Chicago this week. We hope to see her again next year or before. She is another Chicago visitor that will long be remembered.

WALKER SCHOOL NOTES

Only one more month of school.

The First Grade have finished their readers.

Everyone was busy last week with the final examinations.

Bernice Courier was absent the first of the week, doctoring a sore throat.

We spend our noons gathering May flowers. The woods are full of them.

Dan Lynn and Robert Darbee got the highest average. Thirteen others followed very closely having averages over eighty per cent.

Norma Sherman, Lila Lynn and Florence Spidic received Palmer method honor pins from the Palmer Co. for examinations on writing sent to them.

CLARKE SCHOOL

We truly enjoy the Mayflowers.

Miss May L. Stewart visited our school last week.

Now is the time we appreciate our flag. Lets not forget to doff our hats to "Old Glory" as we pass the school house.

Along with other enjoyments came examinations last week. We count is all joy for our teacher reports a very good set of papers.

THE FOLLY OF THE VOLUNTEER SYSTEM.

Selective conscription is the quickest, fairest, most practical way to raise what men we need for the war with the Prussian government of Germany.

The volunteer system means the humiliation of a recruiting campnign the object of which will be to FORCE men to volunteer. It menns too, that men will go who ought to stay at work, and that men will stay at work or play who ought to go.

Selective conscription comes to this:

Uncle Snm calls up all young men from 19 to 25, stands them up in a row, looks them over and then decides:

"Bill, you are needed to raise wheat, you stay home.

"Joe, you are a skilled mechanic, we need you in the factory, you'd better stny home.

"Sorry, Jack, but you are not physically up to the work, and you'll have to stay behind.

"Tom, you have a wife and children depending on your earnings; you'd better stick to work and serve your country that way.

"Harry, you're physically fit, you have nobody depending on your earnings and you are physicaliy in fine shape—you come along with me and we'll show the kaiser a thing or two."

That's selective conscription—the quick way, the fair way, the practical way, the democratic wny—for don't forget that the obligation to serve the nation in war falls morally as well as legally upon every one of us.

Volunteering means "Let George do it." Volunteering means a campaign of studied insult to all who do not volunteer even though they are men that under the selective conscription plan would beyond doubt be left out of the ranks. Volunteering means that Joe, who is worth ten times as much making guns as he would be in firing them, would be dragooned into enlisting, while Harry, who hasn't any soul depending on him, and who never learned to do anything useful, may show the white feather and stay home—

A CRITICAL SITUATION.

Plant, plant, plant and then plant some more.

This is the message brought to Charlevoix by George W. McCormick, member of the state food preparedness board, who declares that the seriousness of the food situation cannot be overestimated.

Mr. McCormick's outline of the campaign to increase food production in Michigan shows that the board is going at the problem in earnest.

Perhaps the most interesting of the preparedness board's ideas is that fathered by Mr. McCormick himself for the mobilization of school boys between the ages of 14 and 18 years, too young to serve the country in the army.

Proper co-operation by parents should make the plan to mobilize the boys a great success. The fact that the boys will be under careful supervision, will remove any apprehension parents might have at allowing their boys to leave home for the ninety day period suggested; and the work on the farm will be excellent training and exercise for the boy, as well as being a great help to the state.

Mr. McCormick's idea that the state of Michigan should see that every farmer has enough money to insure seeding of every available acre is also a good one, and co-operation by the banks with the farmer with the state guarantee that the banker will not lose money on loans he makes to farmers for seeding should work out to advantage. Lack of money for seed is a more pressing problem in the farms of the upper peninsula than it is in the southern part of the state, where on the other hand, the labor shortage on the farms is more acute than it is in the upper peninsula.

Mr. McCormick's views lend emphasis to the proposition that everyone must co-operate to increase food production. It emphasizes the need of seeing that every bit of city property that is available is planted by its owners. Anyone who fails to do everything he can to plant a garden himself or to help others to plant is not doing his full duty as an American citizen.

FIRING THE FIRST SHOT.

On the anniversary of the battle that marked the birth of this great Republic—April 19—American gunners fired another "shot heard 'round the world."

This was the shot from the bow gun of the American line steamer Mongolia which found its mark beneath the periscope of a German submarine off the coast of England, as described in Captain Rice's report of the encounter with the U-boat as his staunch liner, flying the American flag, docked safely in a British port.

The shot from the Mongolia was the first answer from an American gun to the challenge hurled by a war-mad autocracy to a liberty-loving democracy.

This country by its severance of relations and declaration of a state of war, together with its preparations, had already given its answer to the followers of the creed of the iron cross in words and in abstract action, but the American gunners on the Mongolia gave a kind of concrete reply which the Kaiser's government can understand.

CERTAINLY NOT.

Was any one ever "easy" enough to emagine that the Democratic president of the United States would let Teddy Roosevelt raise a volunteer army to go to Europe? Mr. Wilson never forgets that he is a Democrat; and if there should ever chance to be such an unbelievenble lapse of memory by the President he is surrounded by a body of tried and true Democrats from the South who will prove unfailing memory-joggers.

We would almost wager our life against a five-cent piece that if Roosevelt at the head of an American army in Europe could end the war in thirty days, and President Wilson knew he could do it, he would not be permitted to go.

"Why?" you may ask.

For the same reason that General Wood was transferred from the most important army district in the United States to the most insignificant one.

Roosevelt is a Republican and a potential presidential possibility—

And Wilson is a Democrat.

REP. SCOTT FAVORS SERVICE FOR ALL

Goes On Record As In Favor Of Conscription Bill.

Frank D. Scott, representative in congress from this district, has gone on record in support of the president's plan for selective draft by universal service.

Mr. Scott was quoted as non-commital on universal service in Chicago newspapers, and the Menominee Herald-Leader wired him, asking his position. The following telegram was received in reply:

"I am in favor of the president's selective conscription plan. This is eminently a plan to help, not hinder. I believe that only such a force would personate these co-American districts I have the honor to represent.

("Signed) FRANK D. SCOTT."

GUIDE BOOK READY

State Offers Public Booklet On Gardening Methods.

The proposed flooding of the state with literature on the subject of gardening will in the opinion of M. A. G. men, make ignorance no excuse for the individual who this season stays out of the gardening game, on the plea of inexperience in the agricultural arts. As part of its plan to inform every Michigan citizen upon the subject, the college has secured from the federal government over 20,000 copies of a booklet entitled "Home Vegetable Gardening." These bulletins will be mailed out to every person writing in to the college for them.

The pamphlet is one which goes into the gardening arts in detail, setting forth every operation from seedling to harvesting, and giving in addition simple methods for efficient management.

To persons who have planted a garden, or who propose spading one, the bulletin is expected to be a big help. It can be secured by dropping a card to the bulletin department of the Michigan Agricultural College.

HEART of the SUNSET

By REX BEACH

Author of "The Spoilers," "The Iron Trail," "The Silver Horde," Etc.

Copyright by Harper & Brothers

"Valgame Dios! This is a strange fellow. He weeps like a woman.' He must have loved that horse as a man loves his wife. Who can understand these gringos?" After a time he approached cautiously and inquired: "What shall we do with this hombre, senor? Pedro has found his horse."

Law roused himself. With his own hands he gently removed Bessie Belle's saddle, bridle and blanket, then he gave his orders.

"I'll take your horse, Ricardo, and you take—that fellow's. Get a wagon and move him to Jonesville."

"And you?"

"I'm going to follow that man on the sorrel."

The dead man's saddle was left beside the body; then when the exchange of mounts had been effected, and all was ready, Law made a request that amazed both father and son.

"If I'm not back by morning, I want you to bury my mare." His voice broke; he turned away his face. "Bury her deep, Ricardo, so—the coyotes can't dig her up; right where she fell. I'll be back to see that it's done right. Understand?"

"Bueno! I understand perfectly. She was a pretty horse. She was your—boalta, eh? Well, you have a big heart, senor, as a brave man should have. Everything shall be done as you wish; I give you my hand on it." Ricardo reached down and gripped Law's palm. "We will name our pasture for her, too, because it is plain you loved her dearly. So, then, until tomorrow."

Law watched his two friends ride away, then, with a miserable ache in his throat, he mounted and rode off to pick up the trail of the man on the sorrel pony.

The fellow had ridden in the direction of Las Palmas, which Dave judged must be fully twelve miles away, and when they continued to maintain this course the Ranger became doubly interested. He risked his own interpretation of the rider's intent and pushed on without pausing to search out the trail step by step. At the second gate the signs indicated that his man was little more than an hour ahead of him.

The prospect of again seeing the ruddy-haired mistress of Las Palmos stirred Law more deeply than he cared to admit. Nevertheless, he was uncomfortably aware that she had a husband. Not only so, but the sharp contrast in their positions was disagreeable to contemplate; she was unbelievably rich, and a person of influence in the state, while he had nothing except his health, his saddle and his horse—No; no horse now, she was gone.

The mist and an early dusk prevented him from seeing far. It closed itself until he was well in among the irrigated fields. A few moments later, when he rode up to the outbuildings, he encountered a middle-aged Mexican, who proved to be Benito Gonzalez, the range boss.

Dave made himself known, and Benito answered his questions with apparent honesty. No, he had seen nothing of a sorrel horse or a strange rider, but he had just come in himself. Doubtless they could learn more from Juan, the horse-wrangler, who was somewhere about.

Juan was finally found, but he proved strangely recalcitrant. He admitted that he had seen a horse of the description given. Probably it belonged to some stranger.

Dave changed his tactics. "Oigo!" he said, sternly. "Do you want to go to jail?" Juan had no such desire. "Then tell the truth. Where is the horse now?"

Juan insolently declared he didn't know and didn't care.

"Oh, you don't, eh?" Law reached for the boy, and shook him until he yelled. "You will make a nice little prisoner, Juanito, and we shall find a way to make you speak."

Gonzalez was inclined to resent such high-handed treatment of his underling, but respect for the Rangers was deep-rooted, and Juan's behavior was inexplicable.

At last the horseboy confessed. He had seen both horse and rider, but knew neither. Mr. Austin and the stranger had arrived together, and the latter had gone on. That was the truth.

"Bueno!" Law released his prisoner, who slunk away rubbing his shoulder. "Now, Benito, we will find Mr. Austin."

A voice answered from the dusk: "He won't take much finding," and Ed Austin himself emerged from the stable door. "Well, what do you want?"

"You are Mr. Austin, I reckon?"

"I am. What d'you mean by abusing my help?" The master of Las Palmas approached so near that his threatening scowl was visible. "I don't allow strangers to prowl around my premises."

Amazed by this hostile greeting, Law explained in a word the reason for his presence.

"I don't know anything about your man. What d'you want him for, and who are you?"

Dave introduced himself. "I want him for stealing Guzman's calves. I

"I Don't Know Anything About You."

trailed him from where he and his partner cut into your south pasture."

Benito stirred and muttered an oath, but Austin was unmoved. "I reckon you must be a bad trailer," he laughed. "We've got no thieves here. What makes you think Guzman lost any calves?"

Dave's temper, never too well controlled at best, began to rise. He could not imagine why a person of Ed Austin's standing should behave in this extraordinary manner, unless, perhaps, he was drunk.

"Well, I saw the calves, and I left the fellow that was branding them with a wet saddle blanket over his face."

"Eh? What's that?" Austin started, and Gonzalez uttered a smothered exclamation. "You killed him? He's dead?"

"Dead enough to skin. I caught him with his irons in the fire and the calves necked up in your pasture. Now I want his companero."

"I—hope you don't think we know anything about him," Ed protested.

"Where's that man on the sorrel horse?"

Austin turned away with a shrug.

"You rode in with him," Dave persisted.

Ed wheeled quickly. "How do you know I did?"

"Your boy saw you."

The Englishman's voice was harsh as he said: "Look here, my friend, you're on the wrong track. The fellow I was with had nothing to do with this affair. Would you know your man? Did you get a look at him?"

"No. But I reckon Don Ricardo could tell his horse."

"Humph!" Austin grunted, disagreeably. "So just for that you come prowling around threatening my help, eh? Trying to frame up a case, maybe? Well, it don't go. I was out with one of Tad Lewis' men."

"What was his name?" Dave managed to inquire.

"Urbina. He had a sorrel under him, but there are thousands of sorrel horses."

"What time did you meet him?"

"I met him at noon, and—I've been with him ever since. So you see you're wrong. I presume your man doubled back and is laughing at you."

Law's first bewilderment had given place to a black rage; for the moment he was in danger of disregarding the reason for "Young Ed's" incivility and giving rein to his passion, but he checked himself in time.

"Would you mind telling me what you and this Urbina were doing?"

Austin laughed mockingly. "That's my business," said he.

Dave moistened his lips. He hitched his shoulders nervously. He was astonished at his own self-control, though the certainty that Austin was drunk helped him to steady himself. Nevertheless, he dared not trust himself to speak.

Construing this silence as an acknowledgment of defeat, Ed turned to go. Some tardy sense of duty, however, prompted him to fling back, carelessly:

"I suppose you've come a good ways. If you're hungry, Benito will show you the way to the kitchen." Then he walked away into the darkness, followed by the shocked gaze of his range boss.

Benito roused himself from his amazement to say, warmly: "Si, compadre. You will enjoy a cup of hot coffee."

But Law ground out fiercely: "I'm not used to kitchen hand-outs. I reckon I can chew my bridle reins if I get too hungry." Winking to his horse, he vaulted into the saddle.

Benito laid a hand upon his thigh and apologized. "Senor Ed is a strange man. He is often like this lately. You understand me? Will you come to my house for supper?"

"Thank you, but I think I'll ride on to Tad Lewis' and see Urbina."

At this the Mexican shook his head as if apprehensive of the result, but he said nothing more.

Law hesitated as he was about to spur out the yard. "By the way," he ventured, "you needn't mention this to Mrs. Austin."

"She is not here," Gonzalez told him. "She has gone to La Feria to see about her affairs. She would not permit of this occurrence if she were at home. She is a very fine lady."

"Yes. Good night, Benito."

"Good night, senor."

When the Ranger had gone, Gonzalez walked slowly toward his house, with his head bowed thoughtfully.

"It is very strange," he muttered. "How could Don Eduardo have met this Garzo at noon when, with my own eyes, I saw him ride away from Las Palmas at three o'clock in the afternoon? It is very strange."

THEATRICAL.

It is no exaggeration to say that no film ever presented has solicited such warm and spontaneous praise than that which Lyman H. Howe will present at the Majestic Theatre on Monday, May 14. The most noted scientists have hailed it as the most vital achievement in the history of motion photography. Critics on the most influential newspapers everywhere declare it to be beyond comparison with anything of the kind ever shown. Here are just a few of hundreds which show with what enthusiasm this production is received. The reviewer of the New York Times—"This living record of Sir Douglas Mawson's journey has more entertainment in it than a hundred ordinary photoplays, and each individual penguin is more amusing even than those gymnastic movie comedies wherein everyone of the actors falls down at least seven times."

The critic of the Washington (D. C.) Post goes on record thus: "No other hunt, polar, exploration or marine pictures can approach these astonishing representations of marine and animal life. The story is a tale of dauntless heroism."

The reviewer of the New York Mail finds in them rich and rare humore for he states they are "Screamingly Funny." The penguins are supreme comedians. Now we know where Charley Chaplin got his walk.

That the public shares these enthusiastic encomiums proven by the fact that hundreds of patrons, not satisfied with witnessing the film but once, have found it so fascinating and absorbing that they have attended again and again. It is the biggest and most vital feature Mr. Howe has ever exhibited, and that guarantee in itself should suffice to insure capacity attendances at every performance here as it does practically everywhere.

The entrancing beauties of Yosemite National Park will also be revealed in a delightful ride over the winding trails, right through Giant Sequoias and past tremendous precipices over which crystal rivers tumble and swirl and leap from cliff to cliff until they become great clouds of snowy whiteness. Numerous other features will be presented as well as a series of those clever animated cartoons that contribute so much to the merriment of the program throughout.

"The Birth of a Nation," coming May 9th and 10th, at the Bellamy Theatre in Boyne City, is one of the most stupendous productions ever displayed on the screen in this country. David Wark Griffith was eight months making this wonderful story. He employed 18,000 people and 3,000 horses and covered with his great picture drama 150 years of American history, making 5,000 separate scenes.

Besides this marvelous spectacle staged amid nature's own scenery, the glories of the old fashioned stage and the splendors of grand opera scenes fade into insignificance. The performance last two hours and 45 minutes, and carries the magnificient story from the introduction of African slavery right down through Civil War and Reconstruction days to the final real union of South and North in the bonds of love and peace.

Among the distinguished actors and actresses in the cast are Henry B. Walthall, Lillian Gish, Mae Marsh, Miriam Cooper, Mary Alden, Josephine Crowell, Ralph Lewis, Joseph Hennbery, Raoul Walsh, Donald Crisp, Howard Gaye, George Seigmann, Walter Long, Elmer Clifton and Robert Harron.

Linked with the drama is an operative score which carries recurrent themes with every vital scene and character in the epic. This wonderful score, which is synochronized to the drama is in itself an incomparable work of art. An orchestra of forty travels with the attraction to handle the musical features of the presentation.

Tickets will be on sale Thursday, May 3rd, at the box office. Don't miss it.

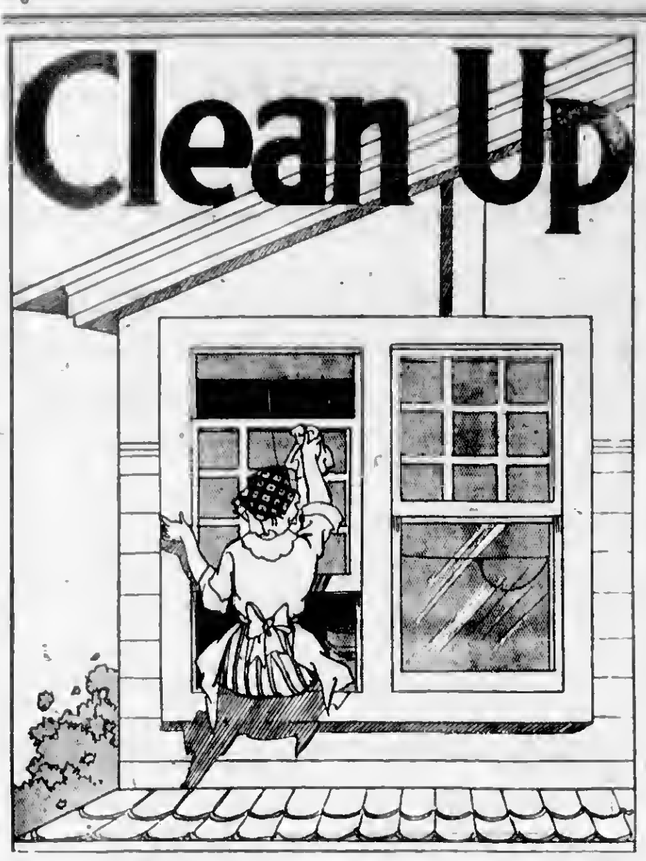
Clean Up



A Vital Matter

With the advent of war comes the stern necessity for conservation. From now on, the word "waste" must not appear on the list of our national sins. Every pound, gallon and foot of our staple neeessities must be made to do the work of two and with prices of materials steadily soaring, replaeement or addition beeomes increasingly difficult. We must turn our energies to preserving what we have. Nowhere is this more true than in the ease of the buildings we live and work in. They constantly deteriorate without care, and care in this ease means

CLEAN-UP DAY

Thursday, May 10

The Mayor designated Thursday, May 10, as Clean-Up day for Charlevoix "the Beautiful." This week has been set aside as Clean-Up—Paint-Up week all over the nation, and as a very important movement has received favorable response from a vast majority of property owners.

We Want Our City to Be Just What the Name "Charlevoix the Beautiful" Implies

One of the principal ways of accomplishing this is to see that our property is well painted. This not only really beautifies the city, but it beautifies our property, proteets the building material from decay eausod by the elements, thereby enhaneing its value.

Take a good look at your property and see if you don't think a coat of paint will more than pay. While this applies more particularly to the outside, still with a nicely finished interior a home is more homelike. We sell

DeVoe's Lead and Zinc 99 per cent Pure Paint for $3.00 per gallon

This paint contains only pure white lead, pure white zinc, pure linseed oil and pure turpentine and tinting colors. Look on the container for the formula.

Patton's Velumina, the Beautiful Flat Inside Paint, at $2.75 per gallon and Hygenic Kalsomine at 40 cents per package cannot be beaten in quality. Now is the time to get busy. When through with the rake, take the brush. Whether you buy your paint and kalsomine of us or some other store in the city is not for us to say, but we do say CLEAN UP AND PAINT UP.

He has been employed on the Sentinel for several years past and during that time has made many friends in Charlevoix who will be sorry to have him go, while at the same time wishing him the best of success in his new position.

Miss Anna Bon left Friday for Grand Rapids, where she will work in the public library there for about two months. She goes at the instance of the local school board to study modern methods and become more proficient in her line of work. We certainly have an efficient school board now and this is but one of the many proofs that its members were wisely chosen. Miss Bon has done first class work in the library and we are glad she has this chance to gather knowledge of which we all, no doubt, ultimately have the benefit.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

"The early bird catches the worm" but the Parliamentary Law class doesn't like worm for a steady diet.

On the home stretch now, only five more weeks before examination.

Won the first game of the season. Rah! Come to the game with Petoskey next Saturday.

Tennis tournament will start as soon as the weather permits. There are seventeen entries for the singles, and eight for the doubles. Two out of three sets will be played in the preliminary rounds and three out of five in the semi-finals and finals.

The tennis courts have been extended by moving the net back to the sidewalk. They are in good shape now for a championship tournament. Please do not go on the courts without tennis shoes, or when the courts are wet.

Mr. Aseltine had several of the boys sprinkle the courts Thursday morning and there was a heavy rain that night. Please study the weather forecasts after this.

The American history class is on the job again. "It takes two to make an argument, so I'll shut up."

To the tune of "Only another night to roam——"

Only another month to dream,
Only four more weeks of school

The Day for spring apparel is here

Now, when spring has brought back the birds, the grass, and the purple flush of buds to the trees outdoors is calling to you to come and enjoy the bracing air.

"New clothes! New clothes!" is the call to every youthful-feeling woman throughout the land.

What a charm there is to their youthfulness, and The H. Black Company in their Wooltex coats and suits have made the youthful idea becoming to every woman.

The Beauchamp—a novelty coat made up in fancy tweed mixtures. There's a new panel effect forming a sort of a yoke in front. The latest idea as to pockets also—laid in between panels, thereby giving a nowness to the garment not seen in ordinary lines.

No. 5000. Plaits and buttons are the features that make this such an attractive model for spring. The jacket is plaited both front and back, the plaits of the skirt following those of the jacket. In the skirt, the plaits drop from an all 'round yoke. Fully lined with silk, this suit may be had in fine Poiret twills, in all the newest shades.

If our patrons only knew how difficult it is these days to secure garments of real quality at moderate prices, and how scarce are those which are correct and smart, they would heed our suggestion and do their buying early this spring.

Suits, $12.50 to $25.00
Coats $5.00 to $25.00
Skirts, $1.25 to $10.00

SOME PEOPLE THINK

That banks are only for rich people.

It is true that the banks help the wealthy man to handle his money.

But they help the poor man to save his money.

When he has shown himself to be a saver and has established himself at the bank they loan him more money with which to make money.

Prepare to make money by starting an account today.

Communaily Shocked by Death of Mrs. T. E. Boss

Ada Fulton was born at Grand Ben, Ontario, Canada, May 7, 1883, and died at her homa ona mile north of Ellsworth at 2 o'clock on the morning of April 28, 1917, aga 34 years, 11 months and 21 days.

When a child about seven years of age sho moved with her adopted parents to Ellsworth whera she has since made her home.

She obtained her educstion in the public schools of Ellsworth, and on May 15th 1907 she was united in marriage to Tracey E. Boss, a life long friend and school mate, and to this union wera born seven children, six of whom are living to mourn the loss of a mother.

Mrs. Boss had been in very poor health for tha last two months, but that her condition was critical was hardly guessed even by her closest friends and associates. However, when she was taken with a sinking spell on the day preceeding her death grave fears were felt by her relatives and her physicisn was summoned. After a time she grew better, but about one o'clock tha next morning she was again stricken and before help could be secured she had passed away.

Deceased was well known in her home community, and was loved by all with whom she came in contact.

She leaves two brothers and two half sisters whose whereabouts are unknown at present, her foster mother who resides in Winnipeg, Canada, a husband, six children and numberless friends to mourn her loss.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Congregational church and the remains were laid at rest in the local cemetery, Rev. Prentice of Central Lake officiating.

F. H. SKOW SELLS INTEREST IN STORE

New Firm to be Conducted Under Former Name.

The firm of D. E. Clow & Co made a decided change last Friday when F. H. Skow sold his interest to Frank Peebles. Mr. Peebles was until ahout three weeks ago, one of the best known and prosperous farmers of Banks Township, but was forced owing to ill health to sell his farm. Mr. Skow has been anxious for some time to get out of the store business as his mind and time has heen so fully taken up with other matters that he has not been able to give the store the attention it should have.

This is not Mr. Peebles first venture in the store business as he has had previous experience in this line.

Mr. Clow still retains his interest in the company and with the large following which the new partner is sure to bring we see no reason why this firm should not have, at least their share of the patronage, and we predict a bright future for the new firm of D. E. Clow & Co.

Luckily they were caught before any damage was done either to themselves or to property along the line of travel.

VOTE TO CHANGE SCHOOL BUILOING SITE

Committee Named to Decide on New Location.

The special school meeting held last Wednesday evening drew a small but very enthusiastic crowd. The meeting was called to decide on whether or not the building site was to be changed, and by a vote of eighteen to three it was decided to change it. And a committee consisting of L. VanSkiver, F. H. Skow and George Klooster were appointed to decide on a suitable location. A vote was also taken to find the sentiment of the tax payers of the district and all were found in favor of a building large enough to not only bouse the present number of pupils enrolled, but to also take care of the increased number in years to come. The committee has several new building sites in view and will probably decide on one of them before tbe next meeting is called.

GOVERNOR PROCLAIMS ARBOR OAY OATE

Festival Has New Significance In Light of Present Food Demand

Governor Sleeper has issued the annual Arbor Dny proclamation and in it has aptly brought out what should be the new significance of the day as considered in the light of our dire necessity for more food stuffs. The proclamation follows:

"At an earlier day Michigan wns the home of magnificient forests of pine and hardwood. We have still enough hardwood trees left to make Michigan the leading hardwood state in the Union, but scarcely n vistage remains of our once splendid pine forests. What can we do today to help restore what has been destroyed? Reforestation by the State nnd tree-planting by the individual—that is the answer. Trees mean beauty and blessing. They mean health and wealth. They mean shade and shelter and food.

"For many years it has been the custom, at this season of the year, for the Governor to issue a proclamation, calling upon the people of the State to observe Arbor Day by the planting of trees and by other appropriate excreises.

"This year, important as the planting of trees undoubtedly is, there is n still more important matter to engage our serious attention, and that is the planting of gardens. Through none of our own seeking, we have been plunged into war; and we are threatened with the greatest food shortage in our history. It may he that disaster, great and irretrievable can be averted only by utilizing for planting purposes every avainble foot of ground. One-quarter of an acre can be made to produce, for example, potatoes enough to supply two or three families, and vacant lots in cities, towns and villages are available for this purpose. PRODUCTION AND CONSERVATION—these should be our two great watch-words this year.

Therefore, I, Albart E. Sleeper, Governor of the State of Michigan, do hereby designate and set aside Friday, May Fourth, 1917, as Arbor and Garden Dsy in the hope that both the old and the young of our people may be impressed with the needs of the situation and may be stimulated not only to plant trees, as has been our custom on Arbor Day, hut to plant their garden plots with potatoes and corn and beans and other nutritious vegetables.

HIGH SCHOOL PLAY WAS WELL ATTENDED

Blue Store Hall Filled to Capacity—All Did Well

The high school play, "A Southern Cinderilla," a comedy-drama of three acts, given last Friday evening at the Blue Store hall, was a scream from start to finish, and once more showed that Ellsworth is rich in local talent.

Although every play is supposed to have some particular star, it would be hard to determine the star of this production, as each and every one of the cast showed marked ability.

The pupils taking part were, the Misses Alida Beuker, Blanche Boss, Violet Rogers, Mamie Peebles, Sylvilla Yettaw, Ida Vanorman and Esther Carpenter and the natural, confident manner in which each did their share showed that the steady consistent practice of the last few weeks had not been in vain.

The entertainment netted the school about twenty five dollars which amount will probably be used to purchase a flag to replace the one destroyed when the school house burned last winter.

In addition to the regular play, specialties were staged the first being two vocal solos by Miss Edna Routley which were greatly enjoyed and the other a short sketch by John Beuker and John Ruys which kept the audience in a continual laugh.

Too much credit cannot be given to the pupils and their teacher Prof. Brail, for the success of the entertainment, as without a perfect school spirit coupled with plenty of hard work by all concerned, success could not have been attained.

ADVERTISE IN THE COURIER

CORRESPONDENCE

MILES DISTRICT.

Only four weeks of school left.

Berdette Evans is not improving in health very rapidly.

Lorence Isaman and family spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Nico.

Roy Fowler enn now be seen manipulating the throttlea of his tractor instead of the reins of horses. He says it works fine.

Revival meetings held by Mr. Rozelle and Mr. Clark, will continue for another week. There are several who have professed their desire to be Christians.

Mr. Frank LaLonde returned home from Petoskey last Thursday He has been taking treatments at the Snville Sanitarium, and is feeling somewhat better.

Moble Walker came to school this morning and said she had n beautiful boquet of arbutus to bring to school. Doesn't that make one think that we surely are going to have warm weather?

A feast was held in our neighborhood Sunday April 29, and its wasn't Thanksgiving Day either. The relatives of Mr. Jerry Moblo celebrated his 54th birthday by baskets with many good things to eat, and surprising him by a dinner held at his home. The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. C. Laclair and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Reed and family.

ANTRIM CITY

Mrs. Brooks and Grace were at Atwood Saturday.

Jack Smith's children are sick with colds and neuralgia.

Mrs. William Knight is sick. There seems to be a cold traveling around

Miss Nieriker has returned to her home in Ohio, after a ten days visit here.

Incubators are not doing anything extra around here. The old hens are the surest, we guess, after all.

Mr. Baumback and his two boys took four loads of hay to Central Lake Saturday. Mr. Baumback had two loads behind his tractor.

Wm. Dennis, who has been visiting his sister, Mrs. J. Smith, returned to his home in West Duluth, Saturday. He did not get the chance to visit his old neighbors much, as he played nurse and chore boy while the children were sick.

SCHOOL NOTES.

Bessie Baumback, Martha Mnson and Johnnie Parsons have entered school.

The primary history class are studying about Roger Willlams and Wm. Penn.

The flag will be put up again this week. Old Glory will once more float to the breeze.

The third grade have their new readers and have begun work in Baldwin's third reader.

One of the pupils of the third grade says they have seven hens that lay 13 eggs n day, but no hens are for sale.

Mr. Belding, our county commissioner has some very commendable words to say of the stories written by Cnee Brooks and Bessie Elkington.

School will close the first of June with a pienic in the afteraoon. If the weather is favorable a large crowd is expected from different schools near here. Eastport expects to bring a good delegation.

Alfred Brooks is reviewing on old examination questions this week and other work preparatory to taking the 8th grade examination the 11th of May. He will attend at Central Lake, stopping at the Riley place.

MORE DOPE ON THE CONCRETE ROAD

Letter to Van Pelt Gives Milwaukee's Experience With It.

Van Pelt believes that constant hammering is the price of success, although he is no knocker. Arguments for concrete consistently pounded home will some day we believe wear away the opposition to it that still exists in some minds. In this belief, we reprint a letter written to "Uncle George" by the Michigan Concrete Roads Association. Here it is:

Dear Sir:

Interest in good roads is wide spread. Every wide awake citizen is familiar with the attendant advantages, namely—increased land values, decreased hauling cost, improved social conditions, and ability to use the highway 365 days in the year. Are you familiar with the marked saving in ultimate cost of a permanent road over an impermanent road?

Milwaukee county, Wisconsin has had that truth brought home within the past four years through its experience with an extensive system of concrete roads. The fact is verified by the following statement of the Milwaukee Highway commissioner in his third annual report.

"We consider it economy to have a small maintenance crew which goes once or twice a year over all the roads in the County. This crew will under average conditions in Milwaukee county cover all the joints, cracks and small pits in from one totwo miles of 18 foot road in one day at a cost of from $15 to $30 per mile for labor and material." To this low cost of maintenance for twenty years add the first cost of a concrete road and interest thereon, compare this sum with that of an impermanent road of low initial cost, but with a maintenance of from $500 to $700 per mile per year (U. S. Government figures) and you will appreciate that concrete roads are economical.

Yours very truly,
Michigan Concrete Roads Ass'n.

It Is Not Difficult to Make a Picture of Yourself as Twins.

In the Woman's Home Companion C. H. Claudy describes the photographic trick of having one person appear twice in the same picture and tells the amateur photographer how to accomplish it.

"What you actually do is this: Cut from a piece of thick, stiff pasteboard a piece which will fit into the inside of the camera and be held in place by the folds of the bellows. It should be fitted in the fold of the bellows which will hold it about an inch or an inch and a half in front of the plate. Its width should be half the plate opening and a trifle more—say one-eighth of an inch.

"Make this piece of cardboard thoroughly black on both sides by dipping it in ink and letting it dry. See that the cardboard is well 'seated' in the bellows folds so that light does not leak past the joints.

"Pose your subject and proceed to focus so that the image appears on the right side of the ground glass in the camera (left side of the finished picture will be the result). The left side of the ground glass appears black, because it is kept from exposure by the cardboard. Insert the plate holder, take a picture, put back the slide and remove the plate holder; on no account move the camera, however. Very gently slide the cardboard from the left side to the right and replace the ground glass. Pose the subject on the opposite side of the center this time. Then replace the plate holder, remove the slide and make a second exposure exactly the same length as the first."

After ten years' investigations to compare different dates for seeding oats, ranging from March 22 to May 8, the Ohio experiment station has found that greatest yields have generally been obtained from early seeding. In Wayne county seedings made in March have frequently outyielded those in late April or May by fifteen to twenty bushels per acre. In central Ohio in most seasons oats may be sown by March 15 and in the southern part of the state a week earlier.

ENTRY INTO CONFLICT HELD PROPER

ACCORDING TO VIEWS OF TALENTED MIHIGAN EDITOR

Neutrality the Pacifists Idle Dream Says S. H. Perry—Germany a Menace.

Over and over again these questions have been asked:

Why should we not remain strictly neutral in the European war?

How can we justify ourselves in helping the Allies defeat Germany?

Why should we not treat the fighting nations all as friends, give them all fair play, and let them fight out their own quarrel?

These were fnir questions and those who asked were not necessarily pro-German, anti-British or un-American. Many clung tenaciously to the idea that it was our moral duty to bc neutral, and that this nation had nothing to do with European quarrels. They argued that we should not permit ourselves to be dragged away from a safe, fair and prudent policy in order to take part in the world struggle.

These questions will be answered in a series of articles, of which this is the first. They will aim to make clear the reasons why neutrality was neither safe, fair nor prudent, and why it wns not only our right but also a duty and a necessity that we lend our aid to the defeat of Germany and the success of the Allies.

One nation joins tho other against a third power for some one or more of these three reasons:

1. The two allies may have a common interest to protect, or

2. They may be confronted by a common danger, or

3. One of the two allies may be threatened by some special danger of its own, and therefore may be willing to ally itself with a friendly power for mutual advantage.

All three of the above reasons exist in the case of the United Statea today. First we will take up the subject of the interests that we hava in common with the Allies, but which we do not share with Germany. These are four in number:

1. The first, in the long run by far the greatest of these, is the common interest we have with France and England in the principal of democratic government. England was the "mother of parliaments the first nation to establish successfully a true government of the people. Her colonies and dominions have carried free government into every part of the world. Her laws and her ideals of liberty have been adopted and made permanent by the United States.

As England discovered and created free representative government and planted it in the new regions of the world, so France rediscovered human liberty and gave it to the oppressed people of the old world.

It is to England that North America, Africa and Australia owe their liberties, but it is to France that continental Europe owes such liberties as it possesses, and it is to France as much as to England that South America owea its republicanism.

By a mighty effort, which will always shine as one of the most glorious events in human history, France shook off despotism. She did not merely change outward forms or ameliorate old conditions. She struck at the very base of the whole structure of despotie government. She uprooted the doctrine of "divine right" and she did this so thoroughly that, although it tried twice to take root again, it failed; its vitality was dead in France.

Through blood and fire she had won liberty not only for herself, but for Europe. On all sides thrones tottered, Italy, Spain, Norway and Sweden, Belgium and Holland, Greece and the Balkan states, all owe their constitutional governments and some of them their existence, to France.

Russia is the latest and grentest to imitate her. France taught Europe that despots can be got rid of and that a nation can bo great and powerful as a republic.

Prussia and Austria on the other hand stand for the old order—despotic rule by divine right. They hate the very word "republic." They hate France, England and the United States because all three of them are living examples of successful and victorious republicanism.

If France could only be pitched down to ruin, it would be a new birth for absolutism all the way from Borlin to Toklo. If England could also be overthrown, the triumph would be complete because America —the third great citadel of republicanism—could not by itself block the way of despotism and militarism.

Thus we see the eastern powers, the despotic and militaristic powers —Germany, Austria and Turkey— arrayed against the western powers the liberal, republican, non-military powers, England, France, America. This is the real, the fundamental line-up. It is changed by the fact that Japan, which is ruled by a divine right emperor and a military aristocracy, happens to be on the side of the Allies. Japan is in the war only for special reasons.

2. The second interest that we hold in common with German's enemies is the right of every nation to exist as an independent, self-governing power, bowing to no alien master, leading its own life and working out its own destiny. This right is as natural and as sacred as the right of individual liberty, recognized in our Declaration of Independence.

Every nation in the world prizes it. Many peoples, new under an alien yoke, yearn for it. Others are pouring out their life blood for it. Germany is the living negation of that iden. Her aim, interpreted by her greatest writers and reflected in all her actions, is to bring the world under German hegemony.

Germans believe they have a divine mission to absorb all other civilizations, transform and refine them in the crucible of German civilization, and thus give them back to the world immeasurably better than before. As to inferior weak, and undeveloped peoples, the German believe God intrusted Germany with the task of guiding, governing and developing them according to German "kultur" and incidentally profiting greatly out of their God-given task.

3. The third interest that unites us with the Allies is the principle of free access to the world's markets. We believe America, French, German, Japanese or Dutch merchants should have a free and fair field in selling their goods or investing their capital in the undeveloped regions of the earth—that they should crepete freely and get as much as their skill and ability can win.

The German idea, on the contrary is to make commercial conquest through political conquest; or, in other words, to use the political influence of a dominant Germany to stimulate German trade and smother foreign competition in weak or undeveloped lands. The principle favored by America and the Allies would leave the door open in China and South America; the German plan would close the door to all except Germany.

4. The first three interests are common to America and to all of the Allies. The fourth common interest concerns only the United States and England.

These two nations control all North America. Territorially, England is as much an American power as the United States. All early quarrels between the two nations over territory have been settled, and there is no rivalry or jealousy between them. Each is perfectly satisfied with the existing status. Each wants it maintained. Each dreads and fears the possibility of any other power getting a foot-hold anywhere in this hemisphere.

This condition has given rise to a tacit and unofficial alliance between England and the United States, as far as American affairs are concerned. Our Monroe doctrine was announced at England's suggestion, and on the whole it has been strongly supported by England —a support not in the slightest degree affected by two or three small quarrels we have had with England over boundaries and other minor matters.

For 100 years the British navy has been ready to help us prevent Russia, Germany, or any other powers from getting a foothold on this side of the water; and during all that time we were ready to resist any similar effort to conquer British territory in or near North America.

Each nation has, in effect, guarnnteed the other's American possesslons. England would not help us conquer islands in the south seas, and we would not help England get territory in Asia or Africa. But England at any timo would have helped us proveat Germany from getting Cuba, or Russia from getting Alnska. We, for our part, would have resented an attempt by any power to conquer Canada or Jamica almost as quickly as wa would havo resented an invasion of our own country.

Thus the United States and England are united upon a very important common interest—the maintennnce of tha existing status. Both powers want everything to remain as it is. They want boundaries undisturbed. England wants boundaries left undisturbed all over the world, but we ask only that boundaries be left undisturbed in the two Americas.

To that extent, the two powers stand together, and to that extent German designs are a common menace to both, because German's basic purpose is to upset and break up tha British empire.

If her aim were realized, we should have Germany for a neighbor in tha Caribbean region, and our ships would hava to sail past German guns to reach the Panama canal.

Our common interests with the Allies, therefore, are few but very clear and vitally important. They are not reasons of sentiment, but reasons of business, of security, of self-preservation.

THE STORE OF QUALITY AND GOOD SERVICE

If You Really Want To Reduce The Cost of Living

Talking will never do it. Complaining will get you nowhere. But ACTION will accomplish results. The correct action to take is to COME TO US.

We can lighten the burden of your table if you will buy your groceries from us. We are doing it for others every day.

We are cutting the price to the quick on everything in our store. We buy in large quantities and have always been able to get the bottom prices, for WE PAY CASH, and CASH COUNTS.

Then, too, we are satisfied with a reasonable profit. We are not trying to get rich quick on unholy profits as many others are doing.

We want your trade and we want to keep your friendship, and we are MAKING THE PRICES that will win us both.

If you really want to reduce the cost of living, try us next.

THE MEAT DEPARTMENT

Our Meat Department offers everything in this line. Fresh Eggs in abundance, besides juicy cuts of BEEF, PORK, LAMB, VEAL and everything obtainable in the Fish Line. LET US FILL YOUR ORDERS.

WHY WE RECOMMEND

Eagle Lead

EAGLE PURE WHITE LEAD

Has been recognized throughout the United States as the Standard of High Quality Lead for the Master Painter. Every part of "Eagle Lead" is strained through a fine silk cloth, 350 meshes per square inch. When you stop to think that water will not drain through this silk under pressure, you can realize the fineness and exceptional quality of this product.

Ask any responsible painter who knows the various brands of White Lead about "EAGLE" Old Dutch Process.

Rim-Cutting On the Increase!

A few years ago statistics showed that 23 per cent of all ruined clincher tires were rim-cut. The perceatage seems to be gradually increasing, for, according to recent statistics, 31.8 per cent of the ruined clincher tires are now discarded for rim-cutting alone. This situation would be grave were nothing but clincher tires to be bad. But some years ago a hookless tire, one that can't rim-cut, was invented. That inveation is solving the diffienlty. Each season this hookless tire has grown in popularity, until clincher tires will soon be a relic of early auto days, just like the two-cylinder car. The hookless tire, the tire that can't rim-cut, the tire that has practically revolutionized tire construction, is the GOODYEAR NO-RIM-CUT. Note its construction. The rim flanges, instead of turning inward and digging into the side of the tire, are flared outward. There's no sharp rim-edge to cut the tire, as with the clincher. This freedom from rim-cutting means millions of dollars saved to motorists every year.

On Exhibition Here The Goodyear No-Rim-Cut Tire

We have in stock the Goodyear No-Rim-Cut tire. In fact, so great is the call for it that we carry all usual sizes. Some are All-Weather treads; some smooth. Come in and see these tires that now outsell, by far, all others. We have your size.

We Are Here to Help You

But don't wait till you need new tires to come here. When you need air, call and let us supply you free. When you want advice as to how to repair or preserve your tires, talk with us. We have helped a good many motorists in this way. Never ask any pay for it. If one of your tires has gone wrong prematurely, see us before you take the matter up with the tire maker. We are prepared to give accommodation and service without charge.

IF YOU OWN AN AUTO

THERE ARE TWO WAYS OF HANDLING THE CAR—THE ECONOMICAL WAY AND THE DESTRUCTIVE WAY—COMPARE THE TWO:

ECONOMICAL—Bring it to us occasionly and let us examine it, adjust it, and make slight repairs the moment they are needed. Keeps it in good shape and running smoothly.

DESTRUCTIVE—Just keep on "putting it off," regardless of its wheezing and groanings, until the break comes and you have a big repair bill and a weakened car.

We recommend the Economical way. It is the safest and by far the most inexpensive way. See us about your tires. Besides the Goodyear, we carry the Firestone and Kokomo brands—both good tires that will give you good service. We do everything in Auto Repairing and carry in stock every part of a car, big and little. Make our garage your headquarters while in the city.

BOYS OF COMPANY I ENJOY

PORT HURON PEOPLE'S GRACIOUS HOSPITALITY.

Have Car and Motor Boat Provided For Their Eotertainment—Well Pleasad.

(By HAROLD W. USHER)

Port Huron, May 7.—After three weeks in the barracks at Fort Wayne, Detroit, during which we had the time of our lives, Company I was honored by being sent to Port Huron to guard the St. Clair tunnel at this place, which is one of the points of importance in this state. In a way, we were sorry to leave Detroit, as the people there had given us the best of treatment and we disliked to leave them.

We left Detroit on Thursday, April 19th, and got into Port Huron the same night. As soon as we landed in Port Huron, all our suspicions of not having a good time vanished, as we were met at the train by business men of the city and ever since it seems that the people have been spending their time making things pleasant for us, even to the extent of providing a motor boat and a car for the entertainment of our leisure moments. It is a mighty fine little town and the people here are the best we have met so far. Everyone does everything they can to contribute to our pleasure and comfort and they certainly have succeeded. No one can appreciate things like this as a soldier can after being away from home so many months and it certainly is doing us good. Our only regret is that we are unable to return their kindnesses, but if watching the tunnel will pay it back, we will sure do it.

Our camp here is located in one of the prettiest places in the town right on the banks of the St. Clair river. The tents are equipped with electric light and wooden floors and side walls are soon to be installed so we will have a very comfortable place to stay. The scene from the camp is also very fine looking over the river into Sarnia, Canada. The river affords the best of fishing and bathing and as we have been given a motor boat for the summer—will make things real handy for us. There are 27 men here picked from the company, the rest being left at Fort Wayne.

The St. Clair tunnel in itself is a wonderful sight, being one of the greatest feats of engineering ever done. It runs under the St. Clair river across to Sarnia, Canada, being a mile and one eighth long and just wide enough to admit a train. The trains are hauled across by large electric motors made for this purpose and the trip across takes about five minutes. The tunnel is lighted the entire length and is a very pretty sight at night. Co. I has guards stationed at the U. S. end and the Canadian soldiers guard the other. We also have gunrds stationed at the power house and along the river front opposite the tunnel. The guarding is done in six hour shifts, so it keeps us pretty busy most of the time but we have made up our minds that if we can't come home we would rather stay in Port Huron than any other place we know of.

HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Two Fords Come Together Head-On Near East Jordan.

There was a bad accident near East Jordan on the county road near Wm. Howard's farm on Sunday evening of last week. An auto driven by Mr. M. Tyner, who had two others in the car with him, collided with one driven by Mr. Lucius Ranny, who had with him his wife and two children. The occupants of Mr. Ranny's car were thrown out and both children were seriously injured—one it was feared fatally, though we hear now he is improving. The cause of the accident is not clear, as there is a great plenty of good road room at that point for the cars to pass. But one thing is clear and that is that one or both of the drivers were not living strictly up to the law and rules laid down for running autos. This disaster again emphasizes the fact that running an auto is dangerous work and should be so recognized by all.

GOVERNMENT FLOATS LIBERTY BOND ISSUE

Local Bank Asked to Aid District Federal Reserve.

From W. G. McAdoo, secretary of the treasury at Washington, D. C., the Charlevoix State Savings Bank received Friday afternoon the following telegram:

Washington, D. C., May 3.
Charlevoix State Savings Bank,
Charlevoix, Mich.,

"Government will receive subscriptions until June fifteenth for Two Billion Dollars, three and one half per cent Liberty loans. You can render invaluable service to your country by receiving subscriptions and co-operating with Federal Reserve Bank your district. Will you kindly do this and telegraph me government expense soon as practicable rough estimate amount of bonds you think will be subscribed by you and your customers."

W. G. MCADOO,
Secretary of the Treasury.

Cashier Crimmins of the State bank wishes it made known that the request of the secretary of the treasury will be gladly complied with and that subscriptions for bonds will be received and forwarded and all necessary assistance open to purchasers free of any charge. According to official announcements bonds to be dated July 1st and semi-annual interest to be paid in January 1st. and July 1st at the rate of 3 1-2 per cent per annum. Maturities have not as yet been announced. It is expected that this loan will be available in amounts possibly as small as $25.00.

SHIPPING HELD UP BY THE ICE

BLOCKADE AT SOO AND BUFFALO.

Freight Piling Up In Warehouses Waiting for Boats to Move From Ports.

Because of the dependence on marine shipping by the largest industries in the country the opening of through package freight shipments on the Great Lakes is awaited with anxiety.

The tremendous industrial advancement which this country has experienced in recent years has created a great increase in lake traffic. While most of the boat lines have striven to keep their tonnage up to the requirements of this increase and have succeeded largely, so far as the bulk business is concerned, the package freight has mounted up to remarkable proportions.

The rush of shipbuilding while immense in itself, will be able to cope with the requirements for tonnage this season. The situation has been further complicated by the release of a number of the big freighters for ocean traffic.

Every big industry in the United States will be affected by this condition. Prosperity will depend largely on the success of the boat companies in getting commodities through promptly. In view of the unprecedented conditions this task is going to be a hard one, marine men admit.

Handicapped in the beginning by late openings of the Buffalo port and the Straits of Mackinac all transportation lines are facing a pile up of freight in their warehouses. It is anticipated that this demand on water-way shipping facilities will continue unabated throughout the season.

With ice continuing heavy near Buffalo and off Whitefish Point there is little likihood of a resumption of through shipping for some days. Boats are held fast in the eastern end of Lake Superior by drift ice which continues to come into the bay before northwest winds. Ice fields near Buffalo are far from broken up.

Paddock-Powers.

Saturday evening, May 5th, at the Methodist parsonage, by Rev. Quinton Walker, Mr. Max Powers, of Boyne Falls, and Miss Pearl Paddock of the same place, were united in marriage. Mr. and Mrs. Powers are prominent young people of Boyne Falls, and fill a large place in the social life of that city. They are being congratulated by their many friends.

NEW HOTEL FOR CHARLEVOIX

BUILDING WILL BE STARTED THIS FALL.

To Comprise Theatre and Eight Stores—On Site of Gravel Pit Next to Fountain City

Charlevoix is to have a new hotel and a fine one—infact, the last word in hotels.

Mrs. J. S. Baker is about to add to her already extensive enterprises in this city by erecting a modern, fire-proof hostelry, covering an area of 160 x 160 feet on the site of the old gravel pit across the channel and next to the Fountain City house.

This building will be of reinforced concrete construction throughout, of Moorish design with big supporting columns and heavy overhang and the entrance will face the corner of Bridge and Water streets. There will be four stories, the ground floor of the building being devoted to eight store sections and a theatre. The second floor will be the main hotel floor and is to be surrounded by a promenade piazza in front and on the side facing the lake.

There will be sixty guest rooms, each larger than any in the Beach Hotel, with a bath to every two rooms, with up-to-date equipment throughout.

Clarence Hatzfeldt of Chicago is the architect and was here Friday of last week in conference with the owner and R. F. Sloan, who is the engineer in charge of the surveying and details of construction. If nothing prevents, work will be begun on the building this fall and will be rushed so as to have it ready for 1918 business.

Mrs. Baker has also secured a ten year lease on the Hotel Granada at St. Augustine, Florida, which she will run in the winter season and to which she will personally give only a part of her time which is now pretty completely taken up with her rapidly growing interests.

EFFECTS OF REVIVAL FELT IN CHURCHES

Membership of Different Religious Bodies Increasing.

Last Sunday there was a large ingathering into the churches as a result of the recent evangelistic campaign. The Methodist church received sixty-five, with a large number yet to be received. The people showed their appreciation of the Zoller Evangelistic party by their very generous free will offering of over $400.00. Eternity alone will reveal the good these men did in our city.

Grand Traverse District Epworth League convention will be held in this city, beginning Friday evening, May 11th., and closing Sunday evening. On Friday evening at 7:30, Dr. Candler of Petoskey will give the address. On Saturday each department will have its work presented by a competent speaker. Saturday evening, Dr. George Durgin, a member of the bishop's staff will give the address. Sunday morning at 10:30 Dr. Durgin will preach. In the afternoon at 2:30, Rev. M. W. Duffy of Boyne City will give the address. At 7:30 in the evening, Dr. R. E. Meader, district superintendent will preach. There will be 150 delegates here from the different leagues in the district. The public is cordially invited to all of these meetings. This will be a fine opportunity to hear some of the best speakers in the state.

COMPANY I WANTS RECRUITS

COMMITTEE APPOINTED TO ACCEPT ENLISTMENTS.

East Jordan Business Men Act In Behalf of State—Enlist With Home Company.

Recruits who offer themselves for service in Company I of the 33rd. Michigan infantry which is in active service, can now be accepted in East Jordan, examined by a surgeon and transported free of charge to the present company station. The plan by which this result can be obtained has been worked out by the War Preparedness Board of Lansing, which was delegated by the last legislature to look after all questions of this nature.

A committee consisting of Lieut. Balch, chairman, A. E. Cross, Sergeant James Gidley, Rev. Robt. Sidebotham, R. O. Bisbee and Att'y D. L. Wilson, of East Jordan, has been appointed by Governor Sleeper to act for this vicinity. Men desirous of joining the colors may find members of this committee any time during the day or evening at Electric Light office, Gidley Drug Store, People's State Savings Bank or Att'y. D. L. Wilson's office. They will be given a preliminary physical examination by the following local physicians who have volunteered their services to the state and government for this duty: Drs. Dicken, Vardon, Parks, Risk and Ramsey.

Recruits who are found to be physically fit will be forwarded by military transportation. The committee will also wire Capt. H. L. Winters of the hour of arrival so that arrangements can be made for feeding, lodging and uniforming the new man. All who are interested are urged to call up any member of the committee for additional information.

Men who come into the Federal service at this time have an advantage over those who may be drafted later. They can be with the organization from their home community and share in the comforts which will be sent to them. They will be among friends from the start. The chances for promotion are much better under the circumstances than in a company recruited from all over the state at haphazard.

JOLLY PARTY OFF ON AUTO JAUNT SUNDAY

Three Carloads Make Delightful Trip Under Sunny Skies.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Butler, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Redmon, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Smith and L. E. Crandell, wife and daughter, left here Sunday morning last at eight A. M., in three Ford cars, driving from here to Bellaire and from thence through to Mancelona, Kalkaska, Rapid City, Kewaden and then back home, arriving at Charlevoix at 6:30 P. M.

The bunch had a picnic dinner at Kalkaska and picked arbutus at Rapid City. One of the party has vividly described to us the way the beefsteak tasted, roasted over the embers of a wood fire, and we are violently envious.

This is certainly an ideal way to spend leisure hours. Statisticians and efficiency engineers may orate of the savings in time and money affected by the automobile and its revolutionizing effect on industry, but we are disposed to champion it for its esthetic benefits to mankind. The automobile has made possible a closer relationship between man and his fellows and a more intimate communion with the beauties of nature. It has taken him into the great outdoors and made him acquainted with the great and simple things of life. And it has done more. It has broken down his insularity and shown to him that difference of race, creed, customs and beliefs are superficial and that he in his little niche is not alone but that countless others are working along the same lines and for the same ends, albeit in different ways.

It is only a year or so ago that we heard a man who hails from the Southland and who has since made his home in Northern Michigan, say that he never realized how great in possibilities and how rich in resource was his adopted state until he made the trip along its western shores by automobile. And there are hundreds who had never seen the neighboring country until they viewed it from the seat of a car. Yes, our debt to the humble Lizzie and its more pretentious sister is great, and the beauty of it is that year by year better road construction and improved methods of production are putting the benefits they afford within the reach of an ever widening circle of our people.

MEMORIAL SERVICES HELD ON MAY 27TH

Patriotic Organizations Will Meet At I. O. O. F. Hall at Ten A. M.

Memorial Day services will be held on the last Sunday in May at 10:30 A. M. in the M. E. church.

Baxter Relief Corps No. 173, the veterans of '61 and those of '98 will meet at the Odd Fellows Hall at ten o'clock and go from there in a body to the M. E. church, where services will begin promptly at ten thirty. Rev. Quinton Walker will preach the memorial sermon.

The Relief Corps was invited in a body to a party held in honor of the sixty-eighth birthday of Mrs. Elizabeth Miller, held at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Louis Fowler on the afternoon of Tuesday, May 1st. There were also quite a number of people present, not members of the corps. Mrs. Miller was presented by the Relief Corps with the pin of the order and many other fine presents. A five o'clock dinner was served that couldn't possibly have been improved on according to the report we got. The weather didn't seem to have much effect on the attendance, disagreeable as it was.

NEXT SUNDAY WILL BE MOTHER'S DAY

Wear the Appropriate Flower and Display Old Glory.

Next Sunday, May 13th, will be observed as Mother's Day all over the land and special services will be held at the churches of the city.

Governor Sleeper's proclamation, issued May 2nd, is a beautiful tribute to the mothers and urges upon the people, in addition to the usual custom of wearing flowers, a red one for a mother living and white for the sacred memory of one who has departed, the displaying of the United States flag in their homes and in other suitable places, as a fitting expression of their desire to pay homage to American motherhood, who in the great trial of war that is before us must ultimately bear the heaviest burden.

WOMAN'S CLUB FIRST MEETING

FIFTEEN WORKING COMMITTEES APPOINTED.

Much Enthusiasm Manifested Over Red Cross Work and Mother's Correspondence Idea.

The first regular meeting of the Charlevoix Women's Club was held at the home of Mrs. Idding's on Park Ave., Monday afternoon of this week. A union of the Shakespears and Dickens clubs two weeks ago was the nucleus of this club, which is organized for action along the line of civic improvement. The following committees were appointed by the president, Mrs. Nicholls:

Membership—Mrs. G. W. Priest, Mrs. A. L. Fitch, Mrs. A. F. Bridge.
House—Mrs. Jenny Crouter, Mrs. Don Campbell.
Program—Miss Ninita Mayne, Mrs. A. M. Wilkinson, Mrs. P. E. Vandermade.
Auditing—Mrs. A. L. Fitch, Mrs. Clinton Cooper, Mrs. R. L. Lewis.
Library—Mrs. J. L. Crans, Mrs. H. S. Harsha, Mrs. Stanley Bush.
Mothercraft—Mrs. P. E. Vandermade, Mrs. Lisle Shanahan, Mrs. C. G. Bush.
City Beautiful—Mrs. R. W. Paddock, Mrs. Jenny Crouter, Mrs. H. L. Iddings, Mrs. Mason Rose, Mrs. R. B. Armstrong.
Publicity—Mrs. F. W. Mayne, Mrs. DeForrest Wood, Mrs. C. R. Bellinger.
Art—Mrs. E. A. Young, Miss Anna Bon.
Social, and City Visitors—Mrs. A. F. Bridge, Mrs. J. S. Baker, Mrs. J. L. Crane, Miss Anna Bon.
School—Mrs. H. S. Harsha, Mrs. Clinton Cooper, Mrs. J. A. Auld.
Benevolant—Mrs. R. L. Lewis, Mrs. W.E. Hampton, Mrs. P. E. Vandermade.
Music—Mrs. Archie Livingston, Mrs. Thomas LaLonde, Mrs. A. A. Swinton, Mrs. Constance Gaskin.
Gardens—Mrs. Mason Rose, Mrs. George Crouter.
Birds—Mrs. F. H. Wilkinson, Mrs. Harley Ochs, Mrs. Don Campbell.

Much enthusissm was manifested and all women of the city desiring to join the good work of making "Charlevoix, the Beautiful" still more beautiful, may confer with the membership committee.

Interest was also shown in the Red Cross movement, and Charlevoix women may join the great army of workers in contributing their mite to the necessities of the soldier.

The feature of the afternoon was a talk by Mrs. J. M. Harris of Boyne City on the "Mothers Correspondence Club" of which she is an enthusiastic member. This club was founded by Mrs. Emma Ellis of Indianapolis, Ind., for the purpose of supplying mothers for the boys of the navy who have no people of their own to write to them and be interested in them. Mrs. Harris has been corresponding in this way for several months with one of these motherless boys, and read portions of his letters, which touched a responsive chord in the heart of every woman present.

The next meeting of the Charlevoix Women's Club will be held June 4th at the home of Mrs. Nicholls.

W. C. T. U. MEET ON FRIDAY NEXT

District President Expected—Members Should Bring a Friend.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union will meet with Mrs. A. J. Usher, 219 Clinton Street, on Friday, May 11th, at 2:30 P. M.

Devotionals will be conducted by Mrs. Saltonstall. After the business session, a Mothers Day program in charge of Mrs. G. G. Geiken will be given, consisting of music and selected readings.

It is expected that the district president, Mrs. Howard, will be in the city and visit the union that day.

All members are requested to be present and bring a new member. Visitors invited.

YOUNG MEN MAY DO "THEIR BIT"

URGED TO BECOME MEMBER OF NATIONAL GUARD.

Article From State War Preparedness Board Will Assist Them In Reaching Decision.

A good many young men of Michigan are saying anxiously to themselves: "I want to 'to do my bit' for my country. How can I do it to the best advantage?" This article will endeavor to assist them in reaching a decision.

The National guard, the regular army, the navy and the marine corps are all recruiting in Michigan now. Enlistments in any of these organizations and in any branch are equally needed. The recruit can be sure that if he joins any of them, he is doing his full patriotic duty.

But if he is a resident of Michigan and desires to serve his state as well as his nation, he can best do so by joining the National Guard. The state forces have become Federalized by recent legislation, and can go anywhere in the world that our regular army goes. Likewise, with the war training it will receive, it can do anything that the army can do.

Before joining any unit of the Guard the recruit should take stock of his training, education and native ability. Here are the various divisions of the National Guard service in Michigan, with desirable qualifications:

Infantry: Three regiments, located in about 25 of the larger cities of the state. For infantry companies, good physique, perfect feet, ability to shoot; for headquarters company, band section, ability to play band instrument in addition; for machine gun companies, mechanical turn of mind, some knowledge of horses and mules; for supply company, knowledge of horses and mules and of retail grocery and clothing business; headqunrters company, knowledge of shorthand and typewriting, general clerical ability.

Cavalry: Horsemanship and marksmanship; scouting and trailing ability. Big game hunters, trappers and prospectors make good cavalry men. Cavalry troops, Detroit and South Haven.

Field artillery: Natural taste for machinery, mathematical ability, horsemanship. Artillery headquarters, Lansing.

Signal Corps: Signaling of any description; telegraph or wireless operating; electrical experts and telephone linemen are desirable, or any man with a technical electrical education, horsemanship; clerical ability. This service is peculiarly adapted to college and highschool students Signal headquarters, Ypsilanti.

Engineers: Knowledge of coal or metal mining; practice in handling explosives; bridge and road-building knowledge; horsemanship, surveying. Engineer headquarters, Calumet.

Field ambulance companies and field hospital pharmacists, clerks in drug stores, dentists, doctors, hospital nurses and orderlies are particularly desirable as well as any young men with good educations and a taste for nursing and surgery. horsemanship. Ambulance companies at Detroit and Bay City, field bospital at Grand Rapids.

Cooks are sure of a position in any organization and receive extra pay. Clerks in wholesale or retail

ENDORSED AT HOME.

Such Proof as This Should Convince Any Charlevoix Citizen.

The public endorsement of a local citizen is the best proof that can be produced. None better, none stronger can be had. When a man comes forward and testifies to his fellow-citizens, addresses his friends and neighbors, you may be sure he is thoroughly convinced or he would not do so. Telling one's experience when it is for the public good is an act of kindness that should be appreciated. The following statement given by a resident of Charlevoix adds one more to the many cases of Home Endorsement which are being published about Doan's Kidney Pills. Read it.

Charles Hebert, 405 May St., Charlevoix, says: "My back and kidneys gave out on me, causing me much suffering. My back was so sore and lame I could hardly go about my work. My kidneys were out of order which caused me a lot of annoyance. Dizzy spells bothered me when specks floated before my eyes, blurring my sight. I was in bad shape when I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills but they soon had me feeling fine and three boxes cured me."

MACHINE GUN CO. TO THE SOO

RAPID FIRERS GUARD THE CANAL AND LOCKS

Fort Brady Troops Joined by Men Who Went to Mexican Border From Flint.

The machine gun company of the Thirty-third Michigan infantry has been sent to the Soo to join the troops at Fort Brady. It is composed of forty men, the only complete unit of this kind which saw service in Mexica with our state troops. Ten spans of mules; two wagons and fifty or sixty machine guns accompanied the militiamen. In the outfit are several of the new type Lewis guns as well as the rapid-fire rifles. The company was recruited in Flint and is under command of Captain Arthur Crossman.

The guns are placed on tripods. One has already been placed on the power house of the Edison Sault Electric Company. Others control the entrance to the locks. Launches which will be commissioned for river patrol duty, as well as revenue boats on St. Mary's river will be armed with machine guns this summer.

Militiamen guard the river front and allow no one to come ashore from the passing boats except the captains. Not even the chief engineers are allowed to leave their ships while passing through this city.

You can save money on all kinds of Reliable Seeds at S. Orlowski & Son. Adv. 18t2

COMMUNICATIONS

To the Farmers of Emmet and Charlevoix Counties:

I have just returned from Lansing. All county agents were called there to meet the State Food Preparedness committee. They urged us very strongly to impress the people of our counties with the necessity of planting just as largely as possible. That is, put in all we can handle well. One acre well planted and cared for will usually yield as much as two that are not cared for.

It appears that the state committee has no funds from which to finance the farmers. I believe this to be a mistake. I believe the state should furnish seed or the money with which to buy it; taking security on the crop. If there was a failure in some localities, the state could stand it better than the individual. In case of loss the state would be out only the seed while the farmer would lose the use of the land and his labor.

There was a resolution presented and passed asking the federal government to fix a fair minimum price on staple farm products. This I believe would do more to increase production than almost anything else.

Some of the cities and towns are doing quite a little in the gardening line. Merchants and factories are closing one afternoon a week to give employees time to do gardening. Business men are also forming pools for the purpose of furnishing seed to those who are unable to get the necessary funds to buy seed with. I believe something along this line would be a great help here.

I would request that those wishing money try the local banks or men before writing me, as it will be impossible for me to give each one personal attention.

I have appointed the supervisor of each township as chairman of a committee of three or more (the rest to be appointed by the supervisor) to act as a townsbip food preparedness committee.

Some farmers who have a surplus of some kinds of seeds are letting their neigbbors have it to be returned in the fall. A lot of good can be done this way and I hope more will try it.

The following is a statement of the policy issued by the state committee April 24, 1917.

The Food Preparedness committee will have every county in the state organized for the purpose of urging and encouraging each farmer in Michigan to plant every available acre he can and ascertaining where extra seed and labor is required to successfully grow and harvest the crops.

In each county the county farm agent shall be the representative of the Food Preparedness committee to learn the farmers needs and report same to this committee. He will be assisted by the supervisor of each township who with a committee of other active farmers and citizens to be appointed by the county farm agent will form the township committee.

The township committee will confer with the farmers in their township to urge increased planting, to report names of farmers who need seed or those who have seed for sale. Where farmers must have credit extended to enable them to secure necessary seed for their increased planting a report in such cases will be made by the supervisor and the county agent to the local bankers and if the report shows the farmer worthy of such credit, it will be arranged so he can procure the seed. In this manner it is believed that all farmers who are worthy and who are desirous of increasing their plantings this spring will be known and necessary provision made to encourage them.

There is an absolute necessity for increased food production and this committee feels warranted in asking the farmers of Michigan to plant all available acreage feeling confident that good prices will prevail on all food stuffs and farm products.

No funds have been placed in the control of this Food Preparedness committee for the purpose of financing the farmers. All applicants for the extension of credit must be made to the county farm agents and the local banks and local committees.

The Northland Not to Run.

The people of Charlevoix and adjoining resorts will be very much disappointed to know that the steamship Northland will not run this season. For many years she has been a regular summer visitor and all have looked forward to the coming of the Northland as the real opening of the resort season, but owing to business conditions and the operation of the Seaman's law, the owners feel that it is more profitable for the boat to lie idle than to operate at a loss.

BARNARD NOTES.

The farmers are beginning to gain a little headway with the spring work. Qaite a number have their oats in now.

The I. T. Sunday school class held their regular meeting at the home of Floyd Black in Marion Center last Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Carey Holiday of Van, Mich., visited Tuesday and Wednesday of last week with the families of Sims Baker, John Holiday and Wm. Cook.

Last Wednesday was the day of the regular meeting of the Ladies Aid Society, but with the aid of some clever ruse, they with other ladies of the neighborhood managed to give their vice-president, Mrs. Sims Baker, a happy surprise party by taking their little baskets of good things under their arms and gathering at her home, the occasion being the anniversary of her 70th birthday. The afternoon was greatly enjoyed by all present. Mrs. Baker was the recipient of some flowering plants, a bunch of carnations and other gifts of loving appreciation from her many friends who wished her many many happy returns of the day.

Messrs. Fred Swartout and George Shearer met with an untimely accident while out motoring Sunday morning on Mr. Shearer's motorcycle. They were going pass Wm. Cook's place. Mr. Cook had turned his cattle into the road, one of the young members of this uncertain class of animals waited until they were even with the motorcycles, then it suddenly darted across in front of the machine. The result was that men, motorcycle and calf were very suddenly converted into a heap on the road. One of Mr. Shearer's feet was injured being badly strained, but happily there were no broken bones, although it may lay him up for a couple of weeks. Mr. Swnrtout escaped with only a very black eye, which came into contact with a stone.

G. Hemingwny and son George, Jr., from Oak Park, Chicago, were visitors in the neighborhood last week.

Eighth grade exams the last of the week nnd the 7th and 8th grades are busily engaged on their last preparations.

School closes Wednesday, May 16, with a picnic, which will be held at the school house and on the grounds. Everyone welcome.

The Jardine family and James Wilson drove to Charlevaix last Sunday. The drive was enjoyed by all, in apite of the disappointment of some one of the party.

School closed at the "Three Bells" last Friday and Miss Brintnall, who has been staying with the McDonald's for the last few weeks, has returned to her bome near East Jordan.

Danto's delivery car and driver from Charlevoix was in this vicinity last Thursday, collecting chickens. When coming down the hill near the school, the car turned turtle. A. Curry, who was in the car, was slightly hurt and the car also received some injury.

THE PRICE-RAISING HABIT.

A provision dealer speaking a few days ago about the cost of living situation, gave some illustrations. Among them was the case of lettuce. A small bunch for which he said a year or two ago he would be getting five cents now is selling for 12 cents. The retailer was getting no more profit than he did formerly.

So far as he could see, it wns not costing the grower of that lettuce any more to rnise it than it did, save perhaps, a small fraction more for coal. Possibly he had had to advance his labor costs a little. But the total advance could only be a small proportion of the advance in price. He simply had been smart enough to see that higher prices can be had on everything. Some one is making a lot of money.

It used to be thought that conditions like these are cured by the inoxorable laws of supply and demand. If prices keep up, a lot more people are going to be drawn into the truck raising business. But it takes a lot of time for new equipment to be created, farm land to be made profitable, help to be trained. Meanwhile suffering and privation is caused, while producers and deslers tack on fancy figures.

These money makers should keep in mind the old fable about killing the goose that lays the golden eggs. If exorbitant prices are asked, there will be drastic state and government regulation of prices. Also there will be such a rush of people into the food producing business that it will again become unprofitable.

Of course the farmer has his side of the controversy. For years he wss ground between the upper and nether millstone, and only untll recently could he get profitable prices. That is another story to bo considered later. But let him beware of asking prices that will overstimulste competition.

THE FOOD EMERGENCY.

It is a difficult thing for a country that has never known anything bordering upon n famine in foodstuffs to realize that conditions cnn arise which may empty its bins, barns, and warehouse of its reserve store of grain long before a new erop ean be gathered to replenish them. More difficult still is it for such a country ta realize, ln the midst of seeming plenty, that such conditions have slready srisen. The United States has had its panics and its periods of "hard tlmes," but, except in the early days, when transportation was lacking, and the means of distribution were even more inadequate, in some isolated sections, than they are today over wide areas, panics snd "hard times" have never been due to a general food shortage. Over rather than under production has caused business depressIon, industrial stagnstion, unemployment, and want in the past. It is an entirely new thing for the United States to be confronted with a serious domestic problem when demand for the products of the soil and of the factories is at floodtide, when prices are at their heighth when money is plentiful, when work swaits all who seek it, and when the wage scale is above the most sanguine hopes of the labor unions.

The United States has the territory, the soil, the fertility, that will enable it to meet, for itself and for its neighbors, the emergency that is present and pressing. Surely it has the disposition. The lsbor only is lacking. What the Nation needs is the spur and this cannot be applied too shnrply or too soon. There is need, and immediate need, of an army of workers for the fields and gardens. Not a day can safely be wasted. Spring will not wait upon the convenience of anybody. If the Nation is to be saved, and if the world is to be rescued, from the disasters, economic, social and political, that are now threatening it, it must be through the service of an army in the farms and gardens quite as much as through armies at the front.

The call to the plow, the spsde, and the hoe is even more urgent than the call to arms. There is no reason however, why both calls should not be responded to with equal enthusinsm, or why the honor attending the responso to one should be less than that attenting response to the other. The hero of this emergency is he who does his bit, whatever it may be does it promptly and does it well.

ARTHUR WODDEN DIED LAST SATURDAY

Double-Pleuro Pneumonia Claims Victim After Short Illness.

Arthur Wooden died nt his home on Petoskey Avenue last Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock following a ten day illness with double pleuropneumonla.

Mr. Wooden was 43 years old, and was formerly a farmer in Hnyes township. Ile moved to town with his family several years ago and went to work on the Beaver as fireman. For the past fall and winter he was employed on the Waller farm, but had moved in the spring to tbe house in which he died and had returned to his old work, this time on the steamer Columbia.

He was n member of the M. E. church and an enthusiastic Odd Fellow, and had made a great many friends, being the possessor of sterling qualities of character. He leaves a widow and two children, a boy and a girl, beside his mother and sister, who live in tho southern part of the state and wha were unable to be present at the funeral.

Funeral services were held from the M. E. church at 2:00 P. M. Tuesday, by Rev. Quinton Walker. The body was accompanied to the cemetery by the local lodge of Odd Fellows in full regalia, who heid their simple yet beautiful burial service over the grave.

CHAPTER VIII.

Following Up the Trail.

Dave was glad that he had swallowed "Young Ed's" incivility, not only for his own sake, but for the sake of Alaire. After all, he argued, it was barely possible that Ed had spoken the truth. There were many sorrel horses; the evidence of those rain-washed hoofprints was far from conclusive; even the fact that Urbina belonged to the Tad Lewis outfit was no more than a suspicious circumstance. And yet, earnestly as he strove to convince himself of these possibilities, the Ranger could not down the conviction that the rancher had lied and that he himself was on the right track.

It was late when he arrived at his destination, but Lewis' house was dark, and it required some effort to awaken the owner. When Tad at last appeared, clad in undershirt and trousers, he greeted the Ranger with a leveled rifle; but when Dave had made known his identity, he invited him in, though with surly reluctance.

Lewis was a sandy-complexioned man of about forty, with colorless brows and a mean, shifty eye. Formerly a cowboy, he had by the exercise of some natural ability acquired a good property—and a bad reputation. Just how or why he had prospered was a mystery which his neighbors never tired of discussing.

Tad, it seemed, resented any interruption of his rest, and showed the fact plainly.

Yes, he employed a fellow named Urbina. What was wanted of him?

Law explained briefly.

"Why, he's one of my best men!" laughed the rancher. "He wouldn't steal nothing."

"Well, I had to shoot another good man of yours," Dave said quietly.

Lewis fell back a step. "Which one? Who?" he inquired quickly.

"Pino Garza." Dave told of the meeting at the branding fire and its outcome. He was aware, meanwhile, that Lewis' family were listening, for behind a half-open bedroom door he could hear an excited whispering.

"Killed the first shot, eh?" Tad was dumfounded. "Now, I never thought Pino was that bad. But you never can tell about these Greasers, can you? They'll all steal if they get a chance. I let Pino go, 'bout a week back; but he's been hangin' around, aimin' to visit some of his relatives up in the brush country. It was probably one of them old Guzmans saw. Anyhow, it couldn't of been Adolfo Urbina; he was over to Las Palmas all the afternoon."

"Did you send him there?"

"Sure. Ed Austin can tell you."

"Where is Urbina now?"

"I reckon he's asleep somewhere. We'll dig him up and talk to him, if you say so."

But Adolfo Urbina was nowhere to be found. No one had seen him since about seven o'clock, nor could it be discovered where he was spending the night. Dave remembered that it had been about seven when he left Las Palmas, and ascertained, indirectly, that Tad had a telephone. On his way from Austin's Law had stopped at a rancho for a bite to eat, but he could forgive himself for the delay if, as he surmised, Urbina had been warned by wire of his coming.

"That's too bad, ain't it?" Lewis said. "But he'll be around again in the morning, and I'll get him for you. You leave it to me."

There was plainly nothing to do but accept this offer, since it could avail nothing to wait here for Urbina's return. Unless the fellow gave himself up, he probably could not be found, now that the alarm was given, without a considerable search—in view of which Dave finally remounted his borrowed horse and rode away in the direction of Jonesville.

It was after daylight when he dismounted stiffly at Blaze's gate. He was wet to the skin and bespattered with mud; he had been almost constantly in the saddle for twenty-four hours, and Don Ricardo's cow pony was almost exhausted.

Blaze and Paloma, of course, were tremendously interested in his story.

"Say, now, that's quick work," the latter exclaimed, heartily. "You're some thief-baster, Dave, and if you'll just stay around here little calves can grow up with some comfort."

When Dave rode to Jonesville, after breakfast, he found that the body of his victim had been brought in during the night, and that the town was already buzzing with news of the encounter. During the forenoon Don Ricardo and his sons arrived, bringing additional information, which they promptly imparted to the Ranger. The Guzmans were people of action. All three of them had spent the night on horseback, and Pedro had made a discovery. On the day previous Garza had been seen riding in company with a man astride a sorrel pony, and this man had been recognized as Adolfo Urbina. Pedro's witness would swear it.

Their distance from Las Palmas at the time when they had been seen together proved beyond question that unless Urbina had flown he could not have arrived at the place in question by noon, the hour Ed Austin had fixed.

This significant bit of information, however, Dave advised the Guzmans not to make public for the time being.

Toward midday Tad Lewis and three of his men arrived with the news that Urbina had left for Pueblo before they could intercept him.

"He's got a girl up there, and he's gone to get married," Tad explained. "I'm sure sorry we missed him."

Dave smiled grimly at the speaker.

"Are you sure he didn't cross to the other side?" he asked.

Lewis retorted warmly: "Adolfo's an all-right hombre, and I'll back him. So'll Ed Austin. I guess me an' Ed are responsible, ain't we?" Some skeptical expression in his hearer's face prompted him to inquire, brusquely, "Do you believe what I'm telling you about his goin' to Pueblo?"

"I guess he's gone—somewhere."

Tad uttered an angry exclamation. "Looks to me like you'd made up your mind to saddle this thing onto him whether he done it or not. Well, he's a poor Mexican, but I won't stand to see him railroaded, and neither will 'Young Ed.'"

"No?"

"You heard me! Ed will alibi him complete."

Law answered sharply: "You tell Ed Austin to go slow on his alibis. And you take this for what it's worth to you: I'm going to get all the cattle rustlers in this county—all of them, understand?"

Lewis flushed redly and sputtered: "If you make this stick with Adolfo, nobody'll be safe. I reckon Urbina's word is as good as old Ricardo's. Everybody knows what he is."

Later when Dave met the Guzmans, Ricardo told him, excitedly, "That horse Tad Lewis is riding is the one I saw yesterday."

"Are you sure?"

"Listen, senor. Men in cities remember the faces they see; I have lived all my life among horses, and to me they are like men. I seldom forget."

"Very well. Tad says Urbina has gone to Pueblo to get married, so I'm going to follow him, and I shall be there when he arrives."

"Bueno! Another matter"—Ricardo hesitated—"your bonita—the pretty mare. She is buried deep."

"I'm glad," said Dave. "I think I shall sleep better for knowing that."

Since the recent rain had rendered the black valley roads impassable for automobiles, Dave decided to go to Pueblo by rail, even though it was a roundabout way, and that afternoon found him jolting over the leisurely miles between Jonesville and the main line. He was looking forward to a good night's sleep when he arrived at the junction; but on boarding the north-bound through train he encountered Judge Ellsworth, who had just heard of the Garza killing, and of course was eager for details. The two men sat in the observation car talking until a late hour.

Knowing the judge for a man of honor and discretion, Dave unburdened himself with the utmost freedom regarding his suspicions of Ed Austin.

Ellsworth nodded. "Yes, Ed has thrown in with the rebel junta in San Antone, and Tad Lewis is the man they use to run arms and supplies in this neighborhood. That's why he and Ed are so friendly. Urbina is probably your cattle thief, but he has a hold over Ed, and so he rode to Las Palmas when he was pursued, knowing that no jury would convict him over Ed Austin's testimony."

"Do you think Ed would perjure himself?" Dave asked.

"He has gone clean to the bad lately; there's no telling what he'll do. I'd hate to see you crowd him, Dave."

"They call you the best lawyer in this county because you settle so many cases out of court." The judge smiled at this. "Well, here's a chance for you to do the county a good turn and keep Ed Austin out of trouble."

"How?"

"The prosecuting attorney is a new man, and he wants to make a reputation by breaking up the Lewis gang."

"Well?"

"He intends to cinch Urbina, on Ricardo's and my testimony. You're a friend of Austin's; you'd better tip him to set his watch ahead a few hours and save himself a lot of trouble. The prosecuting attorney don't like Ed any too well. Understand?"

The judge pondered this suggestion for a moment. "'Young Ed' is a queer fellow. Once in a while he gets his neck bowed."

"So do I." Law declared quietly. "He treated me like a hobo—sent me to the kitchen for a hand-out. That sticks. If I hadn't toned down considerably these late years, I'd have—wound him up, right there."

From beneath his dropping lids Ellsworth regarded the Ranger curiously. "You have a bad temper haven't you?"

"Rotten!"

"I know. You were a violent boy. I've often wondered how you were getting along. How do you feel when you're—that way?"

It was the younger man's turn to hesitate. "Well, I don't feel anything when I'm mad," he confessed. "I'm plumb crazy, I guess. But I feel plenty bad afterwards."

There was a flicker of the judge's eyelids.

Dave went on musingly: "I dare say it's inherited. They tell me my father was the same. He was—a killer."

"Yes. He was all of that."

Dave lifted an abstracted gaze from the Pullman carpet. "I hardly know what I mean, judge. But you've had hunches, haven't you? Didn't you ever know that something you thought was true wasn't true at all? Well, I never felt as if I had bad blood in me. My mother was Mexican—"

"Spanish."

"All right. Am I Spanish? Have I any Spanish blood in me?"

"She didn't look Spanish. She was light-complexioned, for one thing. We both know plenty of people with a Latin strain in them who look like Anglo-Saxons. You were educated in the North, and your boyhood was spent at school and college, away from everything Mexican."

"Do You Think Ed Would Perjure Himself?" Dave Asked.

"That probably accounts for it," Law agreed; then his face lit with a slow smile. "By the way, don't tell Mrs. Austin that I'm a sort of college person. She thinks I'm a red-neck, and she sends me books."

Ellsworth laughed silently. "Your talk is to blame, Dave. Has she sent you 'The Swiss Family Robinson?'"

"No. Mostly good, sad romances with an uplift—stories full of lances at rest, and Willie-boys in tin sweaters. The good women were always beautiful, too, and the villains never had a redeeming trait. It's a shame how human nature has got mixed up since then, isn't it?"

"Alaire Austin's romance is sadder than any of those novels."

Dave nodded. "But she doesn't cry about it." Then he asked gravely: "Why didn't she pick a real fellow who'd kneel and kiss the hem of her dress and make a man of himself?"

"What's the matter with you?" queried the judge. "Are you smitten with that girl?"

Dave laughed. "Maybe! Who wouldn't he? Why doesn't she divorce that bum—she could do it easy enough—and then marry a chap who could run Las Palmas for her?"

"A man about six feet three or four," acidly suggested the judge.

"That's the picture I have in mind."

"You think you could run Las Palmas?"

"I wouldn't mind trying."

"You must never marry," firmly declared the older man. "You'd make a bad husband, Dave."

"She ought to know how to get along with a bad husband, by this time."

The judge's face broadened in a smile. "Thank heaven 'Young Ed' has the insides of a steel range, and so my pet client is safe from your mercenary schemes for some years."

A Vital Matter

With the advent of war comes the stern necessity for conservation. From now on, the word "waste" must not appear on the list of our national sins. Every pound, gallon and foot of our staple necessities must be made to do the work of two and with prices of materials steadily soaring, replacement or addition becomes increasingly difficult. We must turn our energies to preserving what we have. Nowhere is this more true than in the case of the buildings we live and work in. They constantly deteriorate without care, and care in this case means

CLEAN-UP DAY

Thursday, May 10

The Mayor designated Thursday, May 10, as Clean-Up day for Charlevoix "the Beautiful." This week has been set aside as Clean-Up—Paint-Up week all over the nation, and as a very important movement has received favorable response from a vast majority of property owners.

We Want Our City to Be Just What the Name "Charlevoix the Beautiful" Implies

One of the principal ways of accomplishing this is to see that our property is well painted. This not only really beautifies the city, but it beautifies our property, protects the building material from decay caused by the elements, thereby enhancing its value.

Take a good look at your property and see if you don't think a coat of paint will more than pay. While this applies more particularly to the outside, still with a nicely finished interior a home is more homelike. We sell

DeVoe's Lead and Zinc 99 per cent Pure Paint for $3.00 per gallon

This paint contains only pure white lead, pure white zinc, pure linseed oil and pure turpentine and tinting colors. Look on the container for the formula.

Patton's Velumina, the Beautiful Flat Inside Paint, at $2.75 per gallon and Hygenic Kalsomine at 40 cents per package

cannot be beaten in quality. Now is the time to get busy. When through with the rake, take the brush. Whether you buy your paint and kalsomine of us or some other store in the city is not for us to say, but we do say CLEAN UP AND PAINT UP.

C. DANTO SELLS OUT TO MARTIN BLOCK

Latter Now Established In His Newly Acquired Quarters

Another important business deal is being consummated this week in the removal of Martin Block from his present place of business to the store formerly occupied by C. Danto & Son, whose stock and fixtures he has purchased, to which he will add his own, making his equipment for the summer business second to none in the city.

Mr. Block is one of the town's most popular business men and we rejoice with him in the important step forward he has taken. He has been independently engaged in business here for the past six years and during that time has made many warm friends through unfailing courtesy and his practice of keeping the square deal uppermost in his transactions with everybody. At this writing, he is now established in the new location and we bespeak for him the patronage and support that we feel sure he richly deserves.

Mr. Danto, who is retiring from activs business life, has also occupied a place in the regard and esteem of our citizens which it will be difficult to fill. His plans for the future are not definite as yet, but he desires to thank those who have favored him with their patronage during his residence in Charlevoix and to assure them that it has been highly appreciated.

WED TWENTY YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Powell Pleasantly Surprised By Their Friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas R. Powell were given a surprise party by about thirty of their friends at their home on Hulbert Avenue last Saturday evening, in honor of the 20th anniversary of their marriage. Mrs. Powell had some inkling of the celebration, but her husband, who has but recently come from South Carolina, was completely surprised.

A fine set of china was presented to the fortunate pair by their friends and a mock marriage ceremony was conducted, which afforded much mirth to the revellers, after which refreshments were served.

John Erickson and son of Beloit, Wisconsin, are spending a few days with their brother and uncle, Theodore Erickson, in this city.

LOCAL FISHERMAN BREAKS SUBMERGING RECORD.

Bobbing Head Misteken for Periscopa af U-Boat by Horrified Spectators.

War, with all its horrors was apparently brought to the very doors of our peaceful happy, little village last Thursday afternoon.

At that time, the sun being warm and bright, a number of our local anglers were on the stream which flows through the town, endeavoring to entice the wary trout to leave the cold stream and enter the warm frying pan.

Among them was George Liberty. Mr. Liberty was following the stream as it skips merrily through the park, and like all good fishermen, his mind was on his work. He had caught two or three of the speckled beauties and had prospects for several more, when one of them, evidently the lookout, yelled something sounding like "submarine off the starboard bow" and then proceeded to hit the trail towards the lake.

Mr. Liberty looked up stream and at a point about fifteen rods above him could discerne a shiney white object which he thought was a U-boat periscope, surrounded by a blue sulpherish haze, drifting down towards him. He immediately fled. On arriving up town and reporting, n party of about twenty five was organized under the leadership of Rock Miller, and armed with axes, pitchforks and landing-nets they immediately proceeded to the stream. Then, and not until then, was the mystery solved.

It seems that William Slough our railroad station agent, also likes to take a flyer occasionally in the fishing game, and his work for the day being finished, he had shouldered his rod, donned his waders and had started out to try his luck. He tried it and evidently found it guilty.

The stream where it flows through Campbell's Park is, by reason of the extremely high water, nearly ten feet wide, and Mr. Slough was wading along in the center of it, blythely singing "Where the River Shannon Flows" when an elm root arose from the bottom of the stream and "smote him hip and thigh." His feet left the bed of the stream, he changed ends and with the desparing yell, "going down" he went. The water at this point is about nine feet deep and he claims he did not stop until he reached the bottom. His feelings, also his language on coming to the surface, can perhaps be better imagined than described.

He came up head first and it was his head when he first appeared that was taken for a periscope. His boots being filled with water naturally kept him in an upright position, and after many efforts he managed to reach the shore and after spitting out about eight gallons of Orr creek, he started for home leaving his fish rod and hat in the stream. His hat was recovered Sunday morning in Grass Lake and a diver recovered, at $2 per recover, his rod some time next day.

Mr. Slough says he feels no ill effects from his involuntary bath, but that he does not feel qualified to compete with Annette Kellerman until the water gets somewhat warmer.

WELL KNOWN COUPLE HAPPILY MARRIED

Nuptials Celebrated Thursday Evening at Central Lake.

A quiet little wedding event took plaee at the home in Central Lake of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Baar last Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, when Rev. C. L. Prentice of the Congregational church, in a simple ceremony pronounced the words that linked together the lives of two well known and popular young people of Ellsworth, James Ruys and Miss Alice Drenth.

The groom is the oldest son of Arthur Ruys, a prosperous farmer living one mile north and one-half mile west of Ellsworth, and is employed as mechanic at the Ellsworth garage. The bride also needs no introduction. She is the daughter of Gerrett Drenth, living east of town and has been employed for several years as clerk for Klooster & Son.

Mr. Ruys will continue his work at the garage. They are at present living with his parents, but expect to begin housekeeping here in town in the near future. Jim has been passing out cigars ever since the event and through the haze of smoke he has been receiving the congratulations of his many friends.

SOME FACTS ABOUT THE FLAG

PATRIOTISM AS THE BOY SCOUTS SEE IT.

Communication From Local Troop Gives Idea of Organizations War Time Duties.

The following is taken from the nstionsl Boy Scout papers: "It is considered a mark of disrespect to nllow the flag to fly during ths night.

"Flags hung against a wall should be straight or flst, not draped, nnd the union, or star field should be in the upper left hand corner to the observer, if the stripes are borizontai, or in the upper right hand eorner if perpendicular."

Ths hymn, "The Star Spangled Banner," is the national anthem not by act of Congress, but its recognition by the army and nnvy. Whenever it is played, listeners should rise to their feet, and remain standing until it is finished.

At this time of peril, when the safety of our nation may be at stake, the Boy Scouts can do more for the country than at any other time. Aid may bs given to the recruiting officers, and belp in any public demonstration for the raising of troops. We may aid families, perhaps, whose fathers or husband's choose the battle field to show their love of country. Above all follow President Wilson's speech and do what you can in all eases. Remember the motto ln this emergency, "Be Prepared." Follow the oath and remember tbe scout law and be loyal.

All members should try and be present at all meetings of the troop, at this time when lawns are wet and spongy Scouts should avold and try to keep people from taking customary short "cuts" across them. Only by doing this cnn Charlevoix remain "The Beautiful."

Fishing will begin soon. All scouts remember the size of fish to be saved, and throw undersized ones back into the creek so that they may obtain a mature growth.

A tribunal court has been organized by the troop, with Kenneth Widdificid as judge, to bring delinquent members to "time."

A team is to be organized with a schedule of games, ineluding Petoskey and Central Lake. Walker Miles is manager, King Saunders, didector, Martin Halverson, Odillion Weed and Seeley Pierce the board of athietie control.

"A voice in the darkness, a knock at the door,
And a world that shall echo forever more,
For borne on the night wind of the past,
Through all our history to the last,
In the hour of darkness, and peril and need,
The people will waken, and listen to hear,
The hurrying hoofbeats of that steed,
And tbe midnight message of Paul Revere."

Announcement

We wish to announce to the citizens of Charlevoix and vicinity that we have purchased the store formerly conducted by C. Danto & Son and have removed from our present quarters to the newly acquired store.

Our old place of business has been closed and the stock of goods removed to our new location. Old and new customers will find us ready to give the same service in our present quarters as hertofore.

The store will be conducted along the same lines and your wants given the same prompt attention in the future as in the past. Old customers are welcome—new customers are welcome—all will be given the very best of treatment and service.

We desire to have our old customers greet us in our new quarters. Customers of the new store will receive the same hearty welcome under our management as they have been accorded in the past.

On our part we will make an effort to handle the same line of goods, give as good and prompt service and give your wants the same attention in the future as in the past. Make our store your trading place.

Very truly yours,

MARTIN BLOCK.

Successor to C. Danto & Son.

Good Year Tires

Firestone Tires

Are the kind that give the greatest mileage satisfaction to automobile drivers

IF YOU OWN AN AUTO

THERE ARE TWO WAYS OF HANDLING THE CAR—THE ECONOMICAL WAY AND THE DESTRUCTIVE WAY—COMPARE THE TWO:

ECONOMICAL—Bring it to us occasionly and let us examine it, adjust it, and make slight repairs the moment they are needed. Keeps it in good shape and running smoothly.

DESTRUCTIVE—Just keep on "putting it off," regardless of its wheezing and groanings, until the break comes and you have a big repair bill and a weakened car.

We recommend the Economical way. It is the safest and by far the most inexpensive way. See us about your tires. Besides the Goodyear, we carry the Firestone and Kokomo brands—both good tires that will give you good service. We do everything in Auto Repairing and carry in stock every part of a car, big and little. Make our garage your headquarters while in the city.

GOOD ROADS MEET A WINNER

BOYNE CITY AND EAST JORDAN OUR GUESTS.

Good Speeches and Pleasant Raillery Were Characteristic Features Of the Evening.

At a special meeting of the Charlevoix Commercial Association last Friday evening, at the K. of P. hall delegations were present from Boyne City and East Jordan to help thresh out the good roads problems there presented and to hear the reports of delegates to the recent convention at Grand Rapids which gave birth to the Michigan Tourist and Resort Association as well as Van Pelt's report on the recent session of the Western Michigan Development Bureau in that city.

The meeting was called to order at 7:55 P. M., with Mr. Crane in the chair. He briefly explained the purpose of the meeting and then called upon Mr. Van Pelt, who demurred, claiming that either Dr. Swinton or Mr. Kane were more familiar with the proceedings of the Tourist Association meeting at Grand Rapids than he was. Whereupon Mr. Kane described the proceedings in detail. He said that the thing that impressed him most was the enthusiasm displayed by such men as J. H. P. Hughart, of the Grand Rapids & Indiana R. R., Dallas Boudeman, of Kalamazoo, D. H. Day, of Glen Haven and Hugh L. Gray, of Chicago, formerly of the Pere Marquette. He dwelt at length on the address of Arthur W. Stace, who told the convention of the results obtained by the tourist bureau in Colorado and the advertising campaign carried on there which has resulted in the addition of thousands of dollars to the money annually spent by tourists in the state. He expressed it as his belief that similar advertising campaign would do far more for Michigan, which has so much more to offer the tourist-resorter than many places that expend large annual sums for publicity.

Dr. Swinton followed Mr. Kane and stated it as his opinion that the transient is the man who spends the money and that it is this class of visitor more than any other that a resort town should prepare for and endesvor to attract, notwithstanding the fact that the permanent summer resident has an important part to play in the development of the community. He told of the experience of Asheville, N. C., whose publicity efforts enabled them to double their summer population in three years' time. He also stated that he had personally taken the trouble to note the advertising appearing in railroad stations which he had visited in his many trips about the country and that out of 100 such stations, 72 carried on their walls advertisements of Asheville as a resort. 12 had advertising of the West and the Grand Canyon and only six out of the 100 bore any mention of Western Michigan. He deplored our backwardness in this respect and gave it as his belief that no territory is more susceptible than Western Michigan to an intelligent and energetic campaign of publicity. "There is no territory in the country that we need fear," he said, "if we can once get them coming up here.

George H. Van Pelt then took the floor. He said: "The Dixie Highway runs from Miami, Florida to Chattanooga and there it branches off to Chicago, passing through many populous cities, and there we strike Lake Michigan, following the entire Western shore to Mackinac, returning south along the shores of Lake Huron to Detroit and so on south to the cities of Toledo, Dayton and Cincinnati to Chattanooga. This beautiful highway is equal to any and excelled by none in the world and over one half the people in the United States can reach this highway in one day's drive. If Colorado can succeed in getting such great results as was shown by the representative of the greatest paper printed in the United States, the Chicago Tribune —located as it is so far from the center of population, what can not the Dixie Highway and West Michigan pike do for the State of Michigan? It surely will be the tourist meces.

We must build the roads of the future to stand up under the heavy barden of automobile truck traffic, for automobile trucks are here to stay. I am a member of a committee in Chicago whose purpose is to look into and draft a plan to submit to our state legislature, for prescribing and marking the tonnage to be allowed on each road. We now have many trucks that weigh 6,000 pounds or over and that carry eight or ten tons additional load. These heavy trucks are fast breaking up the roads that were designed to carry eight or ten tons.

Our supervisors should be asked, I think, to stop all work of the kind we are now doing, just as soon as the connecting gaps are filled. I have only one object in view in urging the building of concrete roads. The road tax of the future is to be the largest tax that any of us will pay and the only way that it can be reduced is by building concrete or brick roads. Great misunderstanding exists in this county and many false misrepresentations are being presented to its people. Many of them are being told that the government and the state have both withdrawn their aid, which is not true. Petitions against the building of concrete roads have been circulated and names secured thereon, through an erroneous belief that the tax on this form of construction will be prohibitive.

Let me ask you to bear with me one moment while I explain the difference in the cost of building a concrete road as compared with the imitation dirt roads (so-called roads that we are now building.) We can build a concrete road sixteen feet wide for $14,000.00 per mile. The exact estimate is $13,500.00, but to make it easy figuring, I call it $14,000.00. Uncle Sam pays $7,000.00 of this, the State $2,100 and this has not been recalled—let me emphasize that; leaving the County $4,900.00 to pay for this road, for our share of it—that is. I shall ask Ed. Lorch and O. D. Hammond if they can give us the esitmate of what their gravel roads cost them.

It cannot be done for less than $5,000, and when built they will have to be rebuilt or resurfaced the second year, as is being done today on the East Jordan road, which has only had two years of wear.

I will ask you to estimate at this rate the cost of a gravel road for the next ten years. The first cost will be greater than that of the concrete, it will be rapidly worn out and during the greater part of this ten years the road will be filled with chuck holes, as is shown by the condition of the road between here and Greensky hill at the present time. I feel that this is all that is necessary to say in regard to the cost of roads.

Let me ask you, why did the state double its rewards of $3,400 to $6,800 in order to induce the counties to build concrete roads. The answer is plain—it would cost an much more to keep up the gravel road, that they could well afford to do it.

Do not let us fool ourselves into the belief that we are smarter than all other people, for we are not. I have learned one thing and learned it well, that I am not very smart and that I cannot originate very much, but I am smart enough to follow in the wake of smart people and am perfectly willing to follow where they lead who have made a success in what they are doing.

Now, let us build our roads in Michigan either concrete or brick and build them so well that all Floridn and the south will turn out in the summer time and come up and visit us and we will do the same thing to them in the winter time, because a concrete or brick road is good 365

ADAMS LAKE FARMER DIED LAST THURSDAY

Anton Cellner Was Born in Austria —Miner 22 Years.

Anton Cellner, a farmer of the Adams Lake district, passed away last Thursday morning, after a lingering illness of several months.

Mr. Cellner has been a resident of Charlevoix county for seven years. He was born in Austria-Hungary in 1856, where he was married, two of his children having been born in that country. On coming to America, he located in Pennsylvania where he worked as a miner for 22 years. From that state he moved to Charlevoix county.

He leaves eight children, five daughters and three sons, all living. A large number of friends and neighbors attended the funeral Sunday morning, which was held from the home of the deceased, Joseph Navutney of C. S. P. S. lodge and Elder Pontius performing the services. The body was laid to rest in Brookside cemetery.

A BOY SCOUT TRACK MEET COMING SOON

Four Towns To Be Represented— Will Be Held At Petoskey.

The Boy Scouts of Detroit and other large cities are acting as guards and often-times as patrols for traffic. They are learning to take the place of those sent to the field in defence of the nation. Instead of merely boys they have become men, acting as men and doing a man's work. Therefore if the scouts of Charlevoix are asked to do any work of this sort for the city or county, they should do it willingly, as this is the best way love of country can be demonstrated, by those who cannot do active work on the field.

A plan is under way for the formation of a North Michigan Track Meet of Boy Scouts to be held probably at Petoskey. Harbor Springs, Petoskey, Boyne City and Charlevoix have been invited to send teams. Great interest is being shown by the local troops, and the plan will probably be a success.

The Lecture on "Birds," at the high school last Friday afternoon should prove an object lesson to those who are wont to destroy the songsters of this region. The duty of Boy Scouts in this case is to report all infringements of the law, and to do all they can to prevent the needless sacrifice of birds. The question might evolve itself into this—What if destruction would force the birds to abandon our region. The inevitable result would be that insects could pursue their work nt will. FOR THESE REASONS PROTECT THE BIRDS.

An enjoyable hike was taken by the members of troop two to Fisherman's Island last week. After a very pleasant day in observation the scouts returned home sore of foot but exceedingly joyful in mind.

At the last meeting Clair Cartier was appointed as a member of the Board of Athletic Control. Earl Bedwin was elected as manager of the team, Odillion Weed was appointed Director of Athletics.

HERE'S WORK FOR THE SEWING CIRCLES

Members of M. N. G. Must Be Their Own Tailors—Need Work Kits

"Housewives' kits," neat little adjuncts to a soldier's outfit, containing thread, needles, buttons, pins, etc., are needed by the members of the Michigan National Guard.

Any woman in the state, or in any sewing society, wishing to do something on the "housewives," according to the suggestion of the war board. Maj. Roy C. Vandercook, secretary, believes that the women of the state can do nothing better now than make the "housewives kits."

"They are not hard to make," he says, "and they will be appreciated. The war board will take all they can get. Send them in, the sooner the better, and we will distribute them."

Baxter Relief Corps No. 173 of Charlevoix have taken up this work and the members of the Corps will be glad to show any who desire to assist in it how the little kits should be made.

INQUEST HELD ON COLLISION VICTIM

Coroner's Jury Finds No Blame Attaches In Ranney Case.

Victor Ranney, the little six year old son of Harrison Ranney, died last Sunday morning at his parents home in East Jordan as the result of a fractured skull and other injuries received in the automobile accident which occurred near that city a week ago on the evening of Sunday May 6th, an account of which we published in our last week's issue.

Coroner Wilkinson was called, empaneled a jury and held inquest Sunday afternoon, following the child's death. The jury found that the boy came to his death as a result of causes as aforesaid, that the collision was purely accidental and that no blame attaches to either Mr. Tyner or Mr. Ranney. It is thought that the lights on Ranney's car brightened as he went into low and blinded the driver of the other car. The four year old son of Mr. Ranney who was also injured, sustained a broken collar bone, which is mending as rapidly as could be expected.

UNCLE SAM IS NOW A KIND TASKMASTER

Enlisted Man Need Not Fear Drudgery Of Barracks Life.

"In urging the enlistment of Michigan young men in the Federal service, there is one important point that the War Preparedness Board wishes to emphasize," said Secretary of State Coleman C. Vaughn in a recent interview. "The man who takes the oath is obliged to serve only during the duration of the war. There will be no monotony and drudgery of barrack life for him after hostilities have ceased. He returns immediately to the walks of civil life.

"There seems to be some misunderstanding as to the rates of pay. The enlisted soldier is furnished uniforms, arms and equipment. The allowance for uniforms is about 28 cents a day and what is not expended in clothing may be drawn in cash at the end of the enlistment period. It is possible to save, roughly, more than half of the clothing allowance. Subsistence is furnished free.

"The private get $15 a month, first class private $18, corporal $21, sergeant $30, and higher sergeants up to $45. The second lieutenant is paid $1,700 annually, the first lieutenant $2,000 and the captain $2,400. There are bonuses for foreign service which increases the pay of all grades twenty per cent.

"It must be remembered that the state, through the War Preparedness Board, supplements the pay of the enlisted man with a pledge to take care of his family with additional funds which the legislature voted, up to $20 per month for dependent wife or mother, and $7.50 per month for each child. Then the Red Cross is also collecting funds for disbursement where needed.

"I believe that the man with dependents who enlists today can be surer that those whom he leaves behind will be comfortable than has been the case in any other war in our history."

RED CROSS ASSOCIATION STARTS WITH 25

Headquarters Will Be At Wilbur's Store Building on Bridge Street

Twenty-five persons were present on Saturday afternoon of last week at the Odd Fellows hall in response to the appeal recently issued for aid in the formation of a local Red Cross society.

Mrs. Harry Nichols was temporary chairman with Mrs. Stanley Bush, secretary, and Mrs. Nettleton, treasurer. Much enthusiasm was shown by those who realize the value and importance of the work. All were greatly interested and eager to begin at once in the effort to further plans for the establishment of the organization.

Mrs. Rupert, of the Belvedere resort, spoke of the great need in our country for all that can be done in behalf of our soldiers. She told of the work done by the organizstion in the west and the thousands of the people who have entered heartily into the cause of humanity. Mrs. Nicholls, Mrs. W. Herschel Miller and Mrs. C. R. Bellinger also urged those present to activity along the lines of Red Cross work.

The temporary chairman appointed the following heads of committees: Membership, Mrs. J. L. Crane, publicity, Mrs. H. S. Harsha, arrangement, Mrs. W. H. Miller, announcement will be made of further meetings.

Every man and woman in our county should feel it a personal duty to lend every possible aid in pressing forward this great work. We wish to impress and emphasize the importance of this mission of mercy for the sake of our boys who have gone and for those who will go to the front.

The president of the United States has sent out the following appeal: "I hereby earnestly call upon all those who can contribute either great sums or small to alleviate the sufferings and distress which must inevitably arise out of this fight for humanity and democracy, to contribute to the Red Cross."

Captain O. E. Wilbur has offered the use of his store room on Bridge Street for local headquarters. Are there others who will be generous in like measure.

Until further notice we will give a dollar discount on all tires for Ford Cars, G & J. make—none better. S. Orlowski & Son—Adv 20tf

COMEDY OF ERRORS IN LAST WEEK'S ISSUE

We Made Three "Bulls" And Apologies Are Now In Order.

We want to correct three errors that got past the watchful editorial eye last week and into our colums. Some of our readers may have noticed them and some may not, but pressure of business has laid heavily upon us the past week and it is in such times of stress and strain that mistakes will creep in.

The first is in an article on the first page, headed "Hurt In Auto Accident," in which it was stated that one, Mr. Lucius Ranney, had met with a grevious mishap. As it happened, Mr. Harrison Ranney was the victim of the accident, but as the account of same was borrowed from the columns of one of our contemporaries, the error is "on him" who should have known better.

The second error is in the article headed "Memorial Services Held on May 27th" in which we stated that a party was held in honor of Mrs. Elizabeth Miller's birthday, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Louis Fowler. This should have read, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Louis Allard.

The third and last was in the locals, and stated that Dr. A. M. Wilkinson had left for Battle Creek to attend the Tri-County Sunday school convention. This should have read Tri-County Medical convention, called in that city in the interests of preparedness.

Now that we have confessed, we feel sure of forgiveness and turn to the preparation of the coming issue with a clean conscience. We thank you.

HOLY NAME SOCIETY TO BE FORMED HERE

All Men of St. Mary's Parish Are Expected To Join It.

Next Sunday, May 20th, promises to be a great day in the Catholic church of this city. Special services will be held both in the morning and in the evening. The Rev. pastor has planned the organization of the Holy Name Society. All men of the parish are expected to join.

For the reception of the candidates a fine program has been arranged. Father Ives has secured the services of the eloquent speaker, the Rev. Fr. Gaudence of Petoskey, who will deliver the sermon at 8 A. M., and in the evening at 7:30. During the high mass at 8 A. M., the candidates will receive holy communion in a body. Solemn reception into the society will take place in the evening at 7:30.

At the services the reverend pastor himself will preside at the organ.

Pews in the front will be reserved for the candidates.

The other parishioners and their friends are cordially invited to come and witness the beautiful ceremonies.

EDWARD CLARK DEAD

Had Lived In This Section About Twenty-Five Years.

Edward Clark, a brother of Henry and George Clark of this city, who was a former resident of Charlevoix, having lived here for the better part of 25 years, died last Friday in Boyne City, where he had gone to work about six weeks ago, at the home of Willie Mason. The cause of his death was paralysis of the kidneys. The body was brought to this city Saturday and the funeral held Sunday at one o'clock, with interment at Brookside, Rev. L. C. Vinyard officiating.

SHOULD USE VACANT LOTS

TURN BARE SPOTS INTO WAR GARDEN PLOTS.

Soe Woman's Club Committee For Available Land Or Register Yours For the Purpose

Following the example of other towns and cities, an attempt is being made to utilize all vacant spots for gardens. Several lots have already been secured, Mrs. R. B. Armstrong has one on the corner of Nicholls and Ainslee streets. There are several lots in the Crouter addition. Anyone desiring such garden space will see the owners at once as now is the time to begin planting. On the other hand anyone having land not in use, who wishes to help along this line will please refer it to the committee, Mrs. Mason H. Rose or Mrs. George A. Crouter, who have this work in charge.

A complete review of all vacant property will be made and in another week we should have many available lots for those who desire to raise their own vegetables or market them. We are urged to plant and grow more and we ought not to hesitate to help ourselves or give some one else this opportunity.

The annual clean-up day set aside by the mayor is past and we are glad to note that much undesirable rubbish has been removed from our yards, streets and alleys. But this ought not to relieve us of our responsibility. Every day ought to be clean up day. The majority of us cannot afford perhaps to do much planting to help beautify our city but we can keep clean. That costs practically nothing. Charlevoix is clean when compared with other surrounding towns but there is still room for improvement. We have many beautiful lawns and still some people insist on trying to make a pathway or cross cut over them. Note the improvement of our school yard during the last two years. We should help to make this lasting. The library lawn is another favorite short cut, and many of our private lawns. Let us be more considerate of "Charlevoix, the Beautiful" in every way.

WHITE ROSE HIVE GOES TO BOYNE CITY

County Association Meets Today In Annual Session.

About fifty members of White Rose Hive No. 443, Ladies of the Maccabees went to Boyne City by auto this morning to attend the annual meet of the county association of Maccabee hives where the Charlevoix hive is to give public installation work. As they will not return until after we have gone to press, we cannot give an account of the meeting. All the hives in this county will be represented as well as those from Bellaire and Central Lake. Deputy Great Commanders Tillotson of Charlevoix and Watson of Frankfort will be present. A banquet will also be a feature of the day.

Sunday at M. E. Church

Next Sunday morning and evening the people will have an opportunity to hear Miss Nellie Shorter tell the story of her work. Miss Shorter is a graduate deaconess from Grand Rapids and one of the strongest speakers that the deaconess home of Michigan has ever produced. This will be a rare opportunity to find out how the other half of the world lives. Everyone is most cordially invited.

The district Epworth league convention held in our city last week was the largest ever held in the district, and Dr. Meader's address Sunday evening was especially fine.

Rev. Quinton Walker will preach the sermon at the dedication of the new church at Stutsenville next Sunday afternoon. He will also deliver the Decoration Day address at Central Lake.

SCHOOL COMMISSIONER'S NOTES

Deputy Superintendent John Manson has summarized the county normal penmanship standing for the entire state and we are proud to state that Charlevoix County's normal class heads the list with the best penmanship record reported. Miss Manson and Miss Bayes are justly proud of their record.

In the teachers' examination, there were 19 applicants and only 9 certifieates recorded. Two of the subjects were the hardest in years.

The High Island teacher, Mr. Thomas Howe, reports that they are erecting an 80 foot flag pole near the mill and that the school district will buy a new flag to float over the island.

In visiting Big Beaver, the commissioner found a new school with 12 children attending as a braneh of Peaine No. 2. They were using one of the summer cottages as a school house and were quite happy in their new outlook as they were formerly 2 to 12 miles from any school whatever and found it impossible to learn even the rudiments. They have a new post office, too, which they eall Nomad.

The Robinson school closed with a box social on the night of Friday, May 11th.

The Slaughter school is to have an exhibit contest and picnic on the closing dny, May 22nd.

The county normal commencement will be held June 5th this year. We are glad to report that prospects are fine for a large class next yenr. We have secured Miss Bayes of Mt. Pleasant as our principal and our critic will remain with us. Both have fine records nnd will help us to mnke records for Charlevoix county.

In the eighth grade tests held Thursday and Friday, May 10-11th, the Boyne City teachers report 117 eighth graders writing, with an additional number of seventh graders. East Jordan has 37 eighth graders writing and eight others writing on part of the test, while Charlevoix had 48 writing. The tests were considered fair and most of them easy, although aeveral found the local history questions and grammar different from what they had expected.

In at least three fourths of the townships, three fourths of the teachers are staying in the samo schools for another year. A few changes noted the past week are as follows: Miss Berg will be in Advance. Miss Greenhoe gets a $120 raise to remain in Forrest Hill. Miss Genett will be in Undine. Miss Palmer will be in Devine school and Miss Sanford at Howard school.

There was a joyful gathering nt the Nowland school when the flag was raised on the new pole on the hillside oo May 4th. There were good things to ent in abundanee.

Five schools have requested that Mr. Coffey visit them this spring to study the improvement of their buildings. Several others are working for a good building but were visited last year and know definitely what they lack.

CONSISTENT with Buick history, the Buicks of 1917 are essentially better Buicks, being the refinements and developments of another year of endeavor.

Although the Buick organization has conscientiously striven to increase production in answer to the evergrowing demand for Buick cars, not once have they lost sight of the importance of making each individual Buick car intrinsically Buick in quality.

Buick cars are quality cars—the kind of a car that fulfills the most exacting demands of the most particular buyer.

It is particularly satisfying to the Buick owner to find, as he does, that his choice is everywhere admired and approved..

Every detail of body and chassis is a match for Buick performance, and the combination is a most pleasing and desirable one.

CHAPTER IX.

Longorio Makes Bold.

At La Feria Alaire discovered that the federal depredations had been even greater than she had feared. Not only had the soldiers taken a great many head of cattle, but they had practically cleared the ranch of horses, leaving scarcely enough with which to carry on the work.

Life in the roomy, fortresslike adobe house was pleasant enough. Alaire welcomed the change in her daily life. Everything about La Feria was restfully un-American, from the house itself, with its bare walls and floors, its brilliantly flowering patio, and its primitive kitchen arrangements, to the black-shawled, barefooted Indian women and their naked children rolling in the dust. Even the timberless mountains that rose sheer from the westward plain into a tumbling purple-shadowed rampart were Mexican. La Feria was several miles from the railroad; therefore it could not have been more foreign had it lain in the very heart of Mexico rather than near the northern boundary.

In such surroundings, and in spite of faint misgivings, it was not strange that, after a few days, Alaire's unhappiness assumed a vaguely impersonal quality and that her life, for the moment, seemed not to be her own. Even the thought of her husband, Ed Austin, became indistinct and unreal. Then all too soon she realized that the purpose of her visit was accomplished, and that she had no excuse for remaining longer. She was now armed with sufficient facts to make a definite demand upon the federal government.

The homeward journey was a repetition of the journey out. Jose, as before, was newsgatherer. Hour after hour they crept toward the border, until at last they were again laid out on a siding for an indefinite wait.

The occasion for this was made plain when an engine drawing a single caboose appeared. Even before it had come to a pause, a tall figure in spotless uniform leaped to the ground and strode to the waiting coaches. It was Luis Longorio. He waved a signal to the conductor, then swung aboard the north-bound train.

The general was all smiles as he came down the aisle, and bowed low over Alaire's hand.

Dolores gasped and stiffened in her seat like a woman of stone.

"Heaven be praised! You are safe and well!" said the newcomer. "I have blamed myself for allowing you to take this abominable journey! I have been in torment lest something befall you. Every night I have prayed that you might be spared all harm. When I received word that you were coming, I made all speed to meet you."

"Dolores and I are greatly in your debt," Alaire told him.

"But you stayed so long!"

"There was more work than I thought, General, you have ruined me."

Longorio was pained; his face became ineffably sad. "Please! I beg of you," he entreated. "I have arranged for reparation of that miserable mistake. I shall see that you receive justice. If the government will not pay, I will. All I possess would be too little to buy your happiness."

"You embarrass me. I'm afraid you don't realize what you say." Alaire remained cool under the man's protestations. "I have lost more than a thousand head of cattle."

"We shall say two, three thousand, and the government will pay." Longorio asserted brazenly. "I will vouch for your figures, and no one will question them, for I am a man of honor."

"No! All I want—"

"It is done. Let us say no more about the affair. Senora, I have thought of you every hour; the duties that held me in Nuevo Pueblo were like irksome chains. I was in sadness. I would have flown to La Feria, but—I could not."

"My husband will thank you for your great courtesy to me," Alaire managed to say.

But the mention of husbands was not agreeable to one of Longorio's sensitiveness, and his face betrayed a hint of impatience.

"Yes, yes," he agreed carelessly. "Senor Austin and I must know each other better and become friends."

"That is hardly possible at present. When the war is over—"

"Rot! This war is nothing. I go where I please. You would be surprised to greet me at Las Palmas some day soon, eh? When you tell your husband what a friend I am, he would be glad to see me, would he not?"

"Why—of course. But surely you wouldn't dare—"

"And why not? I have made inquiries, and they tell me Las Palmas is beautiful, heavenly, and that you are the one who transformed it. I believe them. You have the power to transform all things, even a man's heart and soul. No wonder you are called 'The Lone Star.' But wait. You will see how constantly I think of you."

Longorio drew from his pocket several photographs of the Austin ranchhouse.

"Where did you get those?" Alaire asked in astonishment.

"Ah! My secret. See! They are badly worn already, for I keep them next to my bosom."

"We entertain very few guests at Las Palmas," she murmured, uncomfortably.

"I know. I know a great deal."

"It would scarcely be safe for you to call; the country is full of Candelaristas—"

"Cattle!" said the officer, with a careless shrug. "Did not that great poet Byron swim across an ocean to see a lovely lady? Well, I, too, am a poet. I have beautiful fancies—songs of love run through my mind. Those Englishmen know nothing of passion. Your American men are cold. Only a Mexican can love. We have fire in our veins, senora."

To these perfervid protestations Dolores listened with growing fright; her eyes were wide, and they were fixed hypnotically upon the speaker; she presented much the appearance of a rabbit charmed by a serpent. But to Longorio she did not exist; she was a chattel, a servant, and therefore devoid of soul or intelligence, or use beyond that of serving her mistress.

Thinking to put an end to these blandishments, Alaire undertook to return the general's ring, with the pretense that she considered it no more than a talisman loaned her for the time being. But it was a task to make Longorio accept it. He was shocked, offended, hurt; he declared the ring to be of no value; it was no more than a trifling evidence of his esteem. But Alaire was firm.

It was an odd, unreal ride, through the blazing heat of the long afternoon. Longorio cast off all pretense and openly laid siege to the red-haired woman's heart—all without offering her the smallest chance to rebuff him, the slightest ground for open resentment, so respectful and guarded were his advances. When the train arrived at its destination, his victim was well-nigh exhausted from the struggle. After a good night's rest, however, she was able to smile at yesterday's adventure. Longorio did not look so large now; even these few hours had greatly diminished his importance, so that he appeared merely as an impulsive foreigner who had allowed a woman to turn his head.

Once back across the river she discovered that there were obstacles to a prompt adjustment of her claim. The red tape of her own government was as nothing to that of Mexico. There were a thousand formalities, a myriad of maddening details to be observed, and they called for the services of an advocate, a notary, a jefe politico, a jefe de armas—officials without end. All of these worthies were patient and polite, but they displayed a malarial indifference to delay, and responsibility seemed to rest nowhere. During the day Alaire became bewildered, almost lost in the mazes of official procedure, and was half minded to telegraph to Judge Ellsworth.

Longorio by no means shared her disappointment. On the contrary, he assured her they were making splendid progress, and he was delighted with her grasp of detail and her knowledge of business essentials. At his word all Nuevo Pueblo bowed and scraped to her; he arranged for her an elaborate luncheon in his quarters.

"You Can Never Know What These Two Days Have Been to Me," the General Said.

"You can never know what these two days have been for me," the general said as he and Alaire lingered over their meal. "They will afford me something to think about all my life. It is a delicious comfort to know that you trust me, that you do not dislike me. And you do not dislike me, eh?"

"Why, of course not. I have a great deal for which to thank you."

General Longorio fingered his wineglass and stared into it. "I am not like other men. I am a man of iron—yes, an invincible soldier—yet I have a heart, and a woman could rule me."

"You say you have a heart." Alaire studied her vis-a-vis curiously as he met her eyes with his mournful gaze. "How is it that I hear such strange stories about you, general?"

"Lies, all of them!" Longorio asserted.

"For instance, they tell me that you shoot your prisoners?"

"Of course!" Then, at her shocked exclamation, he explained: "It is a necessity of war. Listen, senora! We have twelve million Indians in Mexico and a few selfish men who incite them to revolt. To permit the lower classes to rise would result in chaos, black anarchy, indescribable outrages against life and property. There is but one way to pacify such people—extermination! Mexico is a civilized nation; there is no greater in the world; but she must be ruled with an iron hand. We shall drive all the traitors into the sea, and Mexico shall have peace. But I am not a bloodthirsty man. No, I am a poet and a lover at heart. As great a patriot as I am, I could be faithless to my country for one smile from the woman I adore."

Alaire did not color under the ardent glance that went with this declaration. She deliberately changed the subject. "This morning while we were in the office of the jefe de armas," she said, "I saw a poor woman with a baby—she was scarcely more than a child herself—whose husband is in prison. Every day she comes to plead with the jefe de armas for her husband's life. But he will not see her, and the soldiers only laugh at her tears."

"A common story! These women and their babies are very annoying," observed the general.

"She says that her husband is to be shot."

"Very likely! Our prisons are full. Doubtless he is a bad man."

"Can't you do something?"

"Eh?" Longorio lifted his brows in the frankest inquiry.

"That poor girl with her little, bare, brown-eyed baby was pitiful." Alaire leaned forward with an earnest appeal in her face, and her host smiled.

"So? That is how it is, eh? What is her name?"

"Inez Garcia. The husband's name is Juan."

"Of course. These peladors are all Juans. You would like to appear as an angel of mercy, eh? Your heart is touched?"

"Deeply."

"Bastante! There is no more to be said." Longorio rose and went into the next room, where were certain members of his staff. After a time he returned with a paper in his hand, and this he laid before Alaire. It was an order for the release of Juan Garcia. "The suivo conducto which will permit Juan and his Inez and their Juanito to return to their farm is being made out," he explained. "Are you satisfied?"

Alaire looked up wonderingly. "I am deeply grateful. You overwhelm me. You are—a strange man."

"Dear lady, I live to serve you. Your wish is my law. How can I prove it further?"

The strained, throbbing silence that followed Longorio's last words did more to frighten the woman than had his most ardent advances. He would have lingered indefinitely over the table, but Alaire soon rose to go, explaining:

"I must finish my disagreeable task now, so that I can go home tomorrow."

"Tomorrow!" her host cried in dismay. "No, no! You must wait—"

"My husband is expecting me."

This statement was a blow; it seemed to crush Longorio, who could only look his keen distress.

As they stepped out into the street, in the gutter stood Inez Garcia with her baby in her arms, and beside her the ragged figure of a young man, evidently her Juan. The fellow was emaciated, his face was gaunt and worn and frightened, his feet were bare even of sandals, the huge peaked straw hat which he clutched over his breast was tattered, and yet in his eye there was a light.

They had waited patiently, these Garcias, heedful of Longorio's orders, and now they burst into a torrent of thanks. They flung themselves to their knees and kissed the edge of Alaire's dress. General Longorio enjoyed this scene tremendously, and his beaming eyes expressed the hope that Alaire was fully satisfied with the moment.

"They look very poor," said Alaire, and opened her purse; but Longorio would not permit her to give. Extracting a large roll of paper money from his own pocket, he tossed it, without counting, to Juan, and then when the onlookers applauded, he loudly called to one of his officers, saying:

"Olga! Give these good friends of mine two horses, and see that they are well cared for. Now, Juan," he addressed the dazed countryman, "I have one order for you: Every night of your life you and your pretty wife must say a prayer for the safety and happiness of this beautiful lady who has induced me to spare you. Do you promise?"

"We promise!" eagerly cried the pair.

The Needs of the Hour

Michigan Must Help Feed the Country

FARMERS: Make every acre of your farm produce, and produce more than ever before.

CITY PEOPLE: Make your garden feed your family, and others if possible.

VACANT LOT OWNERS: Make every vacant space produce food product of some kind.

U. S. Agricultural Department is Mobilizing the Agricultural Interests of the country—Government report estimates large shortage in Wheat Crop.

Means must be devised promptly to insure the largest possible production of food supplies. It must be recognized that the man or boy who puts all his energies into the increase of food supplies is as truly a soldier of the republic as he who, in uniform, fights in the ranks.

PAYNEFUL ANNOYANCE.

Here is a gem, In an exchange last week we noticed an advertisement by a Mrs. Payne, which read as follows:

"The disturbers who annoyed my residence lato last evening are hereby warned that the next time they attempt any such moves, they will be prosecuted to the full extent of the lnw."

This is a new one to us. We are aware that inanimate stone may express feeling, as in a popular nationnl air we exhort the rocks to break silence, but the above opens up new and terrible possibilities.

Young men had to go out in 1776 and face bullets that this might be a free nation; other young men went out in 1861 that it might endure; others gave their lives in 1898 that liberty might be extended. The young men of todny owe a duty that is none the less as pressing now as it was in the past. How are they going to meet it?

THEATRICAL.

One hot August dny last summer, while "Civilization" was playing it's notable engagement at the Grand Opera House in Chicago, a sign at the box office read: "No Performance Today."

The reason was simple. The big million dollar photo spectacle together with its large orchestra, stage crew and all, were in Detroit upon that day giving the most unique photoplay performance on record.

In Detroit "Civilization" was presented before an audience consisting of one man—Henry Ford. Thomas H. Ince, the master producer of "Civilization" desired to gain the approval of his cstupendous achievement by Henry Ford. As Mr. Ford was too busy to come to Chicago, Ince literally brought Chicago to Ford. Although entailing an expense of over one thousand dollars, "Civilization" was transported to the automobile city in its entirety to be shown privately to Ford in a theatre specially engaged for the purpose.

From beginning to end did Mr. Ford watch the production with growing enthusiasm as the wonderful story was unfolded upon the screen. At the conclusion there was but one sound in the great auditorium. That was the clapping of a single pair of hands, and those hands belonged to Mr. Ford. Needless to say the endorsement for which Thomas Ince had come so many miles to obtain was given in a most satisfactory manner.

Daring and stupendous in every respect, "Civilization" has played long time runs in great cities of the country, and everywhere has it brought forth only the most extravagant of praise from the press. Said only to be equaled by the "Birth of a Nation" in sweetness of story, magnitude, power and grandeur its appearance here when it is shown at the Majestic Theatre, Friday June 1, may be considered the biggest event of the present season.

FAMILY WAS MISTREATED

A. W. MORSE TELLS SHOCKING STORY.

Wife Forced to Teach Without Pay —Children Scantily Clothed and Cold Pinched.

H. W. Morse, a former preacher of the House of David, is here in town and is telling a shocking story of treatment which his family received at the hands of the brethern of Holy Island.

It seems that when Mr. Morse left Bentor Harbor on a preaching trip last fall, it was with the understanding that his wife and three children should remain in that place in the care of the brethern until his return in the spring. As soon as he was well on his way, however, the House of David people transferred his wife and family to Holy Island, where they kept them all winter, forcing Mrs. Morse to teach in the school there, although she had no certificate, and furnishing her only with her board and a place to sleep, and not even enough money to provide her with necessary clothing for herself and the children.

As soon as the ice broke up the brethern sent the family to Charlevoix and left them stranded here without a cent, and Mr. Morse found them here in destitute condition on his return about two weeks ago. To say that this gentleman feels resentment at the treatment accorded his family by those to whose care he had entrusted them, is putting it very mildly indeed.

HISTORIC KAVALA.

This Grecian Seaport Was Known as Neapolis In St. Paul's Time.

Kavala, the Grecian seaport which has figured so often in press dispatches during recent years, is noted as the birthplace of Mehemet Ali, the remarkable son of an Albanian farmer whose career as viceroy of Egypt during the first half of the nineteenth century almost precipitated Europe into a war of nations. The house in which this witty, wily pasha was born in 1769 is in a narrow, crooked street not far from the Turkish school which he founded, although he himself never learned to read or write.

In ttomnn days Kavala was known as Neapolis, and it was here that St. Paul landed on his way from Samothrace to Philippi, where there was a thriving colony of Christians, to whom the Epistle to the Philippians was addressed.

Prior to the beginning of the Christian era Neapolis was the seaport of Philippi, whose ruins are to be found some ten miles from shore on the highway from Kavala to Thessaly. Here the fleet of Brutus and Cassius was at anchor during the famous conflict on the fields of Philippi in 42 B. C., when the assassinators of Julius Caesar met defeat at the hands of the legions commanded by Antony and Octavius.

Practically all that remains to connect ancient Neapolis with modern Kavala is a Roman aqueduct, whose two tier arches still convey water from Mount Pangeus to the town and citadel.

The woman of each community should see that every soldier who leaves for his regiment has a housewife, an extra pair of socks, an extra suit of underwear, and some handkerchiefs. This may save him discomfort for the government stocks are none too plentiful.

Peter Smith, wife and daughter, formerly of Charlevoix, are visiting friends in town this week.

Frank Lamphear, who has been spending the winter at Port Orange, Florida, arrived last Friday to spend the summer. His son will be here later.

Father D. Hayes, T. F. Leonard and wife and Miss Ellen Landeck of Chicago arrived in Charlevoix Friday and went over to the Beavers where they will remain for the summer.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Otto Hines, Wednesday, May 16th at 4:00 A. M., a fifteen pound boy—David Otto.

Miss Elizabeth Levinson returned Inst week from Cincinnati, where she has been visiting her brother for the past five months.

The Western Union expect to move into their new offices in the Novak building some time next week. From what we can see of the work now going on, there will be no more convenient or up-to-date office in Grand Rapids or Detroit.

The ladies of the Women's Relief Corps met with Mrs. Eagleton at her home on Mason street last Thursday afternoon. They were agreeably surprised when at the close of the meeting, refreshments were served which all greatly enjoyed.

Clifford Taylor, a son of Mrs. Paulson of this city, has volunteered his services for Uncle Sam and his company expects to leave Grand Rapids for mobilization camp about June 1st. The young man is at present employed at the Pantlind Hotel in Grand Rapids.

Private Oran McGinnis, who has been recruiting officer here for the past several weeks, left Tuesday morning for Traverse City, to which more important station he has been promoted. The Charlevoix office is consequently closed. Next in order—the drafting!

H. W. Richards, representative of the U. S. government, was here Tuesday engaged in looking up vessels for patrol service on the great lakes.

Ed. Chaloupka returned Monday night from Lansing, Mich., driving his new Reo roadster. He has sold his last year's model touring car to Jack Supernaw.

The steamer, Hum, formerly owned by the Benver Island Transportation Co., is now the property of Captain George Kelly, of Chicago, who will use her on the run between Lincoln Park and the manicipal pier. Captain Weaver starts south with her Thursday—weather permitting, to make delivery to her new owner.

Rev. C. E. Taggart left Monday morning for Jackson, Michigan, to attend the 75th annual meeting of the Michigan Congregational conference, held in that city Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week. Mr. Taggart will join Mrs. Taggart who has been visiting in the southern part of the state for the past six weeks, at Jackson and will return home by way of Detroit where they expect to see the great missionary pageant, arriving in Charlevoix Saturday. Mr. Taggart will give an account of both these affairs to his congregation Sunday morning next.

YOUR LIGHT LIT?

Be Sure About It Or You'll Wish You Had.

The police department wishes to warn drivers of automobiles that they must carry tail lights on their machines and that same must be lit after dark.

The usual gag they spring on the officer is, "Oh, it is a kerosene light and must have jarred out!" Hereafter, there will be two jars—one when the light goes out and the other when the offender pays his fine, which will be stiff enough to cover the additional expense of an electric light that will not jar out.

Policeman Howard has his orders to enforce the laws relating to automobiles, and hereafter specious excuses don't go.

DELEGATE ELECTED.

Mrs. S. J. Alcox Will Be Sent To Kalamazoo Convention.

At the meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, held last Friday at the home of Mrs. A. J. Usher, the members, by a unanimous vote, elected Mrs. S. J. Alcox as a delegate to represent the Union at the state convention to be held at Kalamazoo, May 29th to June 1st, inclusive.

A pleasant feature of the meeting was the presence of the district president, Mrs. P. J. Howard, of Petoskey, who in her cheery manner, gave words of appreciation and encouragement.

FAIL TO DECIDE ON SCHOOL SITE

Voters Unable to Come to An Agreement at Special Meeting.

About twenty four legal voters of school district No. 9 attended the special school meeting held at Boss Hall last Friday evening. The committee previously appointed to locate a building site for the new school house had found two locations One is a tract of land belonging to Mrs. C. S. Campbell consisting of four acres of land still in its wild state. This site is at the foot of the hill just north of town. The other and the one most universally favored, is a cleared field of about one and three-fourths acres, belonging to Henry Yettaw, and lies between Main street and Park street on the east and west and between Church street on the north and a twenty foot alley on the south.

The vote for the choice of locations were thirteen for the Yettaw site and eleven for that belonging to Mrs. Campbell, and as a two thirds vote is needed to decide, the school board is still up in the air.

It was also decided at this meeting to build the new building of brick, one story with cement basement and hip roof and to heat with steam.

Another meeting has been called for May 21st., and it is hoped to fully decide at that time where the new school house will be built.

FIFTH ANNUAL TROUT SUPPER

LOOSERS COOK AN SERVE SUPPER FOR WINNERS.

Yearly Event Well Attended and Usual Good Social Time Enjoyed by All.

The fifth annual trout supper was held at Harris Hall Tuesday evening, May 1. The hall was tastefully decorated with flags and bunting by Mr. VanSkiver. While the catches of fish were small owing to the weather, a bounteous supper was served, and the usual Ellsworth good-fellowship prevailed.

Mrs. E. R. Harris' side won over Mrs. L. VanSkiver's in aggregatee of catch, the losers cooking and serving the supper, following the previous custom. During the supper Mrs. D. E. Clow gave a piano selection which was greatly appreciated by all. Mrs. Clow responded to a hearty encore. Hubert and Howard Bearss gave a cornet and circular alto duet, accompanied by Miss Patterson, which was enjoyed by all. They were made to respond to an encore.

Judge Harris acted as toastmaster and was at his best. He introduced the members of the program in a fitting and pleasing manner occasionally calling on his store of ever ready wit.

The first number on the program was L. K. Clark, who gave a pleasing and fitting monologue entitiled: "Come Down to Virginia." He responded with "I want to go Back to Michigan." Dr. Struik gave a very interesting talk on scientific fishing which was appreciated. We were entertained with a pretty song by Miss Effie Larson, who responded to an encore.

Next the toastmaster introduced C. E. Bearss, who gave a very spicy talk which was decidedly good, closing with Edgar Guest's poem "Out Fishin.'" Mr. and Mrs. L. K. Clark gave a pretty duet which all enjoyed. They responded with "Southern Lullaby." Last but not least was a song by Brail, Townsend and Patterson, which was given in a pleasing manner. They responded to a rousing encore.

The committee of arrangements worked hard to make it a success and feel that all were pleased, except our regular reporter, who for some unknown reason was peeved enough to withhold a report. Perhaps it was because the committee was composed of ladies, and they don't get hair cuts or shaves. The ladies of Ellsworth don't have much use for a barber anyway.

American Homes.

Before I came to America I fancied that I should find one long row of apartment houses extending from New York to San Francisco, some of them palatial, but tawdry, others lowly and some squalid. This idea was partially formed from reading in your own journals of your lack of home life as compared with our preponderance of it in England. On the contrary, I found in the localities I visited much that we can learn from you Americans of homemaking and of home living. The amazing thing to me is what your women accomplish in the actual building of their homes, and that, too, with small means.—Lady Isea Stuart in Countryside Magazine.

Still Paying.

"Oh," said Mrs. Longwed, "you men are all alike. Before marriage you are forever paying compliments, but after marriage"—

"We are forever paying bills—quite right, my dear."—Stray Stories.

GOOD BACKS FOR BAD

Charlevoix Residents Are Learning How to Exchange the Old Back For a Stronger One.

Does your back ache, feel wenk and painful?

Do you suffer headathes, languor nnd depression?

Is the urine discolored, passages irregular?

The kidneys may be calling for help.

Weak kidneys cannot do their work.

Give them the help they need.

To cure n kidney backache you must cure the kidneys.

Use n tested and proven kidney remedy.

Donn's Kidney Pills huve stood the test.

Convincing proof of merit in Charlevoix endorsement:

Mrs. Rome Pappin, 117 E. Garfield St., Charlevoix, says: "I suffered from my hack and kidneys. My back seemed to never stop aching. Every time I tried to bend or stoop, sharp, knife-like pains caught me in my hack and I could hardly straighten up. I felt badly all over. Doan's Kidney Pills removed the trouhle in a short time."

KILBORN EXPLAINS THE SEED SUPPLY PLAN

Lack of Some To Be Filled From Surplus Of Others

The following letter, designed to clear up certain erroneous impressions current in this region outlines a plnn with regard to supplying the present pressing demand for seed which in our impression Is far superior to the more paternallstic ldea of the government furnishing this importnnt commodity, as it utilizes the machinery of trade that we already have In operation, follows the line of least resistance and harmonizes wlth correct economic principles. This communication deserves cnreful reading:

To the People of Emmet and Charlevoix Counties:

During the past week I have distributed several thousnnd leaflets through the supervisors and teachers of the two countles. From the replies already received I believe there Is a wrong impression as to what the state is trying to do in this work. So far as I know at present the government is not furnishing seed free or otherwise. But desires to know where seed is to be had; also where there is a laek of it and then bring those that wunt seed and those that hnve seed together.

I do not believe the farmers want charity us it is nlmost certain thst they will get good returns for their labor in high prices for foodstuffs which are likely ta prevail this fall. The hanks of Emmet nnd I hope the bnnks of Charlevoix have or will do the same, professedly stand ready to loan money at a reasonable rate of interest nnd under reasonnhly safe circumstances. It is neeessary that the banks should require security in certain instances because we who deposit with them wish to feel that their investments and loans are placed with a proper degree of safety.

There may be a few who eannot furnish such assurance or security as may be required in this particular instance and who could plant if provided with seed. If there are indivlduals who nre willing to aid such people I will be glad to henr from them.

It will be impossihle for me to answer personnlly all that apply but will hnve to use the papers of the counties to a large extent.

Yours truly,
GEO. A. KILBORN,
State Agricultural Agent,
Emmet nnd Charlevoix Counties.

days in the year. So, you good people away down in Dixie—to you Michigan extends a welcome which is strong, loyal and true and we efer to you the right hand of fellowship and urge you to come and see us.

In speaking of the wicked and useless expenditure of to much money for dirt roads, I wish it distinctly understood that I am not speaking against any body of men or any one man, but it is the system I condemn because it is vicious and will break up our county and our country if continued. I have no object to gain in continuing my fight for concrete as well as my fight against dirt roads except to reduce the tax which my daughters will have to pay on the property we have in Charlevoix county and I want you all to give me credit for being strictly honest in what I say.

I do not blame a single person for having signed a petition not to build a concrete road under the impression that it will cost so much more than a dirt rond because of the presentations made to them. I would have done the same thing myself if I had felt that the same were true. And, in a way, I do not blame anyone for trying to hold onto a job by getting these petitions signed. But I do blame them both for not finding out beforehand whether the reason given for not hullding concrete roads was true or not.

Some people will tell you that the base of the present macadam roads in Charlevoix County can be used as a base upon which to put concrete. I deny this. Of course, it can be used, but the road after it is built will be no good."

Mr. Lorch then said in part: "I have never had any experience in building the sixteen foot road. We built a road in Boyne Valley last year, and, as near as I can remember it cost around $5,000.00 a mile. Of course, if that road had been cement and the county had drawn a double state reward, it wouldn't have cost much more than an ordinary gravel road. The nine foot gravel road costs around $3,500 or $4,000. to build on an average. Much depends upon the locality."

At this point, Mr. Van Pelt read from the Engineering News Record of May 3rd, the foremost engineering publication of the country.

"While Washington is raising an army and enlisting a host of farm laborers to feed it, the equal necessity for a far smaller supply of labor to build and produce the material for building highways vital to the transportation of this food should not be overlooked. The government must protect construction work."

E. W. Abbot of Boyne City spoke next. He said in part:

"I want to say to you gentlemen that when the good roads movement first started in Wayne County, we built a six mile piece of concrete road to the State fair grounds which has now been in use for ten years. That piece of road bears more heavy travel in one day than any road in Chalevoix County would have in a week, and the road is in good condition today. It is an absolute waste of public funds to build roads as we do now when we can build a concrete road. Since we have been under the county road system, the roads of this county have cost us $141,000.00. The cost of a good concrete road is estimated as $4,100.00 per mile under the present double reward. If either this amount or $4,900.00 as stated by some authorities, is correct, we cannot afford to build the roads we are building now with gravel." He spoke earnestly in favor of a progressive advertising campaign for the county and reiterated the statement made by the others that Charlevoix county stood alone as a resort region among all others in the country.

Judge E. R. Harris of Boyne City followed next with a forceful and witty eulogy of the county and an appeal for better methods of publicity. He declared himself strongly in favor of the concrete road although he acknowledged himself a comparatively recent convert to the idea.

Mr. Abbott spoke at length on the county's absence of insect pests and this phase of the county's attractions was considerably and rsther humorously amplified by Dr. R. B. Armstrong who in addition extolled her water supply, her lake washed atmosphere and freedom from disease, placing special emphasis on the fact that our winter climate is some ten degrees warmer than that experienced by our neighbors across the lake.

It was at this point that Van Pelt, figurately speaking, threw a bomb into the camp of the enemy with results as gratifying as they were previously anticipated. At his request Dr. Armstrong read a resolution directed at the signers of the petition against the concrete road; certain residents of the Norwood district who had been induced to register a protest against what they had been cleverly led to believe was a bad bogey in the form of higher taxes. This resolution provided for the erection of a sign at a point on the West Michigan pike one mile north of Eastport, directing the tourists to take the best road; viz, by way of Atwood and Barnard, thereby cutting out the offending Norwood route.

This drew the fire of a certain gentleman from Arkansas (and from Norwood as well)who managed to smother the resolution, aetting forth in his fiery protest that the signers of the petition had had the facts misrepresented to them and were not wholly to blame and making an earnest plea for the tubling of the resolution, which was done, nat, however, before the matter had aroused a good deal of clarifying discussion which was Van Pelt's sole purpose in having the resolution introduced.

Judge Harris suggested the holding of school house meetings among the farmers, at which the subject of good roads should be fully discussed, to which Mr. Van Pelt heartily assented.

Mr. Nash of Arkansas and Norwood explained the attitude of the Norwood people towards the good roads idea and said that he believed that roads should he built on long time bonds, in order that the children of those now living and their children's children might bear their proportion of the burden of improvements which in the course of events they will more largely enjoy. He suggested 20 or 30 year terms for such bond issues.

Mr. Van Pelt then spoke about the custom among the hotels in New England of supplying the tourist with comprehensive maps of the surrounding districts without charge. He displayed the Dixie Highway and Illinois road maps and emphasized the Highway association's purpose of uniting Michigan with Florida and Florida with Michigan by auto over 800 miles of lake shore travel.

Dr. Swinton brought up the matter of signs to be posted in Charlevoix, Boyne City and East Jordan, directing the tourist, before either going north or south, as the case might be, to be sure and drive around Pine Lake. Mr. Abbott, speaking for the Boyne City Commercial association, of which he is president, assured Dr. Swinton that their association would he glad to co-operate in this matter.

Mr. Van Pelt then reported proceedings at the West Michigan Development Bureau meeting, which he had attended as volunteer delegate from Charlevoix county, and said that in answer to intimations made there that the Bureau would not show films or mention in their propaganda any county that should not defray its proper proportion of the Bureau's expenses, he had taken it upon himself as the county's representative to pledge the sum of $400.00 from Charlevoix county for the ensuing year, which he hoped would be met by the official appropriation of the sum pledged.

Judge Harris thereupon suggested that the chambers of Commerce of Charlevoix and Boyne City use their influence to prevail upon the supervisors of the county to make the appropriation necessary for the county's contribution to the work of the Development Bureau.

Mr. Abbott stated as his opinion that the reason the county had not been contributing to this work was that in the advertising done by the bureau in the past, this county had been somewhat slighted, the character of the publicity not being sufficiently broad or definite to produce effective results but that this fault had now been corrected.

Mr. Kane then brought up the matter of a large fruit exchange, a concern with branches all over the country, explaining their operations in Florida and stating they desired to do for Michigan fruit growers what they had done in the south, pointing out the necessity for definitely branding and classifying the "Fruit with Flavor" and the advantages in the way of shipping, packing, icing, rolling, etc. that would accrue from handling this immense und important business in a systematic and centralized manner. He also suggested that the matter be brought before a joint session of the commercial associations of the three principal cities in the county.

A telegram was then read from John S. Baker, who was at Kaleva, Mich., expressing his regret at not being able to be present at the meeting and his enthusiasm in the cause of good roads.

The meeting adjourned, the hour being late, after which light refreshments were served. It was a distinct success from every point of view and the Courier believes that we should get together with our neighbors more frequently in the future.

Wilson Grange No. 719.

The regular meeting of Wilson Grange was held Saturday evening, May 12, with an attendance of about twenty-five.

The third and fourth degrees were conferred upon Mrs. R. A. Brintnall and Wm. Scheffels. On account of the lateness of the evening, the lecturers hour was omitted and all filed into the dining room to partake of the sumptuous supper served by the ladies. The dance committee announces a dance for Saturday evening, May 19.

Grange closed to meet again in two weeks.

BOYS DROWN IN ADAMS LAKE

CAPSIZED ROW BOAT WHILE OUT FISHING

Lifting Anchor May Have Caused Accident—Bodies Found Close Together Thursday

One of the saddest accidents that has occurred in this region in many years took place last Wednesday night at Adams lake.

Three young men, J. Pokorney, Clarence Elliot and Sandy Alexander, whose homes are in the vicinity of the lake, went out in a row boat to fish in the evening and, capsizing the boat in some way, were drowned.

It seems that Alexander, who had been working on the Jay Adams place for the past three weeks, had made arrangements with a couple of fellows who were doing some mason work on the property to go fishing that evening, but just as the time came to go Porkorney and Elliot drove up in a car and after some discussion, the other two men gave up their places in the fishing party to the boys who had just driven up. The three had been out on the lake only three quarters of an hour, when the masons who had been down to the creek below the lake and were strolling homewards along the road, heard sharp cries of help and noticed that the light which the boys had carried with them in the boat was suddenly extinguished.

The men on shore had long been observing this light and remarked between themselves about its being carried so high. The unusually elevated position of the light in the boat is the basis for the general opinion held by those who investigated the accident that the boat was capsized while the boys were either anchoring or raising the anchor and that the one handling the anchor or the one holding the light stepped on the gunwale and overturned the craft.

Returning to the Adams place, the witnesses to this disaster reported what they had seen to Mr. Adams who had just come in from a trip to town and he immediately started off with a car to try and discover who the other boys were and notify their families, as the masons did not know who these friends of Alexander's were.

Having accomplished this, Mr. Adams, returned to the scene of the drowning and accompanied by several of the neighbors rowed up and down the lake for about an hour and a half, finally discovering the boat the boys used floating bottomside up with their hats drifting near it. No other trace of the unfortunate youths could be found.

Thursday morning, a party of the neighbors, assisted by two or three of the coast guards from Charlevoix station, started to drag the lake, but it was along late in the afternoon before the bodies were found—two of them clinging together in the same spot on the lake bottom and the other some fifteen feet away. It was evident that the boys had drowned each other in their struggles, as two of them were expert swimmers.

Sandy Alexander, who was employed on the Adams place, was a son of D. H. Alexander of Marion. His funeral was held from the Alexander home Saturday at 1:00 o'clock. Rev. L. C. Vinyard officiating, after which the body was taken to Barnard cemetery for interment. He was 17 years of age.

Funeral services were held by Rev. L. C. Vinyard over the body of Jerry Pokorny, at his home, Sunday morning at 10:00 o'clock. This young man was born in Bohemia, Austria, and came to America at the age of nine with his parents. They lived two years in Chicago, and then located on their present farm in Marion township. Jerry had been working for the past three years in Detroit and had returned to visit his parents for the first time on the Saturday preceeding the drowning. His body was laid to rest in Barnard cemetery.

Clarence Elliott was an only son. His funeral took place Monday at 10:00 A. M., at the Marion Townhall, Rev. C. E. Taggart officiating. They took the body to Brookside for burial.

Nearly the entire population of the district turned out to pay their last respects to the unfortunate victims of this sad affair. Their sympathy and sorrow for the parents thus terribly bereaved passes expression.

POPULAR CHARLEVOIX COUPLE ARE MARRIED

Clara Finucan and Claire C. Coultar Enter Happy State.

On Wednesday morning, May 9th, at 10:30 o'clock, in Detroit, occurred the wedding of two young persons, well-known and very popular in this city—Miss Clare Finucan and Mr. Claire C. Coulter.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father VanAntwerp at the Holy Rosary church in that city, the bride and groom being attended by a few personal friends.

Mr. Coulter, who is a lawyer by profession, is also a member of the Officers Reserve, and was compelled to leave shortly after the ceremony for Fort Sheridan, Illinois, to complete his period of training leading to a commission in the U. S. forces. Mrs. Coulter's plans are not definite as yet, but it is expected that she will complete her year's work at the Marr training school where she has been preparing for the teaching profession. Charlevoix friends of the happy pair wish them no end of good luck and success, in which the Courier heartily joins.

SINK-MITCHELL

Wedding Took Place At Sturgis, Mich., Last Sunday

Two young people, former residents and well-known in Marion township—Miss Gladys Sink and Mr. Joe Mitchell, were married at Sturgis, Michigan, last Sunday, May 20th.

The ceremony took place at seven P. M. in the Methodist parsonage, Rev. A. A. Gieger officiating. Elwyn Johnson acted as best man, while the bride was attended by her sister, Ruth. The young couple will make their home for the present in Sturgis, where they have both been working for the past few months.

MASS MEET ON FRIDAY EVENING

RED CROSS WORK TO BE ITS THEME

Speeches, Singing and Parade Will Be Features of Occasion—The Weeks Program.

A Red Cross mass meeting is to be held in the opera house Friday evening at eight o'clock. This is a community affair and should be attended by all, both in town and the surrounding country.

Red Cross work is called "the humanitarian arm of the U. S. government," and should receive an important share of our attention in endeavors to do our bit.

A parade will be interesting feature of the evening and the speeches will be interspersed with patriotic songs.

On Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday afternoons of this week, the Red Cross rooms on Bridge street will be open to the public. Tea will be served each day. The Eastern Stars take charge Tuesday—other organizations will follow.

Ed. Klooster has donated tea and wafers for one month; Mrs. McHugh a flag; Charles See, some chairs; J. L. Crane, several sewing articles and Mrs. Nettleton and Mrs. Wood, sewing machines. All donations are gratefully received.

EASTERN STARS HELD MEET AT BELLAIRE

Six Counties And Fourteen Chapters Were Represented

Twenty-two members of the local Eastern Star chapter attended the meeting of the county Meguzee association at Bellaire on May 9th and 10th.

There are six counties included in this organization, comprising fourteen different chapters of the Eastern Star order, and delegates from the different chapters make up the membership of the Meguzee. The association is modeled on lines similar to the county organization of Macabee hives, and has its work peculiar to the district in which it is situated. Competitive team work between the different chapters is also a feature of the county meets.

GREAT ROAD MEET AT SAGINAW

MANY PROMINENT "HIGHWAYMEN" WILL BE PRESENT

Three Day Program Starts This Morning With Variety of Interesting Features

Today opens the big program of the ninth annual convention of the Michigan State Good Roads association at Saginaw, continuing tomorrow and Friday.

The gathering is in speaking talent the greatest ever held in this state and should, by the practical talks that are to be given, attract fully 1,500 townships and county road men of Michigan. The meetings are being held in the auditorium and exhibits are placed in convenient buildings and streets near at hand. The convention headquarters is in the Bancroft hotel, where registration takes place.

This morning, Congressman J. W. Fordney, Governor A. E. Sleeper, Judge M. M. Allison, of Chattanooga, Tenn., head of the famous Dixie Highway association, A. B. Bement, Secretary of the Lincoln highway association, "Good Roads" Earle and other prominent men are slated to speak, and this afternoon, autos take the visitors about the city on a sightseeing trip, 200 machines having been placed at their disposal. Various hours during the day have been set aside for viewing the exhibits. Tonight, President W. W. Mountain of the Flint chamber of commerce will speak, there will be moving pictures of good roads and an hour of vaudeville fun making.

Tomorrow (Thursday) will be known as road commissioners day and Frank F. Rogers, state highway commissioner; John I. Gibson, head of the West Michigan Development Bureau and others will be heard at the morning meeting and in the afternoon gravel and macadam road construction will be treated along with reports from county road commissioners from all over the state.

The Friday morning session will be in charge of the department of civil engineering of the University of Michigan and technical experts, heads of different departments at the state school will touch on various phases of practical subjects such as selection of surfaces and the work of the university labratory in assisting in the great road work.

In the afternoon, M. B. Greenough, chief engineer of the National Paving Brick Manufacturers' Association, will speak and will be followed by W. M. Bryant, field secretary of the state association, who will tell of the work of the association and that of the field secretary for the year.

MEMORIAL SERVICES

To Be Held At Methodist Church Sunday Morning

A union service will be held in the Methodist church Sunday morning to commemorate the lives and deeds of our departed heroes. Our patriotism should be stirred at this period as never before.

All are invited to participate in the event.

BIG PARADE ON MAY 30TH

DECORATE YOUR AUTO AND GET IN LINE

Let's Make Petoskey And Other Near By Towns Sit Up And Take Notice Of Us

An elaborate and interesting program has been prepared this year for Charlevoix's celebration of Memorial day. Arrangements for this program are in the hands of Baxter Relief Corps, who will meet at their hall on the morning of May 30th, at 9:00 o'clock.

A parade will form on Bridge street and Park Avenue at 9:30 to march to the cemetery. The program for exercises at the cemetery is as follows:

Opening prayer by Rev. C. E. Taggart.

Singing of "America" by school children.

Old Soldiers ritualistic work.

Singing of "Nearer My God to Thee" by quartet.

Relief Corps ritualistic work.

Patriotic selections by orchestra accompanied by piano on float.

Address by Mayor S. M. Rose.

"Star Spangled Banner" sung by all good Americans.

Closing prayer by Rev. L. C. Vinyard.

The parade is to be formed of the various local organizations, G. A. R., Relief corps, school children, etc., and the Boy Scouts will act as a guard of honor. H. A. Craig, superintendent of schools, will be marshal of the parade.

We want to make this the best Decoration day celebration Charlevoix has ever seen and it is especially urged upon owners of automobiles that they appear with them appropriately decorated in the parade. Several of the garages have already donated cars for this purpose, but there will be room for as many as care to take part. And everyone should care. Other towns around us never let the opportunity slip for a demonstration, patriotic or otherwise and we have been equally deficient in this respect in past years. Let's all get together this time and show 'em we are on the map. Be on hand with your auto at 9:30 sharp. Plenty of flags and bunting and pretty girls—please—also May flowers, if you can get them.

NON-CATHOLIC MISSION COMING THIS WEEK

Rev. Xavier Sutton of Passionist Order Speaks On 28th.

On account of the great number of her members the Catholic Church deserves attention. When, therefore, on account of the false reports about her in our day and the misrepresentations of her teachings she is obliged to speak, men should grant her a hearing. The plain exposition of her doctrines and discipline is at the same time a vindication of her mission, for "truth to be loved, need only be known."

A very effective means for giving such a desired popular explanation of the Catholic church's attitude is undoubtedly the so-called mission for non-Catholics. Such a mission is to be given in St. Mary's church. The same will start Monday, May 28th at 8 o'clock in the evening. The Rev. Xavier Sutton of the Passionist Order, who will conduct the mission, is well qualified for this work. The experience of eighteen years devoted to this kind of mission life is his valuable asset. The Reverend missionary is a convert and, therefore, knows the sentiments of his non-Catholic friends and is able to talk to them both as the representative of the Catholic church and as their friend.

The people of Charlevoix will have the opportunity of listening to this eloquent speaker every evening at 8 o'clock. For the convenience of all, cards, on which the subjects of the free lectures are printed, will be distributed.

A question-box will also be placed in the rear of the church. In this box anyone may deposit a written question, which the lecturer will answer the following evening. The questions may also be mailed to Rev. Xavier Sutton, C. P., Charlevoix, Mich. The Reverend missionary extends a kind invitation to all.

CONVENTION WAS A SUCCESS

EPWORTH LEAGUE HOLDS NOTABLE MEETING

Fine Program For Ensuing Year and Earnest Pledges Made For Active Christian Service

The district Epworth League convention, held here the 10th, 11th and 12th was a great success, about 150 delegates representing the different leagues all over the district being present.

President Royle, of Elk Rapids, in connection with the local committee, furnished a very attractive and inspiring program. Rev. R. P. Norton, state treasurer and pastor at South Haven, outlined the program mapped out by our bishop, holding round table talks on Friday and Saturday nights and delivering the sermon on Sunday morning.

After hearing the bishop's program, we feel sure that Michigan is to have the greatest Epworth League in the world. The following is the goal, which this district will strive to reach during the coming year.

50 young people to decide for the ministry or deaconess work.

$500.00 for missions this coming year.

25 delegates to the state institute at Albion.

50 members to take the Time Legion Pledge.

Our district superintendent wound up the convention Sunday evening with a sermon which only he could deliver and when the call was made for every mother who would consent to let God have his way with their child to do anything or go anywhere at anytime, there were about forty mothers who responded and then when the same call was made to the young people who would let God's way be theirs to do anything he asked, the number was increased to over one hundred.

We feel sure that this convention has been a great inspiration to our young people, who ask your cooperation in the future.

ADVERTISE IN THE COURIER

ROGERS TO SPEAK JUNE 6

MASS MEETING WILL CONVENE AT COURT HOUSE

Townspeople and Farmers Urged To Be Present To Hear Road Laws Explained

State highway commissioner Frank F. Rogers has consented to visit Charlevoix on Wednesday evening, June 6th and address the people on the interpretation and application of the various road laws, explaining the terms of the double-reward and other knotty matters connected with highway development that we would all like to have cleared up.

At the regular meeting of the Charlevoix Commercial association last Friday evening, county road commissioner O. D. Hammond presented a communication from Mr. Rogers answering one which Mr. Hammond had written him, and among other matters stating that he would be glad to attend a road meeting in Charlevoix on any day convenient during the week of June 4th.

Motion was introduced to the effect that the association ask Mr. Richard Lewis to write Commissioner Rogers, accepting his offer and soliciting his reply by wire, setting a date of his own choosing. This was done and Mr. Lewis received the Commissioner's reply Tuesday morning, fixing June 6th as the date.

Now it is up to us all to pack that court house on the evening of Mr. Roger's visit and show him that we are more than lukewarm on the good roads question. Perhaps there is no section of the state to which good roads will mean more ultimately than to the county of Charlevoix. Besides, we want to know where we are at on this concrete road proposition before we go any further. We know it is the road to build, but the ways and means must not be neglected. Just what proportion will we get? Will we get it all at once or over a period of years? Are there any restrictions that we must comply with? Someone has suggested that we can raise enough by direct tax to furnish our quota of the expense without bonding—that in this way the work may be done and the debt paid five years sooner than if we bond. Mr. Rogers can tell us all about these things, and if we are interested in Charlevoix county at all we must be interested in what he has to say to us. Don't forget the date; Wednesday evening, June 6th at the court house.

REGISTRATION DAY IS TUESDAY, JUNE 5

If Over 21 or Under 31, You Must Comply With Law

Registration day is nearly upon us and if your 21st birthday is here or behind you on June 5th, or if you have yet to reach your 31st anniversary, you must, if a male person, register in the voting precinct where you make your permanent home. The only exceptions to this rule are persons already members of the military or naval service of the United States, which includes army, navy, marine corps, national guard, naval militia (while in the service of the U. S.) officers in the Officers Reserve corps and enlisted men in the Enlisted Reserve corps while in active service.

Everyhody else between the prescribed ages MUST register, rich or poor, sick or well,, blind, halt or maimed, or subject himself to imprisonment as a misdemeanant. It will not do to make evasive or false answers to the questions put to you when you do register, although as good, loyal Americans we do not suppose you intend to do this anyway.

All persons registered will be furnished with a registration certificate which they should keep carefully in their possession, as any police officer has the right to demand your certificate and it will save you trouble to have it handy. More details on this matter next week.

BUICK

VALVE-IN-HEAD

Motor Car

CONSISTENT with Buick history, the Buicks of 1917 are essentially better Buicks, being the refinements and developments of another year of endeavor.

Although the Buick organization has conscientiously striven to increase production in answer to the evergrowing demand for Buick cars, not once have they lost sight of the importance of making each individual Buick car intrinsically Buick in quality.

Buick cars are quality cars—the kind of a car that fulfills the most exacting demands of the most particular buyer.

It is particularly satisfying to the Buick owner to find, as he does, that his choice is everywhere admired and approved.

Every detail of body and chassis is a match for Buick performance, and the combination is a most pleasing and desirable one.

HEART of the SUNSET

By REX BEACH

Author of "The Spoilers," "The Iron Trail," "The Silver Horde," Etc.

"Good! See that you keep your word. On the day that you forget for the first time Luis Longorio will come to see you. And then what!" He scowled at them fiercely.

"We will not forget," the Garcins chorused.

There was a murmur from the onlookers; someone cried, "Viva Longorio!"

The general bowed smilingly; then, taking Alaire's arm, he waved the idlers out of his path with a magnificent gesture.

When, later in the day, Mrs. Austin came to say good-by and thank the

"We Promise!" Eagerly Cried the Pair.

Mexican for his courtesies, he humbly begged permission to pay his respects that evening at her hotel, and she could not refuse.

As the coach went bouncing across the International bridge, Dolores said, spitefully: "It will take more than the pardon of poor Juan Garcia to unlock heaven for that bandit. Do you notice the way he looks at you? It is enough to damn him for all eternity."

Upon her arrival at the hotel Alaire received an agreeable surprise, for as her veledo passed at the curb David Law stepped forward, hat in hand.

"What bloodthirsty business brings you to Pueblo?" she queried, when they had exchanged greetings.

Law smiled at her. "I came to offer free board and lodging to a poor Greaser. But he ain't here. And you, ma'am?"

When Dave learned that she was counting upon General Luis Longorio's aid in securing justice, he regarded her with some curiosity as he inquired:

"Isn't Longorio the very man who robbed you?"

"Yes."

"Mexicans are peculiar people," Law said slowly. "At least we don't understand their business methods or their habits of mind. From my experience with them, I wouldn't put much confidence in this Longorio's word. I say this, and I'm supposed to have a little Mexican blood in me."

During this brief conversation they had entered the hotel, and she gave her hand to Law.

"I hope we shall see each other again," she murmured.

"That's more'n likely; I'm located in your neighborhood now," he informed her. "I'm leaving for Jonesville in the morning."

"By train?"

"No'm. I'm goin' to follow the river road if I can get an automobile."

Mindful of the Ranger's courtesy to her on their previous meeting, Alaire said: "Won't you go with us? We intend to start early."

Dave was nearly speechless with delight, and when the mistress of Las Palmas had gone upstairs he felt inclined to pinch himself to see if he were dreaming. He had pursued a fruitless quest during the past few days, and his resentment had grown as he became certain that Tod Lewis had sent him on a wild-goose chase; but the sight of Alaire miraculously restored his good spirits, and the prospect of a long, intimate ride in her company changed the whole trend of his thoughts. His disappointment at not seeing her upon his visit to Las Palmas had only served to enhance his memories of their first meeting, and time now had deepened his interest tenfold. Yes, she was "The Lone Star," the estrella brilliante of his empty sky. There could be no doubt about his feelings; he was more than romantically interested, the mere sight of her had electrified him. The discovery distressed him, and he very properly decided that the affair should end here, since it could lead to nothing except disappointment.

* * * * * * *

At the time of this story, relations between the United States and the established government of Mexico were such that a hostility had sprung up between the troops fronting each other along the Rio Grande, and in consequence their officers no longer crossed the boundary, even when off duty. It created a flurry of suppressed excitement, therefore, when Luis Longorio, the autocrat of the Potosista forces, boldly crossed the bridge, traversed the streets of Pueblo, and entered the Hamilton hotel.

From his seat in the lobby Law heard the general inquire for Mrs. Austin, and then saw him ascend in the direction of the parlor. He rose and strolled restlessly about the hotel. A half-hour passed and Longorio did not reappear; an hour dragged by, and then Dave took occasion to go to his room. A glance through the open parlor door showed the foreigner in closest conversation with Mrs. Austin. They were laughing; they were alone; even Dolores was nowhere to be seen. He chewed several cigars viciously before realizing that he was jealous—yes, madly, unreasonably jealous.

So! His divinity was not as unapproachable as he had imagined. Doubtless Longorio was mad over her, which explained the fellow's willingness to help her exact reparation from his government. Fine doings for a respectable married woman! It was wrong, scandalous, detestable!

Had Dave only known the truth, he would have gained a grim comfort from it, for Alaire Austin was not enjoying herself that evening. Her caller stayed on interminably, and she became restive under the flow of his conversation. For some reason or other, Longorio was not the romantic figure he had been; in his citizen's clothes he was only a dandified Mexican gallant like any number of others. The color was gone from the picture; this quixotic guerrilla hero, this elegant Don Elias, was nothing more than a tall, olive-skinned foreigner, whose ardor was distasteful. Longorio was tiresome.

CHAPTER X.

Jose Sanchez Swears an Oath.

Jose Sanchez made use of the delay at Pueblo to institute further inquiries regarding his missing cousin, but nowhere could he find the slightest trace. Jose swore an oath that he would learn the truth if it required his whole lifetime, and, if it should turn out that his sainted relative had indeed met with foul play—well! Jose told his friends they could judge, by looking at him, the sort of man he was. He proudly displayed Longorio's revolver, and called it his cousin's little avenger. The weapon had slain many; it had a duty still to perform, so he said.

Jose intended to confide his purpose to Mrs. Austin, but when it came time to start for Las Palmas there was a fourth passenger in the automobile, and he was obliged to hold his tongue for the moment. Alaire was in good humor, and expressed her relief at escaping from everything Mexican.

"I haven't seen a newspaper for ages, and I don't know what is going on at Jonesville or anywhere else," she confided.

Dave told her of the latest developments in the Mexican situation, of house happenings, and when she asked him about his own doings, he informed her of the affair which had brought him to Pueblo.

Of course all three of his companions were breathlessly interested in the story of Pino Garza's death; Dolores and Jose did not allow a word to escape them.

"Carramba! It required bravery to ride alone into that rincon," Jose declared. "I know Pino Garza well, and he could shoot like the devil."

"You said your horse saved your life," Mrs. Austin went on. "How do you mean?" When Dave had explained, she cried, quickly, "You weren't riding—Bessie Belle?"

"Yes. She's buried where she dropped. I've been right lonesome since she went away."

Alaire turned a quick glance upon the speaker to find his face set and his eyes miserable. Impulsively she laid her hand upon his arm, saying:

"I know how you must feel. Do you know what has always been my dearest wish? To be able to talk with animals and make friends of them."

Dave smiled absentmindedly. "There's a wonderful book about a near-sighted old Frenchman who was cast away on a penguin island. He saw the big birds walking around, and thought they were human beings."

"How did you happen to read Anatole France?" Alaire asked, with a sharp stare of surprise.

The Ranger stirred, but he did not meet her eyes. "Well," said he, "I read 'most anything I can get. A feller meets up with strange books just like he meets up with strange people."

"But books! How—?" There was an brief silence. "Mr. Law, you went to school in the East, didn't you? Where?" The man hesitated, at which she insisted, "Where?"

Dave reluctantly turned upon her a pair of eyes in the depths of which

"You Went to School in the East, Didn't You?"

there lurked the faintest twinkle. "Cornell," said he.

Alaire gasped. After a while she remarked, stiffly, "You have a peculiar sense of humor."

"Now don't be offended," he begged her. "I'm a good deal like a chameleon; I unconsciously change my color to suit my surroundings. When we first met I saw that you took me for one thing, and since then I've tried not to show you your mistake."

"Why did you let me send you those silly books? I dare say you've had a fine laugh at my expense?"

"No!" gravely denied the man.

They had come to an arroyo containing a considerable stream of muddy water, and Law was forced to get out to plug the carburetor and stop the oil intakes to the crank-case. This done, Alaire ran the machine through on the self-starter. When Jose's "Caramba!" and Dolores' shrieks had subsided, and they were again under way, Mrs. Austin, it seemed, had regained her good humor.

"You will receive no more of my favorite authors," she told Dave, spitefully. "I'll keep them to read myself."

"Do you still believe in chivalry?"

Alaire turned her eyes upon the questioner, and there were no girlish illusions in them. "Do you?" she queried, with a faint curl of her lip.

"Why—yes."

She shook her head. "Men have changed. Nowadays they are all selfish and sordid. But—I shouldn't generalize, for I'm a notorious man-hater, you know."

He nodded, whereupon she eyed him speculatively. "Let us see. You are a man—how far would you go for the woman you loved?"

"The limit!"

Mrs. Austin frowned at this light-seeming answer. "I suppose you mean that you would make any sacrifice?"

"Yes; that's it."

"Would you give up the woman herself, if you considered it your duty?"

"No. There couldn't be any duty higher than love—to my way of thinking. But you shouldn't take me as a specimen. I'm not a good representative of my sex."

"I think you are a very good one," Alaire said quietly, and Dave realized that no flattery was intended.

Despite the rough roads, they made fair time, and the miles of cactus and scrawny brush rolled swiftly past. The morning sun swung higher, and by midday the metal of the automobile had become as hot as a frying pan. They stopped at various goat ranches to inquire about Adolfo Urbina, and at noon halted beside a watercourse for lunch.

Dave was refilling the radiator when he overheard Jose in conversation with Mrs. Austin.

"Nowhere a trace!" the horse-breaker was saying. "No one has seen him. Poor Rosa Morales will die of a broken heart."

CLARKE SCHOOL

We miss the eighth grade boys, however, we wish them the best of success.

The children made appropriate carnations for Mother's Day.

The fifth and sixth grades are keeping a record of all the birds seen this spring. Many new and very interesting kinds have been described.

Teddy Sheldon spelled the school down on the "One hundred troublesome words."

Mrs. Ed Gregory and Miss Edna Scott visited school Friday afternoon.

Our school closes Friday with a short program, after which refreshments will be served.

BARNARD NOTES

Clifford Mayhew, who has rented the Grinnell farm for this season, moved on to it last week. His mother, Mrs. Mayhew, from near East Jordan, is visiting with him and his family.

About forty-five neighbors, friends and relatives sprang a very neat and complete surprise of Clarence Beattie at his home on Monday evening, the occasion being the day after the anniversary of his 26th birthday. About a dozen of the company had already made their appearance before Mr. Beattie took a tumble and began to think there was something doing. He was quite overcome later towards the close of the evening when Earl Shapton, in behalf of the company, wished him many happy returns of the day and presented him with a fine willow rocker, as a token of their esteem.

A three story birthday cake, surmounted by 26 candles and made by his mother, Mrs. Albert Beattie, and a delicious angle food cake, concocted by Mrs. Joseph Clark, were very much admired and heartily appreciated. Other refreshments in the form of sandwiches, buns, pickles, cake and coffee, were also served. At a late hour, the guests departed, hoping to meet again on many other happy occasions.

COUNTY NORMAL NOTES

Miss Maude E. Allen of the state library commission has been with us this week giving the class some instructions relative to libraries.

Our penmanship results are very gratifying. The state department had every student of each county normal in the state write one page of the Declaration of Independence. They were then graded uniformly, and put into one of five classes: 90, 80, 70, 60 and 50. We had among our eight papers sent, seven 90's and one 80, making a general average of 88.7. The next highest average was 87.3 for Ionia county normal.

County normal commencement exercises will be held at the Methodist church Tuesday evening, June 5. Hon. J. M. Munson, deputy superintendent of public instruction will give the address.

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank all neighbors and friends for the kindness they have shown us in our recent bereavement occasioned by the death of our son and brother.

The Needs of the Hour

Michigan Must Help Feed the Country

FARMERS: Make every acre of your farm produce, and produce more than ever before.

CITY PEOPLE: Make your garden feed your family, and others if possible.

VACANT LOT OWNERS: Make every vacant space produce food product of some kind.

U. S. Agricultural Department Is Mobilizing the Agricultural Interests of the country—Government report estimates large shortage in Wheat Crop.

Means must be devised promptly to insure the largest possible production of food supplies. It must be recognized that the man or boy who puts all his energies into the increase of food supplies is as truly a soldier of the republic as he who, in uniform, fights in the ranks.

WAR LIFE INSURANCE

Every man liable to service, will soon be called to arms. Most Life Insurance Companies attach a war clause with very high rates, to all policies issued during war.

The Peoria Life Insurance Co.

is patriotic. It will issue policies at regular rates, to soldiers, covering service anywhere in continental America, with total disability also provided for. This is a strong Old Line Company. Every man enlisting, and every man liable to be a soldier, should provide against the future. Let me show our policies.

GROW BUCKWHEAT SAYS DEPT. OF AGDICULTURE

Valuable Not Only As Food For Man But For Poultry As Well

Buckwheat should be grown in larger quantity this year in New York, Pennsylvnnia, Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin, New England, and in the mountain sections of Maryland, W. Virginia, Kentucky, North Carolina, and Tennessee, where it is known to be a safe crop. It should be sown on land where other crops have failed and on old meadow and pasture lands where the yields of hay and grass promise to be small. This is the advice given by the United States Department of Agriculture to farmers in all States named, but especially to those in New York and Pennsylvania, where about two-thirds of the buckwheat crop of the country is now grown. In the more northern States, buckwheat can be sown almost anywhere without reference to elevation, but farther south it is best adapted to the uplands and mountainous section.

Buckwheat should be sown on land prepared as for corn. It is an excellent crop to sow where corn or some other crop has been planted but where a stand bas not been secured. Best results are obtained where the land is plowed early and is well prepared, but good results cnn be secured by sowing immediately after plowing and harrowing.

Uses of Buckwheat.

Buckwheat is valuable as a human food. It is also an excellent feed for poultry. The middlings remaining as a by-product after milling are, on account of their high protein content, a valuable feed for dairy cows. The production of buckwheat will help to provide food in many districts this year for local consumption and tbus help to avoid the danger of shortage due to possible lack of adequate transportation facilities.

STEADFAST CONFIDENCE

The Following Statement Should Form Conclusive Proof of Merit to Every Charlevoix Reader.

Could stronger proof of the merit of any remedy be desired than the statements of grateful endorsers who say their confidence has been undiminished by lapse of time? These are the kind of statements that are nppearing constantly in your local papers for Doan's Kidney Pills. They are twice-told and confirmed with new enthusiasm. Can any reader doubt the following. It's from a Charlevoix resident:

Mrs. John Cook, 307 Mason St., Charlevoix, gave the following statement on October 26, 1911; "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills on different occasions for kidney disorder and backache and they have always given me splendid results."

On October 4, 1916, Mrs. Cook added: "Doan's Kidney Pills cured me of kidney trouble and I have had no occasion to use a kidney medicine since. I am always ready to say a good word for Doan's Kidney Pills."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same tbnt Mrs. Cook has twice publicly recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

NEW CREAM DEPOT

Charles Lamphear Now Buying Locally For Swift & Co

Charles Lamphear, (see ad appearing elsewhere in this issue) the "ice cream man" has taken the agency in this city to supply Swift & Company of Cadillac with cream and wants the farmers who have this commodity for sale to know that they will not have to make long drives to outlying communities that have creameries in order to dispose of it, nor go to the trouble attendnnt upon personally shipping their surplus by rail.

A creamery is a valuable adjunct to any town that lies within an agricultural district. Since the one we had went out of commission, it would be hard to estimate the actual money loss to the town through the diversion of this business to other better equipped localities.

The cows of our "binterland" produce as good milk and cream as any in the country, and while we wish Mr. Lamphear success in his new venture because he deserves it, we are no less interested from the more selfish motive of increased business for everybody.

FAREWELL PARTY

Charlevoix Residents Honored Guests In Flint Home

The following item, taken from a Flint paper, is evidence that Charlevoix residents who have been in that city for indefinite periods, have made many close friends who regret their departure.

"Miss Mildred Hamlin of 433 West Second avenue entertained last evening in honor of Loren Hart who is leaving tomorrow for his home in Charlevoix. The appointments were in patriotic colors, and a feature of the evening was a huge spider web when unraveled led the guests to the refreshment table. Several unique games were played. The guests included Misses Waneta Buecking, Alma Lehr, Ruth Lyman, Edwin K. Jakeway, Clarence Hanshaw, Harry Winship, Loren Hart, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Myers."

Until further notice we will give a dollar discount on all tires for Ford Cars, G & J. make—none better. S. Orlowski & Son—Adv 20tf

COMMUNICATIONS

WHEREAS, the blessing of peace, with which our country has been crowned for many years and which our president, Woodrow Wilson, has so untiringly sought to maintain, has under the desperate strain of the awful world war ceased, and

WHEREAS, we have actually entered the conflict in which our country must pay the price of freedom—the blood of her sons, and

WHEREAS, we feel a keen sense of personnl and collective responsibility to God, our country and her sons, and

WHEREAS, the Red Cross society, the value of whose ministry of mercy is so universally recognized, has been organized in our city;

BE IT RESOLVED, that we urge upon the membership of this church the importance of each and every one entering into this great work of Christian service, and furthermore be it resolved that we hereby offer the use of any part or parts of our church property to the Red Cross society, as occasion may demand.

FINALLY, BE IT RESOLVED that our pulpit be draped with the American flag and that prayers for our president and congress be offered in our worship until peace be restored.

Adopted by the First Baptist church of Charlevoix Thursday, May 17, 1917.

A communication to the Woman's Club from the Monday Study Club of Boyne City invites every club of Charlevoix to send delegates to a meeting to be held in that city, Saturday, May 26th.

The purpose is to organize a county Federation of Woman'a Clubs.

Mrs. Bulson, president of the Michigan State Federation will be speaker and guest of honor on that occasion. All members of Civic, Study, Mother's, Literary or other clubs in this county are invited to enjoy the picnic dinner at 12:30, also the afternoon program.

If weather permits the dinner will be eaten in the city park. Each woman is requested to bring her lunch, plate, cup, fork and spoon.

Business meeting of delegates at 10:30 A. M., Wolverine Hotel.

A splendid opportunity to become acquainted with active women of our own county.

Signed, Publicity Committee.

SCHOOL COMMISSIONER'S NOTES

A second eighth grade examination will be held May 31 and June 1st for those pupils who were unavoidably delayed from taking the regular examination by sickness, quarantine, or other reasons. It is not intended as a second trial for anyone who failed in the regular examination. In fact, no pupil who took the regular examination will be allowed to write the second examination. The test shall be held in the commissioner's office, and at only this one place in the county. Questions are furnished by the state superintendent. All wishing to write on this test should communicate with the county commissioner.

From now to June 1. Time to take the school census. Are you at it?

W. L. Coffey of the state department will visit six of our rural schools Monday the 21st at the special invitation of the school boards of these respective schools. His schedule will be published later.

The Mountain school closed Wednesday with a program and picnic. A royal good time was anticipated and we do not doubt but that everyone had a good time.

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our sincere thanks to the family of Mr. Adams, the coast guards and all who helped in the recovery of the body of our dear boy and to all the friends and lodges for the beautiful floral gifts.

When pre-shrunk as applied to wash skirts really means "pre-shrunk"

To many women, a "pre-shrunk" wash skirt is an idea, not a reality; a myth, something heard of but never seen.

Many dips in the tub always reveal some failure in the so-called pre-shrunk wash skirts. Either the waist band tightens up, or the skirt grows short in front, or it pulls askew on the side.

Here are the facts about a real wash skirt that can be tubbed again and again without a sign of disappointment.

The Coranado Skirt
Price $3.85

The Charlevoix Skirt
Price $5.00

Just five years ago, The H. Black Company, Tailors of New York and Cleveland, perfected a process of shrinking. It amounted to an invention, only it was not patented, for the success of the method depended upon the thoroughness of attending to each little detail.

But the H. Black Company is the house that made the Wooltex label synonymous with thoroughness.

To start with, each piece of material has to pass an extremely rigid inspection. Then comes the special process of shrinking.

Even the waist band is shrunk—also it is made after a method that prevents curling up or softening after laundering—you will never have to bone or wire it.

Any article as successful as this skirt is sure to have imitations. As is so often the case, imitations only imitate. They cannot duplicate.

But these are the original pre-shrung wash skirts, made and guaranteed by The H. Black Company.

Best of all, they are as new and smart as they are serviccable—and we have them in a wide range of stunning models, priced from $2.85 to $6.00.

SCHOOL CLOSES WITH A PICNIC

SCHOLARS SPEND DAY IN CAMPBELL'S PARK

Basket Dinner and Ball Games Feature of Day—Teaching Force Changes

The Ellsworth schools celebrated the finish of another school year last Friday by a picnic at Campbell's Park. Although the high school room still had two days more of school, they joined with the primary and intermediate rooms to make the affair one to be long remembered by the pupils as by their teachers.

After the dinner, ball games were in order and several embryo big leaguers were seen in action.

The school this year has been more than usually successful and the pupils as well as their parents regret that the same corps of teachers could not be engaged for the coming year. The principal, M. A. Brail, has accepted a position at Sand Lake at a good advance in salary over that received here, and the best wishes of his many friends in Ellsworth and vicinity go with him to his new charge. His successor has not yet been engaged.

Miss Best and Miss Patterson, the teachers in the intermediate and primary rooms, have not yet fully decided on what they will do the coming year. Miss Best will be succeeded as intermediate teacher by Miss Ruth Chelles, teacher the past year of the Wright school where she gave excellent satisfaction, and the successor to Miss Patterson will be Miss Amy Laur of Mancelona. Miss Laur, although not acquainted here, comes highly recommended and we predict another good year for nineteen hundred and eighteen.

Emmett Denny, whose parents reside at this place, and Miss Mildred, the daughter of Chas H. Pennell, of Bellaire, were married at the home of the bride last Monday morning at ten o'clock. The young people will reside at Flushing. They left Bellaire on the noon train the day they were married, followed by the best wishes of their many friends.

Alex Holmes was taken to Lockwood hospital at Petoskey last Friday, where he was operated on for appendicitis. At last reports he was doing as well as could be expected. He was recently married to Miss Bessie Dovish of East Jordan and was living at that place and working at the Chemical plant when taken ill.

Mrs. Bentley suffered a painful accident last Monday evening when she fell from the porch at her home on Park street. It was thought at first that her hip was broken, but when the doctor arrived that was not found to be the case. She is confined to her bed however and it will be several days before she will be able to be about again.

If the authors of the splash in last week's Courier will kindly call on "our regular reporter," he will assure them that he is not "peeved;" that he is not worrying as to whether the ladies of Ellsworth have any use for a barber or not, and he will alsoapologize for not mentioning their name in the paper more regularly, as that is evidently their reason for being sore.

FAIL TO DECIDE ON SCHOOL SITE

Matter Now In Hands of the Township Board

Fifty six of the voters of school district No. 9, together with about fifteen neutrals, who simply attended to see the fireworks, met at Boss' hall on Monday evening and attempted to decide on a site for the new school house.

The famous convention at Bay City in June 1912 was duplicated here on a small scale. Charges of everything from graft to treason were freely made, but after the third ballot, with the vote thirty two to twenty three in favor of the Yettaw site, and there being no chance of getting a two thirds vote to decide, it was voted to adjourn and leave the choice of a site to the township board to be decided by them.

Several ladies exercised their right of suffrage at this meeting and learned the quiet, decorous manner in which men decide such questions as these.

The township board will probably meet some day this week and it is hoped we will find out at that meeting where the new school building will be located, but as special school meetings are a habit in District No. 9, we expect several more this summer.

Chronology of a Walnut

1871—W. Milbourne Wilson brought a walnut from Ontario and planted on his homestead in Banks Township, from which grew a very beautiful tree.

1909—Lightning struck this tree damaging to the extent of the death of one half.

1916—Jim Wilson cut down the defiant Walnut tree taking the log of its trunk to Central Lake where he had it cut into lumber from which is to be made for each member of the family, their choice of cabinet work to be a keepsake.

1917—Brought lumber home to the farm where any one interested may see one of the rarest and choicest lords of lumber ever drawn from any mill in our estimation.

USE YOUR TRACTOR

"Help Your Neighbors" Is Secretary Vrooman's Appeal

"Help your neighbors" is the keynote of a special appeal to tractor owners issued today by Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, Carl Vrooman.

"Every farmer who owns a tractor," he says, "owes it to his country this spring to do all the custom or exchange work he can do without neglecting his own work. Every hour that his tractor would otherwise be idle it ought to be at work helping a neighbor who is behindhand with his plowing or harrowing. Make your outfit work from dawn to dark; make it work all night if you have enough operators to fill the shifts. The acreage to be harvested this fall hangs on the plow. Don't let an acre that might otherwise be planted go untilled because your tractor is in the shed. Help your neighbors and thus do your part in strengthening the allied lines on the battle fronts of Europe."

MAY NEGLECT THE LIVE STOCK

M. A. C. DEAN SEES DANGER IN CASH CROP

R. S. Shaw Points Out Liability Of Animal Shortage In Present Farm Propaganda

In the hue and cry wbich have been raised through the state and nation to spur farmers on to producing bigger crops, Dean Robert S. Shaw, head of the department of agriculture in the Michigan Agricultural college, sees possibilities of danger to the livestock industry. Unless farmers and livestock men, he declares, carefully conserve and save their breeding stock, the state will in a short time be hnrd pressed to meet the nation's demands for ment, and blood for new herds.

"Unprecedented efforts," said Dean Shaw, "are being put forth by a great variety of organizations to stimulate increased crop production throughout the United States, for the purpose of meeting an impending food crisis, not only in America but in all parts of the world as well. Farmers are being urged to produce maximum crops of staples such as wheat, rye, corn, oats, barley potatoes nnd beans. Boys' and Girls' clubs are being organized to increase vegetable production, and city, town and village gardening is being stimulated and fostered as never before. The easily perishnble vegetable, by partial replacement of the staple, may effect some saving in the latter, but the real relief at home and abroad is dependont upon the production of meats, milk, wool, pork, cereals, edible legumes and tubers.

"In the nation-wide propaganda to increase crop production, the animal industry has not, up to date, been given due attention. Publicity has been limited largely to the banker and to boys' and girls' pig and calf clubs. Any stimulus applied solely to cash crop production is certain to result in diminished animal production. On January 1, 1917, there were in the United States 21,126,000 horses, 4,639,000 mules, 63,617,000 cattle, 48,483,000 sheep and 67,453,000 hogs. During the previous year there was a slight decrease in horses, sheep and swine, with some increase in cattle and mules. Since 1910 the number of sheep has decreased. The increase in mules, horses, cattle and swine has been slight and not in keeping with our increased population and the combined home and foreign demands.

"Estimates indicate that fully 50 per cent of the breeding stocks of Europe have been alrendy destroyed, which means that should the war cease soon, they will have to rely on other sources for some of their meat, milk and wool supplies for two or three years to come. Prices offered on our American markets for meat animals are so dangerously high at present, that sacrifices of breeding stocks are apt to occur. The next three years would seem to present an unequaled opportunity for the American stockman to increase bis product, pursuing in part, methods of productian closely associnted with the maintenance of soil fertility. Every agency in the whole county engaged in stimulating agricultural production, should ever keep in mind the importonce of maintaining a proper halance which will stimulate the production of animals as well as crops.

WEATHER GOOD TO THE INSECT

VERY FAVORABLE SPRING FOR LITTLE PESTS

Care Should Be Taken In Preparing Ground For Alfalfa Say M. A. C. Sharpe

A discreet reminder cautioning Michigan farmers to keep a "weather eye" open for insect pests has been made to state agriculturists by Prof. Rufus T. Pettit, head of the M. A. C. department of entomology. Professor Pettit, recalling Michigan's costly experience with the army worm in 1914, is pointing out that much of the present spring has been attended by weather conditions almost identical with those which were a forerunner of the worm visitations of three years ago.

"The present spring," said Professor Pettit in a statement from the college, "has opened with cold, wet weather of the sort particularly favorable to plant lice, cut-worms and army worms, though it is aot yet too late for bright, warm weather to overcome, in part, the influence of present conditions.

"These pests normally are held in check by insects which feed upon them, parasites, in other words, which work inside the bodies of the worms and plant lice and multiply right along with them. The parasites, however, require warmer weather than the pests, and a cold wet spring for this reason produces conditions favorable to the pests nnd unfavornble to the parasites, a state of affairs which usually results in the pests getting a good start before the parasites can commence work.

"For this reason, it would be well this season for farmers to at least be prepared for plant lice on fruits, garden vegetables and ornamentals, and for cut-worms on various crops. Special watch should be kept for the latter on spring-plowed grass sod.

"Cut worms can be controlled by poisoned bran bait, the formula for which can be procured by writing in to the college for Bulletin 73. Plant lice can be checked by spraying with a solution of 40 per cent nicotine sulphate, diluted at the rate of one pint to 100 gallons of soap suds, or one ounce to about six gallons of soapy water. Use about four or five pounds of laundry soap to make 100 gallons of soap suds, and spray very carefully to hit every louse."

More than common care should be exercised by farmers this spring in the preparation of ground for alfalfa, say soils men of the Michigan Agricultural College. Failure to look to every detail, they add, may result in a poor stand of this crop and consequent heavy loss to husbandmen.

"Because of the wetness of the present spring," one of the M. A. C. soils specialists has said, "many fields intended for alfalfa probably will not be plowed early enough to get them worked down to a proper seed bed. If the soil is sandy, a thorough double disking, followed by a roller, should put the soil in good condition.

"If the soil is heavy, it should be plowed shallow from three to four inches deep, and disked at once with the disks set straight so as to compact the soil as much as possible. After this, the smoothing harrow ought to be used as frequently as possible until seeding time. By this means a satisfactory seed bed may be prepared.

"All these precautions are necessary, for many failures to secure a good stand of alfalfa are due to lack of proper preparation of the seed bed. Alfalfa is especially sensitive to the condition of the soil and since the crop occupies the land for several years, it is worth while to spend plenty of time in getting the ground into the proper condition. It is desirable to plow the land early and deep, and then to work it down into a firm compact seed bed. This improves the soil, frees it from weeds, and conserves moisture."

Editor, Courier:

The story of H. W. Morse, who recently told the Charlevoix authorities of how his wife was forced to teach school on the Beavers without pay last winter and his children compelled to go scantily clothed through the neglect of the House of David people, is not true.

As an ex-member of the House of David, I feel that it is my duty to disprove Mr. Morse's shocking and plausible story. Contrary to the statements made by Mr. Morse in the article that appeared in last week's issue of the Courier, he left Benton Harbor in the summer—not in the fall and then of his own free will, because no one with a reprobate delusion of the faith taught by the House of David is ever sent out to preach, although anyone may go if they insist on doing so.

There is a difference in being a member of the House of David and understanding the faith. Those not understanding may turn traitor to the cause, as this party has evidently done. As for making an agreement to get his wife this spring, such could not be, for the wife is always given privilege to go with her husband.

There is no force work in the House of David at all. Each one is free to use his own judgment. No one is encouraged to join who does not understand the faith, but is rather discouraged. I was there nine months and always had plenty to eat and wear and all are treated the same.

Mr. Morse went to St. James, Beaver Island, and his wife was sent to him at that place. The wife was put safely in his care with food enough for two days. I, myself, stood on the boat dock at Holy Island and saw her cry because she had to leave.

LARKIN FORRESTER.

Mr. Editor:

We have a "yell" for the high school, the football, basket ball and base ball player, why not a "yell" for the old boys we all love and reverance. Who have played and won one of the greatest games in history.

I here offer a cheer for Uncle Sam, Freedom and the G. A. R., it would be appropriate at the Cenetaph on Decoration Day, after all other ceremonies is finished, and I know it would please the old boys immensely.

Yours very Resp'ly,
A. M. J.

Who are we? who are we?
We are the children of the free.
Zipp, boom, bar! Zipp, boom bar!
We are here to honor the G. A. R.
HURRAH! HURRAH!
We'll march, sing and fight
For Uncle Sam, he's always right
Sing
And we'll rally 'round the flag boys
We'll rally once again,
Shouting the battle cry of Freedom.

VALVE-IN-HEAD SPELLS POWER

BUICK DEVELOPS 15 TO 20 PER CENT MORE

Than Other Types With Pocket Valve Style Due to Greater Heat Saving

A great many present and prospective users of motor cars have the idea that all motors are substantially alike, and that they differ only in detail. There is a fundamental difference between the Buick and other cars, and that difference is due to the Buick Valve-in-Head motor.

The Buick Valve-in-Head motor differs from other types of motors in both appearance and action. It is different in appearance because the valves through which the gas enters and leaves the cylinders are in the tops, or heads of the cylinders, whereas in other types of motors these valves are placed in pockets at the sides of the cylinders.

Because of this different method of placing the valves in the Buick cylinder, the Buick motor, in action, has two great fundamental advantages over all other types of motors. This method of locating the valves makes the Buick motor absolutely different from and superior to any other type of motor. And when we say "superior" we assert a truth that can be demonstrated just as easily and precisely as a sum in arithmetic.

It is important that you get this clear in your head before you attempt to understand the meaning of "Valve-in-Head."

First, the Buick Valve-in-Head motor conserves and uses a larger percentage of the power contained in gasoline than any other motor.

Second, because of its Valve-in-Head construction, the dead gases resulting from each explosion in the Buick cylinders are more completely expelled than in any other type of motor, thus preventing the next incoming charge of gasoline from being weakened through mixture with remaining portions of these dead gases, consequently increasing the power of each explosion.

The first of these advantages, while stated in fewer words, is by far the more important, as you shall see. Now come to the real meaning of the term "Valve-in-Head:"

The buyer should understand that an automobile motor is by far the most important part of a car, and that the whole question of a car's worth depends upon the motor. Next in importance the buyer should understand that all automobile motors are HEAT engines. Regardless of their form of construction or number of cylinders, all automobile motors are HEAT engines. By that it is meant that the HEAT is the force which furnishes the power of the motors. To reach an understanding of automobile motors it is first necessary to get this fundamental truth firmly fixed in mind.

Gasoline is the fuel which supplies the heat. In other words, gasoline is the "raw material" for making the heat, just as cotton is the "raw material" for making cotton cloth.

When the gasoline is taken into the carburetor it is vaporized and mixed with air. That is, it is transformed into gas. This gas is then taken into the cylinders, and by means of an electric spark it is burned, or, as we generally say, it is exploded. Gasoline vapor burns so very quickly that we speak of the transformation as an explosion.

This burning or exploding of the gasoline creates a very high degree of heat. Heat, as every one knows expands, and IT IS THIS EXPANSION OF HEAT AGAINST THE PISTONS WHICH CAUSES THE AUTOMOBILE TO MOVE.

A fresh charge of gasoline is taken into the cylinder each alternate downward stroke of the piston, or, as we say, the power stroke. At the end of the power stroke the HEAT derived from this charge of gasoline is gone. It was used up in the effort necessary to drive the piston downward. This process goes on continually in each cylinder while the automobile is running.

The heat, you see, pushes the piston downward, and this movement of the piston is transferred to the crankshaft and thence to the rear axle, and from there to the rear wheels. So you see it is HEAT that causes the automobile to move. HEAT is the power that drives an automobile.

So far we have been talking about all automobile motors. Now you shall see wherein the Buick Valve-in-Head motor differs from the other types. We could never hope to make you understand just what this difference is unless we first pointed out to you that the propelling force of all automobile motors, including the Buick, is HEAT.

As a matter of plain common sense it can be understood that it is to the utmost interest of the automobile owner to possess the very highest possible percentage of the heat derived from the gasoline to PUSH THE PISTON. All of the HEAT which goes elsewhere than against the piston is waste. The Buick motor conserves, and uses, a higher percentage of this HEAT than any other type of motor, as you shall see.

When gasoline is exploded in the cylinder of an automobile motor there are just two places it can go—just two avenues of escape for it. FIRST, IT CAN FIND AN OUTLET BY PUSHING THE PISTON DOWN WARD. SECOND, IT CAN ESCAPE THROUGH THE CYLINDER WALLS INTO THE WATER THAT IS USED TO KEEP THE CYLINDERS FROM GETTING TOO HOT.

Now it stands to reason that the automobile owner wants the largest possible amount of that heat to go against the piston. That is what he buys gasoline for—to move his car. It is necessary, however, to have water surrounding the cylinders, for otherwise they would get so hot they would melt.

And right here is where Buick superiority begins. In the Buick MORE of the HEAT goes against the piston and LESS into the water, than in any other motor. This is because of the Buick valve arrangement.

In the Buick motor the valves are in the tops or heads, of the cylinders; hence the name "Valve-in-Head." This means that the valves are in a spot that is already water-jacketed, so that no additional water-jacketed space is necessary to accommodate them.

In the "L" and "T" head motors, on the other hand, the valves are placed in little compartments alongside the upper parts of the cylinders—like an alcove to a room—and these compartments must be water cooled, exactly the same as the cylinder proper. That means a larger water-jacketed area for each cylinder, and therefore increased opportunity for heat to escape.

The cylinder walls are hollow, and through this hollow portion a current of water passes continually, to

On Buick Quality

Although the Buick organization has conscientiously striven to increase production in answer to the ever growing demand for Buick cars, not once have they lost sight of the importance of making each individual Buick car intrinsically Buick in quality.

Buick cars are quality cars—the kind of car that fulfills the most exacting demands of the most particular buyer.

It is particularly satisfying to the Buick owner to find, as he does, that his choice is everywhere admired and approved.

Every detail of body and chassis is a match for Buick performance, and the combination is a most pleasing and satisfying one.

TRAVERSES A WONDER-LAND

GREAT LAKES ROUTE IS SCENIC MARVEL

Many Features Of Historic Interest Await the Autoist In The Northern Cloverland

Fine highways, cool climate, new and ever changing scenery, a water trip combined with good hotel accomodations and the insatiable desire of the average American for "something different" should make the Great Lakes Automobile Route a success this summer as well as the following summers.

"It is this multitude of interesting unusual and little known points of interest, combined with our hope of launching a thing at the psychological moment, that prompted us to start work on this new trip for motorists this season," said Leo. C. Harmon, president of the Upper Peninsula Development bureau which is the backbone of the new route.

"Motorists throughout the middle west endorsed our route and pronounced it 'the best trip in America' We knew that Americans would remain in this country this summer so far as the sight-seers were concerned and hence we have now placed the Great Lakes Route before the automobilists of the nation and it is our firm conviction that they will come to see Clover-Land and the other places along the route," added Mr. Harmon.

So strongly convinced was Mr. Harmon of the possibilities in the tour that he gave over six weeks of his time in a trip with the writer through the various cities along the route in order to stir up local interest. They met with hearty greetings on all sides and both returned to Clover-Land feeling that the upper peninsula would this summer get more autoists than ever before in its history.

One need not pause nor think much to reach the conclusion that the Great Lakes Route offers a haven of wonders to the tourist. The very fact that it goes along the greatest inland seas in the world alone makes it of world-wide importance and interest, while the fact that the motorist will make an automobile trip on water and cross one of these great lakes, adds to the interest, pleasure and comfort of the route.

Taking Chicago as a starting point because it is the largest city on the tour, the new route is easiest described. Journeying southward the motorist will travel along Lake Michigan to Gary, Ind., a city built upon the sands. The steel corporation possesses a monstrous plant in Gary and it is worth the visit to see the men going to and coming from this immense plant. Gary is a city of wonderfully paved streets and new buildings. Prosperity and activity can be seen on all sides.

Following the shore of Lake Michigan the route leads into Michigan City with its factories and resort places. The famous sand dunes region with its tropical growths are an added attraction here. St. Joseph is the next city of importance. It is built on hills overlooking the lake and offers with its sister city, Benton Harbor, wonderful resorts, new factories and famous mineral baths.

Good roads feature the trip along the West Michigan Pike to South Haven. It is one of the Michigan cities which claims the title of "The Saratoga of the Middle West." Beautiful drives lead on to Holland, the greatest church going city in America. Statistics show that in this city made up of Hollanders more than ninety per cent of the children go to church, that most of the grown folks do likewise and that up to date no baseball game has ever been begun on Sunday. The mayor of the city made the remark during Mr. Harmon and the writer's visit to Holland that he would arrest the first Sabbath breaker in the city.

Grand Haven, Muskegon and Ludington come next in order. The latter city possesses a remarkable hotel and beach and offers some excellent scenery. Going on to Manistee, where summer resorts are found by the scores, the motorist finds that the Michigan folk of the lower peninsula have decided that Clover-Land must look to its laurels as the possessor of the best highways in Michigan.

At Frankfort the automobilists will leave the mainland, after a mighty pleasing trip along the lake shore, and will drive aboard the immense car ferries of the Ann Arbor system. There will be no loading, pushing or pulling. The cars will be driven on board the ferries by their own motive power. Large and comfortable staterooms will be furnished the motorists and for nine hours during the night he will be able to travel ninety-five miles with the refreshing influence of a Lake Michigan breeze. This feature of the tour has been most appealing to Chicago motorists who contend that it will afford comfort, rest and amusement to the drivers and occupants of the cars.

The ferries will arrive at Manistique in the morning and the motorists will resume their journey after breakfast furnished on board the boats. Then the visitors will have two journeys before him. He can motor through the famous Hiawatha country of Clover-Land to Munising or take the better road to Escanaba. The highway to Munising from Manistique is still but a trail and cannot be recommended as being on a Pictured Rocks, Grand Island and a par with other Clover-Land roads. However, it is rich in beautiful scenery and no more pleasing trip can be found anywhere for lakes, rivers and virgin forests mark the way. It passes through the place where Longfellow's Indian hero journeyed.

At Munising the motorist will find host of interesting things. Grand Island is the playhouse of the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company and offers wonderful natural beauties. Words cannot describe the scenes of this locality and its ever increasing popularity.

Westward over a veritable boulevard the motorist will go to Marquette along the southern shore of Lake Superior. Marquette—so named in honor of the 'patron saint of Clover-Land'—has its Presque Isle park and its hills and valleys. Skirting the famous iron country of Clover-Land by journeying through Ishpeming and Negaunee, the traveller will pass through Baraga county with its L'Anse and Barage—cities made famous by Indians, early explorers and timber industry—and during the drive will find roads completely canopied with mighty trees which cast cool and refreshing shade over the cars.

And then the copper country.

This wonderful region, possessing mints of the purest copper in the world, boasting of historical lore of the most intense interest, and owning good roads which traverse hill and dale, this wonderful region is worthy of a long stay. It will offer to the motorist a wonderful opportunity of seeing copper mines and learning what excellent treatment miners are given by these really big men who are in charge. The cleanliness of the streets, the high morality of the citizens and the up-to-date character of the whole country will be astonishing to the visitors whose ideas of mining territory are based on incorrect and purposely misleading statements made by labor agitators.

Through Kewanee to the tip of Clover-Land the motorist will journey. Abandoned mine locations marking the places where fortunes have been made or lost, great fields of daisies and other wild flowers whose beauty and fragrance lives throughout the summer, mountains and valleys will swing into view and suddenly the motorist will come to the end of his journey northward and Lake Superior's beach shows him a multitude of summer folk. The home of Horace Greeley, America's foremost journalist, and the schoolhouse in which Justus Rathbone wrote the ritual of the Knights of Pythias are added things of interest in this Land of Clover.

Backward then the amazed sightseer will ride and his second trip through this region will not be any the less interesting for he will find roads which can be classed with the best in the nation. Suddenly the tourist will leave the copper country, journey through forests only to burst forth into the land of iron. Mine after mine will come into his view until he tires of counting but always he will find forests, flowers and the ever growing clover with lakes and rivers within his sight.

Crystal Falls and Iron River with their mining population come as the traveler journeys to Bessemer and Ironwood where good roads, forests, mines, fresh and invigorating air will greet him. Retracing his journey the motorist will pass over the famous Clover-Land Trail as he speeds through the iron region which produces nearly one-third of the nation's ore. Following the trail the tourist will go to Escanaba where he will view million dollar ore docks from which the nation gets by boat the great iron output of Clover-Land. Then on through the southern end of this storehouse of wealth, scenery and good roads the motorist will arrive in Menominee—one of the most famous of Clover-Land cities with its wonderful harbor, beautiful lake shore parks and its large industrial activity.

Crossing the long inter-state bridge the traveler will reach Marinette, having left Michigan behind and arrived in the rich and interesting state of Wisconsin. The Queen City, as Marinette is known, will offer much of interest as will other Badger cities along the tour. Oconto with its first church for Christian Science worship, its hustling populace and Green Bay with its historical facts, its great factories and its busy streets will give the motorist a distant iden of Wisconsin's industrial value to the nation.

Appleton—the home of the first electric light and street car system in the world; Neenah-Menasha—with their mighty paper mills and beautiful residences; Oskosh—with its immense wooden manufacturing plants; and all the rest of the thriving and busy cities mark a pleasing trip to Milwaukee the pride of all Wisconsin. Going southward along the lake shore the motorist will go thru Racine and finally find himself back in Chicago having completed a nine day trip of one thousand miles.

And thus the motorist completes a circle or is on his way home when he starts out. He has seen great cities, busy factory towns, famous resorts, copper and iron mines, mighty forests, Indian villages, salt baths, prisons, religious places of interest, agricultural regions, Lakes Michigan and Superior, as well as scores of smaller bodies of water and has ridden nearly 100 miles across famous old Lake Michigan. Eventually the tour will go northward from Frankfort to Mackinaw City and St. Ignace, follow the shore of Lake Huron to Sault Ste Marie but highways in this section at this time will not permit such a routing now.—Clover-Land Magazine.

MANY FORDS IN EAST JORDAN TERRITORY

Local Agent Mackey Has Record Of 64 Sales Since August.

We have all been suprised at the phenomenal sales of Ford cars made by Benjamin Brown, the Charlevoix agent for the dependable little vehicle. Now it appears that their East Jordan representative is also some salesman.

The following is a list of "Lizzies" sold by Roscoe Mackey of that city since August 1916—a total of 64 cars. And with every sale we get just that much nearer to the concrete road for it is the car owner who will finally rise in his collective might and majesty and demand it.

GOT HIS RIGHT IN THE EYE

CHEERFUL CANADIAN RELATES EXPERIENCES

In Letter To Friend He Paints Lurid Picture of Hospital Joys

A recent letter from a wounded Canadian soldier to a friend:

20 General Hospital,
B. E. F. France.

My Dear C: Just a line or two from my downy here to let you know that I am still with a good kick life. Have been here since the 18th and quite comfortable—but cool enough.

Got mine on the 9th of the month when I was bested through the neck just under the right "ankle" as they call the ball and socket joint there. The ball then passed up (missing all kinds if important things like wind-pipes, main arteries, etc.) through the floor of the mouth under the tongue, tying the cords of the tongue into bulls' tails and things, granny knots, etc. Then the dear little thing went out into the cruel world again through my lower left lip, taking with it the canine tooth situated there and a piece of my bulldog jaw. From then for a week I spat blood.

I had been up in command of four batteries of M. G's for some special work and had just finished going over some thirty positions when it happened. So it was a little piece of good luck.

Had a bad time for a few days, and one night it was decided to put a weeping hole and tile under my chin to drow off a large collection of stuff under my tongue which was interfering with my wind apparatus.

While on the meat block (so I was afterwards told) my forced draft shut off completely, so the head push grabbed his right bower and put a six-inch slit in my lily white neck exposing top of the wind-pipe, and for a while I looked like Easter pork. I came to with my nose stuck towards the roof pulling in wind like a hunted stag.

From that out I did fairly well—but no sleep and no eats. Had to expectorate every minute for two weeks and until today lived on soup and eggnogs. Sometimes had nasal feeding, and if you ever get stuck for a meal don't take one that way. I know just how insulted Sylvia Pankhurst felt in the old days of forced feeding.

Other times had a stomach tube through the mouth, which is also a bad going. However, today I had some scrambled eggs and a small piece of sponge cake. Say, what I couldn't do to some of Fred Hunt's corn beef hash right now isn't worth writing about.

Am likely to be here some time, as it appears it takes a long while to do broken jaws nicely. Have had a splint on the jaw for two days now, and it's getting comfortable and the jaw has lost that minstrel show crack when I swallow. Am being fixed up by a Major Kazangean, a world famous specialist from Boston, an Armenian by birth, and a Harvard man I think. He is about the best known and does some wonderful stunts. My case is a mild one to some of them. He takes a half face and pulls and kneads it about—and makes a new whole one. New noses for him—that's easy! There are a number of jaw cases here, some for two and three months already. I am not sure yet whether I shall lose all my lower front teeth, but am in hopes they will tighten up again.

Well, here comes dinner, at which I am allowed a life saver in the way of a drop of "whiskey," 2 oz. measured with push water.

Just finished chewing soup, which I take through a rubber suction tube—never seem to get away from the hydraulics. All the openings, slits, etc., have healed up very nicely and in extra fast time; for a long while a small hole remained open in my wind-pipe and made the most weird noises. Sounded like old Tommy Me-Cakes' horn when he was going to "blow" a few 3x3s. What a great old leader Tommy would have made standing on the top of a parapet in the front line directing a shoot. He never used to run for the old beggar anyway. Someone told me that A. J. M. was back east, in Montreal. Suppose his business was bad in the west. Hope there are chances of it picking up again after the war. Give him my best when you see him next. Think it was Grog told me about him Grog is in the signals—suppose they use him for a wireless station to string the antennae (or whatever they call it) on. Met Col. Blue on the Poziers Road away long ago. Just as sarcastic as ever. Surprising how little one sees of anyone out here. Have only seen my brother once, though probably have passed the battery he is in a number of times.

This letter was originally started to tell you all how glad I was to get your Christmas parcel and how good it is to know one is not forgotten by the old crowd. After getting into the letter I found I was quite ready to talk to some one and you will try to excuse, please, if I have appeared immodest in talking so much about myself.

Got back to my battery from leave two days before Christmas and that accounts for my cards reaching you so late. Was very busy then arranging Christmas dinner for my men. We gave them the best bang up spread you ever saw. Everything from cocktails to nuts, including turkey, which was very scarce and a pretty price. You should have seen those boys wade in. Afterwards they had dancing and a concert, with an old piano fixed up with hay wire, etc., for accompaniment. Luckily we were all in billets for Christmas, but up to the line for New Years. One can't help but admire the boys for they are the best in the world, and to see them go to after a few days' spree is great. A machine gunner is a specialist from the word go and every bit as technical as the artillery. Besides this he has to be a cross between an American mule and a Llama and carry twice his weight in material, etc. If you ever see anyone who wants to send ont something have them send a dozen or so Tump lines to the Eston M. G. Battery and any others to the 1st Can. M. M. Tump lines will be an ordnance issue sometime, but they are slow coming.

Perhaps you do not know how they fix up cracked jaws here. They make impressions of the lower teeth—then make caps like gold crowns for the molars on both sides, then connect up these caps (after much fitting and comparison with the top teeth or impression) with a metal bar. This holds the lower jaw in correct position perfectly rigid. Clever—isn't it? The surgeon these days who drums up a bit of mechanics to go with the other stuff just leaves the other fellow away behind.

These fellows here build up a new face on an artificial superstructure moulding this and working new flesh like putty.

Well, I hope this letter has not bored you stiff, but I just had to get it off my chest. Then I hope, as I cannot write to everyone just now that some of the rest might read it. So if old Dick Dory blows in from the north tell him how I am and give my best to Pat, Alex, Gray, Miss O'Brien, Jeff C. and the rest.

Suppose old Desrosiers is much the popular boy now that the old town is dry, with his drawing ink cocktails; or do the Hull barkeeps give jitney tickets with a $1 purchase?

Hoping you are all well and able to tend your truck garden these hard times. My kindest regards to Mrs. C.

Sincerely yours,

D.

BINDS CITY AND FARM CLOSER TOGETHER

Auto Cuts Down the Farmer's Cost of Transportation

The future influence of the automobile on our methods of life is hard to foresee. But it is certain that this influence will be tremendous. The motor car is bringing the world together. It is eliminating distance. It is bringing the country nearer to the city, the east nearer to the west. It is helping the people of the different parts of the land better to understand each other.

Would you imagine that the automobile may ultimately solve the problem of the high cost of living? It will.

The middleman came into existence because the farm was so far from the city. With the gasoline propelled vehicled the farmers can now reach the city market in a few hours. His need for the commission merchant is not so great. The value of the food distributor is consequently lessening. The automobile will some day bring the farmer direct to the consumer and also the consumer direct to the farmer.

The standard of living on the farm is, of course, revolutionized by the automobile. Not only has the automobile brought about the possibility of city shopping for the family but it also aids mechanically the operations of the farmer through the various appliances for pumping, threshing, etc.

The coming of the city motorist into the open country has led to good roads, better hotels, improved villages and a beneficial influence on the thoughts and manners of the farm dwellers. You might be surprised if the village pastor told you that the popular priced automobile had greatly increased Sunday attendance on the part of the far dwelling parishioners.

It is hard to foresee the end, however, for no man can tell the developments of the automobile tomorrow. The progress of the motor industry in the last decade reads like a story from the Arabian Nights. Any man who dares to prophesy the events of even the next five years is indiscreet.

The Toledo factories of the Willys-Overland Company have 12.8 miles of railroad track serving them. This makes the big automobile plant one of the largest private freight terminals in the country. Within the Willys-Overland property lines are approximately five and a half miles of trackage serving receiving and shipping docks.

OUR FORD SERVICE—One of the best reasons why you should buy a Ford is the service you get on repairs. If any part of your car should break or wear out, you can feel sure of immediate repair service. We have a large stock room in our garage where nothing but genuine Ford parts are kept and from this large stock we can quickly replace or repair any part of your car. "Service First" is our slogan.

ACCESSORIES—We carry one of the most complete lines of automobile accessories in Charlevoix County and we have competent men in our employ to install any of the goods we carry. Come in and see our large stock of the best tires and tubes on the market. All kinds of spark plugs, Old Sol Spot Lights, Tool Boxes, Tool Kits, Tire Chains, Bumpers, Dimmers, the best grades of Oils, Standard Gasoline and hundreds of other accessories and supplies just as good.

Now in Town

A big Delegation of Goodyear Tires, hailing from Akron, Ohio, arrived in this city yesterday. All are in the best of health. They are making their headquarters with us. They want to meet every motorist in this locality to discuss, "How to Get Extra Tire Mileage." They will explain: (1) How Rim-Cutting is Ended. (2) How to Eliminate Tube Pinching. (3) How to Minimize Blowouts. (4) How to Escape Dangerous Skidding. (5) How to Lessen Tread Separation.

Come in and be introduced. Meet Mr. Goodyear No-Rim-Cut, Mr. Goodyear "All-Weather" tread and other Tire Celebrities.

You'll not only enjoy the meeting, but you'll profit by it immensely the next time you buy tires. Man can't know too much about tires when he's using them every day.

HEAT CONTROL PRIME FACTOR

HERE IS WEAK SPOT IN AVERAGE ENGINE.

Only Twenty Per Cent Of Total Generated Heat Used—Rest Is Lost

Several systems are now in use for maintaining a conatant maximum temperature of the engine. One of these systems consists of a thermostat connected to the water-line to regulate the flow of cooling water to suit the requirements, while another makes use of blinds to regulate the flow of air through the radiator. The former system is automatic, while the latter system, although effective, needa attention.

A number of tests have been made which proved that the average engine of today utilizes but 20 per cent of the total generated heat; while 34 per cent of its heat is rejected in exhaust and radiation, 41 per cent is lost to cooling water, and but 5 per cent is lost in engine friction. These figures were obtained witb the engine working at its highest thermal efficiency, which is equivalent to a jacket temperature of about 175 degrees Farenheit. It is therefore apparent that a decrease of engine temperature means a corresponding rednction in the thermal efficiency, wbich ia but a measure of the power produced. An engine, working at its highest safe temperature will give greater expansibility to the incoming charge, the gas will burn quicker and freer with a mimimum of carbon and otber residue, less heat will be lost in radiation and cooling, greater power, flexibility and more economical operation will result. In addition a more even compression is obtained, as well as smoother running and a higher all-around volumetric efficiency. The "V" type motors due to their lower mean operating temperatures, caused by the greater cylinder area exposed to air and water cooling, are particularly benefited by temperature control.

Control of the cylinder temperature marks but one phase of this broad subject. It seems now to be the consensus of opinion that there is a best temperature for the cylinder jackets, another for the intake manifold, another for the air entering the carburetor and still another for the fuel itself. However, to automatically maintain tbe correct heat balance for all of these units is almost impossible, as it is likewise to expect the average driver to maintain them through manual means, but much of this has already been accomplished by pre-heating the air for the carburetor and jacketing the intake manifold.

This combination seems to produce the most satisfactory results, as with the present grades of fuel it is impossible thoroughly to vaporize them with the result that much of the incoming charge enters the manifold in the form of drops that lie in the depressions of the manifold, resulting in an unequal charge into different cylinders. Complete vaporization is absolutely essential to obtain proper distribution of the charge, but the simple preheating of the carburetor air will not alwsys fulfill this condition, as during the process of vaporization there is quite a drop in temperature, which robs the pre-heated air of its heat, and this must be made up in the intake manifold. Experiments have shown that to properly vaporize present day fuel the air entering the carburetor should have a temperature of about 152 degrees Fahrenheit, while that of the manifold should have 220 degrees.

Where the entire matter will lead to, is something that cannot be foreseen, hut it is obvioua, if we must continue to use the present grades of fuel, which is likely, some simple devices for controlling and regulating the temperature of not only the cylinders, but also those of the intake manifold and carburetor air will become an essential part of the equipment of all cars. However, the proper solution of the difficulty is quite a problem aa there is a difference of temperature between summer and winter of 100 degrees Fahrenheit, and some compensation is necessary if the same efficiency is to be secured at all seasons.—Motor.

CAN'T GET LABOR

Highway Construction Held Up In New York State

The total mileage of the state and county highway systems in New York state at the present time is 11,988, of which 5,936 miles had been completed and accepted on January 1, while contracts in force at that time covered 1,185 miles. This with tbe contracts awarded during the year 1916, leave a balance of designated mileage not yet cared for of 4,210. Highway construction during the past two years has been gravely hindered because of the fact that surplus labor has been largely absorbed in munition making and other abnormal industrial activities.

In New York state during 1916 it was impossible to secure, even at largely increased cost, more than a quarter of the labor actually required for highway work.—Motor.

EXPORT VALUE RISING

Astonishing Increase Of Thirteen Million In One Year

American automobile exports during 1916 reached the astonishing total of $138,289,514, as agninst $125,306,568 for 1915. In the calendar year in question we sent to foreign countries 80,850 complete motor vehicles, having a total value of $96,595,861, an increase of 16,892 vehicles over the 1915 record and a gain in total value of $1,711,468. There was a decrease in the number and value of motor trucks exported the 1916 record being 18,903 commercial vehicles valued at $52,870,774, as against 22,094 trucks valued at $59,839,303 in 1915. On the other hand, passenger car shipmenta increased from 41,864, valued at $35,045,090 in 1915 to 61,947 cars worth $43,725,087 in 1916.

France was our best foreign customer for motor vehicles in 1916, taking $23,279,846 worth of our motor cars, mostly trucks for military service. Great Britain bought $17,083, 616 worth of our automobiles while Russia came third among European nations with $8,546,563 investment in our motor offerings. The British colonies were liberal buyers of American motor vehicles, Canada having spent $8,965,200 with us last year, Australia $5,727,233 and the British East Indies $3,359,379.

Service on Your Battery

The battery that is so full of "pep" and power today may fail you tomorrow. No other part of your car needs such constant, intelligent attention to its welfare. Neglect shortens the life of any battery.

No matter what car you may drive—no matter what make of battery you use—we extend to you a kindly invitation to drive up and have your battery looked after regularly by men who know.

Some day your car will need a new battery. Meanwhile investigate the Prest-O-Lite Battery—a battery of superior power, vitality and longer life. There is a correct style for your car.

We carry a complete stock of new batteries and parts. We inspect, repair and recharge storage batteries of all makes—all work handled promptly and at reasonable prices.

"Republic" Motor Trucks

INTERNAL GEAR DRIVE

THE HONEST TRUCK ... at an HONEST PRICE

On July 1, 1913, the first Republic truck was placed on the market. In six months, fifty-four Republics went to work. So satisfactorily did they perform their daily tasks that, at the end of 1914, three hundred and seventy-six Republic trucks went forth from tbe little Republic factory. Then sometbing happened.

Here was an excellent vehicle. It looked a truck. It was a truck. It did its work in truck-like fashion. It stood up; it more than made good. Its price was right—within the reach of almost every man's pocket book. Orders actually piled in for more and more Republics.

In 1915, one thousand, eight hundred and fifty-seven keen, far-sighted business men bought Republic trucks which entered into service in over five hundred lines of business. In 1917, twenty-three thousand Republic trucks will be built to take care of the ever increasing demand for the Republic which is today—and has been at all times in the past—"an honest truck at an honest price."

BUICK CARS REPUBLIC TRUCKS MILLER TIRES

take up the heat, which would otherwise melt the cylinders. And in all motors except the Buick Valve-In-Head there are little compartments, or valve pockets, as they are called, also with hollow walls with water flowing through them. They are simply an addition to the cylinder.

Thus you see there is less opportunity for heat to escape into water in the Buick Valve-In-Head motor. That means more HEAT against the pistons, which means, in turn, more power for the rear wheels.

You have often heard that the Buick is the most powerful motor. Well, that valve arrangement is the reason for that greater power. The Buick motor will develop from fifteen to twenty per cent more power than similar sized motors of the other types, and the reason for that greater power is simply the fact that in the Buick motor there is fifteen or twenty per cent less waste of heat.

To waste heat by allowing it to escape into the water surrounding unnecessary valve pockets is exactly the same as buying five gallons of gasoline and then pouring one gallon of it into the gutter. You might just as well throw it awny in the beginning as to use it to create heat to be absorbed by the water that surrounds the valve pockets in these other types of motor.

These Buick truths are unanswerable. They can't be debated.

Make sure you understand it is Buick Valve-in-Head principle. It is the greatest and most important principle in the whole field of motor car operations.

Buick cars are sold in Charlevoix by C. L. Thomas.

An Apron Skirt

I have an idea for motor apparel which I consider very helpful, as well as necessary to a woman who drives her own car and wishes to look presentable should she stop on the trip.

Take an old skirt and slit it up the back. Then take some ribbons or tape and make strings as you would for an apron. This garment can be put on over a really fine gown; and if you wish to stop, just unfasten it at the back and slip it off, leaving it on the seat in readiness to tie on again on your return.

This is especially good for midsummer driving when light dresses are worn, as it is very hard to keep from spotting the skirt with grease from the brakes and clutches.—Woman's Home Companion.

WILLYS SAYS U. S. WILL PROSPER

ALL OF BIG WAR BUDGET WILL BE SPENT HERE

With More Money Than Ever Before In Its History Country Need Not Fear Aftermath

(Mr. Willys is president of the Willys-Overland Company, of Toledo, Ohio, second largest automobile factory in the world, which is expected to produce nearly 200,000 motor cars this year. He is also ranked as one of the industrial giants of the decade, whose business sagacity developed a factory with assets of $58,000 to a manufacturing plant with assets of $68,000,000. Mr. Willys can be well styled an authority on business conditions.—Editor's Note.)

Automobile manufacturers thruout the country are being deluged with letter, telegrams and verbally with queries as to what effect America's declaration of a state of war existing with Germany will have on business generally, and particularly on the automobile industry.

It seems to me that the unprecedented era of prosperity of the past two years must be continued.

In addition to the enormous business now being handled by this country, the United States Government has just passed a war budget of seven billion dollars. Three billion dollars of this fund will be advanced as a loan to the Allies—who will spend it in the United States.

The remaining four billion dollars will be used to put our own army and navy on a sound war footing.

Every cent of this money will be spent in this country. Every product that is raised or made in this country will be purchased in larger quantities than ever. Every section of the country will benefit—every class of people.

Some of the money will go south to buy cotton. A big share will go to the western states and to the coast for grain, meat and other foodstuffs. Some of it will go to Pennsylvania for steel and coal. New England will get a share in exchange or shoes. The factories of the Central states will get a share. There will he more money in circulation than ever before.

In Canada in spite of the handicap of the war Willys-Overland dealers have since January 1st booked more retail orders than the total Overland sales in Canada for any previous twelve months. The demand in the Dominion for Willys-Overland cars is far in excess of the supply.

Prior to the war in Canada money was very tight. The per capita wealth across the border was only $55. At the present time Canada is in better shape financially than ever before; its per capita wealth is now ssid to be $92.

The United States today has more money than ever in its history. A recent statement published by U. S. Comptroller Williams showed that the United States banks had assets of sixteen billion dollars, exceeding by two hundred and ten million dollars the previous high water mark of five months ago, and an increase of five billion dollars in four years. The total national wealth, according to authoratntive estimates is given as $250,000,000,000, with a national debt of only $8,000,000,000. The estimated combined wealth of Great Britain, France, Russia, Italy and Germany is $275,000,000,000, while their total national debt is $60,000,000,000.

There seems to be no cause for pessimism. We can safely look forward to a continuance of good business right here in our own country.

MACHINE GREATLY CUTS OUTPUT TIME LIMIT

Fronk 1 to 150 Per Day Increase On Crank Shaft Bearings

There are two men employed in the motor assembly of the Willys-Overland factory in Toledo who now perform a three months' task in one eight hour day.

The operation is called "line reaming crank shaft bearings," that is, the machine which these men operate trims the crank shaft bearings so that the shaft revolves snugly on its bearings after the motor has been fully assembled.

In the pioneer days of automobile construction this task was performed by hand; today it is done with the aid of a reaming machine.

Where a good workman considered himself fortunate to be able to trim a set of crank shaft bearings properly each day, two men and this machine now "line ream" 150 sets per day and don't think anything of the work they have done.

Besides the multiplied production the output of the present day is far superior to the handwork of the old days, the machine surpassing in constant accuracy even the highest grade of hand labor.

Cleaning Out Carbon

Will you tell me exactly how to burn carbon from an engine with kerosene and how often it should be done? Is there any commercial product better for this than kerosene?

You do not burn carbon from any car with kerosene. Kerosene is used to loosen the carbon in the cylinders after which it is driven out by force of the explosion. The best method is to take out the spark plugs at night when the car is being put away hot and pour through the holes about two teaspoonfuls of kerosene. Replace the spark plugs, and let the engine stand all night. The heat of the engine will vaporize the kerosene and it will soften the carbon, and it will then blow out the exhaust when the engine is started the next morning. Do not be frightened at the dense cloud of white smoke that will come from the engine when it is first started. This is nothing but the kerosene burning up. To be effective this process should be gone through with about once in two weeks. It will not suffice to decarbonize a badly carbonized motor, but will, however, largely prevent the formation of carbon if done constantly in a clean motor.

I know of no commercial product better for this work than kerosene. I hold no brief for any carbon-preventing tablet, but neither am I in a position to say that none of them are any good.—Woman's Home Companion.

SPEEDING MAXWELL BREAKS ALL RECORDS

Miami to Jacksonville—376 Miles In a Whirlwind Three Hour and a Half Run

Miami, Fla.—Speeding over the 376 miles between Jacksonville and the Magic City in a run that gave it the record for the highest sustained speed ever attained in a reliability and endurance motor car run in Florida, a Maxwell touring car, pulled into Miami early March 7 with its belt dangling with scalps.

Having accomplished the long distance in nine hours and thirty-five minutes, the car, driven by P. W. Gibbs and carrying three other passengers, roared its entrance into Miami's business center at half past eight in the morning, its motor jubilation later being described by J. A. Holly, Maxwell distributor in Miami, as the music that accompanied the presentation to him, in a dust and grease-spotted package, of the championship in Florida automobile road performances.

Mr. Holly is to display the car in the streets of Miami for several days, he asserts, and then will run it up to Palm Beach and other points near here.

The arrival of the Maxwell and the subsequent spread of the news of its road accomplishment caused a ripple of excitement in motoring circles here, for the time in which the car scampered over the distance contained sufficient of a suprise to make the passer-by stop and take notice.

Having left Jacksonville with a revolver shot in the night that touched it into flight sharply at 11 o'clock the car was officially checked into Miami at 8:35 the following morning. This gave it the surprising average of 39.4 miles an hour for the total elapsed time of the run. This performance was checked by E. R. Hedstrom, representative of the Florida Times-Union of Jacksonville, who rode in the car for that purpose. His figures and other reports are sworn to, it is stated.

Not less surprising as an outcome of the run is a challenge which has been made by Mr. Holly with the latest Maxwell performance. The local auto man is out with a defi to any motor car dealer in Florida to equal or better the performance the Maxwell has established.

The Jacksonville-Miami run by motor eclipsed the time of the swiftest passenger trains between the two cities, while the record finished here yesterday takes approximately two and one-half hours off the best previous automobile time, a record established by a Hudson super-six.

Two tire punctures enroute represented the sum total of trouble met during the long drive, the observer's report revealed, and it was asserted that a sustained speed average of considerably over forty miles an hour could have been attained had it not been for the delays caused by traffic and highway road improving gangs on the Miami end of the run. The car was also held up twenty minutes at the ferry over the St. Lucie River, while a passenger train delayed its flight for seven minutes in Titusville.

A Long Trip Hat

Before starting on a tour last summer, each member of our party agrede to take only such luggage as his or her own suit case would hold. But as our destination was New York City, the hat problem was a difficult one for the ladies of the party. Any sort of auto-bonnet which would be comfortable en route would be unsuitable to wear while in New York, and to try and pack a hat in a suit case was impossible. This is how I solved the problem:

I bought a small, close-fitting, black straw, untrimmed, and with just enough brim to shade my eyes while touring. Over this I draped prettily a chiffon veil of a becoming color, almost entirely covering the hat, and leaving the ends free, to be tied under the chin or at the back as desired.

I also bought two yards of black maline, which I folded carefully, slipped in an envelope and tucked away in my suit case. When we arrived in New York it was a very simple matter to twist the maline into a soft, fluffy bow, remove the veil from the hat, and fasten the new trimming on with a few stitches. I now had a chic, becoming little hat which looked fresh and new, and was dressy enough for all occasions.—Woman's Home Companion.

Ride in the Crow-Elkhart Multi-Powered Car

Experience the sensation of silky smoothness. Find out that motoring has now become a different kind of traveling. Take the wheel—feel the thrill of multiplied power at your command.

One car in the higher priced class has accomplished a similar result in its motor. The Crow Elkhart Multi-Powered Car is the only automobile of moderate price and real economy which gives such wonderful flexibility and sweetness in performance.

You may never extend this car to a high speed—yet you will find the tremendous volume of liquid energy useful every instant. It levels the rough spots in the road—the hard hills—and with the lazy ease of a giant carries you effortlessly out of the tight places in traffic.

Think of such performance at the price. Nothing like it has ever been known in the automobile world. Here you get the remarkable combination of a wide range of smooth power with unusual light car economy.

Working with this wonderfully efficient Crow-Elkhart Multi-Powered Motor are component parts 150 per cent strong—axles, transmission, clutch, universal joint and quiet high duty roller bearings. Such high grade construction insures to owners the utmost in dependability as well as performance.

Your judgment of cars must now be revised to meet this new standard.

Ride—today—to realize fully the great new pleasure and usefulness which the Multi-Powered Car brings to the motorist.

SPECIFICATIONS:

MOTOR—Special Crow-Elkhart Multi-Powered Motor. Long stroke, four-cylinder, four-cycle, L-head type, Bore 3½ inches, stroke 5-inches with exclusive Crow-Elkhart counterbalanced construction. Cylinders cast en-bloc, water jacket integral. Cylinders and valve chambers entirely water jacketed. Cylinder and head are cast separately, permitting of large valves and perfect setting of cores.
LUBRICATION—Splash constant level system, with plunger pump.
COOLING—Thermo-syphon, water jacket extremely large. Honey-comb radiator.
CARBURETOR—Zenith.
ELECTRIC EQUIPMENT—Dyneto, 2-unit, 6 volt system starting motor equipped with Bendix drive applied to flywheel. Starter operated by push button on toeboard Willard storage battery.
CLUTCH—New Multiple-disc type.
FRAME—Pressed channel steel, 4 x 1½ x 5-32 inch section.
BODY—Full streamline, five passenger.

TRANSMISSION—Three-speed selective type, integral with rear axle. All gears of chrome nickel steel.
STEERING AND CONTROL—Seventeen-inch one-piece steering wheel, left hand drive, worm and sector—adjustable steering gear.
WHEELBASE—114 inches.
WEIGHT—2095 pounds.
TREAD—56-inches.
FRONT AXLE—Drop forged "I" beam.
REAR AXLE—Full floating type.
GEAR RATIO—4 to 1.
WHEELS—Artillery type, fitted with 32 x 3½-inch tires. Demountable rims, one extra rim furnished as regular equipment.
FRONT SPRINGS—Semi-elliptic, 34-inches long.
REAR SPRINGS—Three-quarter elliptic, lower half 44-inches long.
BRAKES—Double, with service break contracting on rear hub drums, emergency brake expanding against rear hub drums. Drum, 12-inches.

DETROIT ARCHITECT MAKES A WILD TRIP

Frank G. Baxter Reels Off 1535 Miles In Eight Day Trip To Denver—Climbs 7800 Feet

Mr. Frank G. Baxter, a prominent architect of Detroit, made a trip to Los Angeles last summer in D-Six-45. "We made the 1535 miles to Denver in eight days," says Mr. Baxter, "the roads in general being about the same as our Michigan roads. At Denver we had some very delightful drives in the mountains, one of the best being the drive to Lookout Mountain and Bear Creek Canyon—about 40 miles up a fine mountain road to 7800 feet altitude. We were all quite deaf from the high altitude, but it passed off very quickly after coming down. The Buick is a fine mountain climber.

"At Cheyenne they were having their annual Frontier Day meeting, lasting five days, cowboys from Texas and Canada competing. There were about 1500 cowboys and cow girls in trials of all descriptions. The contestants were dressed in bright colored skirts, leather and fur chaps and sombreros, and there were some fine riders among them. There were some fine prizes $1000 and $500 saddles being the prizes.

"We had to ford seven streams in Wyoming, varying from 10 to 100 feet in width and about 16 inches deep, and hundreds of dry creek bottoms. There are no roads here—only wagon trails. It is a case of carry your own water or go without, as the streams are few and far between, most of the water containing alkali and unfit to drink.

"Most of the way we traveled in company with a party driving another make of car, for which I soon lost all love, as I had to help push it over the hills all day. After leaving Cody, we passed up through the canyon with the most rapid stream I ever saw running—42 miles an hour. We had to drive up a stiff grade to an altitude of 7300 feet on a beautiful road for 25 miles. Here several machines could not make the grade, including the one just referred to, which we pushed over three or four different knobs as steep as 25 per cent. The Buick just walks over any hill I can find. In Yellowstone Park we started up the hill known as Sylvan Pass where I saw 20 machines being pushed up, all makes, and here the Old Buick walked away from them all.

"We made camp that night at the west side of the Park and in the morning started south through the only roadway through the redwood trees for 65 miles. This road has never seen sunshine, and we drove through puddles 18 inches deep, but got through all right.

"In Idaho we passed through the Blackfoot Indian country, then into Utah, spending Sunday at Salt Lake and attending church in the Mormon tabernacle. That afternoon we struck the desert—600 miles of it, right through to California. We had to be careful to have plenty of food and water, as the towns are very far apart.

"That night for the first time we did not erect the tent, but slept in the open and found it so comfortable that we slept that way during the balance of the trip. By putting the tent over all the cots in a row, blankets over the ten, and then pulling the tent over this, we had a fine, warm bed.

"Next day we drove up a dry creek canyon with a soft sand bottom and we had to run in and out of this for 10 miles. Here we found a machine with some gears broken, the passengers being two men and a woman. They had the top off and were using it as a tent. They had sent word by a machine for the parts they needed but did not know when they would get them.

"Later we passed into Nevada, which was nothing but sage brush, sand and mountains. It was hard going all across the state. In one valley we came across two women in a tent by a broken down machine. Their husbands had walked back 25 miles for help.

"After leaving Austin we ran into a sand storm in the salt and borax desert and nearly strangled for three hours. We could not see far ahead, but kept on going.

"We crossed mountain after mountain until we reached Sacramento, and went from there to San Francisco, taking the valley route from San Francisco to Los Angeles. We drove 5133 miles, including side trips, and made the trip in five weeks and three days."

CLASS LEGISLATION

Burden of Highway Tax Falls Too Heavily On Car Owners

More than $300,000,000 was spent on highway construction and maintenance in the United States in 1916. Of this amount sixteen southern states spent approximately $52,000,000. The state of California has voted $15,000,000 to be spent in perfecting the state highway system and not a single county failed to give the empowering measure a majority. Ohio is talking of a $50,000,000 highway bond issue and the state of Illinois will put to its voters at the next election, the question of issuing $60,000,000 in highway bonds the interest and retiring fund for which is to be provided for by an increase of about 100 per cent in the motor vehicle registration fees. A quaint idea this: building a highway system which shall benefit every one of the state's 9,000,000 people and compelling one limited class, comprising somewhat over 200,000 persons, to foot the whole bill.

NEW YORK LEADS

Heads List With 280,000 Cars—Nevada Last

There were 3,550,000 motor cars registered in the United States on January 1, 1917, and in all probability there will be 5,000,000 motor vehicles in operation by the end of the year. New York State leads all its sister commonwealths with 280,000 motor vehicles and Pennsylvania registered the greatest gain in cars, having 80,000 more automobiles at the end of 1916 than it had in 1916. Nevada brings up the rear of the procession with 4,609 motor cars, but the mountain state gained 2,400 cars in 1916, which amounts to a 111 per cent increase over its 1916 showing.

Michigan Leads

To build and market the 1,648,586 motor cars that statistics show were disposed of by the American automobile industry in 1916, required the labor of 575 manufacturers of complete cars (there were 512 in 1915) 26,000 automobile dealers, 24,000 garages, 20,000 machine shops not to mention supply departments conducted in connection with other types of business. Michigan is still the capital of American motordom, having ninety-nine manufacturers of complete cars and engines and Ohio is in second place with seventy-five such establishments.—Motor.

ELKHART KING OF LIGHT CARS

RAPID PICKUP AND GREAT POWER RANGE

Short Turning Radius, Long Underslung Springs And Smokeless Oil Ports

Today the Crow-Elkhart Multi-Powered car is the king of light automobiles because it achieves greater results than multiple-cylinder construction. And with it is combined the supreme economy of a moderate priced car. At the price this is the new power sensation.

Your travel in this car is as smooth as silk.

The Multi-Powered motor delivers to the wheels power that is absorbed inside the average motor—thus increasing the power, efficiency, smoothness and speed.

Now you can ride at the speed you wish without speed-effect or nerve tension. The remarkable power-flow seems the same at all speeds—just expands from 3 to 50 miles an hour on high gear. From a standing start you accelernte to 40 miles an hour in 20 seconds—an exhilarating pick-up! In traffic you lull down to a creeping pace—less than a walk.

This is the most wonderful range of power you have ever known in a light car—a quality of smoothness that is new. This is the miraculous effect of multiplied power in the new Crow-Elkhart Multi-Powered Car. Think of such performance with such economy—20 to 26 miles on a gallon of gasoline. Think of such high priced flexibility in an under $1000 automobile—a big powerful looking car that dominates the road.

In the motor are eliminated the unbalanced forces and with these have gone vibration and most of the friction. The bugaboo of bearing pressure has been eliminated.

Note this important point: Most motors deliver but 10 per cent of their power to the rear wheels, according to an authority of the Society of Automobile Engineers. (See Motor Age, January 18th, 1917.) There is one full ton of unbalanced force in the average motor; the new Crow-Elkhart exclusive design removes this. The crankshaft counterbalances make power flow like liquid. The chassis construction has made this great power improvement possible.

For nine year the Elkhart people have developed this same chassis—constantly improved, refined it while watching thousands of Crow-Elkhart Cars in their millions of miles of road service. This chassis is today the basis of the silk-like power of the Multi-Powered Car.

It is a scientific combination of units which in their design and construction are ahead of their day. No car in the world has more up-to-the-instant features.

They developed what was probably the first "L" head motor—now the accepted standard. Their clutch, rear axle and transmission construction reaches the highest engineering standards known. They have developed fundamental principles year after year, thereby achieving the greatest progress.

The chronology of Crow-Elkhart chassis advancements is as follows: 1912, lengthened bearings and increased size crankshaft and camshafts; 1913, adopted valve cover plates for their freedom from dust; 1914, used helical cut gears; put the gear case at front of motor in separate compartment to eliminate noise; increased valve sizes; 1916, made cylinder head detachable. Other detail improvements have been made constantly to 1917.

The Multi-Powered Motor has crowned the success of the 9-Year Chassis.

Ideal balance marks this chassis construction—in the Crow-Elkhart touring car there is not 35 pounds difference in weight front and rear. Dominant features: in the motor piston oil-ports prevent smoking—the gentle clutch feels like velvet under foot pressure—the transmission is an engineering triumph—the tapering frame gives a short turning radius—the long underslung springs ease you over the road in comfort.

When you look at the Crow-Elkhart car and admire its beauty of line and finish, remember that underneath the fine coachwork lavished by Crow-Elkhart craftsmen on the body this famous 9-Year Chassis lays the basis of the car's wonderful stability—of its remarkably long service records of 150,000 to 200,000 miles.

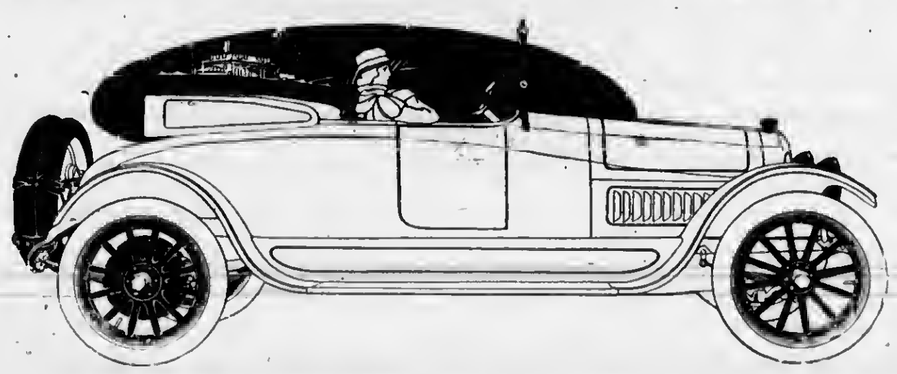
APPERSON ROADAPLANE



Cut Down the High Cost of Automobiling

The Apperson Roadaplane has done more than merely prove itself an efficient perfomer under all conditions of service. That was to be expected, of course.

But the remarkable tire mileage and the equally remarkable saving in fuel consumption, due to proper balance, and light weight—3000 pounds—have added as great a measure of fame to this car as its beauty of lines, luxurious appointments and mechanical excellence.

The low operating costs experienced by owners are astonishing for cars of the size and power of the Roadaplane Sixes and Eights.

Again the supremacy of Apperson designing has been made manifest in this car.

The question of operating cost is one that vitally interests every car owner. It is one of the factors that has had much to do with the steadily increasing popularity of the car which rivals the Aeroplane in its smooth-riding properties.

Let us submit some tire and fuel records. You will find them an interesting and helpful guide in your selection of a car.

Here we graphically portray the Willys-Overland progress which has made possible the stability of the Willys-Overland industry as it stands today.

You have a very real personal interest in Willys-Overland progress because it has been the factor that has largely determined automobile values.

And it is today a stabilizing influence—which keeps automobile prices moderate in spite of tremendously increased costs.

Broadly speaking that producer has the lowest cost per car who has the courage to produce the largest output and the reputation which makes a ready market for that output.

For years Willys-Overland output has been the largest in its class—and Willys-Overland costs have been relatively the lowest.

The steadfast Willys-Overland policy has been to use this advantage of lower costs to increase value in the Willys-Overland product by both improved quality and lowered price..

That policy today is applied to the most comprehensive line of cars ever built by any one producer.

Touring car prices range between $695 for the roomy, easy riding, 106-inch wheelbase, five passenger Light Four and $1950 for the big, luxurious, 125-inch wheelbase seven passenger eight cylinder Willys-Knight.

In between there are Big Fours, Light Sixes and the Willys-Knight Fours and body styles ranging from roadsters and sport models to sedans and limousines.

And every car has shared in the savings and economies of our greater production—every car is, we believe, value pre-eminent among its kind.

Let us help you, from our experience, to decide which Overland or Willys-Knight will best serve your particular need.

Sketch Of Laws Bearing On Highway Matters and the Import Of Their Provisions

The Courier recently wrote State Highway Commissioner Rogers for aeeurate and up-to-date information in reference to the state aid road in Charlevoix county, trunk lines, projeeted improvements, ete., and, at considerable trouble, the eommissioner very kindly gave us this information. We pass it on to our readers with grateful recognition of his kindness.

Reports received by tbe state highway commissioner from 48 of the 59 counties acting under the county road system indicate that they will build 958 miles of state reward road during the coming season, of which mileage more than one-third will be on trunk line routes. Thus it may safely be estimated that 1,000 miles of county roads will be constructed during 1917. With the mileage to be built by the townships it is reasonable to believe that between 1,200 and 1,400 miles will be reached for the season.

This belief is further substantiated by a consideration of the mileage applied for to the department. For several years past, the applications on file at any time have been about double the mileage which has netually been constructed during the sueceeding year. On January 1st, 1917, applications were on file for a total of 2,857 miles of road on which the reward would total $3,666,419.

The average cost per mile of all roads up to date has been approximately $3,500 per mile. On this basis it would take nearly ten millions of dollars to build the roads at present applied for. In all probability, however, the roads constructed during the eoming year will be completed at a cost of about five million dollars. It is true that over eight millions of dollars have been reported by the eounties as available but much of this represents bond money, not all of which will be expended during 1917.

The expenditures are not confined to any particular section but are well distributed throughout the state and each lacality is attempting to do its share. A commendable feature is the fact that almost without exeeption tbe various boards af - county raad commissioners have determined ta spend eonsiderable sums on roads that "start somewhere and go somewherc." The through highways will come in for a lnrger share of tbe lmprovement this yenr.

Charlevoix, Chebaygan, Emmet Grnnd Trsverse nnd Manistee counties, it is known, will do extensive work on the West Mlehigan Pike ns well as build stretches on other important trunk lines. Emmet, Wexford and Osceola counties will build portians of the Mnckinnw Trail within their borders, Cbeboygan, Iosco, Aleonn, Arenae and Presquo Isle eounties will bnild portions af tbe East Michigan Pike. Roscommon, Crawford, and Otsego, taking in to aeeount their finaacial ability, will da their share of the trunk line road building. Newaygo county hauled gravel for 32 miles of road during the winter in preparation for early spring work.

In the southern part of the state Calhoun county bonded for $800,000 and the propositlon to bond Cass eounty for $600,000 carried at the recent eleetion. These and other counties traversed by the Detroit-Chicago highway plan to build a large mileage, much of whieh will be hard surfaeed, along this route as soon as funds are nvailable. On the Wolverine Paved Way the indications are that by the close of the season, this highway will offer a continuous improved road from Lansing to Detroit, with the exception of one or two stretehes in Livingston county. Bond money to the amount of $1,000,000 is avnilable in Genesee county as the result of last fall's election and the county proposes to build a eonerete road across the county from north to south on the old "Genesee plank" as a part of their road program for 1917. Lapeer county has let eontarets for extensive construction. Monroe county heads the list with 105 miles projeeted for 1917, mueh of which was started last year.

Upper Peninsula counties are active also. A recent report made by District Engineer Dillman showing the trunk line road work proposed in the upper peninsula during the coming season gives the following totals:

New construetion	208.44
Grading only	65.09
Resurfacing and widening	20.59

Most of the foregoing is in addition to the work that will be done under the Covert or assessment district act. It is safe to ssy that a million and a half dollars in cash are now deposited in the banks of Michigan to continue the construction of roads under this act during 1917. There nre at present assessment district petitions on file with the state highway commissioner from counties not under the county road system aggregating approximately 1,000 miles of roads, some of which hnve proceeded to the point of letting contracts but on which no more has been done owing to the inability of the state to sell the bonds for construction. The legislature has amended the act and it is thought that the bonds will readily be sold. If this proves to be the case the construction of a very appreciable proportion of the thousand miles will be started this season.

Some of the roads started under the Covert act and mueh of the mileage applied for to the department under tbis act are on important trunk line routes. This is true of the raad between Ionia and Saranac which is one of the main travelled roads between Grand Rapids and Detroit. A larger share of the Huron Shore Drive in the "Thumb" is petitioned for under the Covert aet.

The eonstruction of a small but important mileage of federal aided roads will also be eommenced this year if profits submitted to the Secretary of Agriculture are npproved by him. A total of about 40 miles is proposed in Iosco, Alcoaa and Presque Isle eounties to fill gnps on the East Mlehigan Pike while a road across Baraga eounty aims to cannect the lower part of the upper peninsuln with the copper eounty. The West Michigan I'ike is also slated for two strotches of fcdersl aided ronds; one six miles aeross Laketown township in Allegnn county and one eonnecting the villages of White Hnll and New Era in Muskegon aad Oceana counties. A federal aided road in Leroy, Burdell and Lincoln Townships, Osceola county, to connect roads on the Mackinaw Trall ls also proposed. It is expected that the federal aid law will be of great assistanee to tho state in filliag in the gaps on important trunk line routes where the communities are toa poor to build roads under the ' present state aid road law.

Up ta March 19th, thirty-four bills were introduced in the House and fifteen in the Seaate, to add to or change the highway laws of Michigan. Aside from the appropristion bills the most important ones are the State Federal Aid bill, the amendments to the Covert (assessment district) Aet the Evans' blll containing general amendments to the highway laws, and Senator Bryant's bill, regulating the operation and usc of vehicles on the bighways.

Last year tho automobile money reeeived by the State Highway Department amounted to $991,088.00 and it is hoped that approximately a million and a quarter af dollars will bc rceeived during 1917, aa fully that mueh will be rcquired to meet the rewards on roads now applied for. The appropriation asked for the trunk line fund amounts to $600-000 for the first year and $700,000 for the second year. Last year the appropriation for trunk line purposes was $550,000 which was exhausted before the end af the first six months, at which time $109,000 was due on trunk lines over and above that amount. On the advice af the Attorney General these were cared for from the nutomobile fund. Thus it is apparent that the amount asked for in the trunk line fund will be barely sufficient to carry an the work during the next two years. On January first applications were on file with the State Highway Commissioner calling for single rewards amounting to $2,338,022 and trunk line rewards amounting to $1,328,-397. But past experience has shown that not more than fifty per eent of the roads applied for at any given time are liable ta be completed and accepted for state reward within the succeeding year. Thus it is hoped that the appropriation asked for together with the automobile fund will be sufficient to take eare of both the single and trunk line reward and build the trunk line bridges now applied for. In the past it hns requir-ed approximately one-third of the trunk line funds to take care of bridges.

The State Federal Aid bill cnrries its own appropriation and the roads built in Michigan for Federal aid wil be paid for part by the State part by the township or eounty in which they are located and pnrt by the federal government, but will receive no other state reward. The federal Aid bill which has now passed the House carries an appropriation of $225,000 each year for the next two years, which is slightly more than half of the amount of the money which will he received from the federal government during that time.

No highway law was ever placed on the statute books of Michigan which met with more popular favor than the so-called Covert Aet.

The act provides that in the counties not working under the county road system, as well as for inter-county roads, the petitions shall be filed with the State Highway Commissioner, who is given authority to proceed with the construction of the roads in the same manner as are the county road commissioners in eounties working under the county rond system. At the present time approximately one thousnnd miles of petitions are on file with the State Highway Commissioner, ealling for the eonstruction of between five and six million dollars worth of roads, some of which have proceeded to the point of letting contracts.

Due to the fact that the State was unable to sell its bonds and some other ineonsistencies, the Attorney General has drafted an amendmeat to the Covert Aet which was introduced by Senator Covert, has already passed the Senate and is now on the general orders in the House. It is expected that tbe amended bill will allow the state and counties to take up and complete the work whicb was started under the old aet Section 76 provides that "proceedings heretofore commeaced under said aet shall not be invnlidated either in whole or in part hereby but may be eompleted under the provisions hereaf."

The Evans bill which passed the House March the 21st earries with it three very important provisions. First—it provides that the eounty rond commissioners shall serve as an administrntive board only and employ n superintendent wba is a skilled road builder, but who may or may not be an engineer, wha shall direct the road building operations in the county. Twelve yenrs' experienee with road building operations in the state has convinced the State Highway Cammissioner that counties which bave been aperating in this

CHEVROLET

Whatever your first consideration in buying a motor car—speed, power, beauty, durability, economy of operation—you make no mistake in the purchase of a Chevrolet. Chevrolet models represent such a happy combination of all the attributes of full car value that you are sure to be satisfied, whichever feature chances to be your particular hobby.

Acceleration on high gear of from 5 to 25 miles an hour in exactly 10 seconds.

Acceleration on high gear of from 8 to 25 miles an hour on a 25 per cent grade, 200 feet in length.

Pulling power of eight miles an bour on high gear in sand so deep that tire and rim are completely buried.

All this is provided by the famous Chevrolet valve-in-head motor, which not only proves that the Chevrolet motor is the most powerful engine of its size and weight built today, but that a well built, bigbly refined four is the logical car for all-around everyday use—performance and economy considered.

Chevrolet models, when occasion demands, show the "Clean Heels" of the thoroughbred, producing a speed-rate unusual for cars of the Chevrolet class. The fastest speed you will ever care to travel lies latent in every Chevrolet model.

maaner in the past have produced much the best results.

Second—It provides that every county, good roads district, and township shall organizo an adsquate and efficient continuous system of maintcnance which must bc approved by the State Highway Commissloner in order to entitls such county, good roada district, or township to receive further state reward. This also points to the time when we may hope that the roads on which millions of dollars havs been expended, shall be kept in a condition of repslr satisfactory to the users. This must be done or ws ahall very soon lose a largs portion of the money thus expended.

Third—The bill provides for doubling the rsward on roads built under classes F and G, which covers roads built of concrete, with or without bituminous tops, as well as roads built of brick. In the past the trunk line rewards on roads built of gravel or macadam havc averaged between forty and fifty per cent of the cost of thc roads, while on the roads built of these more permanent materials the rewards have averaged less than twenty per cent of their cost. This has been manifestly unfair to thoss counties and townships which have been obliged to maintain the higher types of road to withstand a large volume of trsvel much of which is foreign to the communitics charged with the cost of building and up-keep of the roads. Thus it is only fair that the state bear an adequate proportion of this burden.

The Bryant bill, designed to regulate the operstion and use of vehicles on the highways, regulates the roads which may be drawn according to the width of tires and the condition of the roads when used. It is not aimed at motor vehicles only but regulates the horse-drawn vehicles as well. Thus the maximum load on four-weeled vehicles having two inch tires is 3200 pounds; for four inch tires 8800 pounds. The bill contains a table showing the allowable wheel loads on tires ranging from one to five inches. No vehicle may be operated on the public highways, the gross weight of which is more than fifteen tons.

The loads on motor vehicles having wheels 32 iaches in diameter are regulated according to width of tire and speed. The maximum wheel load for tbree inch tires is 1200 pounds per wheel, allowable speed twenty miles per hour; four inch tires are allowed to carry 1900 pounds with a maximum spsed of eighteen miles per hour. Wheels of greater diameter than thirty-two in. are allowed greater loads which are specified in the act. In fact this is tabulated the same as for borse-drawn vehicles.

During the months of March, April and May, if by reason of the thawing of frost, or rains, the roads ars in aoft conditiun the maximum carrying capacity of all vehicles shall be only one-half the rates abovo noted.

While these are the most important highway laws now under considsration bills have been iatroduced requiring the granting of franchiso by townships to individuals or companies who desire to do a passenger or freight busineas over ths public highways; to regulate the use of traction engines on highways; to provide for the closing of traffic of roads under construction; providing suitable detours are placed ia a reasonably safe and passable condition and properly sign-boarded so that the traveling public may know how to nvoid roada which are impassable when they are torn up for construction.

A One-Piece Motorist Dress

My sister and I spent the greater portion of last summer in our car. Of the things we found most useful were our one-piece dresses of dark green denim. These dresses, large enough to alip over a thinner dress, we made in the redingote of princess style, with anap fasteners down the entiro front, long, rather loose sleeves and collar that could be turned up if desired, to prevent sunburn The belt was tacked under each arm, and the tie, a cord with ball ends was fastened under the collar. These dresses often proved wrap enough, and served us as dust protectors too.

When not worn for this purpose we always carried them under the seat an dfound them a "friend in need" when a blow-out had to be mended or when wood had to be hunted for a fire in the open.

Many a night when camping along the way, we made use of them for extra sleeping garments.

We chose dcnim because the firmness of the texture would make the garment warm, dust would easily brush off, and wrinkles easily come out. A llttle gasoline taken from the tank is all that is necessary to make the dress as good as new.—Woman's Home Companion.

FORD RIVAL'S A ST. BERNARD

SHAGGY LIFE-SAVER HAS NOTHING ON "LIZ"

Lost Lineman Rescued From Death In British Columbia's Frozen Wilderness

Up north where the mercury plays hide and seek with the zsro mark the year round and they talk meridiana and parallels instead of towns and counties, you will find to your surprise some of man's newest methods and iaventions. Up where the wind whistlea ghostly tunes around the bleak crags, and the days grow long and chilly—the land of pioaeer and pick axe, of frozen toes and quick fortunes—you will find Ford cars bave preceeded you in even the wildest parts of ths territory.

A brand new record for "farthest north" travel ln Britlsh Columbia is now held by a Ford car, and furthermore a llfe was saved in the making of it. The record was established recently by James MacKay of Hazleton, B. C., who set out from Hazleton with Constables Mead and Cline ln search of a new employe of the telegraph service who had wandered from the trail and was several days overdue.

So it was not a purely adventuresome spirit which prompted MacKay to journey into the barren places that never before had been attempted by an automobile, but instead a matter of life and death. The party set out due north from Hazleton, into the heart of the Caribou District. It was an almost hopeless task to find a lost lineman ln the outlying territory. There were mountain passes, ice and snow, rough open country, with no roads to follow, and often only a rocky frozen path to guide their progress.

But with grim determination they pushed forward. There was ths constant need of every bit of speed possible so that the lost man might be found before it was too late.

At last, as if by an act of Providence, thcir efforts were fruitful. The missing man was found in a structure known as "First Cabin," about fifty miles north of Hazleton. He was in a state of exhaustion, but a day or two ln the hsnds of frienda brought back perfect health. He owes hia life to MacKay, and to the Ford car, for if the aturdy motor car had not been employed for the journey and succeeded in going forther north in British Columbia than ever befors had been accomplished, the rescue party never could have fulfilled its important mission.

This, of course, la not the northernmost point ever traversed by a Ford car. There are many doing regular service in the Yukon territory, and there is, in fact, an enterprising Ford dealer located at Dawson City. He is the northernmost automobile dealer in Canada, but does a good steady business. At some points ln the Yukon thc only passable highways in winter are over the ice on the rivers, but the Ford cars have made winter travel up there exceedingly comfortable as compared to the dog teams which previously furnished about the only means of locomotion. Furthermore the Fords aro quicker and more reliable.

Further up in the direction of that much discussed and mythical point at the top of the earth, in Alaska, there are a number of Ford cars doing various sorts of service, winter and summer.

In commercial use, aa well as for traveling betwecn outlying points, the Fords are decidedly serviceable in the frigid districts. The Canadian Klondike Mining Compsny at Bear Creek, near Dawson City, is one of the firms which use the motor car to advantage. Their opinion of ths up-north use of the Ford is best demonstrated by the fact that they have five in use.

The Guggenheim Mining Company have had two Ford cars in commission for the past three years, and these are used as servicc cars to rush supplies to any one of their dredges or along the high tension power lines, in case of breakages. The Fords are usually called on to trsvel over newly made mining trails and at times over the rocky refuse piles thrown up by the gold mining dredges.

In some of the towns of the Northwest, the streets consist of heavy plank roads, and on these the Fords are the only motor cars which have proved they can stand up and give good service.—Ford Times.

SCOTCHMAN INVENTED PNEUMATIC TIRE

Manufacturing of Miller Tires Is Done With Extreme Care

Every man who owns an automobile owes a debt of gratitude to R. W. Thompson, a Scotchman, who is given credit for having conceived the idea of the pneumatic tire over 70 years ago.

Yet the chances are that not one man in a million ever heard of him —and there is not a picture of him in existence.

Without the pneumatic tire the pleasure car of today is impossible. Thompson devcloped the idea of a leather cover bolted to the wooden rim of the wheel, and within this rough contrivance, he inserted a rubber inner tubs.

In modern automobile tires cotton fabric and rubber take the place of leather. And all the skill of the tire builder is lavished on ths task of making of these materials a unit that will stand constant pounding and wear of daily use.

Every tire must be vulcanized—which in affect ls a cook-curing or cooking process. Too often the life of the cotton and rubber is burned out in the vulcanizing pits. That'a why so many tires fall down ln aervice.

By the exclusive Miller method all the natural wax and oil contained in the fabric is retained, which leavea them brim full of Mile Muscle. That is why they deliver such big mileage.

There are hundreds of different tires on the market to choose from and C. L. Thomas, who represents the Miller lino could sell any of these makes if he wished, but he recommends these Miller Tires and tubes simply because experience has taught him that they give the most uniform satisfaction, the best aervice and the greatest mileage.

TO GET THE CAR RUNNING AGAIN

AFTER-WINTER TREATMENT IS IMPORTANT.

Draining, Cleansing and Oiling Now Reduced to Exact Science—Fill Your Gas Tank.

It is entirely a matter of common sense and ordinary care, rather than any special knowledge, which gets a stored car into running order for the spring joy rides.

The power plant and its adjuncts should receive first attention. The oil pump should be drained of oil whether the sump was drained before putting the car away for the winter or not, as a certain amount of oil will have run down from the pistons, rings, wrist pins, and bearings into the reservoir.

Having drained the crank case, replace the drain plug and fill with three or four quarts of kerosene. Then, opening the pet cocks, or if there are none, removing the spark plugs, crank the engine vigorously for three or four minutes. This splashes the kerosene over the interior of the engine and washes away the last remaining drops of old oil. Drain out the kerosene, screw home the drain plug and fill with clean oil of the correct body for your motor, remembering that as spring and summer are approaching a heavier oil can be used than is advisable in cold weather.

Oiling Up.

Fill all the grease cups on the car, and screw home at least twice. With an oil of very light body such as a good sewing machine oil—either paint the edges of all springs with a brush or squirt it along the leaves from a long nozzled oil can. If at intervals during this operation you can have someone jump up and down in the car or rock it from side to side in order to get some motion in the springs, the oil will penetrate to their centers and the more readily lubricate them.

The differential, that mechanism situated in the center of the rear axle should be packed with a first-class differential grease. The gear box should be repacked or, in the case of most cars, replaced with a heavy oil.

A liberal dose of oil should be put wherever there is an oil hole, such as on the fan, at both ends of the generator and in both starter bearings. Many fans run on ball bearings and have a removable nut closing a grease hole. Take out this nut and lubricate the balls with a semi-liquid grease, such as is used in the differential, inserting it with a grease gun. See that the fan belt is tight.

After refilling radiator and water jacket at least three times in order to make certain that all sediment which may have settled in the cylinder walls or radiator tubes has been washed out, note whether there are any leaks in both rubber pipe joints connecting radiator and the engine, or whether the water pump, if there is one, is leaking through the packing about the shaft. Any leaks should be connected by repacking or tightening of screw joints.

Filling the Tank

Do not try to start without filling the gasolene tank. This may seem an unnecessary caution, yet any repair man can tell of being called to home garages to start refractory cars only to find there is no fuel!

Be sure the cock between gasolene tank and carburetor has not been closed, and prime the carburetor until it overflows to make sure the gasolene is flowing.

If your car is equipped with a vacuum feed system it may be necessary to crank the engine vigorously for some time before the engine will start. This is because gasolene, remaining in the vacuum tank, will have evaporated during the winter, and it is necessary that the engine pump it full again before any will flow to the carburetor. To avoid this, fill the gasolene vacuum tank half full through the hole in the top (closed with a screw plug) provided for that purpose.

All cuts in tires should be stopped up with tire dough. It is frequently advisable to remove tires which have been on all winter and paint the rims with a good rim paint after having first sandpapered off all rust. It is a good plan, in replacing tires which have been taken off for examination, to use a handful of talc in the outer tubing in replacing the inner tube. Talc sifts out and blows away and tubes without plenty of talc between are much more apt to give trouble than those which are well lubricated.

If your car was properly put away and the exposed metal parts covered with vaseline, no rust should appear but where it has come get a good nickseling compound and use it liberally. Gloss black paint applied with a brush will cover scratches and marred places in the finish.

The battery should have spent the winter in the hands of a competent battery man. If, however, it has been kept in service all winter by being given a boosting charge every two weeks or every month, it should now be taken to a battery man for a test. He will tell you whether it needs any attention or not.

Starting Off Slowly.

A car which has been in storage should be run slowly for the first fifteen or twenty miles. The engine has been thoroughly delubricated during the winter. All the oil has drained away from all the bearings, and it will run now almost like a new piece of machinery. It should not be taxed in any way until plenty of oil has had a chance to reach all the working parts.

The top and the leather of the seats, if in good condition, need no attention. If, however, they show sign of wear, a good leather dressing should be applied with a brush overnight and allowed to soak in. Sun, wind and air withdraw from leather its normal amount of oil, and if not replaced the leather will become so marred that seat covers will be absolutely necessary.

If seat covers have been on all winter it is hardly necessary to remove them for leather examination unless they need cleaning.

If the car was properly put away in the fall it was put away with the engine clean of carbon. If you decided to postpone that disagreeable job, now is the time to do it. Carbon which has stood in the motor all winter is apt to be extremely hard, and a nucleus for still further accreations. Take the engine to a mechanic and have it cleaned at once, rather than subject it to the strain of running with a constant knock, such as plenty of hard carbon invariably produces.

With these few matters attended to there is no reason why a car should not come from winter storage to give as good service in summer as if it had been constantly in use and looked after throughout the entire season.—C. H. Claudy in Woman's Home Companion.

DODGE DEFIES DEATH VALLEY

STOCK CAR MAKES HAIR-RAISING TRIP THROUGH DESERT

957 Miles Over Terrible Roads In 7 Days With Only One Puncture And No Breaks

Not long ago Harold L. Arnold, Dodge Brothes dealer at Los Angeles decided to test out a Dodge Brothers motor car to determine, if possible, the maximum stamina and power incorporated in that make of car. To that end he selected an ordinary Dodge Brothers car from stock and authorized Engineer O. K. Parker, of Los Angeles, to take that car out into the desert and mountains of the Death Valley region in Southern California, for the avowed purpose of driving it to the limit of its endurance, if that could be done by man.

Mr. Parker gives the following description of his trip:

"Death Valley, as you know, is a great trough in the earth's surface the lowest point below sea level, and to be reached from the east or west only by crossing the Panamint Mountains or the Funeral Range. The Panamints tower to a heighth of over 11,000 feet and the lowest summit in this range is near the mining camp of Skidoo, 5,259 feet above sea level. From this nearly mile high climb the only way to get down into the Valley with a motor car is to force one's way over great masses of storm-tossed boulders that have accumulated in the torrential downpours that sweep that region, leaving these boulders in masses often piled fifty feet in heighth. The drop from a mile above sea level to 149 feet below is made in a distance of fourteen miles. In spite of this down grade it is a terrible strain on the car, for it is warped from end to end a thousand times in making the descent from the summit of the pass to the floor of the Valley.

"After crossing the Valley, our car climbed Boundary Canyon to an elevation of 4,337 feet at the summit of the Funeral Range. There was no sign of a road in Boundary Canyon, the entire sixteen-mile climb being through fine sand interaperaed with malapai boulders. We reached the summit without mishap and were welcomed at Rhyolite as being the most fortunate of men to win thru the terrors of that dreaded region.

"From Rhyolite we continued on south to Las Vegas and Searchlight, Nevada, then to Needles, California, and back over the National Old Trails through the Mojave Desert to Barstow, then to San Bernardino and Los Angeles.

"The total distance of the trip was 957 miles, made in exactly seven days. We had no mechanical trouble of any kind and only had one puncture, and that while passing through the town of Searchlight. Our report to Mr. Arnold was that we did not believe any man could take a Dodge Brothers motor car and break it up so long as it remained on its wheels."

SIMPLE GEAR TEST

But Very Effective—Dodge Bros. Use Red Lead —

Probably one of the simplest and yet most effective quality tests attending the building of Dodge Bros. motor cars is the final check on the rear axle gear.

A thin coating of red lead is applied to the large gear of an assembled differential, the propeller shaft of which is attached to a motor. When the power is applied, the driving gear removes the red lead from each tooth of the driven gear at the point of contact only.

A few revolutions of the gears, a close examination of the resultant effect, and several turns of the bearing adjustment rings is usualy sufficient to assure accurate adjustment.

Brief But Good

Cyclists' trousers-guards can be used to good advantage in keeping the skirts from interfering with the free use of the pedals; they also protect the skirt from becoming soiled or dusty on the floor of the car.

A bungalow apron made of khaki cloth or other heavy material is a useful article to have on hand in case of accident to tires or other parts which the mechanically-inclined driver can repair.—Woman's Home Companion.

Brim-Full of Mile Muscle

It is no great task for the tire builder to secure good cotton fabric and high grade rubber with which to build tires!

But the great big problem is to retain all the native toughness and resiliency of the rubber; to hold all the strength of endurance that is inherent to cotton.

Miller Geared to the Road Tires are brim full of "Mile Muscle." The exclusive Miller Process of building does not burn or cook the vigor and vitality out of either rubber or cotton fabric. Miller Tires come out of the vulcanizing pits lusty with vigor, full of brutal strength and stamina.

The New Miller Inner Tube is the most wonderful production of the famous Miller Laboratories. It is made of the world's strongest rubber: a Miller discovery——will stretch to 10 times its length.

—and always resume normal shape and size;
—will sustain the weight of 3,000 pounds;
—will give longest wear and best service.

Put Miller Tires and Tubes on your wheels—and increase your mileage and safety!

Let us show you one of the wonderful NEW tubes.

GOOD VALUES Always Grow Greater

As the improvements are made in Dodge Brothers car, nothing is said to Dodge Brothers dealers, or to the public about them.

This is in pursuance of a policy inaugurated by Dodge Brothers at the very outset.

They look upon the progressive improvement of the car as a matter of course.

It is a plain duty they owe to themselves and to the public.

There is no necessity of heralding these improvements in advance.

The public finds out about them in due time, and expresses appreciation and approval.

And so, while the process of betterment goes on every day, nothing is said of it until after it is accomplished.

The car is basically the same car as it was two years ago.

Yet there isn't a bit of doubt but that it is a better car.

The car of today is worth more money than the car of two years ago.

Especially because the standards of construction have been steadily raised—the shop practice made steadily finer.

And still, the buyers of the first cars, and every subsequent car, received full value.

That is proven by the fact that all of the cars, no matter how long ago they were built, are giving good service today.

It is still further proven by the high price they command when sold at second hand.

Any car built by Dodge Brothers commands a high price—whether it was built twenty-two months, or twelve months or two months ago.

This high valuation on any car bearing Dodge Brothers name, has been fixed not by them, but by the public.

They are their own severest critics, and they will never wait for the public to ask for a better car from them.

They try to anticipate—to travel ahead—to give even more than is expected.

No material, no part, and no accessory is barred from Dodge Brothers car because it is too high priced.

The only question asked, the only proof demanded, is of its goodness.

When the car was designed, its parts were charted and chosen according to quality, and with a total disregard of price.

That policy still prevails, only it has been intensified.

5 passenger Touring Car	$835 f. o. b. Charlevoix

No source of supply can have too high a standard for Dodge Brothers—nothing too good can be offered for Dodge Brothers car.

That policy, plus a process of research, test, refinement and proof, make for continuous progress.

That is why it is still the same car and yet a much finer car.

That is why its value is always growing greater.

Dodge Brothers have had few market problems to bother them, and practically nothing to do but make the car better.

GERMANY'S WORLD AMBITION FULLY ANALYZED

A Changed World If Kaiser Wins Says Stuart H. Perry, of Adrian.

America and the Allies are bound together by four important common interests—the maintenance of free government against military despotism; the preservation of the political freedom of nations; the preservation of commercial opportunities and the maintenance of the existing status of British and American territory in and near North America which a German victory would disturb. Today the question of common dangers will be considered.

Just as common interests draw nations together, commoa dangers force them together. Fear is more potent than hope of gain. Therefore a common danger will force nations to fight together who formerly hated each other—like England and France, Japan and Russia, Bulgaria and Turkey.

There are two common dangers that confront both the Allies and the United States, in the event of a German victory. The one is political the other commercial.

1. The political danger. This danger is so apparent it hardly needs to be called by name. Germany is the most highly organized and efficient nation in the world. It also is the most aggressive, the most ambitious and the least hound hy precedent of any kind. Moreover, it is the most warlike nation since ancient Rome, and the most skillful in the arts of war.

Upon this foundation stands a superstructure of militarism and autocracy—a caste of nohility and professional soldiers, closely allied with the nation's money power and led by one of the ahlest, most daring and most ambitious monarchs that ever sat upon a throne.

Such a combination is most formidable. The world shivered at the thought of it for many years. Now tha world is struggling for life against that combination. Suppose the combination wins and the rest of the world loses what may ba expected?

First, German's present enemies will be left incapable of crossing her path again. France will be crushed, her army disbanded, her richest territory taken away and a financial penalty imposed which will break her back forever.

England's fleet will be seized, her financial power permanently crippled and her empire broken up and distributed as the spoils of war. Italy will he left helpless and bankrupt. In all western Europe there will be hut one great power, Germany, tho rest will be mere vassals, satellites or protectorates.

One great nation will remain in eastern Europe, too hig to be destroyed—Russia. But Germany will do something better than to destroy her. Germany will set the Russian autocracy back in power. Then the Kaiser and the Czar will work hand-in-glove. Russia's natural resources and man-power, coupled with Germany's technical skill, and both dominated by sympathetic despotisms will dispose of all problems on this planet. Japan will work in perfect harmony.

Can any one doubt for a moment such an outcome is possible? If so, on what grounds can he doubt? Europe, together with Japan, and with valuable help from America, harely has been able to hold Germany.

If all these powers were to he humbled, who would be left to oppose Germany's will? With all hostile armies vanquished and disarmed who would stop the eight million veterans of her central powers? With the British navy gone and Germany commanding an augmented navy twice as powerful as Britain's ever was, where is there a square mile of sea-water where the Kaiser's word would not he law?

This is the political danger common to the Allies and to America. America might possibly succeed in making a struggle against the world-empire, hut it perhaps would be wiser not to resist. It might he wiser frankly to admit the situation, to give up all national ambitions, to do the part of a loyal and vassal state, and try to get along as well as possible under our new masters.

Germany would he reasonable. After our first punishment was over and the bitterness had somewhat abated, we should get along quite comfortably. Gradually German methods, customs, fashions and ideas would supersede all others, the commercial interests of the two countries would be welded together and we should he as comfortable, prosperous and helpless as Holland. Germany would make as good an overlord as we could have if we had to have any overlord.

Such is the political danger that we share with the Allies. Tha other danger, common to the Allies and to America in the event of German triumph is commercial.

2. The commercial danger. The contest between Germany and her competitors would not end with the fighting. That is only tha first stage. Germany's conquest would he completed, the real fruits of victory gathered, in the commercial measures that would follow.

Supposing a German victory with America neutral, what would these measures he? They would be whatever arrangements were to Germany's benefit and to the detriment of her competitors.

For example, she would compel England and France to admit German manufactured goods free, or at low duties, thereby preventing any competing industries from springing up in the conquered lands. At the same time she would erect tariff walls at her own boundaries against any foreign goods that might seek to enter German markets in competition with German manufacturers.

Russia and Germany are not competitors to any great extent, so the manufactured goods of Germany and the foods and raw materials of Russia would flow back and forth freely.

The United States would enact just such tariffs as Berlin demanded. If we did not, we would quickly feel the power behind the demand. At the same time American manufacturers and traders would find all desirable foreign markets shut off, for India, China and South America would have tariff arrangements with Germany that would effectually bar competition with German goods.

Berlin would rapidly become, not a second London, but a greater financial and commercial center than London ever was or ever would have been.

Moreover, Germany would not only export her goods to all parts of the world ahead of all competitors, hut she also would export her capital in the same way wherever there waa an opening to invest money, lend money, or develop new industries.

German influenca, prestige and threats would give German banks and capitalists the inside track whenever there was a franchise or a charter to be given, a big contract to ba let, or a big loan to he floated. No railway could be huilt in China, nor a mine opened in Peru, by American or British or French capital if there were German capitalists that wanted the investmeat.

In these days, foreign trade and political power go together. The nation that is dominant politically can compel weaker countries to grant all sorts of commercial and financial favors—to let in its goods hy low tariffs, to keep out competing goods hy high tariffs, to let valuable contracts to grant franchises and concessions.

If Germany became the world's chief political power, Germany would thus dictate the world's trade and finance. The bulk of the world's trade would be cleared through German banks. German syndicates would grah every contract, franchise and concession worth grabbing in South America or Asia.

No steamship line could live if a German steamship line wanted it out of the way; subsidies would soon kill competition of that sort. Germany's commercial domination of the world would become as complete as her political domination. Indeed, the former is Germany's real end—the latter only the means.

In discussing the common interests and the common dangers that we share with the Allies, no mention has been made of "traditional friendships" or "cordial relations" between any two peoples. These are passed over because they are not to be counted as determining factors. Too much has been made of "hands across the sea" hy some, and too much has been made by others of the fact that we once had quarrels with England. Our early debt to France is referred to often, and the fact that we never had a serious quarrel with Germany for a hundred years used to he cited as an argument that Germany was "our friend."

Friendships and enmities are all temporary. They count for little often for nothing, in determining policies.

We fought England in 1776 and again in 1812; then we became almost her ally; then we quarreled again in the sixties then followed the most cordial friendship and mutual support.

France helped us gain our liberty. But 20 years later we were at war with France—enough at war with her that we sank 84 French vessels at sea. Then wa were friendly again; then we were on the verge of war with Napoleon III. Then friendship again.

It is so with all countries. The friends of today are the enemies of tomorrow. This is not owing to fickleness. It is simply because national friendships are based on common interests or common dangers, and national enmities are based upon rivalry or fear. No socalled national friendship based on mere tradition history or sentiment, can be relied on for a moment if any tangible interest points the other way. On the other hand, old enemies are quickly reconciled tha moment common interests draw them together, or common fear drives them together.

It is a very dangerous mistake to attach any importance to tha fact that England was "once our enemy," or that tha British government was unneutral during our Civil War. Those are facts, and nobody would be so foolish as to deny them. We overlook them and ignore them because they are past and dead—like secession or any other dead issue.

We and our ancestors have fought England and France, and never fought Germany; but all that is irrelevant today; because today the interests and the perils of England and France are also our interests and perils, while German whom we never fought and formerly did not fear, has become our one dangerous enemy. It is the interests and dangers of today that count—not those of the last century.

Our enemy is the nation that can and may strike us, our friend is the nation that can and will fight on our side. We must not go to the cemetery and read the headstones in order to pick out our friends and identify our enemies.

In this article the purpose has been to show how German victory would involve America and the Allies in two common dangers. These two are general dangers, common to all neutral nations as well as to Germany's active enemies. The next article will take up another class of dangers—special dangers peculiar to America, which the Allied powers either do not share at all or which involve them only indirectly or to a small extent.

USEFUL INFORMATION TO AUTOISTS

Water For the Battery

I have some trouhle with the storage hattery. Is there any perticuler woter to use that would remedy the trouhle?

There is only one kind of water to use in a storage hattery; that is, distilled water. No other water of aav character will do. Tha animal and vegetahle matter, as wall as mineral, which is in all other water is very injurious to a storage battery. Only distilled water, which can be bought from druggists in bottles, should ever be used to replace water evaporated from a storage battery.

The Noisy "Silent" Chain

The "silent" chain in my cer which runs the generator makes a noisa when I drive over rough roads. Is thera any remedy for it?

The so-called silent chain is a very effective piece of mechanism as long as it is not worn. When, however, the pins and links get worn it will make just as much noise as any other kind. The remedy is provided for on some cars by a means of tightening the chain. In other cars there is no remedy except a new one. Only a repair man can tell you. If, however, your silent chain is drivea in oil, the probahilities are that adding some graphite to the oil in which it is driven will aid considerably in stopping the noise.

The Use of Tire Dough

I am writing to know where I may get the tire dough you speak of; I have tried several places, and they do not seem to know anything about it. I would like also any information you might give me as to how it is applied.

Tire dough is a substance partially composed of raw rubber and partially composed of semi-vulcanized rubber. It hardens when exposed to air. It is applied to cuts in tires first hy cleaning out the cuts with gasolene and then stuffing the dough in with a knife. By treating cuts in tires in this way aad letting the tires stand over night, the dough hardens and amalgamates with the rubber of the tire, preventing sand, gravel and water from getting in little cuts and rotting the fabric.

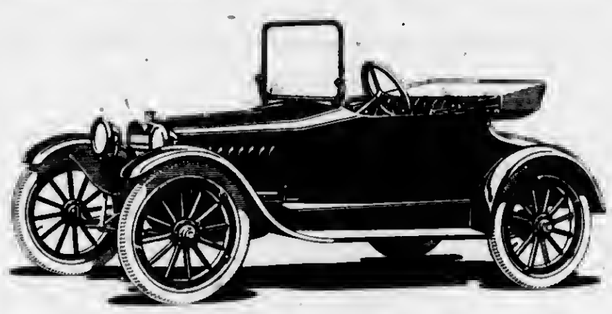
SAXON

ROADSTERS AND SIXES



Saxon Roadster is $495 F. O. B. Detroit

There is a distinet and pronounced good will that goes hand in hand with the Saxon name. Give good valuc and you gain good will. The one inevitably earns the other. If there is any secret to Saxon success it is an open seeret and this is it:

Giving Good Value, Gaining Good Will

It is this good will surrounding Saxon ears that gives protection and permanency to the owner who puts his faith in the Saxon name.

The four marked characteristics of the Saxon Roadster are—its ability to perform efficiently under all conditions, its strength and ruggedness, its endurance, and its remarkably low upkeep costs.

The six-cylinder motor in the Saxon "Six" has been refined until vibration and friction are now nearly nil. So it develops a smoother power-flow for a greater length of time than any other car of its class.

Saxon Roadster Specifications—New style body, more room, two unit electric starting and lighting, demountable rims, 30 x 3 in. tires, new style top with Grecian rear bow, electric horn, extra tire carrier, speedometer, new design of carburetor, L-head high-speed motor of unusual power, smoothness, quietness and flexibility, 3-speed sliding gear transmission, Timken axles, Hyatt quiet bearings, vanadium steel cantilever springs, ventilating windshield and a score more of noteworthy refinements.

Saxon "Six" Specifications—New body design, larger body, new finish 12 in. brakes, 4½ in. full cantilever type rear springs, 2 in. crankshaft, tilted windshield, new style top with Grecian rear bow, new style fenders, instruments mounted on cowl dash, chrome vanadium valve springs, new design carburetor, 112 in. wheelbase, light weight six-cylinder high speed motor; 32 in. x 3 ½ in. tires, demountable rims, two unit starting and lighting system. Timken axles, full Timken bearings, and twenty further refinements.

SAXON FAVORITE WITH WOMEN

THEY LIKE THEIR EASE AND SAFETY OF HANDLING

There Is Also Distinct Pride In Owning Car Of Such Modern Design.

An interesting phase of the growth and development of Saxon distribution has been the decided favor shown Saxon ears by women drivers. A host of them have seemed to find their standard of motor car value in these great ears.

Of course this is explained, to a great extent by the extreme ease with whieh Saxon cars are handled. There is practically no effort required to guide them through the intricacies of city traffic, or over the roughest country roads. Any woman is safe in driving a Saxon ear.

Then again, there is the grace and beauty in their design. There is a certain distinct pride in owning a ear of such modern design. All the refinements whieh have been added to the ear, of course, appeal to the aesreching serutiny given by the woman shopper. The new style top with the Greelan rear bow, the new design fenders and the fresh and lasting finish given the cars, all attract her eye.

Then there is the big item of comfort. There is ample space and absolute riding comfort for all passengers in Saxon ears. There is plenty of leg room and the seats are more than wide enough for the number of passengers for which they are designed.

Probably one of the most sensational trips ever made in a Saxon car, or any other automobile for that matter, was the one recently completed by Mrs. Alice Snitzer Burke and Miss Nell Riehardson, the two prominent suffragettes who toured the United States in behalf of suffrage and completed a total of over 10,000 miles.

After carefully considering the merits of many makes of cars, they selected Saxon roadster as the ablest ear for this long, gruelling run.

For five months they traveled from city to city, following a definite schedule, covering 10,000 miles, and were never late once. At no time on the eatire journey did they experience any motor trouble.

Over both the eastern and western mountain ranges; across the arid deserts of Novada and Californis; over the eorduroy roads of southern timber tracts and through mud hub deep, Saxon roadster surmounted every obstacle of road and weather. Today it is ready for another sueh trip.

It is interesting to note that thruout the entire journey Mrs. Burke and Miss Richardson handled the wheel changed tires when necessary and personally gave all the slight serviee that was necessary to keep the ear in perfeet conditlon.

This trip is only one of many whieh furnishes convincing evidence of the remarkable enduranee of Saxon roadster. It also demonstrates most eonclusively the ease of operation of Saxon cars. No mechanieal knowledge is necessary In running them.

We are proud of our women drivers and proud of their loyalty and appreeiation of Saxon merits.

Every luxury, every attraction, every convenience of a costly car is present in the new series Saxon roadster. It is a completely equipped, absolutely modern motor ear for less than $500. It is a sturdy durable performer, capable of giving day in and day out satisfaction to its owner at a lower cost of upkeep than any car made today.

It is the esslest car made to handle in erowded city traffic. Its ability to aeeelerate rapidly and the flexibility of the motor make it possible to wend in and out of the thickest traffic—without shifting gears—in the least possible time.

Many are looking for a raey ear of four passenger eapacity. It is here now in Saxon Chummy Roadster. This is one of the smartest ever put out from the factory. The body is built on the staadard Saxon "Six" chassis which insures the owner all the qualities which have earned the Saxon "Six" success. Ruggedness, durability and the famous Saxon "Six'5' motor are present in this new model. A roadster body whieh comfortably seats four.

Seeking the answer back of the phenomenal suecoss of Saxon "Six" we find it seated in the one word—Performance. We find that this great ear has performed with a degree of satisfaetion for its owners that has established it alone in its class. We find owners voluntarily writing us of its unusual durability—its pulling power and its rapid aceleration. And its economy qualities are eommon food for gossip.

November 15th ground was broken for the new Saxon plant on the tract of land recently purchased by the company on the western outskirts of Detroit, Michigan. It was decided to huild upon this site some months ago, but definite plans were not eompleted until November when work was immediately begun.

The site of the new foctory covers nearly forty acres of ground, fronting on the terminal railroad and affording exeellent shipping facilities. Under the direction of a building eommittee of Saxon officials, assisted hy Horace H. Lane, consulting engineer, a unit plan of factory buildings has been laid out which will give the company plenty of spaee for expansion as the growth of the business may make necessary. The main buildings of the plant will be built of reinforced eoncrete, the largest unit of whieh is well under way towards completion.

Progressive manufaeturing and assembly will be employed in every department and the engineers have spent several months arranging the floor plan for the plant to eliminate waste motion in the various manufaeturing proeesses. The routing of all parts has been mapped so that the passage of materials through the factory will be as direct as possible from the receiving room to the shipping dock.

A system of eonveyors has been planned which will enable incoming material to be transferred from stock to the different manufacturing departments in the most expeditious manner. As in the present plant, an assembly traek will be used and the chassis will start at one end and emerge a finished ear at the other.

When the plant is completed there will be no more eomplete moror car faetory in the country.

In the crowded conditioas of the present plant 150 cars per day are being turned out and this number will be materially increased with the additional facilities and room in the new plant.

"This is ample room for as large expansion as the needs of business may require," said President Harry W. Ford in discussing the new plant. "We will not only have a much better and larger plant, but we will be able to add to it from time to time. It is our object with the completion of the new factory, to have production keep pace with the demand for Saxon cars."

DRIVEWAY IS THE BEST PLAN

GOOD ROADS REQUISITE FOR THIS WAY HOWEVER

Ideal Warming-Up Process For New Motor—Delivery Much Quicker Than By Freight.

The 4,103 driveaway shipmsnts of motor cars made from the factory of the Willys-Overlsnd Company, at Toledo, in the early months of this year, furnished convincing evidence of advantages of that method of sutomobile delivery from factory to dealer,. aecording to Benjamin Brown, local Willys-Overland representative.

In January, 1903 Wilys-Overland ears were driven Overland to the dealer; in February, 1058 were transported in this way and the driveaway shipments Increased to 2142 in Marcb.

With reasonably good roads on which to deliver the new cars, it is said that the driveaway method Is a most desirable substitute for the freight delivery and that it will be common practiee in the future, irrespective of freight conditions.

"Up to a few weeks ago, the driveaway method of delivering automobiles was regarded as simply the only alternative in getting the cars to the dealers when freight cars were not available," said Benjamin Brown "Today, the leading manufacturers have awakened to the fact that there is often a distinet advantage in the over-land system of delivery and many of them will continue to adhere to it long after the freight car shortage is relieved.

"In the first place, the over-land delivery of a new ear furnishes an ideal warming up proeess for the new motor. Actual service on country roads, in the hands of experienced drivers, is the best sort of treatment for the motor fresh from the factory. All the working parts are thereby fitted for the task whicb they are to perform and when the car is delivered to the buyer they work more smoothly if possible, than on the day they left the factory.

"In the second place, over-land delivery is mueh quicker than shipping by freight. Wben the ear leaves the factory you know approximately just when it will reach its destination. There will be no annoying delay in congested freight yards and, furthermore, there is no danger of rough handling of tbe car in loading and unloading.

"Poor roads alone stand in the way of over-land delivery of automobiles. With good roads campaigns assuming greater proportions each year, it is reasonable to hope that the time soon will eome when the road situation no longer will be an obstaele in this direction. Besides the state and county Good Roads support, there is the ever-increasing aid given the movement by the federal governmeat.

"In 1916, there were built under the supervision of federal authorities approximately 561 miles of road 15 feet in width, aecording to the annual report of the offiee of public roads in the Department of Agriculture. The roads included in the total are experimental roads, county roads and roads in national parks and forests.

"This is more than double the work of any previous year and still greater progress is expected in 1917.

"With good roads on every hand, the driveaway will no longer be an unusual feature of motor car delivery. It probably will be the ordinary thing."

Saving Wear on Skirts

My sister, who drives a car a great deal, found that the friction of the leather seat was causing her skirts to wear shiny. This became a serious problem afterone or two expensive suits had been thus affeeted. We arrived at a remedy this way: We took a piece of soft woolen serge that would not shed lint and cut it to the size of the seat, hemmiag it so that it would not ravel. Then we affixed two pieces of garter elastic to the corners of it near tho back of tho seat, and two other pieces to the edge at the side of the seat. These elastic pieces we then passed under the seat and held in place with thumb tacks. Another piece of elastic from the free corner in front, secured in tho samo way kept tbe cloth firmly in place and free from wrinkles.

When she drives now the friction is all against tho piece of cloth, which slides more easily over the leather seat, than against the cloth skirt, and we figure that tbe saving in clothes is well worth tho trouble we took.

GET YOUR REO NOW -- It is Imperative

AGAIN WE CAUTION YOU—that there won't be, can't be, enough Reos to go 'round. Many must be disappointed.

THAT ONLY THOSE who order now and take delivery as soon as the local dealer can supply them, can hope to be numbered among the "Lucky Ones" who will drive Reos this season.

MAY ALWAYS BRINGS the biggest demand of the year—the big Spring demand starts then.

OBVIOUSLY, it is impossible for any factory to manufacture enough cars to fill the orders that dealers will book in that period.

IN THE CASE OF REO, it has never been possible for us to make enough cars in the Winter months to supply the Spring rush.

THE QUALITY THAT IS REO is the result of that policy. And it is also the cause of tbe effect that manifests itself in the form of a constant over-demand—a demand for Reos of all models, that is almost hopelessly in excess of the factory output.

IN FACT, NEVER since the first Reo left the factory has there been a time when it was possible to make enough cars to supply all who wanted Reos.

MERE VOLUME does not appeal to us. We covet a reputation that to our way of thinking if far beyond that.

SO AT THIS TIME, 'twere a waste of words to tell you more of Reo quality.

OUR MESSAGE TO YOU—a suggestion of most vital importance at this time—is to delay not another day the selection and ordering of your automobile.

AND IF YOU'VE DECIDED to cease experimenting and buy a Reo, see to it that your Reo dealer is advised in the form of an actual order—else you may again be disappointed.

THERE WON'T BE—can't be, enough Reos to go 'round. Reports from Reo dealers everywhere tell the same story, sound the same warning.

SO DON'T DELAY—today won't be a minute too soon.

OF COURSE WE COULD have more nearly caught up with the demand, did not the Reo policy prevent. Were we, in short, willing to sacrifice quality in favor of mere quantity considerations.

FINANCIALLY, REO IS one of the strongest concerns in the world. Among manufacturers the Reo plant is regarded as the "Model Automobile Factory."

SO YOU SEE there's no obstacle in the way of large quantity production, save tbat which we have so deliberately placed there ourselves.

THAT REO POLICY, established at the inception of Reo, has never been changed. Exigencies of the moment influence that plan not at all.

WE REO FOLK are not, never have been, ambitious to make all the automobiles—only the best.

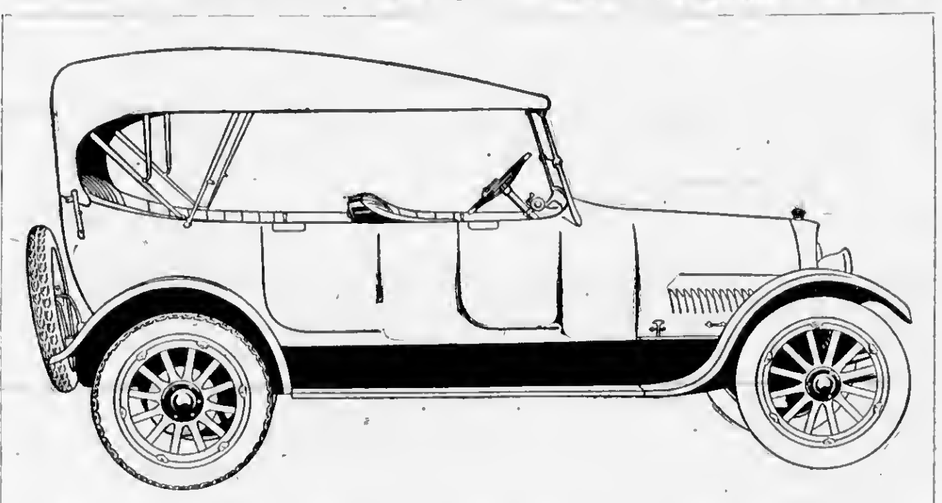
THAT YOU KNOW Reo quality—that it is splendidly appreciated by motorists generally—is amply evidenced by that very demand.

THE BIG RUSH is on—and the biggest ever known—for Reos.

FACTORY TELLS US there are already 9,000 more orders on file than can be filled.

SO THE ONLY WAY to be sure at present prices of a Reo—any model—this year is to place your order now—a bona fide order, with cash deposit.

BETTER DO IT at once—today won't be a minute too soon.



The New Reo Six: The 1917 "Fashion Plate"

We Reo Folk are not a little elated over the fact that in the New Reo Six we have been able to not only set a higher standard of mechanical excellence, and to achieve a new mark in values, but also to have produced the Fashion Plate from which other makers will copy their new models.

That this new Reo Six has in fact set the fashion in body design for the coming year, you will realize when you see the various new models as they appear from time to time.

We at the Reo factory are accustomed to a condition of over-demand, but never can we recall a time when there was such an avalanche of orders in one day as when the dual announcement appeared of Reo the Fifth at its new price, $875, and this beautiful new, seven-passenger, "Sheer-line" Reo the Six at $1,250.

Within twenty four hours after that announcement was read by people all over America, we realized that it would be necessary to double our production on this model, and acting on the moment, we were able to get our specifications in and to "cover" for the necessary materials just in the nick of time—

If you who read this happen to be one of those who have pondered the oft repeated query "when will the production of automobiles equal the absorbing capacity of the market" you will find the answer to that question in the tremendous demand that greeted the announcement of this big, beautiful car at its price.

When such a car can be obtained at a price that places it within the reach of so many, there's no need to worry about over-production. We could easily sell 50,000 of this model, instead of 15,000, if only we could make them.

If you are mechanically inclined—and if you are not, you must have some friend who is and in whose judgment you have confidence—go over this new Reo Six externally and internally; examine the various units, and then minutely examine the various parts of those units and you will marvel at the magnificient mechanism you are now able to obtain for one-quarter the price you formerly had to pay for such power, such capacity, and such service. And then you didn't get it.

Reo the Fifth, "The Incomparable Four"

At a time when there seems to be no agreement—no unanimity of opinion—among automobile manufacturers as to which type of car will make the strongest appeal to popular fancy and attract that class of buyers who are always willing to experiment with something new—in blissful ignorance of the probable cost of doing so—the more discriminating buyers seem to appreciate a concern that offers as its chief arguments just Service, Satisfaction and the Minimum of Maintenancc Cost.

Never were so many different types of motors and of motor cars offered to the public as this year; and in spite (or because?) of that, never has the demand for the sturdy, reliable, conservative Reo the Fifth been so great as now.

Never were there so many varietiesand combinations of cylinders—and never was the popularity of Reo the Fifth, "The Incomparable Four" so strongly emphasized.

If we were asked to state what in our opinion is the strongest argument that could be used in favor of Reo the Fifth in this year when the majority of cars have been less than a year in coming from the incubation to the announcement stage—from the birth of the idea to its debut—we would say that recommendation would be contained in the words, "This is the sixth season during which Reo the Fifth has maintained its supremacy among five-passenger motor cars."

In the confusion resulting from announcements of many radically different, radically new, radically experimental types, the intelligent, cautious buyer selects for his a thoroughly tried, thoroughly proven product—Reo the Fifth, standard and the acknowledged leader for now six seasons.

Reo success is second to none other in this industry, and we never feel so safe as at a time like this when other makers are courting popular approval by offers of new and radically different types of automobiles.

Our conception of our mission—our idea of permanent success—is to build, not something newer, but something better.

We believe that the majority of intelligent buyers want service rather than sensationalism.

Our ambition has never been to make all the automobiles—just to make the best automobiles.

AUTOIST ASKS SEVERAL "WHYS"

DEPLORES THE LACK OF COURTESY SHOWN

Wants to Hear From Brother Motorist Going to the "Cincy" Races

Some whys to the Auto Driver by one who has experienced every why listed below:

Why not stop and offer your services to any one who is having trouble along the road, even if he does not signal you to stop?

Why not when you have room to share in your machine do you not ask a person who is walking if they care to ride? It may take you a minute but the same fellow may pull you out of the ditch some time.

Why not give the road and a full share of it when the man behind signals you to pass? It is a sure sign he wants to drive faster and you don't own all the road even if you have a brand new Ford.

Why not, if you meet a team with a heavy load and the road is narrow swing to one side and stop and give the man the benefit of the track?

Why is it some people driving a horse-drawn vehicle want to keep the road and make you tag along after them like Mary's little lamb?

Why does some young autoist who owes for the hat on his head, think a horse has no right on the road, and also delight in seeing how many chickens he can kill if they happen to wander in the road?

Why don't everyone dim their lights? I have dimmed my lights several times and had some fellow nearly put me in the ditch because he left his on.

Why does the man with the $1000 car hate to have the Ford pull him out when he is stuck? Yes why?

Enough whys but you could go on for a long time telling the short comings of all of us drivers and in lots of cases because our excuse is that "we don't think."

I think you find the people are getting more courteous than formerly. I had this brought to me very forcibly in a trip I made in which I did not know the road. I kept asking questions and every time got a very pleasant reply and all seemed anxious to do what they could.

The only big Auto race this year is to be held at Cincinnati, Ohio, the Chicago and Indianapolis tracks being turned over to the government for military purposes. To the person who has never seen a "real auto race" I want to say he will get his money's worth by going to Cincinnati and if any one who reads this is going I wish he would drop me a card and let me know about it as I intend to make the trip.

Now let's all of us thank the Courier for giving us a special auto edition. It requires lots of extra work and Charlevoix can feel proud of the fact that it is not equalled, or anywhere near it by any SMALL town paper in the state.—Interested Autoist.

A Protecting Overskirt

When going some distance where I won't have an opportunity of changing my dress, I have devised an skirt to wear over my dress to keep it fresh and clean. I got an inexpensive linen and made a straight skirt almost twice the proper length, put a band at the waist and ran elastic through the narrow hem. This skirt I put on over my other clothes and tuck the extra length up under my skirts, the elastic holding it in place. This protector can be slipped off before getting out of the car; it not only keeps your skirts clean, but gives perfect freedom to the feet in running the car.—Woman's Home Companion.

The Useful Elastic

Fellow sufferers! Would you keep your hat on? To my mind motor veils are decidedly passe, and I find the following the easiest and best way to make any and every hat stay put. Take a piece of hat elastic, the desired width, long enough to go under the chin firmly; sew a medium size dress hook on each end, and then sew an eye of the corresponding size on each side of the inside band of your hats. Many times one plans to stop where a motor hat isn't just the thing and the band can easily be hooked or unhooked without removing the hat. I'm sure this suggestion will be found coavenient.

My mother always carries in a pocket in the car several elastic bands made like round garters, only larger, for guests whose hats are troublesome to slip over their hats and under their chins, kiddie fashion. They have made several people have a good time, when otherwise the fun would have been spoiled by flopping hats.—Woman's Home Companion.

Summer Driving Gloves

The problem of summer motor clothes has never worried me much, except as regards one item—gloves. I cannot bear to drive without them, yet they make my hands exceedingly uncomfortable in hot weather. Finally I had an idea; I borrowed from my brother his open-knuckled golf gloves. They were just the thing, protecting the palm of my hand, yet allowing the air to get in, too. Now I have invested in a pair of my own, and couldn't get along without them. —Woman's Home Companion.

WATCH STORAGE BATTERIES

SOURCE OF MUCH TROUBLE IF NEGLECTED

Sensitive Affair Which Needs Careful And Frequent Attention To Save Expense

A surprising number of motorists, taking out their first car, haven't the slightest idea where their storage battery is located. Some are entirely unaware of the fact that they have a battery and that the operation of starter and lights—and in most cases ignition—is wholly dependent upon it and its well being.

The result is that the battery is ignored and often times harmfully abused. Not until it runs down and fails to do its work, does the owner begin to investigate.

Most battery troubles that come to our attention," says Wood Brothers of the local Prest-O-Lite Battery Service Station, "are due to lack of knowledge of the function of the storage battery and the attention it requires.

"If every motorist could realize that a storage battery is a perishable article, which is highly sensitive to abuse and neglect, a great deal of inconvenience and expense would be saved. In this respect the battery is no different than any other part of the motor car.

"Just as driving over glass and nails abuses tires and running a motor without oil will burn out the bearings, so will lack of care and attention bring the storage battery to grief.

"The average car owner knows what constitutes tire and motor abuses and he avoids them. He would do well to find out what abuses his battery, what attention it requires and why—to get acquainted with it and its operation. First season motorists, particularly, would save themselves considerable expense and annoyance by acquainting themselves at once with their storage battery and its needs.

"The battery experts at our Service Station, 411 Bridge street, cheerfully explain to motorists, regardless of the make of their battery just how a storage battery works and how to keep it in working condition. Under our service plan, we are prepared to assist the battery user in a material way, if he will call regularly at our station for service. Battery users owe this protection to their storage batteries, as well as to their pocket-books, as all storage battery troubles when neglected sooner or later develop into expensive matters."

CHEVROLET {Valve in Head} Motor Cars

The Chevrolet valve-in-head motor is a short-cut to maximum power. Chevrolet engineers recognized the success of the overhead valve from the beginning, for the superiority of this type is founded on simple common-sense principles, as follows:

The shortest path is the direct one. The direct force is always the strongest. Hence, the force traveling the shortest path must be the strongest.

This is as true as two and two make four.

You know, for instance, that the hammer hitting the nail on the head drives furthest. The blow driven at an angle hits weakly.

That is the whole story.

In the common method of construction, the gasoline is usually introduced into a side chamber—a sort of waiting room.

There it explodes with a force that travels a long distance until it strikes the piston waiting round a corner It is only a weak, glancing blow.

In the valve-in-head motor this does not happen. In this new type, the gasoline is introduced directly into the cylinder head, where it is blocked flatly by the piston head.

The explosion occurs directly over the piston head, the cylinders being without corners to collect gases, the fullest benefit is secured by the explosion; the result, maximum power.

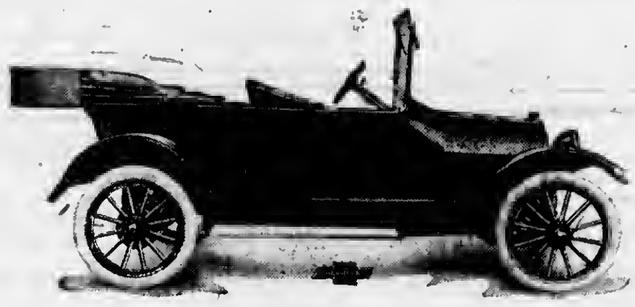
The "Four-Ninety Touring Car

The "Four-Ninety" is the cheapest 5 passenger touring car placed on the market—Cheapest in price but not in the quality of the materials used in its construction. If you can buy a 5-passenger car for $550 equipped with electric lights and starter and made from the best of materials you surely have a rare opportunity knocking at your door.

Despite the scarcity of quality materials and prevailing high prices The Chevrolet Motor Company has not departed from its policy of using only the highest grade of units in its construction. Price has been secondary. And this policy will not change in the future. Quality is the basis of Chevrolet success. And we do not mean to diminish our standing in the least.

The colossal resources of this company have been massed from the first in solid defense of the Chevrolet reputation. Genuine quality of construction has been maintained.

The care exercised in the selection of materials proves conclusively that the "Four-Ninety" model is not built to meet a price.



The "Four-Ninety" Roadster

The Chevrolet "Four-Ninety" Roadster is fast becoming a popular model for business men, real estate men, professional men, and all those who must cover a large amount of territory daily.

It has a streamline body of trim appearance, finely balanced, and is mounted on the famous "Four-Ninety" chassis. In the rear of the car is a spacious compartment for carrying supplies. This is sealed with a water-proof cover. This "turtle-back" compartment is readily removable from the frame by removing four bolts.

The car has a roomy interior, finely upholstered for the greatest ease and comfort. The resiliency of the chassis and the pliancy of the supporting springs give a soft, smooth luxury to its riding that is really unusual.

For those seeking a light, eager roadster of reliability and economy, this car is an ideal investment.

In the 1917 model the superior quality of Chevrolet construction and equipment has been developed to a high scale.

CHARLEVOIX COURIER

VOLUME 25. NUMBER 22. 8 PAGES — CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN, WEDNESDAY, MAY 30, 1917 — PRICE $1.50 PER YEAR

TOURIST BUREAU IS ORGANIZED

THIRTY COUNTIES TO RAISE $100,000.00 ANNUALLY

Work To Be Modeled On That Of Danver, Hot Springs and San Antonio.

The business men of thirty counties in Michigan have started a campaign to raise $100,000.00 per year for three years to advertise the advantages of Michigan as a mecca for the automobile tourist and vacationist who visits the hotels and resorts for from one to several years.

The movement was started by sending out several hundred letters to business men in various parts of the State, asking for an expression of opinion as to the desirability and feasibility of a big campaign to popularize Michigan throughout the rest of the United States. The replies were so enthusiastic and favorable that a convention was called to meet at Grand Rapids and more than one hundred delegates representing every county in Western Michigan were present.

The convention resulted in the formation of the "Michigan Tourist and Resort Association" and it will be incorporated under the laws of Michigan as a corporation not for profit.

This campaign to boost summer travel to Michigan is similar to the work done by Business Men's Organizations at Denver, San Antonio, Hot Springs and other places. In 1916 the business men of Denver raised $70,000.00 which was expended for newspaper and magazine advertising, booklets, moving picture films and in other forms of publicity. The campaign was so successful that a larger amount had been pledged at Denver for the season of 1917.

The City of San Antonio annually spends about $50,000.00 and Hot Springs, Arkansas, annually spends about $25,000.00. The business men at Colorado Springs this year are beginning a campaign to expend about $25,000.00 annually.

It is apparent that a cambination of business interests in all of the counties in Western Michigan from New Buffalo on the south to Mackinac Islands on the north will result in an organization that will be considerably stronger than that of any of the cities referred to and in this vast field it should be easy to accomplish the goal which the Association has set out to achieve, viz: the raising of a fund of $100,000.00 annually. With this amount of money availnble for publicity, it should be easy to increase the number of travelers to Michigan every summer by many thousands. In the annual report of the publicity done for Denver last year it is stated that: "While it is impossible to determine the number of people coming to the State in automobiles, it is variously estimated that there were from 75,000 to 125,000."

Each of those visitors spent anywhere from $50.00 to $100.00 in the State and it is readily apparent that the campaign was a great success, especially when you take into consideration that the figures quoted do not include the increased number of travelers coming into the state by the railroads.

An increase of twenty thousand visitors to the State of Michigan means the expenditure in the state of an additional amount of approximately a million and a half dollars, so that the campaign proposed by the Michigan Tourist and Resort Association should have the hearty support and endoraement of everybody concerned.

The Association will make a complete survey of the State with the idea of getting the name of each resort, its capacity, the amusements offered, and how to get to the smallest, even though it is not located on a railroad. The survey will include maps of the principal automobile pikes and will list the hotels, garages, etc.

The association will be supported by all the railroads in the State, steamship companies, hotels, business men, garage owners, etc., etc.

The Officers of the Association are as follows:

President, J. H. P. Hughart, President of the G. R. & I. R. R., Grand Rapids, Michigan.

First Vice-President, David H.

ESCAPED INMATE RETURNED TO OFFICERS

Enos Bacon Got Out of Reform School Six Weeks Ago

Enos Bacon of this city, sixteen years old, who escaped from the reform school at Lansing six weeks ago where he was placed about three years ago for stealing some copper and old metal from the sugar plant, was returned to the authorities of the school a week ago last Tuesday by policeman Charles Howard.

Since the boy's escape, he has been staying with his parents at their home near the seed house. An officinl of the reform school had made arrangements with the authorities to have someone meet him with the boy at the P. M. depot on the Belvedere side as he came through from Petoskey on the 12:27 train Tuesday noon, so as to avoid the necessity of staying over until the next day. Howard went to the boy's home and induced him to go with him on the pretext of having found him a job and urging that Bacon must go with him at once or someone else would get it. The boy went readily enough but got cold feet when he recognized the reform school official standing on the car platform as the train came in. The delivery was made without any trouble, and officer Howard is to be congratulated on his strategy.

GREATER BAY VIEW FOR 1917

MANY NEW FEATURES TO MARK THE SEASON

In the Realm Of Music, Litarature and Sociology a Rare Treat Is Promised

The Bay View program for 1917, as outlined in the Bay View bulletin for May, a copy of which lies before us as we write, promises to be "the best ever."

Among other notable features is a social clinic in organized Christianity, designed to take the place of the former bible and mission conferences. Organized religion is truly under acid test in modern times. The test is not being made by enemies but by friends. There is a real and genuine passion on the part of church leaders to make organized forms of religion actually express spiritual values in community service. This clinic is to be conducted by John G. Benson, social engineer of the Detroit Area on the staff of Bishop Theodore S. Henderson, and Howard A. Musser, missionary from India, commonly known as the "Jungle Man." The work of the clinic will comprise the presentation of the biblical reasons for a social Christianity and the other phase will be a close hand study of the actual forms of institutional expression. Intimate observation of all denominational types and a survey of the status of organized religious life in America will be presented by stereopticon and charts and graphs.

Edward Howard Griggs will return to Bay View during the week of August 6-11 inclusive and will take up the subjects, "Human Progress, a Study of Modern Civilization" and "Maeterlinck, Poet and Mystic."

Dr. Roy S. MacElwee of the faculty of political science of Columbia University, will lecture on the "Commercial Powers of History" and "Industry and Agriculture Behind the Firing Line."

A week with great women, August 13-18, will include such speakers as Bestrice Forbes-Robertson Hale, Alice Henry and Mrs. Juliet V. Strauss.

The musical talent secured for this season is also of high quality, every worthy taste and aspiration in music having been provided for. Mme. Marie Sundelius of the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York heads the list. The Bay View visitor will be no less delighted with the entertainment provided by such artistes as Messrs. Rasley and Schofield, soloists at St. Bartholomew's church New York City, The Chicago Operatic Co., the Hruby Bohemian Orchestra and the Hindshaw Light Opera Singers.

On the side of the drama and the lecture, we have such attractions as the Coburn players, Arthur Guy Empey, who comes direct from the trenches and has seen more real fighting than any war correspondent, President Jnmes A. Burns of Onedia College, Julius Caesar Nayphe, Henry, The Magician, Alice Henry, and last but not least, the famous sculptor, Lorado Taft.

The general program commences Monday, July 16th and ends with Sunday August 19th, a period full of good things.

Gets Taste of German Submarine

The Swedish government got a nasty taste of German submarines the other day, and judging from the faces which the Swedish newspapers are making, the people of that country don't like the taste. "The Germans' Dastardly Deed Against Sweden," a "Deliberate and Bloody Crime," etc., is the way the newspapers of Sweden talk about it. This was just the taste of submarines that Sweden needed to stir them into right thinking on the war question.

LEASE SIGNED FOR HATCHERY

OLD WATER WORKS BUILDING WILL COME DOWN

New Structure To Be 145 x 75—Will Employ At Least Eight Men the Year Round

Negotiations for the new fish hatchery are progressing steadily. The site picked out is the location of the present water works, which the U. S. Government has leased for 99 years, the consideration being $1 per year. Some delay was experienced through the first contract submitted by the government not containing conditions satisfactory to the city. Proper corrections have been made, however, and the revised contract was signed on Monday night and forwarded at once to the Department of Fisheries at Washington, who will in turn transmit it to the Department of Commerce and Labor for approval, when the matter will be officially closed.

The building contemplated in the government's plans are a residence for the superintendent and a building 75 feet wide by 145 feet long, to be surrounded by ample and well kept lawns.

Building operations will commence as soon as the old water works plant is dismantled, which will be done shortly, and it is expected that the place will be ready for business by fall.

This hatchery is the largest government hatchery in the U. S. It will probably afford employment all the year around to eight or ten men and in the winter time a large number of girls will be required for egg picking.

Besides adding to the total pay roll of the town, this batchery should prove one of the chief drawing cards among our many attractions for the summer visitor.

DEATH CLAIMS EARLY MICHIGAN RESIDENT

Vernon A. Tyler Lived Near Detroit In Pioneer Days—Was 81.

Vernon A. Tyler, father of F. V. Tyler of this city, died last Saturday at his home at Rosebank, Staten Island, N. Y., at the age of 81. He had spent the last two summers in Charlevoix and was intending to come again this year, but death, closing a long and useful life, frustrated his purpose.

Mr. Tyler was born at Shelburn, Vermont, in 1836. He was a skilled marine designer and constructor and planned and built the "Horicon," superintended the building of the old "Vermont" and designed several other passenger steamer that used to ply up and down Lake Champlain and Lake George in the early steamboat days. For several years, he and his family lived at Jamestown, N. Y., where he held a master's papers and commanded a steamer on Lake Chautauqua. He also lived for a time before his marriage in Michigan, near Detroit and while there laid down the lines for one of the largest of the Great Lakes freighters. In 1863 he enlisted as a member of Company C, 12th Vermont Volunteer Infantry and served to the end of the war, his regiment being stationed on picket duty near the city of Washington.

In 1886, he moved to Long Island and entered the service of the Long Island Railroad Company (now a part of the Pennsylvania system) as general lumber inspector, a position which he held up to within three years of his death.

Besides his son here, Mr. Tyler is survived by his wife and a daughter, Mrs. Robert B. Kimber of Richmond, Staten Island. There are five grandchildren, also several nieces and nephews in southern Michigan.

Had he lived three years longer, Mr. and Mrs. Tyler could have celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary.

Funeral services and interment were at St. Andrew's Episcopal church in Richmond, Staten Island.

HOBSON SPEAKS IN PETOSKEY

NAVAL HERO OUT FOR DRY NATION

At Parr Memorial Church June 1—Endless Chain By Phone Part Of Plan

At a meeting held at the offices of Dr. O. L. Ramsdell in Petoskey a week ago Sunday afternoon, plans were laid for making the "Dry America" rally, with Richmond Pearson Hobson as speaker, the greatest affair of its kind ever held in Northern Michigan. The rally will be at Parr Memorial church, Friday, June 1, at 8 p. m. sharp.

Will Be Well Advertised

Mr. Van Every announced that he had received from national prohibition headquarters five thousand folders and many placards announcing the meeting. He will see to the placing of these outside the city. Mr. Foley is to attend to city distribution with the aid of the Boy Scouts, who have been named to act as escorts for Captain Hobson from hotel to church on the evening of the rally. Promises of moral support have been received from all the Emmet county newspapers, and in addition, some advertising will be done.

Captain Hobson asked for a list of 250 prominent Emmet county men and is sending a personal letter to each, asking co-operation in the making of a successful meeting. The committee will use the telephone for the creation of an "endless chain" for arousing enthusiasm, and all interested persons are asked to talk by phone to their friends with this end in view.

For Y. M. C. A. Boys

Edward J. Sharpe, religious director of the Grand Rapids Y. M. C. A., is fathering a plan to put Association boys who in past summers have enjoyed themselves in summer camps, at the disposal of the farmers of the vicinity. The scheme has commended itself to the state "Y" authorities and may be used everywhere.

What Is Your Aim?

Which are you going to be young man, volunteer or conscript? The National Guard, made up of your friends, is ready to welcome you. It will see as much service as any conscripted regiment,—perhaps more than most of them.

DOGS IN RED CROSS PARADE

MISS COLUMBIA LEADS PACK OF UNIFORMED CANINES

Enthusiastic Mass Meeting Shows Much Sentiment In Favor Of Newly Formed Society

A novel parade preceeded the mass meeting at the opera house last Friday evening, chief among its features being a parade of dogs, big and little, black, tan and yellow, uniformed in bandoliers displaying the red cross, led by Boy Scouts mostly on foot and some on ponies. The G. A. R. were out in force and a long string of decorated autos formed the rear of the column. M. B. Hooker was marshal and Miss Dorothy Hooker, garbed to represent Columbia, rode closely behind him. Music was furnished by a band of several pieces under the leadership of W. C. Bellinger.

The opera house, gaily decorated with the national colors, held a large and enthusiastic crowd of citizens who joined heartily in singing the Star Spangled Banner. Rev. C. E. Taggart gave the invocation, which was followed by a flag salute, Captain Berdan instructing. Mr Taggart briefly sketched the history of the Red Cross and Dr. Greensfelder told of hospital units going to France. He was followed by Dr. Armstrong, who urged the importance of the Red Cross work, to which H. A. Craig added further emphasis by his remarks.

Miss Helen Armstrong told of her experiences on her visits to Fort Sheridan and the Great Lakes stations, where she witnessed the parade given in honor of Marshal Joffre. Captain Berdan, Mr. Bridge, Mr. Shanahan, Dr. Dicken of East Jordan and Mr. Sloan added words of encouragement. Mayor Rose also made a rousing speech. The speakers received much moral support from six little nurses who occupied the platform with them.

Success has attended the Red Cross meetings so far. The rooms will now be open every day at two P. M. "Little Boy Blue," the play given last week was of material assistance to the cause.

On Monday evening next there will be a meeting of the directors of the Red Cross county unit at East Jordan. We have over 100 names on the membership list.

Donors for the week are Mr. McHugh, dishes, spoons and other utensils; Dr. Swinton, one cord of wood; Frank Metcalf, tea; Mrs. Iddings, sewing machine and broom; Mrs. Bellinger, use of stove; Mr. and Mrs. Baker, use of the Beach hotel for a party and evening's entertainment on Monday, June 4th. The publicity committee are A. J. Usher, Albion Smith, Mrs. Peter Vandermade, Miss Addie Holly and Mrs. H. S. Harsha.

MRS. LUCY LAMPEAR DIES AT PORT ORANGE

Well Known Charlevoix Woman Passes Away at Age of 76 Years

Mrs. Lucy Lamphear, died at her home in Port Orange, Florida a week ago last Friday night from heart failure, at the age of 76.

She was a former resident of this city and had been making her home in Port Orange since a year ago last September. Mrs. Lamphear was prominent in social, fraternal and religious circles in this city, having been one of the original members and supporters of Christ Episcopal church, and a member of the Woman's Benefit Association of the Maccabees.

She leaves four daughters and three sons: Mrs. F. A. Butler, Mrs. L. E. Smith and Mrs. Dan Bush of this city, and Mrs. Cal Price of Port Orange; Frank Lamphear of Charlevoix, Winton Lamphear of Grant's Pass, Oregon and L. R. Lamphear of South Haven.

Mrs. Lamphear was a woman of fine character and was much beloved by her many friends here, who will miss her sadly. Funeral services were held at Port Orange, Sunday, May 20th.

SCHOOL COMMISSIONER'S NOTES

The Norwood flag is to float all summer at the school house. Rev. Smith has promised to care for this during the vacation.

The Three Bells school district have decided to hold monthly board meetings next year to which they will issue a special invitation to their teacher. This gives both parties a splendid opportunity for progress and co-operation and should be followed by remarkable results.

The closing program of the Slaughter school and potluck dinner on the 22nd was enjoyed by a good sized crowd because of the storm. The farmers even laughted at nature's trick in pulling them away from their work on this occasion. Mrs. John Burney as judge of the handwork display awarded the girl's prize to Nellie Raymond, and the boys' to Earnest Raymond. Miss Howard returns next year with a fine increase in salary. This was part of what made the crowd so happy.

Mrs. Thos. Scroggie is urged to remain in Barnard another year, while her husband receives a $12 per month raise in Norwood.

Irvin Coykendall of Pleasant Valley will keep the school flag floating during the vacation.

The first school visited by Assistant State Superintendent W. L. Coffey was Chandler No. 6. This school is inteading to place the windows on one side and plaster this summer. The Horton Bay school visited second was interested in all things that would make the school better and wanted other things to match their splendid new seats. North Bay, the third school visited, lacks chiefly the correct amount and arrangement of the light, but wanted to make the schoolhouse better at once. The Maple Grove school had purchased the Kaustine system to put in this year and wished to consult with Mr. Coffey in regard to plans for the year immediately following. Undine was prepared to go ahead this year and wanted definite instructions along every line. The Ironton school board wanted the furnace inspected. The heating firm agree to make everything satisfactory to the school board.

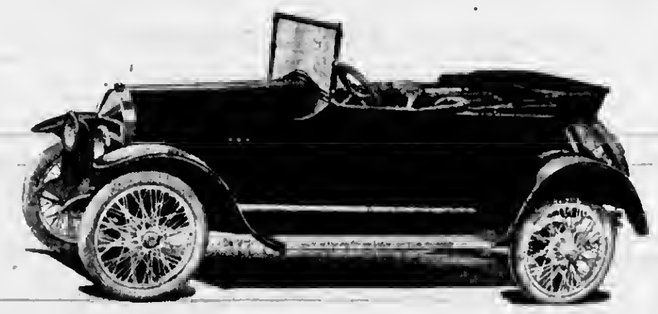
How Power is Multiplied by this Exclusive

CROW-ELKHART Construction



Today the Crow-Elkhart Multi-Powered Car is the king of light automobiles because it achieves greater results than multiple-cylinder construction. And with it is combined the supreme economy of a moderate priced car. At its price this is the new power sensation. Your travel in this car is as smooth as silk. The Multi-Powered Motor delivers to the wheels power that is absorbed inside the average motor—thus increasing the power, efficiency, smoothness and speed.

Note this important point: Most motors deliver but 10 per cent of their power to the rear wheels, according to an authority of the Society of Automobile Engineers. (See Motor Age, January 18th, 1917.) There is one full ton of unbalanced forces in the average motor; the new Crow Elkhart exclusive design removes this—makes power flow like liquid. This is accomplished by crankshaft counterbalances—our own construction.

In the motor are eliminated the unbalanced forces and with these have gone vibration and most of the friction. The bugaboo of bearing pressure has been eliminated.

Now you can ride at a fifty-mile pace without speed effect or nerve tension. The remarkable power-flow seems the same at all speeds—just expands from 3 to 50 miles an hour on high gear. From a standing start you accelerate to 40 miles an hour in 20 seconds—an exhilarating pick-up! In traffic you lull down to a creeping pace—less than a walk.

This is the most wonderful range of power you have ever known in a light car—a quality of smoothness that is new. This is the miraculous effect of multiplied power in the new Crow-Elkhart Multi-Powered Car. Think of such performance with such economy—18 to 26 miles on a gallon of gasoline. Think of such high-priced flexibility in a popular-priced automobile—a big, powerful looking car that dominates the road.

HEART of the SUNSET

By REX BEACH

Author of "The Spoilers," "The Iron Trail," "The Silver Horde," Etc.

Alaire explained to her guest: "Jose is worried about his cousin Panfilo. It seems he has disappeared."

"So! You are Panfilo's cousin?" Dave eyed the Mexican with new interest.

"Si!"

"You remember the man?" Alaire went on. "He was with that fellow you arrested at the water-hole."

"Oh, yes. I remember him." With steady fingers Dave shook some tobacco into a cigarette paper. He felt Alaire'n eyes upon him, and they were eloquent of inquiry, but he did not meet them.

Jose frowned. "No one at La Feria han seen him, and in Pueblo there was not a word. It is strange."

"Panfilo was in bad company when I saw him." Law finished rolling his cigarette and lit it, still conscious of Alaire's questioning gaze. "He may have had trouble."

"He was a good man," the horse-breaker asserted. "If he is dead—" The Mexican's frown deepened to a scowl.

"What then?"

Jose significantly patted the gift revolver at his hip. "This little fellow will have something to say."

Dave looked him over idly, from head to heel, then murmured: "You would do well to go slow, compadre. Panfilo made his own quarrels."

"We were like brothers, and I do not know of any quarrels. But I shall find out. I am not given to boasting, senor, but I am a devilish bad man in my way."

Nothing more was said during the luncheon, but when Alaire had finished eating and her two employees had begun their meal, she climbed the bank of the arroya ostensibly to find a cool spot. Having succeeded, she called to Dave:

"There is a nice breeze up here."

The Ranger's face set; rising slowly, he climbed the bank after her. When they stood face to face in the shade of a gnarly oak tree, Alaire asked him point-blank:

"Where is Panfilo Sanchez?"

Dave met her eyes squarely; his own were cold and hard. "He's where he dropped at my second shot," said he.

He could hear his companion's sharp inhalation. He did not flinch at the look she turned upon him.

"He was practically unarmed! What do you call—such an act?"

Dave's lips slowly whitened, his face became stony. He felt himself pitilessly condemned.

"Why didn't you tell me at the time?" she asked. "Why didn't you report it?"

"I'll report it when you give me permission."

"I—? What—?" She wheeled to face him.

"Think a moment. I can't tell half the truth. And if I tell everything, it will lead to—gossip."

"Ah! I think I understand. Mr. Law, you can be insulting—"

For the first time the man lost muscular control of his features; they twitched, and under their tan his cheeks became sickly yellow.

"You've no right to say that," he told her harshly. "You've plumb overstepped yourself, ma'am, and—I reckon you've formed quite a wrong opinion. Panfilo had his six-shooter and he used it; he intended to ambush me and release his companion, but I forced his hand; so it ain't what I'd call murder. I haven't lost any sleep over it. I—"

"You are utterly ruthless."

"Yes'm! I'm not what you would consider a nice person; the death of Panfilo Sanchez means nothing whatever to me. If you can grasp that fact, you'll see that your own reputation weighed heavier in my mind that the lives of a dozen Mexicans—or whites, for that matter."

"I go anywhere, everywhere. No one has ever had the effrontery to question my actions," Alaire told him, stiffly.

"And I don't aim to give 'em a chance." Dave was stubborn.

There was another interval of silence.

"You heard what Jose said. What are you going to do?"

Dave made a gesture of indifference. "It doesn't greatly matter. I'll tell him the truth, perhaps. You might warn him against any foolishness. Jose has some sense."

The woman looked up curiously. "Don't you know how to be afraid? Haven't you any fear?" she asked.

Dave's gray eyes were steady as he answered: "Yes'm! I'm afraid this thing is going to spoil our friendship. I've been desperately afraid, all along, that I might have hurt your reputation. Even now I'm afraid, on your account, to make public Panfilo Sanchez's death. Yes'm, I know what it is to be afraid."

It became evident to Dave, as the afternoon progressed, that they would be very late in arriving at Las Palmas, and he began to fear that his hostess would feel in duty bound to insist upon his spending the night at her home.

But as if his thoughts were telepathic messages, she did the very thing he feared.

"We won't be in before midnight," she said, "but I'll send you to Jonesville in the morning."

"Thank you, ma'am—I'll have to go right through."

"I'll get you there in time for business. We've gained a reputation for inhospitableness at Las Palmas that I want to overcome. Mr. Austin ought to know," she added, "about this—matter we were discussing, and I want him to meet you."

"He has!" Dave said, shortly; and at his tone Alaire looked up.

"So!" She studied his grim face. "And you quarreled?"

"I'd really prefer to go on, ma'am. I'll get to Jonesville somehow."

"You refuse—to stay under his roof?"

"That's about it."

"I'm sorry." She did not ask for further explanation.

The windows of Las Palmas were black, the house silent, when they arrived at their journey's end; Dolores was fretful, and her mistress ached in every bone. When Jose had helped his countrywoman into the house, Alaire said:

"If you insist upon going through, you must take the car. You can return it tomorrow."

"And—about Panfilo?" Dave queried.

"Wait. Perhaps I'll decide what is best to do in the meantime. Good night."

Law took her extended hand. Alaire was glad that he did not fondle it in that detestable Mexican fashion of which she had lately experienced so much; glad that the grasp of his long, strong fingers was merely firm and friendly. When he stepped back into the car and drove off through the night, she stood for some time looking after him.

* * * * * * * *

Blaze Jones had insisted that Dave live at his house, and the Ranger had accepted the invitation; but as it was late when the latter arrived at Jonesville, he went to the hotel for a few hours' rest. When he drove his borrowed machine up to the Jones house, about breakfast time, both Blaze and Paloma were delighted to see him.

"Say, now! What you doing rolling around in a gasoline go-devil?" the elder man inquired, and Law was forced to explain.

"Father has never learned to drive a car without yelling 'Gee' and 'Haw,'" laughed Paloma. "And he thinks he has title to the whole road, too. You know these Mexicans are slow about pulling their wagons to one side. Well, father got mad one day, and when a team refused him the right of way, he whipped out his revolver and fired."

Blaze smiled broadly. "It worked great. And believe me, them Greasers took to the ditch. I went through like a hot wind, but I shot up sixty-five cartridges between here and town."

"Why didn't Mrs. Austin ask you to stay all night at Las Palmas?" the girl inquired of Dave.

"She did."

"Wonderful!" Paloma's surprise was evidently sincere. "I suppose you refused because of the way Ed treated you. Tell me, is she nice?"

"She's lovely."

This vehement declaration brought a sudden gleam of interest into the questioner's eyes.

"They say she has the most wonderful gowns and jewels, and dresses for dinner every night. Well"—Paloma tossed her head—"I'm going to have some nice clothes, too. You wait!"

"Now don't you start riggin' yourself up for meats," Blaze said, warningly. "First thing I know, you'll have me in a full-dress suit, spittin' soup on my shirt." Then to his guest he complained, feelingly: "I don't know what's come over Paloma lately; this new dressmaker has plumb stampeded her. Somebody'd ought to run that feline out of town before she ruins me."

"She is a very nice woman," complacently declared the daughter; but her father snorted loudly.

"I wouldn't associate with such a critter."

"My! But you're proud."

"It ain't that," Blaze defended himself. "I know her husband, and he's a bad hombre. He backed me up against a waterin' trough and told my fortune yesterday. He said I'd be married twice and have many children. He said I loved widows, and unless I was poisoned by a dark lady I'd live to be eighty years old. If I'd had a gun on me, I'd have busted him for some of the things he said. 'A dark lady!' That's his wife. I give you warnin', Paloma, don't you ask her to stay for meals. People like them are dangerous."

"You're too silly!" said Paloma. "Nobody believes in such things."

"They don't, eh? Well, he's got all Jonesville walkin' around ladders, and spittin' through crossed fingers, and countin' the spots on their nails. He interprets their dreams and locates lost articles."

"Maybe he can tell me where to find Adolfo Urbina?" Dave suggested.

"Humph! If he can't, Tad Lewis can. Say, Dave, this case of yours has stirred up a lot of feelin' 'gainst Tad. The prosecutin' attorney says he'll sure cinch him and Urbina both. One of Lewis' men got on a bender the other night and declared Adolfo would never come to trial."

"What did he mean?"

"It may have been mescal talk, but witnesses sometimes have a way of disappearin'. I wouldn't put anything past that gang."

Not long after breakfast Don Ricardo Guzman appeared at the Jones house and warmly greeted his two friends. To Dave he explained:

"Last night I came to town, and this morning I heard you had returned, so I rode out at once. You were unsuccessful?"

"Our man never went to Pueblo."

"Exactly. I thought as much. However, I go to meet Blanco today, and perhaps I shall discover something."

"What takes you over there?" Blaze inquired.

"Wait until I tell you. Senor David, here, brings me good fortune at every turn. He honors my poor, thirsty rancho with a visit and brings a glorious rain; then he destroys my enemies like a thunderbolt. No sooner is this done than I receive from the Federals an offer for fifty of my best horses. Caramba! Such a price, too. They are in a great hurry, which looks as if they expected an attack from the Candeleristas at Matamoros. I hope so. God grant these traitors are defeated. Anyhow, the horses have gone, and today I go to get my money in gold."

"Who's going with you?" asked Law.

Ricardo shrugged. "Nobody. There is no danger."

Blaze shook his head. "They know you are a red-hot rebel. I wouldn't trust them."

"They know, also, that I am an American, like you gentlemen," proudly asserted Guzman. "That makes a difference. I supported the Liberator—God rest his soul!—and I secretly assist those who fight his assassins, but so does everybody else. I am receiving a fine price for those horses, so it is worth a little risk. Now, senor," he addressed himself to the Ranger, "I have brought you a little present. Day and night my boys and I have worked upon it, for we know the good heart you have. It was finished yesterday. See!" Ricardo unwrapped a bundle he had fetched, displaying a magnificent bridle of plaited horsehair. It was cunningly wrought, and lavishly decorated with silver fittings. "You recognize those hairs?" he queried. "They came from the mane and tail of your bonita."

"Bessie Belle!" Law accepted the handsome token, then held out his hand to the Mexican. "That was mighty fine of you, Ricardo. I— You couldn't have pleased me more. We're going to be friends."

Guzman's delight was keen, his grizzled face beamed, and he showed his white teeth in a smile. "Say no more. What is mine is yours—my house, my cattle, my right hand. I and my sons will serve you, and you must come often to see us. Now I must go." He shook hands heartily and rode away, waving his hat.

"There's a good Greaser," Blaze said with conviction, and Dave agreed feelingly.

"Yes! I'd about do anything for him, after this." Then he took the bridle in for Paloma to admire.

THE FARMER'S SIDE OF IT

The amount of advice being handed out about now to the farmers is something tremendous. Many who give this advice know nothing from personal experience about agriculture. Of course any intelligent observer of business and industry can often make just criticisms on other people's work without being able to do it himself. But a good deal of futile and foolish advice is given, and it is no wonder that the farmers feel irritated by it.

The farmers are talking back thru the newspapers. They resent the suggestion that they are slow and unbusinesslike and unprogressive and they ridicule many of the efforts being made to increase farm production. They say farm production is hampered by certain underlying obstacles which must be first removed.

The shortage of good help is the subject of perhaps the most complaint. The farmer speaks very disparagingly of green help. He looks scornfully on the great army of inexperienced college boys to be turned loose on the soil this summer.

The high price of seed and fertilizer and farm machinery, the difficulty of getting loans on growing crops, and the exactions of the middlemen who hold down the farmers' prices while they themselves are gathering a fortune, are other basic conditions which in the farmer's mind hold down food production.

It will take more than farm hints written by city bred editors to solve such problems. New systems of distributing and loaning of capital must be arranged. Meanwhile the farmer must like other business men adjust himself to existing conditions. Let him not estimate to sneeringly the capacity of the college boy. He lacks the experience, but he will put more muscle and enthusiasm into it than two old time prodding and sluggish farm hands.

When the democrats get through with drafting the republicans to the front this will be the greatest democratic country in the world.

NEWSPAPER POSTAGE AND FREE PUBLICITY.

A lot of overworked patriots in the national congress have been planning ways and means to double newspaper postage rates, otherwise known as "second class mail matter." There is a lot of the old line of talk being handed out about the "subsidy" which the newspapers enjoy, etc.

In view of the daily demands upon the generosity of newspaper publishers by all branches of the Federal government, this talk almost causes the average publisher to forget all laws and ordinances, both human and divine, against loud and profane talk. There is a side to this second class postage matter which congressional busy-bodies need to have brought to their attention most forcibly. If the newspapers of the country should insist upon the Government paying for all the advertising and information which the Government must get before the people, and which the newspapers now print, free of charge, the newspaper publishers could afford to pay first class postage rates on newspapers.

Just as a concrete case: Elsewhere in The Journal may be found a large advertisement of the $2,000,000,000 Liberty Loan bonds which the Government now offers for sale. The order for the advertisement reads as follows:

"We are sending you herewith a proof of an advertisement. If you care to donate advertising space, will you please set this advertisement, run it in the next edition of your paper, send a copy of the paper to this bank for checking, and send your bill at your regular card rates, receipted, as your donation. Records will be kept of all such donations and the formal thanks of the United States Government extended to the donors."

We are very glad to "donate" the space to Uncle Sam; but when one considers that we are "donating" Uncle Sam over $10 worth of advertising, and that we are paying (even though it is second class rates) to circulate the advertisement, the case will begin to have a different aspect. The Government is depending upon the newspapers of the country to sell these Liberty Loan bonds—and the newspapers will do it, too. The newspapers are the worst under-paid or not paid-at-all, essential part of the nation's political and industrial life. If every newspaper and magazine in the country should cease publication for one month the people would think the world was coming to an end—and would almost want it to come to an end.

Just think of it yourself, and see if you do not reach the conclusion that the newspapers give the Government vastly more than the "newspaper postage subsidy" amounts to. —Escanaba Journal.

LET IN THE LIGHT

Unless the country is allowed acquaintance with the facts relating to our armed naval forces, discussion of military and naval questions is quite impossible. Military secrecy does not depend upon laws. In modern warfare officers act under sealed orders. This is sometimes necessary and is frequently the case that grave questions are sheltered with silence, but in the main the general public should be treated with the truth. The public should be kept in touch with the real facts. It is always advisable to be frank with the people you are dealing with.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

Among the themes suggested by Secretary Lane for discussion in school commencement exercises is one entitled, "Lincoln in 1917. What would he have done?" Make it 1915 and you will have a better theme. That was the year the Lusitania was blown up. Lincoln would have acted the following day.

A fair example of the bonehead censorship of the departments is seen in the announcement of the arrival of the torpedo flotilla on the other side. At the request of the government, American newspapers had refrained from printing the news only to have it published from London.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN NOTES.

Hit By Freight Train

After taking an auto load of young folks to Deward on a pleasure trip last Sunday, C. W. Hastings shouldered his fishing rod and started down the railroad track toward a trout stream with the intention of whiling away the time fishing until the passengers should be ready to return home. A freight train happened to be switching on the track at that time, and the engineer, seeing Mr. Hastings, tooted the whistle several times for warning. Because of his deafness, Mr. Hastings failed to receive the signal, and the train, backing rapidly toward him, quickly smashed on the emergency brakes. But it could not be stopped before it hit him and knocked him down the bank. Mr. Hastings was picked up and carried to the Hinkley home at Alba, where he still is. An examination revealed a broken collar bone, two broken ribs, a fractured rib and a few minor injuries. Though these are serious enough to cause intense suffering for a time, he is not believed to have received injuries that will leave lasting results. He will probably be brought home in a few days. Mr. Hastings is very fortunate in having gone through the accident with no more serious results. Had the train been running full speed, nothing could have saved his life.—Central Lake Torch.

Army For Farm Work

Congressman Frank Scott of this district has introduced a bill in congress directing the secretary of war to enlist 200,000 men for a two years period of farm work. Scott's bill will enable the secretary of war to raise this army, both by direct enlistment and by detachment of suitable men from military bodies previously raised. The men would receive the pay of privates in the regular army, and would be at the disposal of the secretary of war wherever needed.

Fire Destroys Home

The residence at Bay Shore, occupied for many years by Grandma Sarah Scroggie, and owned by Mr. and Mrs. George Zipp, of Petoskey, was destroyed by fire Monday of last week. The place was being occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Will Speigle. The loss on the house is about $1,200 and on the furniture $300.

New Process Oil Stoves

Don't Fire a Cannon to Kill a Fly

And yet that is just what firing up a coal or wood range amounts to in summer, a needless waste of fuel and a hot kitchen to work in.

New Process Oil Stoves are easily operated—oil, a match—a twist of the thumb, in 60 seconds you have the fire, as much or as little as you want.

When you have had enough heat shut it off instantly.

Its strongest bid for your favor is the slight expense it entails, while giving you all the comfort and convenience of a gas range..

Call at our store and ask to see the stove demonstrated.

BIDS FAREWELL TO DEPARTING ONES

Grange Hall Scene of Social Gathering Friday Evening

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. L. K. Clark to the number of about 70 gatbered at the grange ball last Friday evening to pay their respects to Mr. and Mrs. Clark, who are soon to leave for their new home in the south. The affair was in the nature of a surprise, as the principals had been informed that it was to simply be a grange meeting. The band was also included in the arrangements, as Mr. Clark had been a member ever since it was organized three years ago.

On the arrival at the hall of the guests of honor, the meeting was called to order by grange master, Wm. Eastcott, and after a few words by him the band played several selections, one of the numbers being the first one learned and played after the band was organized.

C. E. Bearss thon arose and in a short talk expressed the sentiments of the gathering when he assured Mr. and Mrs. Clark how much they would be missed by all their friends.

In his response, Mr. Clark explained his reasons for leaving Ellsworth, and also told some of his plans for their future in their new home. They will be located in Louisa county, Virginia, and have purchased two hundred and fifty five acres of what was the homestead granted to Mr. Clark's fore-fathers by the king of England.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark will be accompanied to their new home by Mr. and Mrs. Chas. E. Ford, also Ellsworth residents, and by Miss Minnie Keith, formerly teacher of the Ellsworth school, serving in that capacity in the Bellaire schools in the past two years.

These people in the years they have resided in Ellsworth have made friends of all with whom they came in contact, and although they will be greatly missed they will be sped on their way with the best wishes of all their friends.

NEW CHURCH EDIFICE FOR CHURCH OF GOD

Will Be Located On Hulbert Avenue —Cobble Stones To Be Used

Feeling the need of a convenient and comfortable place for worship, the Church of God have purchased a lot on Hurlbert Avenue that was formerly owned by E. B. Ward, as a site for a new house of worship, which they expect to complete and dedicate by December 1st.

The new building will be built of cobble stone to the eaves and the tower and chimney will also be built of the same material.

The work of excavating for the basement and building of the basement wall will commence in July. Then the work will be abandoned until after the annual camp meeting, which begins August 3rd and continues until August 13th, after which a force of men will resume the work and rush it as fast as possible to its completion.

A great deal of the labor has been donated; such as team work and common labor; also some mason and carpenter work. Any one desiring to contribute towards this effort may do so and it will be thankfully received. Either work or cash will be acceptable.

The church will continue to hold its meetings over Taylor's store every Sunday at 2:30 P. M., until the completion of the new building. Everyone is welcome to these services.

STORES WILL CLOSE REGISTRATION DAY

Day to be Observed As Suggested by Governor.

Tuesday afternoon, June 5, having been designated by the president of the United States as registration day, it has been decided by the citizens of Ellsworth to follow the suggestion of the governor of the state and make that day a holiday.

All business places will close at 12:30 and remain closed until 6 o'clock. The band will give a concert at two o'clock. It has been suggested that all property owners also make a special effort to have their homes or business places decorated with flags or bunting and also if the school board has by that time purchased the school site, to raise the new flag pole on the school property and raise the new school flag. This event will take place at 3:00 o'clock.

It is hoped that all residents of Ellsworth and the surrounding country will turn out on that day and show their patriotism and loyalty to their homes and to their country.

An effort is also being made to secure some public speaker for the afternoon.

For any further information see or phone the secretary of the Board of Trade, G. C. Townsend.

FAREWELL PARTY

Given to Prof. M. A. Brail Tuesday Evening.

Prof. M. A. Brail finished his second year as principal of the Ellsworth schools on Tuesday of last week and started for his home at Carson City, Michigan on Wednesday morning, intending to stop at Alden and visit his cousin, Prof. Bailey of that place.

As a mark of the esteem in which he was held here, about 40 of his friends surprised him with a little party at Bosa Hall on the evening before his departure and presented him with a beautiful set of brushes.

The evening was spent in games and after refreshments consisting of ice cream and cake, the party broke up, congratulating Mr. Brail on his excellent work as principal of the Ellsworth schools the past two years and wishing him the best of luck and prosperity in the new position at Sand Lake, where he will teach the coming year.

EARLY PLOWING GETS THE BEAN MAGGOT

Dreaded Visitant Don't Care About Being Stirred Up That Way

Early plowing of bean land as a measure for ridding sod of the bean maggot which worked so much damage in Michigan last season, is recommended to farmers by the M. A. C. departments of entomology and farm crops as means of minimizing this danger this spring.

"There is little danger from the bean maggot on land plowed three weeks or more before planting," M. A. C. entomologists say, "but the maggot may cause crop ruin on fields planted soon after the turning under of clover sod or maaure. It is recommended that bean gronnd be plowed to a good depth, firmed witb the roller, and harrowed immediately after rolling, and a thorough barrowing or discing shonld in addition be given at weekly intervals until planting time.

"Beans require a weed-free seed bed, firm underneath with a surface approaching 'garden tilth' as nearly as possible. Beans are particularly sensitive to conditions prevailing at the time of germination. Tbe bean differs from most other common crops in its growth in that every seed which produces a plant must be pushed above the surface of the ground to form the seed leaves. A uniform and vigorous start can only be secured on a well-warmed seed bed in good tilth.

"Where possible beans should be planted on fall plowed or early spring plowed land, but in any event, tbe plowing should be completed at least three weeks before tbe seed is put in. This permits the furrow slice to settle properly, and affords time for the thorougb fitting of the soil witb disc and harrow."

CHARLEVOIX COURIER

VOLUME 25. NUMBER 22. 8 PAGES CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN, WEDNESDAY, MAY 30, 1917 PRICE $1.50 PER YEAR

TOURIST BUREAU IS ORGANIZED

THIRTY COUNTIES TO RAISE $100,000,00 ANNUALLY

Work To Be Modeled On That Of Denver, Hot Springs and San Antonio.

The business men of thirty counties in Michigan have started a campaign to raise $100,000.00 per year for three years to advertise the advantages of Michigan as a meeca for the automobile tourist and vacationist who visits the hotels and resorts for from one to several years.

The movement was started by sending out several hundred letters to business men in various parts of the State, asking for an expression of opinion as to the desirability and feasibility of a big campaign to popularize Michigan throughout the rest of the United States. The replies were so enthusiastic and favorable that a convention was called to meet at Grand Rapids and more than one hundred delegates representing every county in Western Michigan were present.

The convention resulted in the formation of the "Michigan Tourist and Resort Association" and it will be incorporated under the laws of Michigan as a corporation not for profit.

This campaign to boost summer travel to Michigan is similar to the work done by Business Men's Organizations at Denver, San Antonio, Hot Springs and other places. In 1916 the business men of Denver raised $70,000.00 which was expended for newspaper and magazine advertising, booklets, moving picture films and in other forms of publicity. The campaign was so successful that a larger amount had been pledged at Denver for the season of 1917.

The City of San Antonio annually spends about $50,000.00 and Hot Springs, Arkansas, annually spends about $25,000.00. The business men at Colorado Springs this year are beginning a campaign to expend about $25,000.00 annually.

It is apparent that a cambination of business interests in all of the counties in Western Michigan from New Buffalo on the south to Mackinac Islands on the north will result in an organization that will be considerably stronger than that of any of the cities referred to and in this vast field it should be easy to accomplish the goal which the Association has set out to achieve, viz: the raising of a fund of $100,000.00 anually. With this amount of money available for publicity, it should be easy to increase the number of travelers to Michignn every summer by many thousands. In the annual report of the publicity done for Denver last year it is stated that: "While it is impossible to determine the number of people coming to the State in automobiles, it is variously estimated that there were from 75,000 to 125,000."

Each of those visitors spent anywhere from $50.00 to $100.00 in the State and it is rendily apparent that the campaign was a great success, especially when you take into consideration that the figures quoted do not include the increased number of trnvelers coming into the state by the railroads.

An increase of twenty thousand visitors to the State of Michigan means the expenditure in the state of an additional amount of approximately a million and a half dollars, so that the campaign proposed by the Michigan Tourist and Resort Association should have the hearty support and endorsement of everybody concerned.

The Association will make a complete survey of the State with the idea of getting the name of each resort, its capacity, the amusements offered, and how to get to the smallest, even though it is not located on a railroad. The survey will include maps of the principal automobile pikes and will list the hotels, garages, etc.

The association will be supported by all the railroads in the State, steamship companies, hotels, business men, garage owners, etc., etc.

The Officers of the Association are as follows:

President, J. H. P. Hughart, President of the G. R. & I. R. R., Grand Rapids, Michigan.

First Vice-President, David H.

ESCAPED INMATE RETURNED TO OFFICERS

Enos Bacon Got Out of Reform School Six Weeks Ago

Enos Bacon of this city, sixteen years old, who escaped from the reform school at Lansing six weeks ago where he was placed about three years ago for stealing some copper and old metal from the sugar plant, was returned to the authorities of the school a week ago last Tuesday by policeman Charles Howard.

Since the boy's escape, he has been staying with his parents at their home near the seed house. An official of the reform school had made arrangements with the authorities to have someone meet bim with the boy at the P. M. depot on the Belvedere side as he came through from Petoskey on the 12:27 train Tuesday noon, so as to avoid the necessity of staying over until the next day. Howard went to the boy's home and induced him to go with him on the pretext of having found him a job and urging that Bacon must go with him at once or someone else would get it. The boy went readily enough but got cold feet when he recognized the reform school official standing on the car platform as the train came in. The delivery was made without any trouble, and officer Howard is to be congratulated on his strategy.

GREATER BAY VIEW FOR 1917

MANY NEW FEATURES TO MARK THE SEASON

In the Realm Of Music, Litarature and Sociology a Rare Treat Is Promised

The Bay View program for 1917, as outlined in the Bay View bulletin for May, a copy of which lies before us as we write, promises to be "the best ever."

Among other notable features is a social clinic in orgsnized Christianity, designed to take the place of the former bible and mission conferences. Organized religion is truly under acid test in modern times. The test is not being made by enemies but by friends. There is a real and genuine passion on the part of church leaders to make organized forms of religion actually express spiritual values in community service. This clinic is to be conducted by John G. Benson, social engineer of the Detroit Area on the staff of Bishop Theodore S. Henderson, and Howard A. Musser, missionary from India, commonly known as the "Jungle Man." The work of the clinic will comprise the presentation of the biblical reasons for a social Christianity and the other phase will be a close hand study of the actual forms of institutional expression. Intimate observation of all denominational types and a survey of the status of organized religious life in America will be presented by stereopticon and charts and graphs.

Edward Howard Griggs will return to Bay View during the week of August 6-11 inclusive and will take up the subjects, "Human Progress, a Study of Modern Civilization" and "Maeterlinck, Poet and Mystic."

Dr. Roy S. MacElwee of the faculty of political science of Columbia University, will lecture on the "Commercial Powers of History" and "Industry and Agriculture Behind the Firing Line."

A week with great women, August 13-18, will include such speakers as Beatrice Forbes-Robertson Hale, Alice Henry and Mrs. Juliet V. Strauss.

The musical talent secured for this season is also of high quality, every worthy taste and aspiration in music having been provided for. Mme. Marie Sundelius of the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York heads the list. The Bay View visitor will be no less delighted with the entertainment provided by such artistes as Messrs. Rasley and Schofield, soloists at St. Bartholomew's church New York City, The Chicago Operatic Co., the Hruby Bohemian Orchestra and the Hindshaw Light Opera Singers.

On the side of the drama and the lecture, we have such attractions as the Coburn players, Arthur Guy Empey, who comes direct from the trenches and has seen more real fighting than any war correspondent, President James A. Burns of Onedia College, Julius Caesar Nayphe, Henry, The Magician, Alice Henry, and last but not least, the famous sculptor, Lorado Taft.

The general program commences Monday, July 16th and ends with Sundny August 19th, a period full of good things.

Gets Taste of German Submarine

The Swedish government got a nasty taste of German submarines the other dny, and judging from the faces which the Swedish newspapers are making, the people of that country don't like the taste. "The Germans' Dastardly Deed Against Sweden," a "Deliberate and Bloody Crime," etc., is the way the newspapers of Sweden talk about it. This was just the taste of submarines that Sweden needed to stir them into right thinking on the war question.

LEASE SIGNED FOR HATCHERY

OLD WATER WORKS BUILDING WILL COME DOWN

New Structura To Be 145 x 75—Will Employ At Least Eight Men the Year Round

Negotiations for the new fish hatchery are progressing steadily. The site picked out is the location of the present water works, whieb the U. S. Government has leased for 99 years, the consideration being $1 per year. Some delay was experienced through the first contract submitted by the government not containing conditions satisfactory to the city. Proper corrections have been made, however, and the revised contract was signed on Monday night and forwarded at once to the Department of Fisheries at Washington, who will in turn transmit it to the Department of Commerce and Labor for approval, when the matter will be officially closed.

The building contemplated in the government's plans are a residence for the superintendent and a building 75 feet wide by 145 feet long, to be surrounded by ample and well kept lawns.

Building operations will commence as soon as the old water works plant is dismantled, which will be done shortly, and it is expected that the place will be ready for business by fall.

This hatchery is the largest government hatchery in the U. S. It will probably afford employment all the year around to eight or ten men and in the winter time a large number of girls will be required for egg picking.

Besides adding to the total pay roll of the town, this hatchery should prove one of the chief drawing cards among our many attractions for the summer visitor.

DEATH CLAIMS EARLY MICHIGAN RESIDENT

Vernon A. Tyler Livad Naar Detroit In Pioneer Days—Was 81.

Vernon A. Tyler, father of F. V. Tyler of this city, died last Saturday at his home st Rosebank, Staten Island, N. Y., at the age of 81. He had spent the last two summers in Charlevoix and was intedning to come ngain this year, but death, closing a long and useful life, frustrated his purpose.

Mr. Tyler was born at Shelburn, Vermont, in 1836. He was a skilled marine designer and constructor and planned and built the "Horicon," superintended the building of the old "Vermont" and designed several other passenger steamer that used to ply up and down Lake Champlain and Lake George in the early steamboat dnys. For several years, he and his family lived at Jamestown, N. Y., where he held a master's papers and commanded a steamer on Lake Chautauqua. He also lived for a time before his marriage in Michigan, near Detroit and while there laid down the lines for one of the largest of the Great Lakes freighters. In 1863 he enlisted as a member of Company C, 12th Vermont Volunteer Infantry and served to the end of the war, his regiment being stationed on picket duty near the city of Washington.

In 1886, he moved to Long Island and entered the service of the Long Island Railroad Company (now a part of the Pennsylvania aystem) as general lumber inspector, a position which he held up to within three years of his death.

Besides his son here, Mr. Tyler is survived by his wife and a daughter, Mrs. Robert B. Kimber of Richmond, Staten Islnnd. There are five grandchildren, also several nieces and nephews in southern Michigan.

Had he lived three years longer, Mr. nnd Mrs. Tyler could have celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary.

Funeral services and interment were at St. Andrew's Episcopal church in Richmond, Staten Island.

HOBSON SPEAKS IN PETOSKEY

NAVAL HERO OUT FOR DRY NATION

At Parr Memorial Church June 1—Endless Chain By Phone Part Of Plan

At a meeting held at the offices of Dr. O. L. Ramsdell in Petoskey a week ago Sunday afternoon, plans were laid for making the "Dry America" rally, with Richmond Pearson Hobson as speaker, the greatest affair of its kind ever held in Northern Michigan. The rally will be at Parr Memorial church, Friday, June 1, at 8 p. m. sharp.

Will Be Well Advertised

Mr. Van Every announced that he had received from national prohibition headquarters five thousand folders and many placards announcing the meeting. He will see to the placing of these outside the city. Mr. Foley is to attend to city distribution with the aid of the Boy Scouts, who have been named to act as escorts for Captain Hobson from hotel to church on the evening of the rally. Promises of moral support hnve heen received from all the Emmet county newspapers, and in addition, some advertising will be done.

Captain Hobson asked for a list of 250 prominent Emmet county men and is sending a personal letter to each, asking co-operation in the making of a successful meeting. The committee will use the telephone for the creation of an "endless chain" for arousing enthusiasm, and all interested persons are asked to talk by phone to their friends with this end in view.

For Y. M. C. A. Boys

Edward J. Sharpe, religious director of the Grand Rapids Y. M. C. A., is fathering a plan to put Association hoys who in past summers have enjoyed themselves in summer camps, at the disposal of the farmers of the vicinity. The scheme has commended itself to the state "Y" authorities and may be used everywbere.

What Is Your Aim?

Which are you going to be young man, volunteer or conscript? The National Guard, made up of your friends, is ready to welcome you. It will see as much service as any conscripted regiment,—perhapa more than most of them.

DOGS IN REO CROSS PARADE

MISS COLUMBIA LEADS PACK OF UNIFORMED CANINES

Enthusiastic Mass Meeting Shows Much Santiment In Favor Of Newly Formed Society

A novel parade preceeded the mass meeting at the opera house last Friday evening, eblef among its features being a parade of dogs, big and little, black, tan and yellow, uniformed in bandoliers displaying the red cross, led by Boy Scouts mostly on foot and some on ponies. The G. A. R. were out in force and a long string of decorated autos formed the rear of the column. M. B. Hooker was marshal and Miss Dorothy Hooker, garbed to represent Columbia, rode closely behind bim. Music was furnished by a band of several pieces under the leadership of W. C. Bellinger.

The opera house, gaily decorated with the national colors, held a large and enthusiastic crowd of citizens who joined heartily in singing the Star Spangled Banner. Rev. C. E. Taggart gave the invocation, which was followed by a flag salute. Captain Berdan instructing. Mr Taggart briefly sketched the history of the Red Cross and Dr. Greensfelder told of hospital units going to France. He was followed by Dr. Armstrong, who urged the importance of the Red Cross work, to which H. A. Craig added further emphasis by his remarks.

Miss Helen Armstrong told of her experiences on her visits to Fort Sheridan and the Great Lakes stations, where she witnessed the parade given in honor of Marshal Joffre. Captain Berdan, Mr. Bridge, Mr. Shanahan, Dr. Dicken of East Jordan and Mr. Sloan added words of encouragement. Mayor Rose also made a rousing speech. The speakers received much moral support from six little nurses who occupied the platform with them.

Success has attended the Red Cross meetings so far. The rooms will now be open every day at two P. M. "Little Boy Blue," the play given last week was of material assistance to the cause.

On Monday evening next there will be a meeting of the directors of the Red Cross county unit at East Jordan. We have over 100 names on the membership list.

Donors for the week are Mr. McHugh, dishes, spoons and other utensils; Dr. Swinton, one cord of wood; Frank Metcalf, tea; Mrs. Iddings, sewing machine and broom; Mrs. Bellinger, use of stove; Mr. and Mrs. Baker, use of the Beach hotel for a party and evening's entertainment on Monday, June 4th. The publicity committee are A. J. Usher, Alblon Smith, Mrs. Peter Vandermads, Miss Addie Holly and Mrs. H. S. Harshs.

MRS. LUCY LAMPEAR DIES AT PORT ORANGE

Well Known Charlevoix Woman Passes Away at Age of 76 Years

Mrs. Lucy Lamphear, died at her home in Port Orange, Floridn a week ngo last Friday night from heart failure, at the age of 76.

She was a former resident of this city and had been making her home in Port Orange since a year ago last September. Mrs. Lamphear was prominent in social, fraternal and religious circles in this city, having been one of the original members and supporters of Christ Episcopal church, and a member of the Woman's Benefit Association of the Maccabees.

She leaves four daughters and three sons: Mrs. F. A. Butler, Mrs. L. E. Smith and Mrs. Dan Bush of this city, and Mrs. Cal Price of Port Orange; Frank Lampbear of Charlevoix, Winton Lamphear of Grant's Pass, Oregon and L. R. Lamphear of South Haven.

Mrs. Lamphear was a woman of fine character and was much beloved by her many friends here, who will miss her sadly. Funeral services were held at Port Orange, Sunday, May 20th.

SCHOOL COMMISSIONER'S NOTES

The Norwood flag is to float all summer at the school house. Rev. Smith has promised to care for this during the vacation.

The Three Bells school district have decided to hold monthly board meetings next year to which they will issue a special invitation to their teacher. This gives both parties a splendid opportunity for progress and co-operation and should be followed by remarkable results.

The closing program of the Slaughter school and potluck dinner on the 22nd was enjoyed by n good sized crowd because of the storm. The farmers even laughted at nature's trick in pulling them away from their work on this occasion. Mrs. John Burney as judge of the handwork display awarded the girl's prize to Nellie Raymond, and the boys' to Earnest Raymoad. Miss Howard returns next year with a fine increase in salary. This was part of what made the crowd so happy.

Mrs. Thos. Scroggie is urged to remain in Barnard another year, while her husband receives a $12 per month raise in Norwood.

Irvin Coykendall of Pleasant Valley will keep the school flag floating during the vacation.

The first school visited by Asalstant State Superintendent W. L. Coffey was Chandler No. 6. This school is intending to place the windows on ono side and plaster this summer. The Horton Bay school visited secoad was interested in all things that would make the school better and wanted other things to match their splendid new seats. North Bay, the third school visited, lacks chiefly the correct amouat and arrangement of the light, but wanted to make the schoolhouse better at once. Tho Maple Grove school had purchased tha Kaustine systems to put in this year and wished to consult with Mr. Coffey in regard to plans for the year immediately following. Uadine was prepared to go ahead this year and wanted definite instructions along every line. The Ironton school board wanted the furnace inspected. The heating firm agree to make everything satisfactory to the school board.

How Power is Multiplied by this Exclusive

CROW-ELKHART Construction

Today the Crow-Elkhart Multi-Powered Car is the king of light automobiles because it achieves greater results than multiple-cylinder construction. And with it is combined the supreme economy of a moderate priced car. At its price this is the new power sensation. Your travel in this car is as smooth as silk. The Multi-Powered Motor delivers to the wheels power that is absorbed inside the average motor—thus increasing the power, efficiency, smoothness and speed.

Note this important point: Most motors deliver but 10 per cent of their power to the rear wheels, according to an authority of the Society of Automobile Engineers. (See Motor Age, January 18th, 1917.) There is one full ton of unbalanced forces in the average motor; the new Crow Elkhart exclusive design removes this—makes power flow like liquid. This is accomplished by crankshaft counterbalances—our own construction.

In the motor are eliminated the unbalaneed forces and with these have gone vibration and most of the friction. The bugaboo of bearing pressure has been eliminated.

Now you can ride at a fifty-mile pace without speed effect or nerve tension. The remarkable power-flow seems the same at all speeds—just expands from 3 to 50 miles an hour on high gear. From a standing start you aeeelerate to 40 miles an hour in 20 seconds—an exhilarating pick-up! In traffic you lull down to a creeping pace—less than a walk.

This is the most wonderful range of power you have ever known in a light car—a quality of smoothness that is new. This is the miraculous effect of multiplied power in the new Crow-Elkhart Multi-Powered Car. Think of such performance with such economy—18 to 26 miles on a gallon of gasoline. Think of such high-priced flexibility in a popular-priced automobile—a big, powerful looking car that dominates the road.

HEART of the SUNSET

By REX BEACH

Author of "The Spoilers," "The Iron Trail," "The Silver Horde," Etc.

Alaire explained to her guest: "Jose is worried about his cousin Panfilo. It seems he has disappeared."

"Sn! You are Panfilo's cousin?" Dave eyed the Mexican with new interest.

"Si!"

"You remember the man?" Alaire went on. "He was with that fellow you arrested at the water-hole."

"Oh, yes. I remember him." With steady fingers Dave shook some tobacco into a cigarette paper. He felt Alaire's eyes upon him, and they were eloquent of inquiry, but he did not meet them.

Jose frowned. "No one at La Feria has seen him, and in Pueblo there was not a word. It is strange."

"Panfilo was in bad company when I saw him." Law finished rolling his cigarette and lit it, still conscious of Alaire's questioning gaze. "He may have had trouble."

"He was a good man," the horse-breaker asserted. "If he is dead—" The Mexican's frown deepened to a scowl.

"What then?"

Jose significantly patted the gift revolver at his hip. "This little fellow will have something to say."

Dave looked him over idly, from head to heel, then murmured: "You would do well to go slow, compadre. Panfilo made his own quarrels."

"We were like brothers, and I do not know of any quarrels. But I shall find out. I am not given to boasting, senor, but I am a devilish bad man in my way."

Nothing more was said during the luncheon, but when Alaire had finished eating and her two employees had begun their meal, she climbed the bank of the arroyo ostensibly to find a cool spot. Having succeeded, she called to Dave:

"There is a nice breeze up here."

The Ranger's face set; rising slowly, he climbed the bank after her. When they stood face to face in the shade of a gnarly oak tree, Alaire asked him point-blank:

"Where is Panfilo Sanchez?"

Dave met her eyes squarely; his own were cold and hard. "He's where he dropped at my second shot," said he.

He could hear his companion's sharp inhalation. He did not flinch at the look she turned upon him.

"He was practically unarmed! What do you call—such an act?"

Dave's lips slowly whitened, his face became stony. He felt himself pitilessly condemned.

"Why didn't you tell me at the time?" she asked. "Why didn't you report it?"

"I'll report it when you give me permission."

"I—? What—?" She wheeled to face him.

"Think a moment. I can't tell half the truth. And if I tell everything, it will lead to—gossip."

"Ah! I think I understand. Mr. Law, you can be insulting—"

For the first time the man lost muscular control of his features; they twitched, and, under their tan his cheeks became sickly yellow.

"You've no right to say that," he told her harshly. "You've plumb overstepped yourself, ma'am, and—I reckon you've formed quite a wrong opinion. Panfilo had his six-shooter and he used it; he intended to ambush me and release his companion, but I forced his hand: so it ain't what I'd call murder; I haven't lost any sleep over it. I—"

"You are utterly ruthless."

"Yes'm! I'm not what you would consider a nice person; the death of Panfilo Sanchez means nothing whatever to me. If you can grasp that fact, you'll see that your own reputation weighed heavier in my mind that the lives of a dozen Mexicans—or whites, for that matter."

"I go anywhere, everywhere. No one has ever had the effrontery to question my actions," Alaire told him, stiffly.

"And I don't aim to give 'em a chance." Dave was stubborn.

There was another interval of silence.

"You heard what Jose said. What are you going to do?"

Dave made a gesture of indifference. "It doesn't greatly matter. I'll tell him the truth, perhaps. You might warn him against any foolishness. Jose has some sense."

The woman looked up curiously. "Don't you know how to be afraid? Haven't you any fear?" she asked.

Dave's gray eyes were steady as he answered: "Yes'm! I'm afraid this thing is going to spoil our friendship. I've been desperately afraid, all along, that I might have hurt your reputation. Even now I'm afraid, on your account, to make public Panfilo Sanchez's death. Yes'm, I know what it is to be afraid."

It became evident to Dave, as the afternoon progressed, that they would be very late in arriving at Las Palmas, and he began to fear that his hostess would feel in duty bound to insist upon his spending the night at her home.

But as if his thoughts were telepathic messages, she did the very thing he feared.

"We won't be in before midnight," she said, "but I'll send you to Jonesville in the morning."

"Thank you, ma'am—I'll have to go right through."

"I'll get you there in time for business. We've gained a reputation for inhospitableness at Las Palmas that I want to overcome. Mr. Austin ought to know," she added, "about this—matter we were discussing, and I want him to meet you."

"He has!" Dave said, shortly; and at his tone Alaire looked up.

"So!" She studied his grim face. "And you quarreled?"

"I'd rently prefer to go on, ma'am. I'll get to Jonesville somehow."

"You refuse—to stay under his roof?"

"That's about it."

"I'm sorry." She did not ask for further explanation.

The windows of Las Palmas were black, the house silent, when they arrived at their journey's end; Dolores was fretful, and her mistress ached in every bone. When Jose had helped his countrywoman into the house, Alaire said:

"If you insist upon going through, you must take the car. You can return it tomorrow."

"And—about Panfilo?" Dave queried.

"Wait. Perhaps I'll decide what is best to do in the meantime. Good night."

Law took her extended hand. Alaire was glad that he did not fondle it in that detestable Mexican fashion of which she had lately experienced so much; glad that the grasp of his long, strong fingers was merely firm and friendly. When he stepped back into the car and drove off through the night, she stood for some time looking after him.

* * * * * * * *

Blaze Jones had insisted that Dave live at his house, and the Ranger had accepted the invitation; but as it was late when the latter arrived at Jonesville, he went to the hotel for a few hours' rest. When he drove his borrowed machine up to the Jones house, about breakfast time, both Blaze and Paloma were delighted to see him.

"Say, now! What you doing rolling around in a gasoline go-devil?" the older man inquired, and Law was forced to explain.

"Father has never learned to drive a car without yelling 'Gee' and 'Haw,'" laughed Paloma. "And he thinks he has title to the whole road, too. You know these Mexicans are slow about pulling their wagons to one side. Well, father got mad one day, and when a team refused him the right of way, he whipped out his revolver and fired."

Blaze smiled broadly. "It worked great. And believe me, them Greasers took to the ditch. I went through like a hot wind, but I shot up sixty-five cartridges between here and town."

"Why didn't Mrs. Austin ask you to stay all night at Las Palmas?" the girl inquired of Dave.

"She did."

"Wonderful!" Paloma's surprise was evidently sincere. "I suppose you refused because of the way Ed treated you. Tell me, is she nice?"

"She's lovely."

This vehement declaration brought a sudden gleam of interest into the questioner's eyes.

"They say she has the most wonderful gowns and jewels, and dresses for dinner every night. Well"—Paloma tossed her head—"I'm going to have some nice clothes, too. You wait!"

"Now don't you start riggin' yourself up for meals," Blaze said, warningly. "First thing I know, you'll have me in a full-dress suit, spillin' soup on my shirt." Then to his guest he complained, feelingly: "I don't know what's come over Paloma lately; this new dressmaker has plumb stampeded her. Somebody'd ought to run that feline out of town before she ruins me."

"She is a very nice woman," complacently declared the daughter; but her father snorted loudly.

"I wouldn't associate with such a critter."

"My! But you're proud."

"It ain't that," Blaze defended himself. "I know her husband, and he's a bad hombre. He backed me up against a waterin' trough and told my fortune yesterday. He said I'd be married twice and have many children. He said I loved widows, and unless I was poisoned by a dark lady I'd live to be eighty years old. If I'd had a gun on me, I'd have busted him for some of the things he said. 'A dark lady!' That's his wife. I give you warnin', Paloma, don't you ask her to stay for meals. People like them are dangerous."

"You're too silly!" said Paloma. "Nobody believes in such things."

"They don't, eh? Well, he's got all Jonesville walkin' around ladders, and spittin' through crossed fingers, and countin' the spots on their nails. He interprets their dreams and locates lost articles."

"Maybe he can tell me where to find Adolfo Urbina?" Dave suggested.

"Humph! If he can't, Tad Lewis can. Say, Dave, this case of yours has stirred up a lot of feelin' 'gainst Tad. The prosecutin' attorney says he'll sure cinch him and Urbina both. One of Lewis' men got on a bender the other night and declared Adolfo would never come to trial."

"What did he mean?"

"It may have been mescal talk, but witnesses sometimes have a way of disappearin'. I wouldn't put anything past that gang."

Not long after breakfast Don Ricardo Guzman appeared at the Jones house and warmly greeted his two friends. To Dave he explained:

"Last night I came to town, and this morning I heard you had returned, so I rode out at once. You were unsuccessful?"

"Our man never went to Pueblo."

"Exactly. I thought as much. However, I go to meet Blanco today, and perhaps I shall discover something."

"What takes you over there?" Blaze inquired.

"Wait until I tell you. Senor David, here, brings me good fortune at every turn. He honors my poor, thirsty rancho with a visit and brings a glorious rain; then he destroys my enemies like a thunderbolt. No sooner is this done than I receive from the Federals an offer for fifty of my best horses. Caramba! Such a price, too. They are in a great hurry, which looks as if they expected an attack from the Candelcristas at Matamoras. I hope so. God grant these traitors are defeated. Anyhow, the horses have gone, and today I go to get my money in gold."

"Who's going with you?" asked Law.

Ricardo shrugged. "Nobody. There is no danger."

Blaze shook his head. "They know you are a red-hot rebel. I wouldn't trust them."

"They know, also, that I am an American, like you gentlemen," proudly asserted Guzman. "That makes a difference. I supported the Liberator—God rest his soul!—and I secretly assist those who fight his assassins, but so does everybody else. I am receiving a fine price for those horses, so it is worth a little risk. Now, senor," he addressed himself to the Ranger, "I have brought you a little present. Day and night my boys and I have worked upon it, for we know the good heart you have. It was finished yesterday. See!" Ricardo unwrapped a bundle he had fetched, displaying a magnificent bridle of plaited horsehair. It was cunningly wrought, and lavishly decorated with silver fittings. "You recognize those hairs?" he queried. "They came from the mane and tail of your bonita."

"Bessie Belle!" Law accepted the handsome token, then held out his hand to the Mexican. "That was mighty fine of you, Ricardo. I— You couldn't have pleased me more. We're going to be friends."

Guzman's delight was keen, his grizzled face beamed, and he showed his white teeth in a smile. "Say no more. What is mine is yours—my house, my cattle, my right hand. I and my sons will serve you, and you must come often to see us. Now I must go." He shook hands heartily and rode away, waving his hat.

"There's a good Grenser," Blaze said with conviction, and Dave agreed feelingly.

"Yes! I'd about do anything for him, after this." Then he took the bridle in for Paloma to admire.

The Needs of the Hour

Michigan Must Help Feed the Country

FARMERS: Make every acre of your farm produce, and produce more than ever before.

CITY PEOPLE: Make your garden feed your family, and others if possible.

VACANT LOT OWNERS: Make every vacant space produce food product of some kind.

U. S. Agricultural Department is Mobilizing the Agricultural interests of the country—Government report estimates large shortage in Wheat Crop.

Means must be devised promptly to insure the largest possible production of food supplies. It must be recognized that the man or boy who puts all his energies into the increase of food supplies is as truly a soldier of the republic as he who, in uniform, fights in the ranks.

THE FARMER'S SIDE OF IT

The amount of advice being handed out about now to the farmers is something tremendous. Many who give this advice know nothing from personal experience about agriculture. Of course any intelligent observer of business nnd industry can often make just criticisms on other people's work without being able to do it himself. But a good deal of futile and foolish advice is given, and it is no wonder that the farmers feel irritated by it.

The farmers are talking back thru the newspapers. They resent the suggestion that they are slow and unbusinesslike and unprogressive and they ridicule many of the efforts being made to increase farm production. They say farm production is hampered by certain underlying obstacles which must be first removed.

The shortage of good help is the subject of perhaps the most complaint. Tbe farmer speaks very disparagingly of green help. He looks scornfully on the great army of inexperienced college boys to be turned loose on the soil this summer.

The high price of seed and fertilizer and farm machinery, the difficulty of getting loans on growing crops, and the exactions of the middlemen who hold down the farmers' prices while they themselves are gathering a fortune, are other basic conditions which in the farmer's mind hold down food production.

It will take more than farm hints written by city bred editors to solve such problems. New systems of distributing and loaning of capital must be arranged. Meanwhile the farmer must like other business men adjust himself to existing conditions. Let him not estimate to sneeringly the capacity of the college boy. He lacks the experience, but he will put more muscle and enthusiasm into it than two old time prodding and sluggish farm hands.

When the democrats get through with drafting the republicans to the front this will be the greatest democratic country in the world.

NEWSPAPER POSTAGE AND FREE PUBLICITY.

A lot of overworked patriots in the national congress have been planning ways and means to double newspaper postage rates, otherwise known as "second class mail matter." There is a lot of the old line of talk being handed out about the "subsidy" which the newspapers enjoy, etc.

In view of the daily demands upon the generosity of newspaper publishers by all branches of the Federal government, this talk almost causes the average publisher to forget all laws and ordinances, both human and divine, against loud and profane talk. There is a side to this second class postage matter which congressional busy-bodies need to have brought to their attention most forcibly. If the newspapers of the country should insist upon the Government paying for all the advertising and information which the Government must get before the people, and which the newspapers now print, free of charge, the newspaper publishers could afford to pay first class postage rates on newspapers.

Just as a concrete case: Elsewhere in The Journal may be found a large advertisement of the $2,000,000,000 Liberty Loan bonds which the Government now offers for sale. The order for the advertisement reads as follows:

"We are sending you herewith a proof of an advertisement. If you care to donate advertising space, will you please set this advertisement, run it in the next edition of your paper, send a copy of the paper to this bank for checking, and send your bill at your regular card rates, receipted, as your donation. Records will be kept of all such donations and the formal thanks of the United States Government extended to the donors."

We are very glad to "donate" the space to Uncle Sam; but when one considers that we are "donating" Uncle Sam over $10 worth of advertising, and that we are paying (even though it is second class rates) to circulate the advertisement, the case will begin to have a different aspect. The Government is depending upon the newspapers of the country to sell these Liberty Loan bonds—and the newspapers will do it, too. The newspapers are the worst under-paid or not paid-at-all, essential part of the nation's political and industrial life. If every newspaper and magazine in the country should cease publication for one month the people would think the world was coming to an end—and would almost want it to come to an end.

Just think of it yourself, and see if you do not reach the conclusion that the newspapers give the Government vastly more than the "newspaper postage subsidy" amounts to. —Esennaba Journal.

LET IN THE LIGHT

Unless the country is allowed acquaintance with the facts relating to our armed naval forces, discussion of military and navnl questions is quite impossible. Military secrecy does not depend upon laws. In modern warfare officers act under sealed orders. This is sometimes necessary and is frequently the case that grave questions are sheltered with silence, but in the main the general public should be treated with the truth. The public should be kept in touch with the real facts. It is always advisable to be frank with the people you are dealing with.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

Among the themes suggested hy Secretnry Lane for discussion in school commencement exercises is one entitled, "Lincoln in 1917. What would he have done?" Make it 1915 and you will have a better theme. That was the yenr the Lusitania was blown up, Lincoln would have acted the following day.

A fair example of the bonehead censorship of the depnrtments is seen in the announcement of the arrivnl of the torpedo fiotilla on the other side. At the request of the government, American newspapers had refrained from printing the news only to have it published from London.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN NOTES.

Hit By Freight Train

After taking an auto load of young folks to Deward on a pleasure trip last Sundny, C. W. Hastings shouldered his fishing rod and started down the railroad track toward a trout stream with the intention of whiling away the time fishing until the passengers should be ready to return home. A freight train happened to be switching on the track at that time, and the engineer, seeing Mr. Hastings, tooted the whistle several times for warning. Because of his deafness, Mr. Hastings failed to receive the signal, and the train, backing rapidly toward him, quickly smashed on the emergency brakes. But it could not be stopped before it hit him and knocked him down the bank. Mr. Hastings was picked up and carried to the Hinkley home at Alba, where he still is. An examination revealed a broken collar bone, two broken ribs, a fractured rib and a few minor injuries. Though these are serious enough to cause intense suffering for a time, he is not believed to have received injuries that will leave lasting results. He will probably be brought home in a few days. Mr. Hastings is very fortunate in having gone through the accident with no more serious results. Had the train been running full speed, nothing could have saved his life.—Central Lake Torch.

Army For Farm Work

Congressman Frank Scott of this district has introduced a bill in congress directing the secretary of war to enlist 200,000 men for a two years period of farm work. Scott's bill will enable the secretary of war to raise this army, both by direct enlistment and by detachment of suitable men from military bodies previously raised. The men would receive the pay of privates in the regular army, and would be at the disposal of the secretary of war wherever needed.

New Process Oil Stoves

Don't Fire a Cannon to Kill a Fly

And yet that is just what firing up a coal or wood range amounts to in summer, a needless waste of fuel and a hot kitchen to work in.

New Process Oil Stoves are easily operated—oil, a match—a twist of the thumb, in 60 seconds you have the fire, as much or as little as you want.

When you have had enough heat shut it off instantly.

Its strongest bid for your favor is the slight expense it entails, while giving you all the comfort and convenience of a gas range.

Call at our store and ask to see the stove demonstrated.

BIOS FAREWELL TO DEPARTING ONES

Granga Hall Scene of Social Gathering Friday Evening

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. L. K. Clark to the number of about 70 gathered at the grange hall last Friday evening to pay their respects to Mr. and Mrs. Clark, who are soon to leave for their new home in the south. The affair was in the nature of a surprise, as the principals had been informed that it was to simply be a grange meeting. The band was also included in the arrangements, as Mr. Clark had been a member ever since it was organized three years ago.

On the arrival at the hall of the guests of honor, the meeting was called to order by grange master, Wm. Eastcott, and after a few words by him the band played several selections, one of the numbers being the first one learned and played after the band was organized.

C. E. Bearss then arose and in a short talk expressed the sentiments of the gathering when he assured Mr. and Mrs. Clark how much they would be missed by all their friends.

In his response, Mr. Clark explained his reasons for leaving Ellsworth, and also told some of his plans for their future in their new home. They will be located in Louisa county, Virginia, and have purchased two hundred and fifty five acres of what was the homestead granted to Mr. Clark's fore-fathers by the king of England.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark will be accompanied to their new home by Mr. and Mrs. Chas. E. Ford, also Ellsworth residents, and by Miss Minnie Keith, formerly teacher of the Ellsworth school, serving in that capacity in the Bellaire schools in the past two years.

These people in the years they have resided in Ellsworth have made friends of all with whom they came in contact, and although they will be greatly missed they will be sped on their way with the best wishes of all their friends.

NEW CHURCH EDIFICE FOR CHURCH OF GOD

Will Be Located On Hulbert Avenue —Cobble Stones To Be Used

Feeling the need of a convenient and comfortable place for worship, the Church of God have purchased a lot on Hurlbert Avenue that was formerly owned by E. B. Ward, as a site for a new house of worship, which they expect to complete and dedicate by December 1st.

The new building will be built of cobble stone to the eaves and the tower and chimney will also be built of the same material.

The work of excavating for the basement and building of the basement wall will commence in July. Then the work will be abandoned until after the annual camp meeting, which begins August 3rd and continues until August 13th, after which a force of men will resume the work and rush it as fast as possible to its completion.

A great deal of the labor has been donated; such as team work and common labor; also some mason and carpenter work. Any one desiring to contribute towards this effort may do so and it will be thankfully received. Either work or cash will he acceptable.

The church will continue to hold its meetings over Taylor's store every Sunday at 2:30 P. M., until the completion of the new building. Everyone is welcome to these services.

STORES WILL CLOSE REGISTRATION DAY

Day to be Observed As Suggested by Governer.

Tuesday afternoon, June 5, having been designated by the president of the United States as registration dny, it has been decided by the citizens of Ellsworth to follow the suggestion of the governor of the state and make thnt dny a holiday.

All business places will close at 12:30 and remain closed until 6 o'clock. The hand will give a concert at two o'clock. It has been suggested that all property owners also make a special effort to have their homes or business places decorated with flags or bunting and also if the school board has by that time purchased the school site, to raise the new flag pole on the school property and raise the new school flag. This event will take place at 3:00 o'clock.

It is hoped that all residents of Ellsworth and the surrounding country will turn out on that day and show their patriotism and loyalty to their homes and to their country.

An effort is also being made to secure some public speaker for the afternoon.

For any further information see or phone the secretary of the Board of Trade, G. C. Townsend.

FAREWELL PARTY

Given to Prof. M. A. Brail Tuesday Evening.

Prof. M. A. Brsil finished his second year as principal of the Ellsworth schools on Tuesday of last week and started for his home at Carson City, Michigan on Wednesday morning, intending to stop at Alden and visit his cousin, Prof. Balley of that place.

As a mark of the esteem in which he was held here, about 40 of his friends surprised him with a little party at Boss Hall on the evening before his departure and presented him with a beautiful set of brushes.

The evening was spent in games and after refreshments consisting of ice cream and cake, the party broke up, congratulating Mr. Brsil on his excellent work as principal of the Ellsworth schools the past two years and wishing him the best of luck and prosperity in the new position at Sand Lake, where he will teach the coming year.

EARLY PLOWING GETS THE BEAN MAGGOT

Dreaded Visitant Don't Care About Being Stirred Up That Way

Early plowing of bean land as a measure for ridding sod of the bean maggot which worked so much damage in Michigan last season, is recommended to farmers by the M. A. C. departments of entomology and farm crops as means of minimizing this danger this spring.

"There is little danger from the bean maggot on land plowed three weeks or more before planting," M. A. C. entomologists say, "but the maggot may cause crop ruin on fields planted soon after the turning under of clover sod or manure. It is recommended that bean ground be plowed to a good depth, firmed with the roller, and harrowed immediately after rolling, and a thorough harrowing or discing should in addition be given at weekly intervals until planting time.

"Beans require a weed-free seed bed, firm underneath with a surface approaching 'garden tilth' as nearly as possible. Beans are particularly sensitive to conditions prevailing at the time of germination. The bean differs from most other common crops in its growth in that every seed which produces a plant must be pushed above the surface of the ground to form the seed leaves. A uniform and vigorous start can only be secured on a well-warmed seed bed in good tilth.

"Where possible beans should be planted on fall plowed or early spring plowed land, but in any event, the plowing should be completed at least three weeks before the seed is put in. This permits the furrow slice to settle properly, and affords time for the thorough fitting of the soil with disc and harrow."

ANTRIM CITY

Mr. Knight and family were at Mr. Montgomery's Sunday.

Mrs. Evans visited at her brother's, J. Smith, Saturday and Sunday.

FARM VALUES VS. ROAD TAX

LAND IN TENNESSEE MORE THAN TRIPLES VALUE

Franklin County's Exparience Shows Cost More Than Offset By Raturns

If those who question the wisdom of voting bonds for road construction and making it pay bandsome profits, will travel along the completed portions of the Dixie Highway in Franklin county, Tennessee, they can get all the evideace necessary to convince the most skeptical. The experience in Franklin has likewise proven the vslue of the through National highway movements in bringing sbout rosd improvement throughout the counties which the highway traverses. Two years ago before the advent of the Dixie Highway movement in Franklin county, there was not a mile of surfaced road in the county. The citizens voted a bond issue of $350,000 which had been previously defeated on a number of occasions. Their experience has made the citizens of the county ready for another bond issue if needed to complete the system of roads in the county. They feel they are getting a dollars worth of value for every dollar expended under the management of Franklin county's commission and county Engineer R. S. Lander.

About three years ago a farmer purchased eighty acres about eight miles out on a lateral road leading into the Dixie Highway, paying twenty two dollars and fifty cents per acre. The old dirt road leading out to his place was so bad that horses and stock were drowned endeavoring to flounder through the mud during the winter months. The farmer and his family were completely isolated from town and their neighbors as soon as winter rolled around and often times during heavy spring and summer rains. Last fall the county, out of the proceeds of the bond issue built a well surfaced and drained macadam road which was travelable every day duriag the past winter. This spring the farmer went to one of the bankers in Winchester and wanted to borrow some money on his farm to make some improvements. An appraiser was sent to inspect the farm. He was told the bank would gladly loan him $80 an acre on his land.

On this same road two winters ago, the undertaker was unable to reach a family living out ten miles from town except on horseback. The funeral was postponed for a day until rock could be hauled and used to fill in some of the worst holes. Even then a hearse could not make the trip and a light wagon was required to carry the body to the cemetery taking up the entire day to make the trip. After the road was constructed another funeral party made the same journey in three hours and a half last winter, while automobiles attending the services made the trip in forty-five minutes.

A farmer on the Dixie Highway objected strenuously to the routing of the highway through his farm. The location of the road cut his farm exactly in two. Since the highway was built through his place, he has sold the half on the other side of the road for more than his entire farm cost him a few years previous.

It would be impossible to find a real estate agent in the county who would not say that the returns to the county, although only fifty per cent of the work under contract has been completed are now greatly in excess of $350,000, the amount of the bond issue. Prior to the issuance of the bonds, the county had a fund of $17,000 whieh was being expended annually in "putting two mud holes where one previously existed," in the language of a citizen of that county, endeavoring to repair a large milcage of poorly located, graded and poorly drained dirt roads. The interest on the bond issue amounts to only $500 annually in excess of the amount previously expended on the old dirt roads. It is true that the new roads being constructed have to be maintained but the maintenance tax which was provided when the bonds were voted will take care of this item. The maintenance cost will be reduced to the minimum as the county is now preparing to put on a patrol system on all of their roads as fast as they are completed. The increased value of farm lands will more

W. C. T. U. GIVES U. S. AN AUTO AMBULANCE

Liberty Bonds Also Liharally Subscribed At Convantion.

Mrs. Silas J. Alcox, who recently sttended the state W. C. T. U. convention at Kalamazoo ss a delegate from the local union and Mrs. Geo. Eagleton, who sccompanied her as alternate report that the Michigan organizatlon has voted to furnish an automobile ambulance to the U. S. government to be put on the battle field in France to take care of our wounded soldiers. This ambulance will fly the "white ribbon" an a staff with the nstional colors, bearing the inscription, "With Mother Love." It will cost in the neighborhood of $1,600.

The convention showed its patriotism in another effective way, $1,150 of Liberty bonds being placed among the members at its session.

The action of the state W. C. T. U. points the way for other now existing organizations to help at this time of national peril and need. They are established and it is easier for them to take up the new work thnn for new aocleties to be started, entailing the consequent delay and expense of their formation.

CLASS OF 1917 TO THE FORE

FIFTEEN YOUNG PEOPLE ENTER LIFE'S STRUGGLE

But We Feel That They Have Been Adequately Prepared To Take Up Its Problems

The annual commencement exercises of the Charlevoix high school will be held at the opera house in this city Thuraday evening next (Junc 7th,) at which time Hon. Chase S. Osborne, former governor of the state, will address the class of '17. The graduates are fortunate in having secured the services of Governor Osborne on this occasion, as he is a speaker of exceptional force and earnestness and has a way of leaving vivid and lasting impressions with those who hear him. We are sure that the fifteen members of the class, as well as those of us who will attend to "see them through" will be better and broader citizens of our state and nation for having listened to the ex-governor.

Reserved seat tickets may be purchased either from Superintendent Craig or from John Walker, president of the senior class.

The members of the class are Allen Arnold, Harold Cartier, Percy Durance, Irving Hallett, Robyn Merriam, John Walker, Franklin Weaver, Theodore Kibbe and King Saunders; Rena Cram, Bernice Crandell, Hilda Glassford, Roberta Ferguson, Vada Sanford and Vera Mears. The offieers of the class are John Walker, president, Roberta Ferguson, vice-president, Bernice Crandell, secretary and Hilda Glassford, treasurer. Class motto—"Honors wait at Labor's Gate." Class colors—Nile green and salmon pink. Class flower—carnation.

Your Flag and My Flag

By Wilbur D. Nesbit

Your flag and my flag
And how it flies to-day
In your land and my land
And half a world away!
Rose-red and blood-red
The stripes forever gleam;
Snow-white and soul-white—
The good forefathers' dream;
Sky-blue and true-blue, with stars to gleam aright
The gloried guidon of the day, a shelter through the night.

Your flag and my flag!
And, oh, how much it holds—
Your land and my land—
Secure within its folds!
Your heart and my heart
Beat quicker at the sight;
Sun-kissed and wind-tossed—
Red and blue and white.
The one flag—the great flag—the flag for me and you—
Glorified all else beside—the red and white and blue!

BENEFIT DANCE WAS A SIGNAL SUCCESS

Red Cross Society Nets About $100 From the Affair

The beaefit for the Red Cross Society, which was held at the Beach Hotel, Monday evening, June 4th, was a grand success in every way. It certainly could be called a community gathering, as guests were present from East Jordan and Petoskey.

Every one should extend their appreciation to Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Baker, who so generously donated the Beach Hotel, as it was an ideal place for such a occasion. Flags were used for the decoration.

Enough cannot be said of the East Jordan orchestra of eight pieces, who so kindly volunteered their services to furnish the music, thereby showing their patriotism in a practieal way. The weather was far from pleasant, hut it did not seem to make any difference with the crowd. Every one enjoyed themselves.

In the beginning of the evening, a very enjoyable "Patriotic" program was given and was greatly enjoyed. At the close of the program every one sung the "Star Spangled Banner." Miss Ruth Ilammet represented "Liberty" in tableaux, and Miss Helen Armstrong gave several fancy dances, which were thoroughly appreciated. The balance of the evening was spent in dancing, and the orchestra were very generous in their encores. The committee furnished refreshments of ice cream, cake, punch and wafers.

The Red Cross Society will clear $100. They wish to thank each person who so kindly assisted to make it such a success.

Produce House For Petoskey

Petoskey is to have a wholesale fruit, vegetable and produce house, starting this week. The Gamble-Robinson-Shaw company of Minneapolis, has secured a part of the Darling Seed company warehouse and has opened offices in the south part of that building.

Orin C. St John has arrived from the Soo to take the management of the Petoskey place, which will be operated as a branch of the Soo house. This company has trirty-two other produco houses in other cities of the country and has a market for all of the fruit and produce they huy.

The business will be handled on a cash basis and as soon as a load of produce is purchased it will bo paid for. Petoskey has long needed such an institution as the one just being established, promises to be. A ready market for all kinds of fruit and farm produce in season will mean more people coming to Petoskey and more money spent with local merchants.—Petoskey Evening News.

Notice to Customers

Beginning Friday, June 1, prices on soda sundaes, ice cream, etc., will be raised to 10 cents on account of the big advance in the cost of all materials. Ice cream per quart 30 cents. No more 5 cent sundaes or sodas this season. The Sugar Bowl, Geo. Glados, Prop. Adv 22t2

DOINGS OF THE RED CROSS ORGANIZATION

Benefit "Patria" To Continue Each Saturday Afternoon

The matinee benefit given by Mr. Miles at the Majestic theatre will be continued each Saturday afternoon and a special invitation is extended to those living in the country to attend at that time.

The society wishes to express its sincere thanks for the generous assistance given the work by the East Jordan orchestra whose members so kindly donated their services for the evening's entertainment at the Beach hotel on Monday evening last.

On registration day, the society furnished each of the young men who registered to serve their country an arm band, decorated with the national colors whieh the Courier is sure each man who received one might he proud to wear as a badge of the highest service a man is capable of performing—giving himself to his country.

Tea is served every afternoon at the Red Cross rooms in the Wilbur block. Donors for the week were: Earl Shapton, Charles Lamphear, Lakeside farm, William Withers, Ed. Shapton, Charles S. Sec, C. V. Miles, Kenneth Jacobs, Mrs. Darwin F. Meech, Mrs. J. S. Baker, Mrs. W. H. Miller, Mrs. Henry Cooper, Miss Minnie Payton and Miss Boyce.

H. L. OLDHAM MAKES A HANDSOME DONATION

Rad Cross Receives $100 Chack From Public-Spirited Resident

The Red Cross society has reeently received a handsome donation from ona who, ever since the day he came here, has been one of our most public-spirited and useful citizens. It was not designed by the donor that his gift should receive any publicity, but the Red Cross officers believe that credit should be given where it is due and have turned over to us for publieation the letter of appreciation and encouragement that accompanied the most welcome gift.

To Charlevoix Department,
Red Cross Society,
Charlevoix, Mich.

Ladies:

Allow me to congratulate you on your noble and successful work.

On this fifth day of June, one of the most serious days in United States history, wherein I know you will be doubling your efforts, I enclose my cheque for "Patron" membership. I send it to you so Charlevoix may receive the credit.

Respectfully,
HARRY L. OLDHAM.

RALLY SUNDAY FOR Y. M. C. A.

MASS MEETING AT OPERA HOUSE 7:30 P. M.—COME

And Hear This Great Preparedness Work Discussed By Experts—Good Music

Arrangements have been made for a big mass meeting at the opera house next Sunday night, June 10th, at 7:30, in the interest of the army work whieh is being done by the Young Men's Christian Association. All the churches and societies of the city and surrounding country are earnestly requested to co-operate. Farmers with their wives and families are especially invited to be present. Delegations from neighboring towns are arranging to attend.

The work of the Y. M. C. A. in the army has become recognized as a military necessity and President Wilson has issued orders to all commanding officers to co-operate in every way possible with this organization.

The work outlined by the Y. M. C. A. for the men in the field is worthy in every respect. The army association camps will follow the soldiers wherever they go. The association building will be the home of the soldiers when they are not in the field. Here they will find many of the home comforts. They will find a place where they can read newspapers, magazines and other literature, all furnished by the association. In the big field Y. M. C. A. buildings they will find a comfortable place to lounge when not on duty, a place where they can write letters without being disturbed.

The Y. M. C. A. in the army, as it does in civil life, offers recreation for the soldier boys. Under the direction of the army chaplain, all sorts of athletics are given. Baseball, football, volleyball, wrestling, boxing, running and jumping are provided.

Religious services also are a feature of the army Y. M. C. A. The president, through a proclamation has designated the Y. M. C. A. as the only organization to hold religious services in army camps, outside of the army chaplains.

The army Y. M. C. A. building will take care of 1,000 men at each time. One building is provided for each brigade of 5,600 men. Five trained secretaries will devote their entire time to the boys in each building.

Come to this rally and hear how the boys get free writing material for the letters home which are so much prized by the loved ones who stay behind and of the opportunities given for good clean sport when off duty, instead of their being allowed to come within range of influence of the fierce temptations laying for the destruction of the boys outside of the camps.

Complete arrangements have been made for a state speaker, to be furnished by the state association from Detroit. The music will be of the highest order and there will be some startling things said of conditions in

REGISTRATION DAY IS CELEBRATED

NINETY SIX CARS, QUINTETTE, AND A BRASS BAND

Figures For The Day Show 170 Obeyed Uncle Sam's Orders No Disorder Here

Registration day was fittingly celebrated in Charlevoix yesterday, both by the number who stepped up to the registration booth to offer their services in a holy war for the principles of democracy and by the patriotic stay-at-homes whose duty it must be to see that their sacrifice shall not be in vain. Everything that was done yesterday showed that the old stigma of disgrace attaching to the draft is wiped away forever and those who are drafted are to henceforth feel that Uncle Sam deems them physically, mentally and morally fit to represent him on the world's greatest battlefield and has honored them by his choice.

The total registration figures of the day were 170, made up as follows:

1st Ward 29
2nd Ward 73
3rd Ward 68
170

The little two inch khaki-colored flag bands began to appear on the streets early in the morning and by noon conditions were reversed and the man of youthful appearance whose sleeve was handless began to be an object of speculative attention. Many were seen wearing the badge whom popular opinion had deemed far beyond the age limit and others were badgeless whose absence of wrinkles and other traces of time's ravages seemed to place them well within the military age. We do not imagine, however, that there were any dodgers, as the penalty for evasion is too severe and detection too easy for any but a "natural born fool" to attempt it.

The celebration features of the day commenced at one fifteen, when an automobile parade with 96 cars in line and headed by a "home grown band composed of Charlevoix's best talent started from Michigan ave. and made a tour of the city, going south on Dixon avenue, thence south on Dixon to the Inn, circling the grounds, then west on Dixon to Michigan again; south on Michigan to Bridge; west on Clinton to Park Avenue by way of Grant street; thence north to Bridge again; thence south to Hulbert through to Alice St., thence north on Alice to Belvedere; Belvedere to Bridge, Antrim to State and north on State to the public library.

At the library using the porch as a rostrum, waited the speakers of the day. The school children had marched in a body from the school grounds and were drawn up on the library lawn—117 little girls and boys of the lower grades, wearing red, white and blue tassel caps and arranged in groups so as to represent a huge, living American flag.

Rev. C. E. Taggart offered a short prayer, after which the children sang "America." H. A. Craig, who was in charge of the program, introduced the speakers. W. E. Hampton made a ringing speech, in which he eulogized the action of the president in doing the utmost that could be done to preserve us in peace, bnt pointing out that the time had finally come when no real American could say or had the right to say that the president and congress had done other than right in entering the country into the lists of war. He closed his remaks with a beautiful poetical tribute to the flag, to which none could listen without a tugging at the heart strings.

A quintette composed of Messrs. Glenn Kirby, Loren Hart, Ney Smith Tof Lalonde nnd Charles Hamlin, who were stationed in an auto at the curb in front of the library, then rendered "Tenting On the Old Camp Ground." Dr. Armstrong spoke next and in a clear and coaclse manner explained the situation the country is up against and the nature and meaning of the draft. He sketched the history of world conquerors from Alexander the Great, and Caesar down to Napoleon and the present Kaiser, whom he characterized as a megalomaniac or one cured with the delusion that he was appointed of God to possess the earth, pointing out that he like his nearest historical counterpart, Na-

Everywhere under the sun—
wherever roofs are laid—
Certain-teed stands for these two things:

Efficiency Economy

CERTAIN-TEED roofing is the most efficient and economical type of roof for factories, office buildings, farm buildings, garages, etc., because the first cost is less than that of metal, wood shingles, or tar and gravel. This is particularly so now, because of the present high prices of some of the materials. CERTAIN-TEED costs less to lay than any other kind of roof. It will not rust, is not affected by fumes, gases and acids, coal smoke, etc.; it is light weight and fire retardant. Every rain washes it clean; and it does not melt or run under the hot rays of the sun, nor can it clog gutters and down spouts.

Certain-teed Roofing

is the best quality of prepared roofing. It pays to get the best. The only difference between the first cost of a good roof and a poor one is in the materials—the labor, freight, etc., costs the same in both. As CERTAIN-TEED Roofing is guaranteed for 5, 10 or 15 years according to thickness (1, 2 or 3 ply) it will be in splendid condition years after a poor quality roof has to be replaced.

For residences, Slate Surfaced Asphalt Shingles have all the advantages of CERTAIN-TEED Roofing, plus artistic beauty; not bulky, and are uniform in weight, quality and appearance. They need no paint, are pliable, eliminate waste and misfits, cannot curl, buckle, rot or crack. Guaranteed for ten years. Investigate CERTAIN-TEED before deciding on any type of roof. For sale by dealers everywhere.

Certain-teed Paints and Varnishes

are good, reliable products made by experienced paint men, who have at their command all the machinery, equipment, materials and resources necessary to manufacture good paints and varnishes economically—as well as the extensive selling organization and warehouse system of the Certain-teed Products Corporation, which materially reduces marketing costs. Guaranteed to give satisfaction.

CHAPTER XI.

The Rodeo.

It was with a feeling of some reluctance that Dave drove up to Las Palmas shortly after the lunch hour, for he had no desire to meet "Young Ed." However, to his relief, Austin did not appear, and inasmuch as Alaire did not refer to her husband in any way, Dave decided that he must be absent, perhaps on one of his notorious sprees.

The mistress of the big ranch was in her harness, having at once assumed her neglected duties. She came to welcome her caller in a short khaki riding suit; her feet were incased in tan boots; she wore a mannish felt hat and gantlet gloves, showing that she had spent the morning in the saddle. Dave thought she looked exceedingly capable and businesslike, and not less beautiful in these clothes; he feasted his eyes covertly upon her.

"I expected you for luncheon," she smiled; and Dave could have kicked himself. "I'm just going out now. If you're not in too great a hurry to go home, you may go with me."

"That would be fine," he agreed.

"Come, then. I have a horse for you." As she led the way back toward the farm buildings, she explained: "I'm selling off a bunch of cattle. Benito is rounding them up and cutting out the best ones."

"You keep them, I reckon."

"Always. That's how I improve the grade. You will see a splendid herd of animals, Mr. Law—the best in south Texas. I suppose you're interested in such things."

"I'd rather watch a good herd of stock than the best show in New York," he told her.

When they came to the corrals, an intricate series of pens and chutes at the rear of the outbuildings, Law beheld two thoroughbred horses standing at the hitching rail.

"I'm proud of my horses, too," said Alaire.

"You have reason to be." With his eyes alight, Dave examined the fine points of both animals. He ran a caressing hand over them, and they recognized in him a friend.

"These beauties were raised on Kentucky bluegrass. Brother and sister, aren't they?"

"Yes. Montrose and Montrosa are their names. The horse is mine, the mare is yours." Seeing that Dave did not comprehend the full import of her words, she added: "Yours to keep, I mean. You must make another Bessie Belle out of her."

"Mine? Oh—ma'am!" Law turned his eyes from Alaire to the mare, then back again. "You're too kind. I can't take her."

"You must."

Dave made as if to say something, but was too deeply embarrassed. Unable to tear himself away from the mare's side, he continued to stroke her shining coat while she turned an intelligent face to him, showing a solitary white star in the center of her forehead.

"See! She is nearly the same color as Bessie Belle."

"Yes'm! I—I want her, ma'am; I'm just sick from wanting her, but—won't you let me buy her?"

"Oh, I wouldn't sell her." Then, as Dave continued to yearn over the animal, like a small boy tempted beyond his strength, Alaire laughed. "I owe you something, Mr. Law, and a horse more or less means very little to me."

He yielded; he could not possibly continue his resistance, and in his happy face Alaire took her reward.

The mare meanwhile was doubtfully nosing her new master, deciding whether or not she liked him; but when he offered her a cube of sugar, her uncertainties disappeared, and they became friends then and there. He talked to her, too, in a way that would have won any female heart, and it was plain to anyone who knew horses that she began to consider him wholly delightful.

"You do speak their language," Alaire said, after she had watched them for a few minutes. "You have bewitched the creature." Dave nodded silently, and his face was young. Then, half to herself, the woman murmured, "Yes, you have a heart."

"I beg pardon?"

"Nothing. I'm glad you like her."

"Do you mind if I call her something else than Rosa, just to myself?"

"Why, she's yours! Don't you like the name?"

"Oh, yes! But—see!" Dave laid a finger upon Montrosa's forehead. "She wears a lone star, and I'd like to call her that—The Lone Star."

Alaire smiled in tacit assent; then when the two friends had completely established their intimacy, she mounted her own horse and led the way to the round-up.

Dave's unbounded delight filled the mistress of Las Palmas with the keenest pleasure. He laughed, he hummed snatches of songs, he kept up a chatter addressed as much to the mare as to his companion, and under it Montrosa romped like a tomboy. It was gratifying to meet with such appreciation as this; Alaire felt warm and friendly to the whole world, and decided that out of her abundance she must do more for other people.

Of course Dave had to tell of Don Ricardo's thoughtful gift, and concluded by saying, "I think this must be my birthday, although it doesn't fit in with the calendar."

"Don Ricardo has his enemies, but he is a good-hearted old man."

"Yes," Dave agreed. Then, more gravely, "I'm sorry I let him go across the river." There was a pause. "If anybody harms him, I reckon I'll have a fend on my hands, for I'm a grateful person."

"I believe it. I can see that you are loyal."

"I was starved on sentiment when I was little, but it's in me bigger than a skinned ox. They say gratitude is an elemental, primitive emotion—"

"Perhaps that's why it is so rare nowadays," said Alaire, not more than half in jest.

"You find it rare?" Dave looked up keenly. "Well, you have certainly laid up a store of it today."

Benito and his men had rounded up perhaps three thousand head of cattle when Alaire and her companion appeared, and they were in process of "cutting out." It was an animated scene, one fitted to rouse enthusiasm in any plainsman, for the stock was fat and healthy; there were many calves, and the incessant, rumbling complaint of the herd was blood-stirring. The Las Palmas cowboys rode like centaurs; the air was drumming to swift hoofbeats, and over all was the hoarse, unceasing undertone from countless bovine throats. Out near the grub wagon the remuda was grazing, and thither at intervals came the perspiring horsemen to change their mounts.

Benito, wet, dusty and tired, rode up to his employer to report progress.

"Dios! This is hot work for an old man. We will never finish by dark," said he, whereupon Law promptly volunteered his services.

"Lend me your rope, Benito." Dave slid out of his seat and, with an arm around the mare's neck, whispered into her ear. Rosa answered by nosing the speaker over with brazen familiarity.

"Diablo! He has a way with horses, hasn't he?" Benito grinned. "Now, that Montrosa is wilder than a deer."

The giant herd milled and eddied, revolving like a vast pool of deep, swift water. The bulls were quarrelsome, the steers were stubborn, and the wet cows were distracted. In and out of this confusion the cowboys rode, following the animals selected for separation, forcing them out through dust and brush, until they had joined the smaller herd of choice animals which were to remain on the ranch. It was swift, sweaty, exhausting work, the kind these Mexicans loved, for it was not only spectacular but held an amount of danger. Dave Law made himself one of them.

Alaire sat her horse in the heart of the crowding herd and watched the Ranger. Good riding she was accustomed to. But Law seemed to inspire his mount. In spite of the man's unusual size, he rode like a feather; he was grace and life and youth personified. Now he sat as erect in his saddle as a swaying reed; again he stretched himself out like a whiplash. Once he had begun the work he would not stop.

"You Do Speak Their Language," Alaire Said.

All that afternoon the cowboys labored, and toward sundown the depleted herd was driven to the water. Then through the cool twilight came the drive to the next pasture, and here the patience of the cowboys was taxed to the utmost, for as the stronger members of the herd forged ahead, the wearied, worried, littlest members fell behind. But now these swarthy, dare-devil riders were as gentle as women; they urged the youngsters onward with harmless switches or with painless blows from loose-coiled riatas; they picked them up in their arms and rode with them.

Once through the gate and safe inside the restraining pasture fence, the herd was allowed to settle down. Then began a patient search by outraged mothers, a series of mournful quests that were destined to continue far into the night; endless nosings and sniffings and caressings, which would keep up until each cow had found her own, until each calf was hurting its head against maternal ribs and gaining that consolation which it craved.

A new moon was swinging in the sky as Alaire and Dave rode back toward Las Palmas. How or when Alaire Austin came to feel that this man loved her, she never knew. Certainly she knew tonight, and, strange to say, the knowledge did not disturb her. Alaire had been repelled by Luis Longorio's evident love for her, but a similar emotion in this man's breast had quite the opposite effect. She was eager for friendship, hungry for affection, starved for that worship which every woman lives upon. Having a wholesome confidence in her own strength of character, and complete faith in Law's sense of honor, she was neither alarmed nor offended.

For the first time in years she allowed her intimate thoughts free expression, and spoke of her hopes, her interests and her efforts; under the spell of the moonlight, she even confided something about those dreams that kept her company and robbed her world of its sordidness. Dave Law discovered that she lived in a fanciful land of unrealities, and the glimpse he gained of it was delightful.

Supper was waiting when they arrived at Las Palmas, and Dolores announced that "Young Ed" had telephoned from the Lewis ranch that he would not be home. Yielding to a sudden impulse, Alaire said to her companion:

"You must dine with me. Dolores will show you to a room. I will be ready in half an hour."

The Austin ranchhouse offered a contrast to the majority of Texas country homes. Not for many years had Dave Law been a guest amid such surroundings, and he began to feel more and more out of place. With growing discomfort, he realized that the mistress of this residence was the richest woman in all this part of Texas, and that he was little better than a tramp. Alaire knew how to be a gracious and winning hostess; of course she did not appear to notice her guest's embarrassment. She had rather welcomed the thought that this man cared for her, and yet, had she deliberately planned to dampen his feeling, she could hardly have succeeded better than by showing him the wide disparity in their lives and situations. Dave was dismayed; he felt very poor and ridiculous. Alaire was no longer the woman he had ridden with through the solitudes; her very friendliness seemed to be a condescension.

He did not linger long after they had dined for he wished to be alone, where he could reach an understanding with himself. On the steps he waited just a moment for Alaire to mention, if she chose, that subject which they had still left open on the night before. Reading his thought, she said:

"You are expecting me to say something about Panfilo Sanchez."

"Yes."

"I have thought it over; in fact, I have been thinking about it all day; but even yet I don't know what to tell you. As for its effect upon myself—you know I care very little what people say or think."

"I'm Sorry I Killed the Fellow."

"I'm sorry I killed the fellow—I shouldn't have done it, but—one sees things differently out in the rough and here in the settled country. I can't help but feel that his conduct, under the circumstances, called for—what he got. He wasn't a good man, in spite of what Jose says; Anto confessed to me that they were planning all sorts of devilry together."

"That is hardly an excuse." Alaire smiled faintly.

"Oh, I know!" Dave agreed. "Don't weaken on my account."

"No! I'm not thinking of the consequences to you or to me. You are the kind of man who can protect himself, I'm sure; your very ability in that direction frightens me a little on Jose's account. But"—she sighed and lifted her shoulders in a shrug—"perhaps time will decide this question for us."

Dave laughed with some relief. "I think you've worried yourself enough over it, mm'um," he said; "splitting hairs as to what's right and what's wrong, when it doesn't matter much, in either case. Suppose you continue to think it over at your leisure."

"Perhaps I'd better. And now"—Alaire extended her hand—"won't you and Montrosa come to see me once in a while? I'm very lonesome."

"We'd love to," Dave declared. He had it on his lips to say more, but at that moment an eager whinny and an impatient rattle of a bridle bit came from the driveway, and he smiled. "There's her acceptance now."

"Oh, no! She merely heard your voice, the fickle creature."

Alaire watched her guest until he had disappeared into the shadows, then she heard him talking to the mare. Benito's words at the rodeo occurred to her, and she wondered if this Ranger might not also have a way with women.

The house was very still and empty when she re-entered it.

KEEPING BUSINESS WHERE IT BELONGS

People should think, "What really makes good times?"

When prices are highest, that is the time when everyone is enjoying prosperity. Why, at such times, is there a scarcity of anything? Is it not the demand for it? Increase the demand and the prices go up. So, just in proportion to the buying capacity of the people, commodity prices are regulated.

A man who has been working for two dollars a day gets four, five, six, seven, or even eight. His buying capacity is increased. He wears better clothes, eats more expensive foods; his family dresses better. His living expenses go up because he spends more and goes on spending more. When production is the highest, and the demand for labor is abnormal, the price of labor goes up.

With the seven billions of dollars to be spent by our own Government and the Allies, in spite of everything that can be done—in spite of the weaklings who say, "economize in everything and wear your old clothes another year"—labor is going to be paid a great deal more. The factories are going to produce a great deal more in order to supply the demand, the people will have money. And when people have money they spend it. In spite of everything extreme economists say business is going to be forced to be good.

What produces a panic in a country? Loss of confidence. And when men in high places warn the public to stop buying, whether it be shoes, clothing or transportation, do they appreciate what they are doing? Do they realize what it would mean were all savings to be taken out of banks and either invested in products for future domestic consumption or privately hoarded?

These are simple ideas taught us by experience. It does not take a brain of tremendous capacity to diagnose a case such as this. Just look back and let experience dictate the proper course to pursue; that is —"Go about your business today just as you did yesterday."

We have a terrible war on our hands, and we must be calm and not bring any drastic and untrustworthy ideas into play.

Produce just as much as you possibly can, because the greater the production, whether in cereals or any other product, the lower is going to be the price, because an increasing production you are shooting at demand. The more of anything you produce to meet excessive demand, the more your efforts will operate to hold prices in check, since prices are governed, first, last and always, by supply and demand.

If you wish to serve your country in time of war—and that is what every individual should do—spend your money in reasonable proportion to your income and help keep currency in motion. That will give our country earnings to be taxed and make good times for all. That is what our Allies are doing, that is what we should do, that is the way to beat the Central Powers.

That is the course I know this country will follow, and when the first flush of excitement is over and this Nation gets down to real business that will be the result of the war. No one need fear the effects of the next few years of American business experience. We are going to win and through the act of winning business is going to be forced to be good.

THE BLUSHING VIOLET

Michigan's most modest young lady is said to hail from the beautiful little city of Mesick, over in Wexford county. Wishing to purchase a pair of garters the other day she walked into a drygoods emporium and this is the magnetic spiel she handed out to the blushing male biped that had waltzed so gracefully forward to wait upon her: "It is my desire to buy a pair of circular appendages, capable of being contracted and expanded by means of oscillating burnished steel appliances that sparkle like particles of gold leaf set with Alaska dismonds, snd which are used for retaining in proper position the habillments of the lower extremities, which inate delicacy forbids me to mention."

AN AMERICAN

An American is one who not only shouts "Old Glory!" but feels it;

Who pursues a practical not a passive democracy;

Who not only likes to thrive with his country, but is ready to fight for it;

Who would not barter its tiniest blade of grass for the wealth of a universe;

Who respects its institutions, who does not deride them;

Who has the courage of his convictions, not the acquiescene of his expediency;

Who believes in principle, not the stultification of it;

Who can be generously sympathetic without being patronizing;

Who rocks the cradle with one hand and balances his books with the other;

Who is childlike with you in success, and staunch in adversity;

Who loves one woman and honors all;

Who is mild with the simple, but a rock with the sophisticated;

Who can pat a puppy that bespattered his trousers;

Who is square with himself, and lenient toward ignorance;

Who is fair to labor, and labors fairly;

Who is humble in his achievement, and generous with praise;

Who can be a stalwart champion as well as an innocent hystander;

Who believes in adequate preparedness, and will dig up his share when the bills fall due;

Who observes the intent, not the letter, of the law;

Who can be gallant to a scruhwoman, and indifferent to the haughty;

Who is as fastidious about his moral shirt cuffs as his laundered linen;

Who eats his own embalmed beef, and forwards the better cuts to those who serve his country;

Who tries to be kin to every race and color and creed, because he has no wish to draw distinctions among those who will serve him in the pinch.

Fine String Of Fifteen Gallant Steeds Arrive Tuesday

Frank K. Welch of Roanoke, Va., the saddle horse man, who is one of our regular summer visitors, arrived last week. He has leased J. R. Cooper's barn on Antrim street for five years and has a fine string of Virginia and Kentucky saddle horses already stabled there. He will be connected with the Inn and will furnish the best of horses to the Charlevoix community throughout the summer, and will have as riding master, A. W. Sanke, of the Parke Riding School, Boston.

Mr. Welch has just completed the winter season at the Highland Pines Inn, Weymouth Heights, Southern Pines, N. C.

Strange how hard it is to please some friends of the present administration. If Republicans offer to help in the war with Europe, they are accused of doing it for political effect; if they criticize, they are unpatriotic. Evidently, the only thing for them to do is wait until they are commanded, and then obey without asking any questions.

poleon, would shortly meet his Waterloo, and America would be the one to deal the final blow. He also urged the necessity of putting every ounce of our energy and every dollar of our wealth into the war preparations at the outset, as the surest method of impressing our enemies that we mean business and thereby bringing the struggle to an earlier close. We haven't the space to cover all the good things he said but every remark left with those who heard him something to think about.

The quintette then sang the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" followed by the "Star Spangled Banner" in which the school children joined. The audience were also supposed to sing but either few of them knew the words or else the prevalence of spring colds prevented a heartier chorus. Come to think of it, we did notice one or two in the crowd familiar enough with patriotic observance to remove their hats during the singing of the national anthem.

Mrs. George Eagleton and Mrs. S. J. Alcox returned last Saturday from Kalamazoo, where they spent a week in attendance on the sessions of the state convention of the W. C. T. U. held in that city.

O. R. Beattie is home from Flint, where he has been employed in an automobile factory. Mr. Beattie had been troubled with blood poisoning in some of his fingers and while home had one of them amputated.

Charlevoix is proud to have a patron member in the Red Cross society. Mr. Harry L. Oldham of Park avenue sent in a cheque of $100 to the ladies of the Charlevoix Red Cross society, thus becoming a Patron member.

Miss Grace Papineau returned on Friday of last week from Hudsonville, Michigan, where she has been teaching school during the past school term. Miss Papineau will teach in the Mancelona school during the 1917-18 school year.

The steamer, Missouri, came in on her first trip of the season Sunday night on her way north to Mackinaw City, St. Ignace and Cheboygan. She made this port again on the down trip Tuesday morning, bound for Chicago.

Dr. B. Dunham, physician and surgeon, from Detroit arrived in the city Monday of this week and is now staying at the Hotel Charlevoix. He expects to "hang out his shingle" in rooms over Block's store in the near future.

Be sure and attend the Y. M. C. A. rally at the opera house next Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Few people realize what a great and important work this great organization is doing at the front, in the enemy prisons and in the mobilization camps.

Friends of Victor H. Hampton will be interested in knowing that this former Charlevoix boy is making a suecess in his chosen profession —the law. He recently argued two cases before the supreme court and was fortunate enough to win them both, the decisions being handed down last week.

Fred Newman, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Newman of this city, died last Wednesday at the hospital in Petoskey, where he had been lying ill for a long time. The body was brought here Thursday and funeral services were held at the grave that afternoon by Rev. L. C. Vinyard. Deceased was 47 years of age.

The United State government has asked your support by subscription to the Liberty Loan. The Charlevoix County Bank, through its Liberty Loan Savings Club, makes it possible for you to do your share and purchase one of these bonds on the easy payment plan. A great many Charlevoix people are taking advantage of this plan, and finding it very satisfactory.

ADDITIONAL ELLSWORTH

PLEASANT HILL SCHOOL

Owing to stormy weather, the closing exercises of the Pleasant Hill School were posponed from Friday to Wednesday, Decoration Day. The program was unusually interesting as the children gave recitations and talks on Arbor and Bird Day, and a group of boys gave a flag drill to commemorate Decoration Day, which showed very good training and a capacity for learning by the boys.

The girls gave the May Pole dance and crowned little Nellie Fales queen of the May, after which ice cream and cake was served to the children and their friends.

A great deal could be said concerning the splendid training of the children, but will only say that the school board were indeed fortunate to have Miss Crawford as teacher for the past year.

The stores in Ellsworth must have closed to have enabled the grown population of the age which came out to play ball, against the youngsters of the Pleasant Hill district school. But even if the mighty Hill nine had been in the lineup of the Ellsworth team, they might have been beaten by the Pleasant Hill boys even worse than 14 to 4. Next time they had better bring their older inhabitants, who are in their second childhood to root for them, then they might have a possible chance to win.

WILDWOOD

Mr. and Mrs. George Fisk of Central Lake were at the Steven's home on Sunday.

Emery Wilson caught a fine muskellunge weighing 7 1-2 pounds the first of the week.

John Crawford lost two fine ewes in the snow storm of a week ago.

Jim Wilson was in Echo the first of the week writing some new policies for the Farmer's Mutaal Fire Insuranee Co., of Traverse City.

Mrs. Jake Man and Mrs. Sarah A. Thompson of Chatham, Ontario, and sisters of William Spence of Echo, who are spending some time visiting relatives here, visited their cousin Jim Wilson and family the first of the week.

Fred Gould, of Cleveland, Ohio, is here and busily engaged establishing himself and family on the piece of land recently purchased in Central Lake township, lying south of the John Crawford home. His wife and two months old son are expected as soon as comfortable quarters are arranged. His neighbors and new made friends are giving a "bee" today (Tuesday) which we will report next week.

THEATRICAL.

Miss Alice Brady Appears Again At the Majestic.

It would be hard to imagine a more enthralling, true to life story than the one presented in "The Hungry Heart," the tremendous film play made by the World Film Corporation from the famous stage play, "Frou Frou." The story deals with the life of a frivolous young woman who marries a man much older than herself. Her sister, who has been in love with this man, comes into the house and soon alienates the husband and the young child. The wife flies to a former lover in Veniee and the husband follows her there. A duel ensues. The lover is killed. The wife, broken hearted and broken in health, is refused forgiveness by her husband, but she finally secures it under highly dramatic circumstances.

With beautiful and ebarming Miss Alice Brady as the star, this splendid attraction will be seen at the Majestic Theatre on Friday June 8th.

Beauty, rare histronic talents and an irrestable charm are the chief elements in the character of Mary Miles Minter, the youngest and most winsome of screen stars who will be seen at the Majestic Theatre on Wednesday June 13, in the Mutual Star Production "Youth's Endearing Charm," a six act romantic comedy drama, produced by the American Film Company, Inc., from the story of Maibelle Heikes Justice. Miss Minter was born in Louisiana sixteen years ago and comes of a theatrical family. Her mother, Charlotte Shelby, being a noted actress.

As soon as she was able to toddle Mary took up the profession of her mother and appeared first when a mere infant in "Shore Acres," the drama that trained many children for a notable career. She was next heard of as one of the children in another success of James A. Hearn. She played Litte Eva" in an "Unele Tom's Cabin" company one season, where she obtained her first real chanee to do any acting and at that early date attracted the attention of her elders by her natural talents.

KEPT MARRIAGE TO THEMSELVES

ELLSWORTH COUPLE FAIL TO NOTIFY THEIR FRIENDS

Mr. and Mrs. George Hunter Announce Wedding, Which Occurred January One

Once again George Hunter has proven to the citizens of Banks township in general, and Ellsworth in particular, that in sickness and health, in life and death, in success and in adversity and in single blessedness and double cussedness, he is about the smoothest proposition that has ever inhaled the balmy air of Michigan.

He fooled everyone—yes, and if Uncle Sam had postponed registration day a while longer he would still be fooling us.

For some time past all signs have pointed to the sounds of wedding bells to soon be ringing in the neighborhood of the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Patterson, with their daughter, Lillian, and the aforesaid George Hunter as the principal cause.

Speculation was running riot and when about four o'clock last Monday afternoon, said George and Lillian, with smiles and suit cases started in the direction of Traverse City in an automobile, all said the time has come. Inquiry revealed the fact that Mr. Hunter had left word at his store that he would not be home until some time Tuesday and then we were sure.

Tuesday afternoon they returned and then, like a bolt from a clear sky, came the announcement that on January 1st, 1917, they had slipped away to Petoskey and there, at the Presbyterian parsonage had been united in marriage by the Rev. Ferris.

Mr. and Mrs. Hunter had not intended to divulge their secret until later in the month, but the fact that the groom is of military age and must register on June 5, caused them to make one last grand stand play and then own up a few days in advance of the announcements, which will be out probably some time this week.

Mr. Huater needs no introduction to the people of Antrim and Charlevoix counties as he was formerly pharmacist for the Spring Drug Co., of East Jordan. He came to Ellsworth about three years ago, and is well liked and respected by all with whom he has had social or business dealings.

Miss Patterson is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Patterson of this place and was always one of the most popular young ladies of the village.

The happy pair will be at home after June 15 in their newly furnished home on Lincoln Street and at the present are receiving the forgiveness and congratulations of a host of friends.

NINETY-SEVEN YOUNG MEN REGISTER

Registration Day Fittingly Observed By Banks Residents

Ninety seven young men between the ages of twenty-one and thirty-one, answered the call of the president at Boss Hall on Tuesday, June 5, and were registered by D. E. Clow and H. S. Peebles. This was considerable in excess of the estimated number for Banks township.

Although the day started in to be disagreeable it cleared nicely toward noon and a large crowd was on hand in the afternoon to assist in the raising of the flag pole and to cheer when "Old Glory" was hoisted to the tip to the strains of the Star Spangled Banner played by the band.

The flag was raised on the lot across from the New Orient Hotel, and a speaker's stand was erected at the foot of the pole.

Following the flag raising, Judge of Probate, E. R. Harris introduced the Hon. Thos. D. Meggison of Central Lake, the principal speaker of the afternoon. Mr. Meggison, always good, was at his best on this occasion and after listening to this able orator, it is safe to say that the crowd dispersed, better and more patriotic men and women.

C. C. Townsend of the Citizens Bank was next on the program. His talk consisted principally of an explanation of the Liberty Loan and the manner in which bonds may be secured. Mr. Townsend is only one of the many bankers in the U. S., who are interesting themselves in selling Liberty Bonds entirely without profit to themselves, but simply as a patriotic duty to their country.

President of the Board of Trade, L. VanSkiver closed the afternoon's program with a short address in which he thanked the crowd for their attendance and attention and announced the big patriotic rally to be held at Bellaire on Friday P. M. of this week.

During the day arrangements were made to have all Banks township cars which can possibly go to Bellaire on that afternoon to meet at Ellsworth at noon on Friday and all go to Bellaire in one long procession.

WELL-KNOWN COUPLE MARRIED TUESDAY

Ceremony Performed in Alden At Home of Bride's Parents

Last Monday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock occurred the wedding of Wm. Patterson of Ellsworth and Miss Maud Best of Alden. The ceremony was read by the Rev. Palmiter, pastor of the M. E. church of Alden, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eli Best, parents of the bride.

Mr. Patterson, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Patterson, is well known here, having been a resident of Ellsworth since childhood. The bride is also well acquainted in this vicinity, as although a resident of Alden she has taught school in and around Ellsworth the past five years.

This charming couple are both great favorites with all with whom they are acquainted and have the best wishes of a host of friends. They will be at home on the Patterson farm just north of town.

PATRIOTIC RALLY AT BELLAIRE FRIDAY

Ellsworth Residents Invited to Take Part In Big Event

Prosecutor Thos. D. Meggison, Register of Deeds Frink and attorneys Bailey and Dinsmore of Bellaire were in Ellsworth on Monday distributing bills for the patriotic rally and flag raising to take place at Bellaire on Friday of this week. All business places in the county will be closed on that day and all owners of autos are asked to drive to Bellaire with a load.

Hon. Chase S. Osborne and Rev. J. W. Hartwood are the speakers. Business men of Ellsworth have signified their intentions of closing their stores during the afternoon and going to Bellaire, accompanied by the band.

It is hoped that all automobile owners of Banks township will decorate their cars, get in line and show the rest of Antrim County that Banks township is there with the goods.

RECEIVED CALL TO REPORT FOR DUTY

Dr. B. J. Beuker Answers Summons from Uncle Sam

Dr. B. J. Beuker, holding a commission as 1st Lieutenant of the Medical Reserve Corps received a telegram last Wednesday to report at his earliest convenience "somewhere in the U. S." for active service.

The Dr. had been expecting this call for some weeks and was practically ready, and as a result, left Ellsworth on the noon train south on Friday.

This will leave Ellsworth for the length of time he may be absent without a physician, although he has made arrangements with Dr. Varden of East Jordan to look after his practice here.

Mrs. Beuker is certainly "doing her bit" as she has beside her husband, two sons in the army.

Boyne City Zoned

The recent "war zone order" establishing a half mile zone about arsenals, forts, camps and factories manufacturing goods for the government, has hit Northern Michigan, and according to the following proclamation by U. S. Marshal Herman O'Connor, of this district, two such districts have been established at Boyne City.

All alien enemies are warned not to approach within a half mile of the Boyne City Chemical plant or the Lake Superior Iron & Chemical company plant, without a special permit from the marshal.

Mr. and Mrs. L. K. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ford and Minaie Keith started Saturday for their future home in Virginia. They expect to be on the road about seven days. Mr. Clark expects to write a short account of their trip on their arrival in Virginia, which will be published in the Courier, as all their friends will be interested in knowing of their success in making the long journey.

Fishing on the lakes around Ellsworth has begun and although the bass season will not open until June 16, the prospects are good for one of the best seasons for this sport Ellsworth and vicinity has seen for many years. Grass pike are biting good, L. VanSkiver catching an eleven pounder one day last week. Northern Michigan is noted for its excellent fishing and this locality is virtually a garden spot for lovers of the rod and line.

The last day of school was attended, the ice cream melted, and the cake "fell through." Wait until the Cleaner picnic, then ask Mr. Mores for your ice cream.

Last Monday, May 28th, Rolley Baumback's house burned to the ground, very few things being saved compared with the great loss. His seed potatoes all went. If any one has, or hears of any one having seed potatoes to sell kindly let Mr. Bamback know about it.

A Virgian editor threatened to publish the name of a certain man who was seen hugging and kissing a girl in the park, unless his subscription to the paper was paid within a week. Fifty-nine young married and old men paid the next day, and some even went so far as to have theirs marked up several years in advance, all of which reminds us that both Richard Roe and John Doe are a little shy on theirs just at the present time.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

than offset the tax for maintenance and for the sinking fund to retire the hoads.

The increase in automobiles in twelve months in thia county has heen at the rate of about three hundred per cent which is rapidly accumulating an additional fund from the licenae fecs which will be applied to road maintenancc. Dealers in the town of Winchester are hardly able to supply the demand for cars. A glance around the public square of the thriving county seat ahows rows of cars parked on both sides of the street around the court house. The shiny new appearance of the majority of them bear testimony that some factor is contributing to the heavy sales of motor cars in the community.

ALL POTATO SEED SHOULD BE TREATED

Three Diseases Cause Heavy Annual Loss to Growers.

Treat your potato seed, says Geo. A. Kilborn, state farm expert for Emmet and Charlevoix counties, in the following communication:

"With the high price of seed it stands us in hand to do everything possible to insure a full crop this year. Most of you are familiar with the potato diseases and their treatment, but for the benefit of those who are not we give the following:

There are three potato diseases which annually cause a large loss to potato growers. First scab, second rhizoctonia or black scurf, third potato wilt or fusarium wilt.

scurf, use one pint of formaldehyde to thirty gallons of water; soak potatoes for two hours; then remove, rinse off with water and place in disinfected sacks or crates. For a bad case of black scurf a solution of corrosive sublimate. Treatment may be used at the rate of one ounce to 7 1-2 gallons of water; soak potatoes 1 1-2 hours only. This treatment should be used only before the potatoes have sprouted.

Remember corrosive sublimate is a deadly poison.

Potato or fusarium wilt is detected by black brownish rings just under skin when stem end is cut off. Any potato so infected should be thrown away and knife disinfected in formalin solution.

The average yield for Michigan is about eighty bushels. Let us see how we can beat it.

Editor Courier:

While we are all deeply interested in good roads, we must not lose sight of the fact that this county (the whole United States of America,) is now engaged in the most horrible war the world has ever known, and while we are being urged to raise beaas, wheat, potatoes and other food commodities in unusual quantities, for ourselves, our army and navy we are alao called upon to prepare for the main support of the Allies who have been engaged in fighting our battle for the past three years, and still are fighting. Until the United States entered into this great conflict there wss no decisive factor in sight. Now we are in and we are in deep. Much more so than any of us here realize. The length of this war depends upon the speed we display in getting ready, for it is a life and deatb struggle and we may yet have to bear the burden of this great war all alone. Many things have happened which should not have happened, and many things have not happened which should have happened. Germany must be licked and licked to a finish or they will surely lick us, and no good American will consent to being licked by a German. It is not the German people we are fighting, but it is a fight for the principle of democracy, versus autocracy. Democracy must and will win.

Great work has already been done by our government during the last six or eight weeks—much more than one would suppose possible in that length of time and every man, woman and child can do his or her bit. Liberty Bonds must be purchased in both large and small quantities and by every one who can do so. The government needs the money and the investment is a good one. It is a 3 1-2 per cent bond with no tax string attached to it. Are you afraid that you will lose money in uncertain business conditions arising from the war? If so, then put every dollar that you can command in this form of investment and bolster up your future credit or borrowing power with a reserve. Mr. Forgan, one of our big bankers in Chicago, speaking at our association of Commerce, said: "I think that we have become unduly pessimistic from a business standpoint since America entered the war." That is the first point I wish to make to you business men. We are naturally suffering from the shock.

Now so far as I can see, there is no reason for pessimism from a business standpoint on account of war. In most respects England was never so active in business as she is today. I saw just yesterday that England's exports to this country were larger this year so far than they were in the year 1914 up to May 1st, when they had no war. I know Canada very well. Canada has never had such good times as she has today. In other words, it has been proven over and over again that a great war, provided it does not come to your territory and destroy your cities, is a boost for business. We have been having good business for two years on account of the war and the fact that our government is about to spend $7,000,000,000 in a year certainly does not scare me from a business standpoint. Now, of course, no one wants the war to continue for business reasons, but I think we have a perfect right to make that point I have just made, from the standpoint of supporting our government. Don't be afraid to use your credit or your savings in buying a Liberty Bond. This country is up to a test. If we do not get out of this war something more of National unity, something more of the spirit shown by the belligerents in the war—something more of that spirit which puts aside extravagance and welcomes sacrifices then we will get no good from the war.

We are not fighting for territory, we are not fighting to benefit ourselves in any other way than as a nation to get that national spirit of unity which other countries have shown so marvelously. We all know what France has done. Of course, there is a good reason for France acting as she has done. She has had an insane burglar in her front hall and has been wrestling with him for three years. That burglar pleast God, is going to be ejected with the help of Uncle Sam, and I hope he will break his stiff neck as he goes down the front porch. Now Great Britain did not have any burglar at her front hall, hut do you ever think of what she has done? She was just in the position we are in today when the war broke out. Hesitation, confusion, red tape, more or less funk, but what has England done. She has done as much as if we, in the next two years, besides loaning all of our Allies huge sums, and equipping those with munitions that need it—if we should put ten million men in France and we should only then proportionately be equalling what Great Britain has done since the war broke out. The question is, are we going to show that spirit or are we not? Now the first motion in that test, the thing that comes home to you and me is, what can gray haired men do in this moment. We can aend our sons to do the fighting. What can we do? The first thing that we can do is to maka up our minds how much of this war loan for the support and carrying on of the war we can possibly take ourselves.

We all know what good old Charlevoix County can do and with the unusual prospects we have for this county being by far the best and most desirable county in the state for tourist business, let us be liberal and generous, not only to ourselves but to our country and government.

But if his country needs him more than me,

SHARP SHOCKS HIS AUDIENCE

Y. M. C. A. LEADER BARES FRIGHTFUL CONDITIONS

His Hearers Respond With $845.00 Gift For Work Among State's Soldiers

At the opera house Sunday evening, Captain E. J. Sharp, of Grand Rapids, state leuder of the Y. M. C. E. and former secretary of the El Paso branch during the recent mobilization on the border, startled his hearers with a description of tho moral and physical menaces surrounding our soldier boys there, an awful and siekening that it is impossible for ua to more than touch on the subject in these columns. The captain did not mince matters but stated the facts, unpalatable as they might be to some, with a vividness and directness that held the attention of his audience to the last word.

Mr. Sharp has been in excellent position to gather facts and figures first hsnd and to know eminently well what he is talking about, as many of the boys came to him each day at the border camp with their confidences and he personally made tborough and searching investigation into the conditions which the Y. M. C. A. has set itself to fight, not only on the Mexican border, but in the trenches of France; in the prison pens of Europe'a warring nations no less than in our own mobilization camps.

Sexual immorality is the great, filthy bloated spider that spins its unclean web wherever a military camp offers it rich picking in the bodies und souls of our best and bravest young manhood. Slowly but surely, the new recruit, the fibre of his resistance weakened by the pangs of homesickness, his better nature dulled by cheap camp liquor; and his steps guided by evil companions, is drawn into the toils, to emerge therefrom poisoned physically and mentally and morally broken.

According to the statement of Captain Sharp, inside of six weeks after the establishment of the camp at El Paso, the frightful total of the painted camp followers settled in their miserable shacks in the vicinity of the encampment, had swelled to 3,600, waiting with the foul kiss of a death more terrible than piercing bullet or tearing shell can bring about to greet the carefully-reared sons of Christian mothers who had but recently parted with them in tears nnd angulsh and noble sacrificial spirit of patriotism—waiting to plunge them into the pit of bottomless hell before even their magnificient gift of self to their native land could be accepted.

But this is not sufficient. Some there might be so strongly fortified in spirit as to be blind to the ullurements of even so subtle a vice, and so the outer strands of the hideous web were spun and 29 saloons soon lay in the path of the untried soldier on his way to the library or the post-office, proffering the stuff that was to paralyze his morsl strength, inflame his lower nature and leave him an easy prey. Few who entered the saloon doors came out unscathed. For beyond them lay the shacks of vice with the inviting rays of red light streaming through window and open doorway, where each night, Captain Sharp snys, the occupants might be seen standing in almost, or completely nude state, waiting for the inevitable catch of drink-befuddled novices, which the liquor dens kept grinding out like grist from a mill.

Out of n total of 65,000 guardsmen in El Pnso last winter, says the captain, the medical records so far show that nearly 6,000 of this number have contracted syphillis. So rapid sre the workings of this disease in a wnrm, southern climate, especially the species of the vile malady peculiar to such regions, that mnny of its victims are dead withia a few months of the time they contract it. Captain Sharp went considerably into detnil in regard to such cases, much more fully, in fact, than space or inclinntion will permit us here.

Against this insidous, man-eating vice, the Y. M. C. A. offers the best and surest protection. Its officials offer the kindly counsel and manly sympathy nnd understanding which the new recruit so sorely needs until he has overcome homesickness, adapted himself to his new surroundings and mode of life and become "bridle-wise." It offers him healthy body and mind developing aports and recreations and nffords him the little comforts that assist the process of assimilation into the militnry organization which he must undergo. Comfortable reading rooms, plenty of good books and magazines, free writing paper, envelopes and stamps for the "letter home," buschnll and track equipment and the nid of competent ihstructors in the various lines of clean sport, who are without exception picked men of the highest character capable of exercising the host possible influence for good over the young soldier—all these things staad like a stone wall against the temptations that nssail him constantly in a military camp.

The function of the Y. M. C. A. said Captain Sharp, is to return the soldier to his family after the war, minus an arm or leg or eye, possibly, but morally and physically clean. As the work of the Red Cross follows the battle, mending the shattered body and soothing the pangs of pain, so the Y. M. C. A., in work of no less importance, strives to keep tbe soldier fit to do his duty creditably when his time of trial shall come. Of little value is it to compel men to undergo strict physical oxamination before entering the army, thus selecting tbe strongest and healthiest and then allowing their bodies to be wrecked by the poisons of vice before their atrength can be used in the fighting line.

Dr. Armstrong has pervlously presented tbe aspects of military life from a doctor's standpoint. He aubstantiated Captain Sharp's remarks to the conditions surroundlng the soldier's life in camp, pointing out that it was not so difficult a task to get the men in shape for fighting as it was to keep them fit. Night, he said, is the time the officers dread for they know the crop that will inevitably be harvested from the aeeds sown under eover of darkness when their men are idle.

H. A. Craig and Dr. Frank Wilkinson followed the doctor, Dr. Wilkinson giving his personal experience witb the work of tho Y. M. C. A. during the Spanish-American war in '98, in which he served as a volunteer.

The audience responded generously to Captain Sharp's plea for support and a totnl of $845.00 was raised, this being one of the largest, and the biggest and most enthusiastic meeting whlch the captain sald he had met with in a several weeks campaign in this section. Those who were not present at the meeting unday evening and would like to contribute their share to this vital work may deposit their gifts at either of the local banks and the latter will see that the money gets into the hands of those who are fighting a battle daily and hourly for the young manhood of Michigan.

ATTENTION RED CROSS WORKERS

WOMEN AND GIRLS WANTED TO SEW FOR SOLDIERS

Experienced Girls To Instruct Sewers At Meeting In Wilbur Block Friday P. M. Next

The red cross room in the Wilbur block near the bridge is open every afternoon at two o'clock. An urgent appeal is made to all women and girls interested in work for humanity to assist with the necessary sewing. Red cross service is for our husbands, our sons, the sons of our neighbors and for all who have offered their lives for the cause of liberty. Every woman in Charlevoix and the surrounding country should show an interest and do what she can. On Friday afternoon, Miss Belle Greensfelder, for many years a red cross nurse, will instruct the sewers in accuracy of measurements, the folding of bandages, adjustments of seams and corners, and will be glad to answer any questions which may be asked of her. Miss Greensfelder will also instruct young ladies on "home nursing."

Every woman is asked to bring an apron so that the red cross rules of sanitation may be observed. Consider it your duty to give this work your attention.

OLD SETTLER DROPS DEAD ON JUNE 3RD

William Sutton's Brother John, Succumbs to Heart Failure

John Sutton, an early settler of this region and the oldest brother of William Sutton, of Barnard, dropped dead at his home in East Jordan on June 3rd last, of heart failure—the third member of the family to go in this manner.

Mr. Sutton was 63 yenra of nge, born in Duttan, Ontarlo, Cnnada, and had lived in the Grand Traverse district for nbout fifty yeara. Hia wife, only, survives him.

The funeral was held on June 5th, Rev. Clemens officiating. Interment was in the local cemetery.

Came Home To Enlist.

TRAVERSE H. S. GUEST OF CITY

DOUBLE DEFEAT NO MAR TO THEIR ENJOYMENT

C. H. S. Wins Baseball Match By Score of 3 to 1—Bedwin Takes Tennis Honors

A contlngent 400 strong from Traverse City's chief temple of learning landed in town Saturdny morning off the Missouri and, headed by a band of about twenty pieces, marched up Bridge Street and took possession of the town for the duy, this beipg the occusion of their annual exeursion to Charlevoix.

Under the guidsnce of Principul Curtis, the bunch first visited the Hotel Charlevoix, where they partook of a good dinner and then, ho! for the ball ground. The game between Traverse City semi-highs and C. H. S. for the championship of Northern Michlgan high schools was the fastest and closest one of the season and resulted in a score of 3 to 1 in Charlevolx's favor.

Coach Loomis, who pitched, fanned out 24 men and was never in any danger except in the third inning, when with one out he walked a man who stole on the next pitched ball and came home on the batter's two base hit—the only hit of the day. Only one man reached third and only two touched second or first. Bad base running killed many of Charlevoix's chances to score. In the first inning Charlevoix took the field and Loomis fanned the first three men, throwing but eleven balls across the plate. H. Cartier led off at bst with a siagle between first and second. Trying for a hit and run plny Weaver laid down a bunt, but was out at first, though it advanced Cartier to second. Parsons hit the next ball straight into the third haseman's hands, who tagged Cartier stealing third. Parsons was put out trying to steal second. Score 0-0.

In the aecond inning, Loomis fanned the first two batters. The third batter knocked a little fly just over first base thinking it a foul stood still but the umpire called it fair and Cartier picking it up, touched first, retiring the side. Newman and Loomis grounded and out at first. Hampton singled. Finucan flied out Score 0-0.

Third inning. First man fanned. Sherman walked and stole second. Next batter knocked a two bagger to center and Sherman scored. Next two fanned. C. Cartier walked but was put out stealing second. Merriam fanned and H. Cartier grounded to first baseman. Score 1-0, Traverse City's favor.

Fourth Inning. Traverse City's first three fanned. C. Weaver flied out. Parsons and Newman grounded out. Score 1-0 Traverse City.

Fifth Inning. First three fanned. Loomis grounded out. Hampton got through on balls. Finucan and C. Cartier struck out. Score 1-0, Traverse City.

Sixth inning. First three fanned. Merriam grounded out. H. Cartier struck out. Weaver got a clean single and on error advanced to second. Parsons singled and Weaver advanced to third, Parsons stealing second. Newmnn singled and scored Wenver and Parsons. Newman caught stealing. Score 2-1, C. H. S.

Seventh inning. First three fanned. Loomis singled to left field and on two errors advanced to third, but Humpton, Finucan and C. Cartier either grounded out or popped little flies, leaving Loomis on third. Score 2-1, C. H. S.

Eighth inning. Two fnnned. Butler fanned. Third grounded to first. H. Cartier knocked fly into first baseman's hands. Weaver grounded, but first basemnn dropped ball. Weaver stole seeond on Newman's single. Loomis grounded out. Score 3-1, in favor of C. H. S.

Ninth inning. Two fanned. Third batter knocked long one to C. Cartier, who caught it, closing the game.

The Charlevoix line-up was as follows:

H. Cartier, 1st b.	4	1	0	0
Weaver, s s.	3	1	2	0
Parsons, c	4	2	1	0
Newmnn, 3rd b.	4	2	0	0

Loomis' pitchihg for the home team was a sensation. He struck out 24 men. Sherman's pitching for Traverse City was also a complete surprise to Charlevoix batters, they being unable at nny time in the game to make connection with his slow but well delivered ball.

After the ball game eame the tennis tournament—Earl Bedwin and William Hamptoa, Jr., playing against Sherman and Mattey for Traverse City. Score 6-2 in favor of Charlevoix. Bedwin carried off the honors in the singles as well with a like score.

After what they all termed an interesting nnd enjoyable day, lespite their double defeat, the visitors reembarked on the Missouri when she returned from Harbor Springs to pick them up, nnd went home to look forwnrd to another visit in 1918

EIGHTH GRADE EXAM. RESULTS

TWO HUNDRED EIGHTY IN COUNTY WRITE TEST

Miss Spiedel of Walker School Has Highest Average With Eva Graham Second

This year there was a large eighth grade class, a total of 280 writing on the test, 197 of these belng 8th grade and 83 of these being 7th grade students writing on two aubjeets only, the physiology and the geography. The rural schools and small villuge schools of St. James and Boyne Falls had prepared 139 of theso students umong whith there were 57 fallures and 82 diplomas. This makes a percentage of 59 passing as compared with last year'a record of 54.57 per cent passing in the rural schools.

Supt. Craig of Charlevoix does not allow his students to write the county test. They are working under a special charter and would not be subject to this test. The writing of the test would signify nothing and would cause a useless expense to the county. East Jordan students were discouraged from writing this year. The city gives a test of its own and the two tests are confusing and useless. In spite of this five students wrote the test. Four of them passed. The Boyne City students were allowed to write the test this year, and 53 city eighth graders wrote the examination. Only 13 diplomas were granted to this number, but this does not signify thnt they are necessarily poor students. The state test is based on the courae of study for elementary schools and the city is following a graded school course of study. While both prepare for high school work the outline is somewhat different. The only deplorable thing is that they should face the eounty test and the consequent discouraging outcome.

The highest averages in the county were attained by the following in order of their ability.

Florence Spidle, Walker school, average 92.1.

Eva Graham, St. James, average 91.9.

Bernice McGowan, East Jordan, nverage 91.8.

Maud Tille, St. James, average 90.6.

Juanita Secord, East Jordan, Rock Elm School, average 89.3.

Marion Dochstader, Boyne Falls, average, 88.8.

Alexsnder McCauley, St. James, average 88.

There were 25 contestants for the trip to the State Fair. The six best papers and best averages in agriculture and county test were as follows: Frank Nackerman, St. James, first; Edward Hammond, Ironton, second; Orville Ingersoll, Forrest Brown, Peter Jensen, Ray Olney, and Floyd Liskum. The prize is awarded to Frank Nackerman of St. James, with Edward Hammond of Ironton as alternate.

Mnny of the 83 seventh grade students passed in both subjects but those falling below 75 in either will repeat these subjects when writing again. Kenneth Flagg, a seventh grader, aged 13, of the Rock Elm school, passed the entire eighth grade test. Lynn Mayne, age 11, of the Hilton school, has spent only two years in the sixth, seventh and eighth grades but passed a very good eighth grade test and received his diploma.

The two best entire classes in the county were those of the Harbor school in St. James and of the Walker school, taught by Miss Grace Meggison. Other schools where nearly every student passed attaining good averages were in the Three Bells school district under Miss Ethel Brinthall, nt Ironton under Miss Golda Schneider, in the Hilton school under Miss Florence Meggison, nt Boyne Falls under Supt. Tate, at Norwood under Thos. Scroggie.

Every eighth grade student this year was careful in filling out the enrollment card but nine aeventh grade returns are ready to send out, hut the nddresses were not given in the enrollment. The list of names which we could not mail for lack of information is as follows: Edward Burke, Bruce Burnett, Helen House, Abel Jones, Gertrude Santose, Chas. Davis, Lenwood Price, Axalia Bass, and Otilia Schmidt.

GARDEN ISLAND BOY HAS BROKEN LEG

Taken to Hospital at Petoskey To Have Bones Reset

John Williams, seventeen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Williams, of Garden Island, Beaver Island group, is at Petoskey hospital to have one of his legs re-set. His mother accompanied him there.

He broken his leg during the winter when his island home was cut off from the other islands and mainland by a channel filled with drifting ice. The neighbors aided in setting the leg as best they could but the member failed to heal properly.

The leg was operated upon and silver plates inserted to hold the broken bones in proper place.

PAUL KING MADE RED CROSS LEADER

Under Mr. King's leadership, the state will go about the business of raising its quota of the national appropriation of $100,000,000 for Red Cross work, whicb will be in the neighborhood of $3,000,000. The county's share of the state's contribution will be approximately $13,000.

OLD SETTLERS MEET ON 27TH

CENTRAL SCHOOL GROUNDS, TRAVERSE CITY, PLACE

Picnic "Feed" Band Music and Pleasant Reminisences Order Of The Day

The Old Settlers association of the Grand Traverse region will hold their annual meeting and picnic at Traverse City on Wednesday, June 27, 1917, on the Central school grounds, provided the weather is fair and in some suitable place if it is otherwise.

At 11:30 A. M., a big picnic dinner will be served, at which tea, coffee, sugar and cream will be furnished free to all. Everybody, not only old settlers but newer ones as well, are cordially invited to come and spend the day and have a good time. This meeting will be the biggest und best gathering of old settlers ever held by the association in Grand Traverse or in Michigan.

The Grand Traverse Auto Co. band will furnish the music during the day. A concert will be given in the evening at the Old Settlers headquarters on Union street. If you attend, don't fail to see the photographs of old settlers and early scenes of the Grand Traverse region. This collection is no doubt the finest of the kind in Michigan. W. S. Anderson, the president of the association, has made this a hobby for years, und now has a permanent place for their display where they are well taken care of. "All old settlers come enrly and stay late."

R. A. EMREY HAS A NARROW ESCAPE

Struck By Sharp Rock Near Jugular Vein—Better Now

R. A. Emrey, who is connected with the road improvement at Ironton, met with a serious and painful accident a week ago last Saturday, from which he is now nearly recovered.

A sharp piece of rock flew from the stone crusher near which he was standing while the machine was in operation and struck him on the neck, just a quarter inch to one side of the jugular vein. In a day or two, the bruise had swelled to alarming proportions nnd it was feared for a time that the result would be fatal, but skilled medical attendance checked its progress and Mr. Emrey is now doing nicely, a fact for which he is to be congratulated.

Children's Day

A class will be graduated from the primary department of the M. E. Sunday school Sunday evening. A program consisting of drills, songs, and recitations will be given by the school. A large number of children will be baptised and the children will make an offering to assist worthy students through college.

ROAD MEETING AN EYE-OPENER

MANY PUZZLING MATTERS ARE CLEARED UP THERE

Frank F. Rogers and State Engineer Nielson See County Roads —Well Pleased

At an invitation of O. D. Hammond, chairman of the Board of County Road Commissioaers, State Highway Commisioner Frank F. Rogers addressed a very representative audience of tax payers from all portions of the county on Wednesday evening, June sixth at the court house, on the aubject of state reward and federal aid roads—a very practical and concrete exposition.

Before arriving at Charlevoix for the evening meeting, Mr. Rogers in company with the county commissioners, and state engineer Nielson, traveled by auto over practically all of the good roads or state reward roads in the county and in his opening remarks complimented Charlevoix county on the condition of its roads at the present time as being, not only as good as any other road in this part of the state, but perhaps a little better.

After Mr. Rogers had treated the subject of good roads throughout the state in a general way, he invited the audience to ask of him any questions that he had not already explained. In the course of these questions, it was brought out that a road from Charlevoix to Antrim county, known to the most of the people as the Norwood road, and a part of the Dixie or West Michigan Pike highway, had been reported to the national government as a part of the national highway and upon its acceptance would be entitled to federal aid. In order to secure this federal aid, the localities through which a national highway is laid, must pay at least 25 per cent of the cost of the road, all depending upon the assessed valuation of the property in the county in comparison to the number of miles of road. The lowest valuation in the state provides that the locality must pay 25 per cent, the State of Michigan, 25 per cent and the National government 50 per cent of the cost of the construction of the road.

In case of the County of Charlevoix our assessed valuation is such that the amount to be borne by the county is 35 per cent of the cost of the highway; 15 per cent to be paid by the State of Michigan and 50 per cent to be paid by the National government.

Commissioner Rogers advised the people that it was necessary for them at the next meeting of the Board of Supervisors or soon if a special meeting was called, to provide for raising the 35 per cent of the cost of the National highway from Charlevoix to the Antrim County line. He further stated that this money would be paid into the State of Michigan, which, together with their 15 per cent and the other 50 per cent, which the State of Michigan would advance would build the highway. After the highway was completed the state of Michigan would send the cost of the same to the federal government and receive their rebate of 50 per cent.

This national highway is to be built by contract, let to the lowest bidder and to be built under state and government supervision. Commissioner Rogers also informed the audience that Antrim county had already made provisions for building the National highway from Charlevoix County line south through the two northern townships to connect with the good road already constructed in Antrim county, so that when the Charlevoix County National highway is built there will be a good road from the City of Charlevoix to Traverse City.

Commissioner Rogers was also asked in regard to the building of the Mackinaw Trail, and stated that the same could be built and receive double state aid which amounts to practically the same thing as Federal aid. Or, in other words, the State of Michigan will pay $6800 a mile for the Mackinaw Trail, it makes no difference whether the road costs $10,000 to build or $5,000. Whatever the cost of the road the State of Michigan would pay $6800 a mile for the same. This also applies to any road of the same specifications built in any part of the County of Chnrlevoix whether it is from Boyne Falls to East Jordan or from Ironton to Boyne City or a road around the lake.

The matter of maintenance of roads already built was brought up. Mr. Hammond, chnirman of the County Road Commissioners, announced that since the County of Charlevoix had been under the present system, thirty miles of road had been built at the cost of approximately $3600 per mile. It was also

Editors are supposed to have an elastic information covering all phases of life and living, but here is one going the rounds which stumped the editor: "If it takes a four mouths old woodpecker, with a rubber bill, nine months and thirteen days to peck a hole through a cypress log that is large enough to make 117 shingles and it takes 165 shingles to make a bundle worth 93 cents, how long will it take a cross-eyed grasshopper with a cork leg to kick all the seeds out of a dill pickle?"

CHAPTER XII.

The Guzman Incident.

Ricardo Guzman did not return from Romero. The man had disappeared, it seemed, completely and mysteriously. At first the facts appeared plain: a citizen of the United States had been lured across the border and done to death by Mexican soldiers—for it soon became evident that Ricardo was dead. The outrage was a casus belli such as no self-respecting people could ignore; so ran the popular verdict. The ominous mailed serpent which lay along the Rio Grande stirred itself.

Of course, the people of Texas were delighted that the long-delayed hour had struck; accordingly, when the state department manifested its willingness to allow Don Ricardo ample time in which to come to life in preference to putting a further strain upon international relations, they were both surprised and enraged. Telegraph wires began to buzz; the governor of the state sent a sarcastic message to the national capital, offering to dispatch a company of Rangers after Guzman's body, just to prove that he was indeed dead, and that the Mexican authorities were lying when they professed ignorance of the fact.

This offer not only caught the popular fancy north of the Rio Grande, but it likewise had an effect on the other side of the river, for on the very next day General Luis Longorio set out for Romero to investigate personally the rancher's disappearance.

Now, throughout all this public clamor, truth, as usual, lay hidden at the bottom of its well, and few even of Ricardo's closest friends suspected the real reason for his murder.

Jonesville, of course, could think or talk of little else than this outrage, and Blaze Jones, as befitted its leading citizen, was loudest in his criticism of the government's policy. Blaze's conception of diplomacy was peculiar. "If Potosi didn't talk straight that consul oughta bent a gun bar'l over the old ruffian's head and telephoned for a couple hundred battleships. We Americans are cussed with notions of brotherly love and universal peace. Bah! We're bound to have war, Dave, some day or other."

Dave nodded his agreement. "Yes. But—everybody has the wrong idea of this Guzman killing. The federal officers in Romero didn't frame it up."

"No? Who did?"

"Tad Lewis."

Jones started. "What makes you think that?"

"Listen! Tad was afraid to let Urbina come to trial. Ricardo's dead and the other witness is gone. Now draw your own conclusions."

Jones was amazed. "Say, Dave," he cried, "that means your case has blown up, eh?"

"Absolutely. Lewis has been selling 'wet' stock to the federals, and he probably arranged with some of them to murder Ricardo."

Blaze cursed eloquently. "I'd like to hang it onto Tad; I'd sure clean house down his way if I was positive."

"I sent a man over to Romero," Dave explained further. "He tells me Ricardo is dead, all right. There's a new grave in the little cemetery above the town, but there hasn't been a death in Romero lately." The speaker watched his friend closely. "If we had Ricardo's body on this side it would put an end to all the lies, and perhaps force Colonel Blanco to make known the real facts. It might even mean a case against Tad Lewis."

"What d'you say we go over there and get Ricardo?"

Dave smiled. "That's what I've been leading up to. Will you take a chance?"

"Yes."

"I knew you would.' All we need is a pair of Mexicans to—do the work. I liked Ricardo; I owe him something."

"Suppose we're caught?"

"In that case we'll have to run for it, and—I presume I'll be discharged from the Ranger service."

"I ain't very good at runnin'—not from Mexicans." Blaze's eyes were bright and hard at the thought. "It's more'n possible that, if they discover us, we can start a nice little war of our own."

That evening Dave managed to get his Ranger captain by long-distance telephone, and for some time the two talked guardedly. When Dave rang off they had come to a thorough understanding.

* * * * * * *

It had been an easy matter for Jose Sanchez to secure a leave of absence from Benito, but Alaire knew nothing whatever about the matter until Jose himself asked permission to see her on a matter of importance.

The man had ridden hard most of the previous night, and his excitement was patent. Even before he spoke, Alaire realized that Panfilo's fate was known to him, and she decided swiftly that there must be no further concealment.

"Señora! A terrible thing!" Jose burst forth. "It is strange, unbelievable! My head whirls—"

Alaire quieted him, saying in Spanish, "Calm yourself, Jose, and tell me everything from the beginning."

"But how can I be calm? Panfilo is completely dead. But—you know?"

Alaire nodded. "I—suspected."

Jose's dark eyes blazed; he bent forward eagerly. "What did you suspect, and why? Tell me all."

It was with a peculiar, apprehensive flutter in her breast that Alaire realized the crisis had come. Heretofore she had binned Law, but now, oddly enough, she found herself interested in defending him. As calmly as she could, she related all that had led up to the tragedy, while Jose listened with eyes wide and mouth open.

"You see, I had no suspicion of the truth," she concluded. "It was a terrible thing, and Mr. Law regrets it deeply. He would have made a report to the authorities, only—he feared it might embarrass me."

Jose was torn with rage, yet plainly a prey to indecision; he rolled his eyes and cursed under his breath. "These Rangers!" he muttered. "That is the kind of men they are. They murder honest people."

"This was not a murder," Alaire cried sharply. "Panfilo was aiding a felon to escape. The courts will not punish Mr. Law."

"Bah! Who cares for the courts? This man is a gringo, and these are gringo laws. But I am a Mexican, and Panfilo was my cousin. We shall see."

"Don't be rash, Jose," she exclaimed, warningly.

Jose continued to glower. Then, turning away, he said, without meeting his employer's eyes, "I would like to draw my money."

"Very well. I am sorry to have you leave Las Palmas, for I have regarded you as one of my gente." Jose's face remained stony. "What do you intend to do? Where are you going?"

The fellow shrugged. "Quien sabe! Perhaps I shall go to my General Longorio."

Alaire smiled faintly. "You will be shot," she told him. "Those soldiers have little to eat and no money at all."

But Jose's bright eyes remained hostile and his expression baffling. It was plain to Alaire that her explanation of his cousin's death had carried not the slightest conviction, and she even began to fear that her part in the affair had caused him to look upon her as an accessory. Nevertheless, when she paid him his wages she gave him a good horse, which Jose accepted with thanks, but without gratitude. As Alaire watched him ride away with never a backward glance, she decided that she must lose no time in apprising the Ranger of this new condition of affairs.

She drove her automobile to Jonesville that afternoon, more worried than she cared to admit. Law was nowhere in town, and so, in spite of her reluctance, Alaire was forced to look for him at the Jones home. As she had never called upon Paloma, and had made it almost impossible for the girl to visit Las Palmas, the meeting of the two women was somewhat formal. But no one could long remain stiff or constrained with Paloma Jones; the girl had a directness of manner and an honest, friendly smile that simply would not be denied. Her delight that Alaire had come to see her pleased and shamed the elder women, who hesitatingly confessed the object of her visit.

"Oh, I thought you were calling on me." Paloma pouted her pretty lips. "Dave isn't here. He and father—have gone away."

It needed no close observation to discover the concern in Paloma's eyes; Alaire told her story quickly. "Mr. Law must be warned right away," she added, "for the man is capable of anything."

Paloma nodded. "Dave told us how he had killed Panfilo—" She hesitated, and then cried, impulsively: "Mrs. Austin, I'm going to confess something—I've got to tell somebody or I'll burst. I was walking the floor when you came. Well, dad and Dave have completely lost their wits. They have gone across the river—to get Ricardo Guzman's body."

"What!" Alaire stared at the girl uncomprehendingly. "My dear girl, aren't you dreaming?"

"I thought I must be when I heard about it. Dad wouldn't have told me at all, only he thought I ought to know in case anything happens to him." Paloma's breath failed her momentarily. "They left an hour ago in my machine, with two Mexicans to help them. They intend to cross at your pumping plant as soon as it gets dark, and be back by midnight—that is, if they ever get back."

Paloma's face was pale, her eyes were strained and tragic. She made a hopeless gesture, and Alaire wondered momentarily whether the girl's anxiety was keener for the safety of her father or—the other?

"Can't we prevent them from going?" she inquired.

"What can we do? They'll go, anyhow, regardless of what we say."

"Well, we could be there—you and I."

Paloma agreed eagerly. "Yes! Maybe we could even help them if they got into trouble."

"Come, then! We'll have supper at Las Palmas and slip down to the river and wait."

Paloma was gone with a rush. In a moment she returned, ready for the trip, and with her she carried a rifle nearly as long as herself.

* * * * * * *

In offering to lend a hand in this difficulty, Alaire had acted largely upon impulse, and, now that she took time to think over the affair more coolly, she asked herself what possible business of hers it could be. For her part, Paloma was troubled by no uncertainty of purpose; it did not seem to her at all absurd to go to her father's assistance, and she was so eager to be up and away that the prospect of a long evening's wait made her restless.

As usual, Ed Austin had not taken the trouble to inform his wife of his whereabouts; Alaire was relieved to find that he was out, and she decided that he had probably stayed at Tad Lewis' for supper.

"Senora! a Terrible Thing!" Jose Burst Forth.

The women were seated on the porch after their meal, when up the driveway rode two horsemen. A moment later a tall figure mounted the steps and came forward with outstretched hand, crying in Spanish:

"Senora! I surprise you. Well, I told you some day I should give myself this great pleasure. I am here!"

"General Longorio! But—what a surprise!" Alaire's amazement was naive; her face was that of a startled schoolgirl. The Mexican warmly kissed her fingers, then turned to meet Paloma Jones. As he bowed the women exchanged glances over his head. Miss Jones looked frankly frightened, and her expression plainly asked the meaning of Longorio's presence. To herself, she was wondering if it could have anything to do with that expedition to the Romero cemetery. She tried to compose herself, but apprehension flooded her.

Alaire, meanwhile, her composure recovered, was standing slim and motionless beside her chair, inquiring smoothly, "What brings you into Texas at such a time, my dear general? This is quite extraordinary."

"Need you ask me?" cried the man. "I would ride through a thousand perils, senora.—God in his graciousness placed that miserable village, Romero, close to the gates of heaven. Why should I not presume to look through them briefly? I came two days ago, and every hour since then I have turned my eyes in the direction of Las Palmas. At last I could wait no longer."

Paloma gasped and Alaire stepped through the French window at her back and into the brightly lighted living room. Paloma Jones followed as if in a trance.

Longorio's bright eyes took a swift inventory of his surroundings; then he sighed luxuriously.

"How fine!" said he. "How beautiful! A nest for a bird of paradise!"

"Don't you consider this rather a mad adventure?" Alaire insisted. "Suppose it should become known that you crossed the river?"

Longorio snapped his fingers. "I answer to no one; I am supreme. But your interest warms my heart; it thrills me to think you care for my safety. Thus am I repaid for my days of misery."

"You surely did not"—Paloma swallowed hard—"come alone?"

"No. I took measures to protect myself in case of eventualities."

"How?"

"By bringing with me some of my troopers. Oh, they are peaceable fellows!" he declared, quickly; "and they are doubtless enjoying themselves with our friend and sympathizer, Morales."

"Where?" asked Alaire.

"I left them at your pumping plant, senora." Paloma Jones sat down heavily in the nearest chair. "But you need have no uneasiness."

Alaire answered sharply, "It was a very reckless thing to do, and you must not remain here."

Longorio drew his evenly arched brows together in a plaintive frown, saying, "You are inhospitable!" Then his expression lightened. "Or is it," he asked—"is it that you are indeed apprehensive for me?"

Alaire tried to speak quietly. "I should never forgive myself if you came to harm here at my ranch."

Longorio sighed. "And I hoped for a warmer welcome—especially since I have done you another favor. You saw that hombre who came with me?"

"Yes."

"Well, you would never guess it is your Jose Sanchez. He was distracted at the news of his cousin's murder, and came to me—"

"His cousin was not murdered."

"Exactly! I told him so when I learned the facts. I said to him, 'Jose, my boy, it is better to do nothing than to act wrongly. Go back to your beautiful employer, be loyal to her, and think no more about this unhappy affair.' It required some argument, I assure you, but—he is here. He comes to ask your forgiveness and to resume his position of trust."

"I am glad to have him back if he feels that way. I have nothing whatever to forgive him."

"Then he will be happy, and I have served you. That is the end of the matter." With a graceful gesture Longorio dismissed the subject. "It is to be my pleasure," he next inquired, "to meet Senor Austin, your husband?"

"I am afraid not."

LOOK OUT FOR MICHIGAN "SLACKERS"

The people of Michigan, represented by their members of the legislature, unanimously appropriated five million dollars for a defense and preparedness fund.

That action was taken only a few weeks ago.

The governor's state preparedness board is hard at work, and the people are standing by to help in whatever endeavor will most help the nation and the common cause.

But some slackers with a thimble full of appreciation of the attitude of the people of this state have raised objection to spending any considerable part of the money which the legislature has appropriated.

Our entire national guard will be, within thirty or sixty days, mustered into the federal service and removed from the state.

The Culver bill, passed last winter meets this exigency by the creation of Michigan State Troops at the governor's pleasure to act as a constabulary, a home guard and a protection to life and property in any emergency which might arise.

Thousands of those who are not eligible for the national guard or the regular army have joined these home guard companies throughout the state and their enthusiasm has been suddenly halted by the statement from Lansing that the state would not equip, uniform or assist these organizations financially because of the expense of such equipment.

We expect Governor Sleeper to round up vigorously any one raising such a puerile objection to the will of the people of Michigan.

We expect the governor to show these politicians, whose only patriotic standard is popularity with a few of those who never desire n cent expended for the public good, that the will of the people of this state must be respected, that these five million dollars are real dollars and must be spent where there is a proper demand, and that the state troops, to take the place of our national guard (while it is away on the business of our country) must be at once and at whatever expense, properly uniformed and equipped.

We want and demand preparedness, not politics.

We hope there will be no internal disorder within the state and we trust that we shall be free from the conspiracies and underground troubles which are incidental to times of war, but if we need protection we want it at hand, not in the form of a few companies of shirt-sleeved amateurs, armed with broom sticks and feather dusters, but in a sufficient number of trained and equipped home guard companies, ready to serve if needed; although engaged otherwise and in the meantime in the regular business and occupation.

Michigan cannot afford to be cheap.

The people want Preparedness.

We want a home guard properly equipped, whether some of the time-servers figure it will cost two thousand dollars or twenty thousand dollars for each company.

The people will not stand for any false economy in this hour of uncertainty and unrest!

"WILSON'S WAR"

The press of Germany is still trying to delude itself into the belief that the people of the United States are not with President Wilson in the war against Germany.

The war on the part of Germany, ever since it began, and even before has been a series of wrong guesses and assumptions. Germany guessed that their armies would sweep thru Belgium without a moment's delay; they guessed that England (as wholly unprepared for war as the United States today) would not join the war; they declared that their armies would capture Paris within three weeks; they nssumed that all the reports sent from America by their spies were correct, and that the pro-German sentiment was stronger than our government; they assumed that President Wilson, because of his "too-proud-to-fight" statement would permit Germany to work its dastardly will to the limit and without any armed protest from our government; they guessed their submarines could starve England and France in six months; they guessed conscription in America would be a failure; they have arrogantly assumed that, even if America should declare war, our effectiveness would be nil.

But the end draws near for Kaiser Bill. Ambition will have as fatal results for him as it had for Caesar. He shall find that one man and one country cannot rule the world in 1915 any more than in 1815.

If it is any satisfaction for a despairing Germany to call it "Wilson's War," let them have the satisfaction. But they might as well trim their sails for the gale that is coming. They will find that America is behind the President, and that, although America was unprepared, it will not take long to get prepared.

"Wilson's War."

No!

It is the war of civilization and humanity against Teutonic barbarism. And Germany will realize and know before many months shall have passed that it is the spirit and purpose of one hundred millions of Americans (counting out a few crazy anarchists, socialists, I. W. W.'s) to wage this "Wilson War" until Germany is in a condition that shall make it forever impossible for that government to make a charnel house of the whole world.

DOLLARS AND LIBERTY

We take the following from the Detroit News:

Uncle Sam is the richest old gentleman in the world.

He has been in business for 141 years.

He has never failed to live up to his word; his honor stands without stain—a world inspiration.

And now, backed by all his resources, wealth without limit, and his word, which he has never broken, he wants to take you into his business with him.

He wants you to invest your money in his concern and he will pay you 3 1-2 per cent interest on your investment.

Every man, woman and child in the world today knows that the word of Uncle Samuel is as good as his bond.

And his bond now is the Liberty bond.

He needs two billion dollars right now in ready cash to make his fight for world democracy and lasting peace.

And the fight is for your happiness nnd the happiness of your children and your children's children.

By investing with Uncle Samuel through purchase of a Liberty bond you perform a patriotic duty and at the same time do yourself a very great service.

There is no greater security in the world than the United States; and the wealth of America is behind the loan thnt Uncle Samuel asks of you.

Victory and peace wait answer—what will your dollars do?

ANNOUNCEMENT

1917-18 Motto: "Not Retrenchment But Enlargement"

Our friends will no doubt be interested to know something of our splendid program of work for this summer and next winter. We are removing our boy scout headquarters from the parlors of the Baptist church to n more convenient location where we shall open our offices and install regular club room equipment for the boys. including roque tables, shuffle boards; caroms nnd many other games, all of which are in use in all up-to-date boys' church or Y. M. C. A. clubs.

A splendid reading room, well supplied with the best reading available, will be opened in connection with the club.

We are fortunate in securing the services of Mr. Ward Genett, one of the teachers from our public schools here, who will assist us. Mr. Genett needs no introduction to our young people. His experience in the school room, in the city band, in the Y. M. C. A. and in the boy scout work is sufficient with his strong moral character to commend him. He will devote his entire time to this work.

Classes of boys will be organized and taken to the woods, the water nnd the fields, where they will be drilled in the various phases of woodcraft as outlined and recommended by the national boy scout organization. Mr. Genett will personally direct these classes. Boys from eight years up may enter this work.

The practice in boating, fishing, swimming, hiking, camping nnd various phases of athletics and scout instruction with our open club and reading rooms, will certainly furnish an interesting and profitable summer's outing.

Positively, no boy will be admitted to any of this work, either local or visiting boy, without a full understanding between the parents and myself. If you are interested in the work, leave a call for me at telephone No. 8, and I shall be glad to see you and further explain our plan of work.

Tennis

We have engaged the services of Mr. Enrl Bedwin, the champion tennis player of our high school, who will give instructions in tennis to individual boys or girls. See me about partieulars.

Tutoring

We have several capable persons nvailnble for this work nnd recommend no one whom we do not think will make good.

When the Snow Falls

Last winter we were generously aided by many in our efforts to help the needy poor. Sixty children were either wholly or partially clothed and many persons were otherwise aided. This summer we have opened a storage where we will store all good articles of clothing or furniture that any care to give. When winter comes, we will have sufficient supplies to care for this work. If you have anything which you wish to give I shall be glad to come for it.

We are installing a new car to aid us in our work. If I can be of any service to anyone in any way, I shall be glad to serve.

Sincerely,
LLOYD C. VINYARD.

CHARLEVOIX TESTIMONY

Home Proof, Here, There and Everywhere

When you see Doan's Kidney Pills recommended in this paper you most always find the recommender a Charlevoix resident. It's the same everywhere—in 3,800 towns in the U. S. Forty thousand people publicly thank Doan's. What other kidney remedy can give this proof of merit, honesty and truth? Home testimony must be true or it could not be published here. Read this Charlevoix recommendation. Then insist on having Doan's. You will know what you are getting:

Mrs. R. S. Hammond, 207 Belvedere Ave., Charlevoix, says: "Several years ago I was troubled with kidney complaint. My kidneys were weak and irregular in action. At times my hands and feet were swollen and my face was bloated also. I felt miserable all over. I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and began their use. Three boxes of this medicine removed all signs of the trouble, making me feel like a different person."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Hammond had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

BELLS BREAK BEAUTY SLEEP

"BUY A BOND," "BUY A BOND" SAY THEIR SILVER PEALS

Washington Dispatch Provides For Four Night Program of Noise "Lest We Forget"

Townsfolk and the members of the fire department were at a loss to know just what was up last Monday night when the bells on the Congregational and M. E. churches and school house began to clang violently at the hour of nine.

People came out in their yards to look and listen and some few trailed down the hill to find the excitement, but none could be discovered. It was learned the following day, however, that a recent despatch from Washington stated that the government wished the church and school house bells all over the country to ring four times Monday night, three times Tuesday night, two times Wednesday night and once Thursday night, thus announcing the time left in which to aid the government by buying these bonds. Liberty is again sending her clarion call for aid over hill and dale as in 1776.

WOOD ASHES MAKE A VALUABLE FERTILIZER

War Price Put on Potash Makes Them Worth $25 to $30 a Ton

Wood ashes, once employed principally to fill up holes in the back yard, have become a thing of value since the war placed a premium upon potash. Chemists of the agricultural experiment station of the Michigan Agricultural College, put upon them now a value of from $25 to $35 a ton for fertilizing purposes for their potash alone, while in addition they contain considerable percentages of phosphoric acid and lime.

"Farmers and gardeners," says Prof. A. J. Patten of the labratory of experimental chemistry, "should take every precaution to conserve the supplies of wood ashes produced on the farm and in the home.

"Wood ashes have a high value on account of the potash contain. Ashes from hard wood contain, when dry, from five to seven per cent of potash and are worth from $25 to $35 per ton, or in other words it would require $25 to $35 to purchase as much potash in the form of commercial fertilizers as is contained in one ton of average hard wood ashes. Soft wood ashes usually contain less than five per cent of potash, but enough to make it profitable to carefully preserve them. As the potash in ashes is readily soluble in water, the ashes should he stored under cover until used. Besides potash, ashes contain one and one half to two per cent of phosphoric acid and fifty to sixty per cent of lime. Leached ashes seldom contain more than one per cent of potash and if used at all they should be considered as a source of lime rather than potash, and be purchnsed on that basis. Ashes from corn cobs contain more than thirty per cent of potash and where any quantity of cobs can be obtained they should be burned and the ashes utillzed as a source of potash. Coal ashes contain only traces of potash and they possess very little if any value from the fertilizer standpoint."

VANDALS STEAL COSTLY TULIPS

GREEN HOUSE YARD LOOTED SUNDAY NIGHT

Marauders Leave Floral Traces All the Way to Bridge Street— No Clue

On last Sunday evening, somewhere between the hours of eight and nine, it is thought, some vandals, presumably in a car, descended upon the greenhouse yard on Dixon Avenue, where Babcock & Son had planted a large number of very rare, imported long-stemmed Dutch tulips and stole about 200 of the flowers, amounting to $10.00 worth. The Babcocks had planted them as an attractive advertising feature for their business, with no intention of selling, so this increases the loss involved.

The work looked like that of children, as the flowers were broken off close to the top and the thieves could be traced down Dixon Avenue by flowers and petals dropped here and there all along the roadway and across the swing bridge. That is as far as it was possible to trail them, although every road leading out of town was covered in order to find further traces of them. Novak was notified at once, and the sheriff is now working on the case.

A number of peonies were taken last year from the greenhouse yard and the offenders are known, altho nothing was said or done about it at the time. If they succeed in catching the depredators, the case will be pushed to the limit, as Mr. Babcock is determined to put a stop once for all to these wanton intrusions upon his property.

Let's Reason Together for a Moment about the Blouses Sold Here

Consider that the new styles are constantly being developed for us; that they come to us at very frequent intervals, shortly after their creation; that the identical styles are placed on sale here the same day they first go on sale in the recognized Style Centers; that there is no selling expense incident to the sale of the waists, and that this savings as well as large savings in making costs are used to give added value to the product.

Result: Newest Styles and Better Values, Always

Among the new arrivals that will go on sale today are new models in Worthmores at $1.00; new models in Wellworths at $2.00 and new models in Silks, Crepe de Chines, Georgette Crepes at $2.50, $3.50, $5, $5.90, $6 $6.50, $7 and $8.50.

Important NOTICE!

The railroads have issued new tariffs, effective July 1, 1917, increasing freight rates 15 per cent. If these rates become effective, and they are likely to, the increase will mean an advance of from 55 to 70 cents per ton on cement, plaster and brick.

If you are going to need any of these things buy now.

KEDZIE MIXTURE FOR SPRAYING

ECONOMICAL SUBSTITUTE FOR PARIS GREEN

Arsenic, Sal-Soda and Water Are Ingredients of This Simple Solution

Farmers and gardeners seeking relief from the burden of high prices which the war has saddled upon them may work economy now and then by employing substitutes for some of the materials most commonly used, in the opinion of M. A. C. men. "One convenient substitute," says Prof. Rufus H. Pettit of the department of entomology, is "Kedzie Mixture" to replace paris green.

"Arsenate of lead has become a standby for so long, that we are apt to forget that there are other stomach poisons which may be used, in some cases, with equally good results," according to Professor Pettit. "The cheapest poison of all is 'Kedzie Mixture,' a preparation originally proposed by the late Dr. R. C. Kedzie of the college to replace paris green, which was becoming rather expensive even twenty years ago.

"Kedzie Mixture never became so extensively used as would otherwise have been the case, because it cannot be combined with lime sulphur, and lime sulphur is a favorite summer spray. Lime sulphur, however, is not used on potatoes, and at the present moment a great saving can be affected by making use of the Kedzie Mixture with lime or with Bordeaux, in fighting the ever present potato beetle.

"Dr. Kedzie, in giving directions for the preparation of this spray, says:

"Dissolve the arsenic by boiling with carbonate of soda, and thus insure complete solution, which solution can be kept to make a spraying solution whenever needed. To make the material for eight hundred gallons of spraying mixture, boil two pounds of white arsenic with eight pounds of sal-soda (crystals of carbonate of soda—washing soda—found in every grocery and drug shop) in two gallons of water. Boil these materials in any iron pot not used for other purposes. Boil for fifteen minutes or until the arsenic dissolves, leaving only a small muddy sediment. Put this solution into a two gallon jug and label 'Poison,' stock material for spraying mixture.

"The spraying mixture can be prepared whenever required, and in the quantity needed at the time by slaking two pounds of lime, adding this to forty gallons of water; pour into this a pint of the stock arsenic solution. Mix by stirring thoroughly and the spraying mixture is ready for use. The arsenic in this mixture is equivalent to four ounces of paris green. The pot, jug, or whatever is used, must never be used for any other purpose after the mixture has been made in it. If an additional pound or two of lime be added to the mixture it will help to make the application permanent and conspicuous without in any way interfering with its effects. In using it the extra lime should be added."

PROF. HOLLIDAY GETS DESERVED PROMOTION

Given Position as Superintendent of Lake Linden Schools

The many Ellsworth friends of Prof. L. P. Holliday will be glad to hear that he has secured a position as superintendent for the coming year of the Lake Linden schools, at a large increase of salary over that received by him at East Jordan, where he has been employed for the last three years.

Lake Linden is just completing a one hundred and sixty thousand dollar school building, and Mr. Holliday will have charge of the furnishing of the same. He will attend Columbin University this summer and secure his degree as Master of Arts, making him virtually a graduate of this noted university.

Mr. Holliday's many friends in and around Ellsworth join in congratulating him on his success in his chosen work.

MANY ATTEND BIG RALLY AT BELLAIRE

Ellsworth Turns Out En Masse to Hear Noted Speakers

Ellsworth turned out en masse for the patriotic rally at Bellaire last Friday afternoon, and were well repaid for the time spent as they certainly enjoyed every minute.

Bands from Ellsworth, Central Lake and Mancelona were on hand to keep the afternoon lively and all present heard some of the best speaking ever heard in this part of the country. Unfortunately the roads were bad so a good many went on the train and as a result had to return so early that they missed the best part of the program, the speech by the Hon. Chase S. Osborn, but never-the-less were well satisfied by the talk given by Rev. J. W. Hailwood, of Mancelona, and it is hoped that Mr. Hailwood can be secured to give a talk here in the near future.

Word was received here recently of the marriage in Detroit of James Logue and Miss Alma Ludwig. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Logue of Ellsworth and has lived in Ellsworth from babyhood until about three years ago. They have the congratulations of their many Ellsworth friends.

Pete Baar while working at the clay pit south of town last week, received a painful, although luckily, not a serious injury. He was using a heavy iron bar and while prying on a car, the bar in some way slipped, the end striking him in the face, making a bad wound just below the eye. A physician was called and the wound dressed and he is getting along nicely at present.

An organization known as the Antrim county red cross society has been formed, with D. E. Clow as vice president and E. R. Harris as treasurer. Membership may be secured in this organization by the payment of one dollar, when you will be given a red cross badge and be enrolled in the national red cross society. The red cross is one of the greatest and best movements in the United States and you are all urgently requested to get in line and "do your bit."

SHOULD CAN EXCESS OF ASPARAGUS CROP

Select Tender Shoots And Steam For 15 to 20 Minutes

Housewives who have enlisted for service in the food conservation campaign may begin the preservation end of their program by canning the excess asparagus crop, an excess which in past, less exacting seasons has often wilted in the garden. This excess, say food experts in the home economics department of the Michigan Agricultural College, can easily be put up by using a home canner. Such a canner can be made from an ordinary garbage can, wash boiler, lard or milk can provided it has a well fitting lid. It should be provided with a false bottom which is an inch from the true bottom. This false bottom may be made of galvanized tin to which wooden supports are nailed, or of laths held together by a cleat. It should have openings in through which the hot water and steam can circulate.

In canning asparagus, always select tender shoots, cut the day of canning. Sort and clean them. Steam for 15 to 20 minutes. Remove, plunge quickly into cold water and leave for two minutes. Pack tightly in a hot can either in full lengths with tips up, or cut in smaller pieces. Fill only to within 3-4 inch of top. Add one level teaspoonful of salt to one quart can. Fill in crevices with boiling water to within 3-4 inch of top. If using glass jars place rubber and top in position and partly seal. It is best not to use zinc top cans to can asparagus. If using E. Z. seal or any other cans with glass tops and wire bales, place rubber and top in position with bale up over top, but do not fasten down clamp.

Place cans in canner with boiling water enough to extend 2 inches above cans. Two tiers of cans may be sterilized at once by placing a perforated rack over lower tier and placing second on top. Cover canner. Let come to boil; leave in for 90 minutes after water begins to boil.

Remove cans, tighten lids. Invert to cool and test lids. If tight, wrap in paper to prevent bleaching and store. Always use new rubbers. If seal does not hold, examine top for nicks or dents. If imperfect top, replace with perfect one, seal as in first place and put back in canner for 10 minutes longer; then remove and seal. In removing cans from canner, place on towels and away from drafts to avoid cracking.

CORRESPONDENCE

ANTRIM CITY

Ben Mason has purchased a horse of E. Joliffe.

There hsve heen quite a few suckers caught in the lust few days.

Mr. Elzinga went to Central Lake and Mr. Brant went to Charlevoix Friday.

Now that the rain has pust farmers are all very busy, in some places it is impossible to do anything.

Mr. Mason found a nest of partridge eggs and put some of them in bis incubator and every one hatched.

There were no serviees at Atwood M. E. church Sunday as Rev. Smith was not back from the southern part of the state, where he was called by the illness of his granddaughter.

ESSEX

John Hennip bought two eows of Mr. Bowman.

Only three in this district had to register last Tuesday.

John Hoogewerf is the proud owner of sixteen little ducks.

Edward Tillotson spent Friday with Mrs. Dennis and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Hennip will move to their new home soon.

George Dekkenga spent Thursday evening with Edward Tillotson, Jr.

John Boss and family of Barnard spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Drenth.

Mrs. Joa Weiland of East Jordan spent Tuesday afternoon visiting Mrs. Peter Weiland.

John Hennip has traded his farm in Essex to his father for the old farm where they live.

Miss Edna Joliffe of Atwood was a guest of Miss Emily Weiland Saturday night and Sunday.

John Jensen and Miss Helen Cooper spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Albert Van Beck.

Miss Helen Cooper and her sister, Winnie, went to Central Lake on Saturday to do some shopping.

Mrs. Nick Dekkenga took dinner with Mrs. Tillotson and called on Mrs. Weiland Thursday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Bowman went to Traverse City Wednesday, Mr. Moblo of Ellsworth took them in his auto.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Weiland and daughter, Beatrice, took dinner witb Mr. and Mrs. Nelson of Ellsworth Thursday.

Ed. Tillotson took a trip over towards Eastport, looking for little pigs Friday. Pigs are a scare article this spring.

Maggie Vanderark is home from Grand Rapids, where she recently underwent an operation on her throat. She is doing well since the operation.

Crows are thick this year alright. If some one would only invent crow soup now everyone could live cheap and it would add to the food supply of the nation.

John Toringa, who is in a hospital at Petoskey, where he recently underwent an operation for appendicitis, is lucky to have Herman Drenth working for him. Herman has been working for Mr. Bowman until recently.

Mrs. Dennis and son, Ray, spent Thursday evening with her daughter, Mrs. Ben DeVries of Atwood. Mr. DeVries and Ray went suckering, and only got two but they all enjoyed the fish supper which was as good as it was small.

WILDWOOD

Duncsn Crawford, of East Jordsn, spent Sunday with his parents here.

Chas. Hale, of Detroit, is visiting his sister, Mrs. Chas. Cornell and family.

Mayor Cross and wife of East Jordan were at the Crawford home on Sunday.

Jim Wilson was writing policies in Echo for the Farmer's Mutual, of Traverse City.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Wilson and baby daughter spent Sunday at the Wiltse home at Mitchell.

Emery Wilson is installing his motor engine this week and we are expecting unheard of stunts of exceeding the speed limit ordinance (on water) soon.

Messrs. Rozelle and Clark are holding some very interesting meetings at the school house these nights. The attendance is good and the interest of the people growing.

Alex Sinclair, the only 8th grade student in our school this year, received word that he had passed the examination for that grade and is now making arrangements to attend bigh school in Ellsworth next year.

The bee for Mr. Gould last week Tuesday was well attended and a nice block cleaned and burned for him. He wishes to thank those wbo attended for their help and hopes to be able to return the favor at the earliest convenience.

WRIGHT DISTRICT

Glen Smith of East Jordan spent Sunday at the Isa Alward home.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. DeMoulpied visited at the Wright residence Monday.

Herbert and Howard Bearss attended the patriotic rally at Bellaire Friday.

Mrs. A. Wright and son, Frank, spent Sunday at the Thos. DeMoulpied home.

Dr. Dicken of East Jordan called on little Marshall Alward Wednesday of last week.

John Parsons, Jr., and family were Sunday visitors at the home of Walter DeGroot and Frank Boss respectively.

Mrs. C. E. Bearss was taken to the hospital at Petoskey Monday morning, where she underwent an operation for appendicitis.

We wish to extend our best wishes to our former teacher, Miss Maude Best, who has became the bride of William Patterson of Ellsworth.

FAIRVIEW-BANKS

Looks like summer.

Measles are in the neighborhood.

Celia Kass and Sam Postmus are on the sick list.

Mr. White has returned from Saginaw with 30 head of cattle.

Annis Schaver, of Grand Rapids, is here visiting friends and relatives.

Lawrence Boss, of Barnard, visited with Mr. and Mrs. H. DeGroot last Thursday.

Rev. Posthumus will deliver his farewell address to this congregation Sunday afternoon.

Commissioner Heller and his men are laying some cement culverts across the road at the Holland church.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh)that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

VARIATIONS IN CREAM TESTS

USE OF TESTER IS URGED BY EXPERTS

One of the Common Causes of Dissatisfaction on Part of Men Who Sells Cream

One of the most common causes of dissatisfaction on the part of the man who sells cream on the butterfat basis, rises from variations in the test. This is especially true if each can is tested separately and the best way for the seller to convince himself that the tester is neither careless or dishonest is to secure a little outfit for himself. A well-made, accurate and satisfactory tester can now be bought for five dollars and its use will not only satisfy the seller that he is getting honest treatment but will enable him to detect the boarders in his herd. The general interest in this subject is compelling the Missouri agricultural experiment station to reprint a circular for general distribution, but a little discussion of the principal causes of variation in this briefer form may avoid the necessity for so wide a distribution of that circular.

Speed of Separator—A change in the speed of the separator immediately causes a change in the tests of the cream, the higher the speed the greater the amount of skim milk thrown out and so the higher the test of the cream secured. Putting it in another way, a low speed results in a larger quantity of thinner cream.

Rate of Inflow—The use of the float does not always insure a uniform flow of milk into the separator, because the faucet may not always be opened equally wide and the flow will be more rapid when the tank is full than when it is nearly empty. Anything which makes the inflow more rapid will increase the proportion of skim milk wbich goes through and lower the test of the cream secured.

Flushing the Bowl—The amount of water used in fluahing may easily be varied a pint or more than thia without any other cause or variation may change the test by two, three or even four or five per cent.

Variationa in the Milk Itself—The milk of an entire herd may rise or fall in its test from day to day because of excitement or change in the weather. If the milk of a herd whose average test is four per cent, is ordinarily so separated that the cream tests 40 per cent fat, the test will suddenly rise to 42.5 per cent if the milk of the herd is suddenly raised to 4.25 per cent without any change in method of separating.

Cream Screw—The test is, of course readily controlled by means of the cream screw, but as it is seldom changed in this way, on the average farm, there should be no trouble because of variation from this source.

Feed of the Cow—Variationa in cream tests are practically never caused by changes in the feed of the cow as every well-informed cream seller is now aware.

Mistakes and Dishonesty—Mistakes are most likely to result from carelessness in taking samples, as they must be very carefully and skillfully taken if they are to tell the truth and result in a fair payment, but actual dishonesty is probably much rarer than many sellers believe. A clever thief would manipulate the reported test in such a way as not to arouse the suspicion that an honest report sometimes brings up in the mind of the man who does not consider all the possible hidden causes of variation.

is visiting at the Elzinga home at present.

Elzinga Bros. butchered some pork last Friday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Veenstra spent Sunday at the VanHouten home.

Mr. and Mrs. Odbert bave both had an attack of grippe the past week.

Martin Koeling, formerly of this place, now residing in Grand Rapids, Rev. Pickart and family started for Grand Rapids Tuesday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Elzinga motored to Charlevoix Thursday evening.

Bert Weiten purchased a horse of Albert Sneller the latter part of the week.

E. VandeStreek sold a cow and a calf to Mr. Hoogewerf of Essex last week.

A. Bos & Son brought a colt to Norwood to the Nasb pasture last week.

Mrs. John Bos accompanied her parents on their trip to Southern Michigan last week.

Verne Jones of Norwood was in Atwood looking for some seed corn Saturday afternoon.

Frank Richardson and family motored to the bome of hia son Murrill Richardson, Sunday.

Congratulations are in order. Mr. and Mrs. Bert DeYoung are the proud parents of twin boys.

John Hofman bought Aaron Harwood's Ford touring car. Mr. Harwood talks of buying a Maxwell.

John Vanllouten has been selling some of his seed corn the past week. A great many farmers are finding it necessary to replant.

The regular service was not held at the M. E. church Sunday morning on account of the death of Rev. Smith's granddaughter.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Klooster and part of the family started on their nuto trip last Monday and will return the latter part of this week.

J. Petter and Sam Van Houten are dairying in earnest. They each bought a Babcock tester and will commence grading up their herds.

Now for the preparation of the potato and bean ground. It is going to mean dollars to the farmer and food for the world this year, so do the best you can with your part in the great war.

Miss Rose Klooster and brother, Conrad, made a business trip to Central Lake Friday evening. It wss to have been a quick trip but they had some Ford trouble whicb held them up a few hours.

Will Brown had two pigs shipped here from Grand Rapids a short time ago. He also ordered some registered pigs from a Wisconsin hog raiser. It is almost as cheap this year to buy registered stock, as the ordinary hogs most of us have hereabouts.

We are all, at least the young fallows, talking about what good soldiers they are going to make if they happen to be called for service. Wa won't have to grow a crop of tan or get our muscles hardened lika our city cousins will anyhow.

J. Petter is slowly recovering from his recent illness. His son, Henry, had a severe pain in one of his arms and on having it examined by Dr. Vis, found it to be blood poisoning. He made a trip to Central Lake Saturday and Sunday to have it lanced and dressed and hopes to be at his work again in a few days.

A special school meeting was held Monday evening of last week to vote on the number of teachers for the coming year. It was decided one teacher would be able to take care of the school next term. Too bad boys, we know you figured on a couple of school ma'ams, but you had better wait until a year from now.

FIGURES SHOW MILLION SHORT

REGISTRATION DON'T TALLLY WITH THE CENSUS

"Slacker" Hunt Now On—Michigan Registration Exceeds Estimate By 13 Per Cent

The total registration will be approximately 9,250,000, according to revised figures at the office of tha provost marshal general at Washington, D. C. This is more than 1,000,000 helow the census estimste.

A revision of figures will be made because the census did not consider the fact that 600,000 men of eligible age have alresdy volunteered.

Another factor was the realization that the census estimates did not consider the fact immigration has been stopped for three yesrs.

Ordera for the arrest of every man between the sges of twenty-one thirty, inclusive, who cannot show certificate of registration for war service, were issued last night by the provost marshal general.

Notwithstanding the protest of state officials of the state of Washington against the census bureau estimate of 212,634 eligibles in the state, as compared with an actual registration of 108,615, Provost Marshal Generol Crowder sent word to Governor Lister the state's quota of troops must be furnished on the census bureau basis.

Orders from Lansing to round up all known slackers who failed to register last week went out from the capitol to the mayors of all cities and the sheriffs of all counties in Michigan.

All who are known to have been within the age limits prescribed, and who did not appesr and be registered, are to be arrested. If, after, arrest, they agree to register, they are to be let go. And orders of this sort went out from Washington to all federal officers in the county.

Today all counties had been heard from on details with the exeeption of Alger, whose total, 906, is here, but nothing else. With all allowances made for the discrepancies in the mail reports and figuring in those which have appeared to date, the total registration with Detroit missing is 230,635. This includes Alger.

Adding to this 141,000 for Detroit which Detroit offieials said over the telephone this afternoon was about right, the total registration will run just about 372,000, which is a fraction more than 13 per cent in excess of the government's estimate.

Counties which fell below the estimate will be given careful consideration and officers will make a very close survey of the situation.

SCHOOL COMMISSIONER'S NOTES

A good time was reported at the Ironton picnic of May 25th. Ye scribe is sorry that a board meeting and the duties incident thereto caused her absence at these festivities.

The Hilton school closed May 22 also with a picnic. Picnics are very much in evidence at this time of the year and nlways plenty of good things to eat. This was another good time that the Commissioner could not attend this year.

Miss Eunice Liskum is to teach the Robinson school next year at a salary of $58 per month. The school board is very much interested in the remodeling of the cloak room. for better heat and better sanitation.

Miss Effie Cook will receive $50 per month next year in the Deer Lake school.

Hon. J. M. Muason delivered the commencement address for tha county normal class Tuesday, June 5th. Every member of the class has signed a contract for next year. The least that any will receive is $50 per month, but the inexperienced teachers sll rceelve practically the sams amount.

All applications for tuition to high school next year must be msde in writing and presented to a member of the district board before the fourth Monday in June. The dato this year is June 25th so all eighth grade graduates and all high school students whosa homes are in the country sbould care for this now. At the time of the annusl meeting is too late. Application must be made every year and the school officers can not pay this tuition even if they wish to unless the parents have complied with the law. The fact that application haa been made would not compel any student to attend if he wished to change his mind later in the summer as the tuition is paid only when demanded by the treasurer or superintendent of the city district in which the high school is located. The safest thing to do in all csses is to apply for the tuition snd care for details later. Amount of tuition allowed without specisl vote is $20.

A prominent company sends the following letter to the office: "The government order is to continue to work in the usual way and thus keep business normal. National welfare and safety demand of all a closer cooperstion. We are going to do our best to keep factory and sales force going. We are struggling to avold a further rise in prices. To do this we shall more than ever need your co-operation."

The Owen Publishing Co. has some new and very fascinating elassiea on the "Story of the Flag."

Miss Jessie Barkley returns to the Clark school with inereased wages. Miss Florence Meggison gets a $7.50 per month raise in the Hilton school. Miss Esther Benson returns to the Miles school. Miss Marcia Goss has signed a contract for the Clinton school near Boyne Falls. Miss Florence Maddaugh returns to Johnson school with a $5.00 raise.

Misses Norma Johnson snd Grace Meggison will attend the State Normal in Mount Plessant next year. Many plan on attending summer school but the entire list is not at hand. The following are a few of our summer workers: Misses Ruth Dell, Evn Latham, Emma Knopp, Ethel Brintnall, Marcia Goss, Ida M. Milton, Myra Pool, Mrs. Thos. Scroggie, Mary Berg, Golda Jensen, Mayme Scroggie, Clarence Dewey, Leden Stewart, Jane McDonough, Grace Gallagher and Thos. Rowe.

The Hoffman school closed with an open meeting of the Mother's Club.

Miss Metcalf will teach in Chandler next year.

Every boy and every girl should have a garden this summer and it would be best to have that garden on land that otherwise would have gone to waste. Have it just as large as can be taken care of well, raise potatoes or beans, help the country and do your bit.

Due to the resignation of Mr. A. T. Greenman from the Board of Examiners, a vacancy accurred on the Board on June first. In accordance with the law, the remaining members of the board of examiners together with the Judge of Probate, filled this vacancy for the unexpired portion of the term. Miss Elizabeth Wetmore of Boyne City received the appointment.

BISSING WISHED FOR A SECOND CONFLICT

Advocated Annexation of Belgium In Move to Crush England and France

The memorandum of Gov. Gen. Bissing, in which he advocated the onnexation of Belgium is published.

It appears in Greater Germany, a review issued by Deputy Bachmeister of the Prussian diet, a National Liberal and annexationist.

Von Bissing reeognizes that Germany can have little hope of making friends of the Belgians after this war. He calmly counts up the value of booty from Belgium and the advantages of pocketing the country from a military, naval and eeonomie standpoint.

He points out that the offensive of the present war was possible only through the invasion of Belgium, and speaks regretfully of the faet that the German right wing had to squeeze laboriously past the Dutch province of Limburg.

The memorandum says that the strategie nim of the present war is to gain room for the eoncentration and advsnce of German armies in a new war against England and France

Laments Conciliation

He laments the vacillating policy of conciliation, attempted in Alsace-Lorraine and German Polnnd, and says they must never be repented in Belgium. He warns against the idea that the establishment of a Flemish state would be adequate to seeure German interests.

He does not want absorption of Belgium to be discussed at any peace conference. He would have no room for King Albert and his dynnsty, but quotes npprovingly the advice of Machiavelli that under such circumstances a king or regent should be put out of the way if necessary by death.

Under his scheme Belgian industry would be used as a lever for fixing prices in the world markets in German interests, and Belgium's coal supply would give Germany an economic monopoly in Europe.

KILLS WIFE THEN TURNS GUN ON SELF

Former Petoskey Man Runs Amuck In Chicago

Walter Schapler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schapler of Resort township, shot and killed his wife and then shot himself dead Wednesday in Chicago according to a telegram to Chief of Police Crawford, of Petoskey.

Mr. and Mrs. Schapler of Petoskey were notified and Mr. Schapler left for Chicago to be present at the inquest.

Mr. Schapler was a railroad man and had been located in Chicago for some time. He was but recently married. The telegram gave no particulars of where or at what hour the murder and suicide took place, other than that it was in Chicago.

COOKING POTATOES.

Waste That Comes With Paring and Soaking Before Boiling.

Paring and cooking is the most wasteful method, and added to this some cooks soak tha potatoes in water after they are pared. Starting to cook them in cold water also adds to the amount of waste.

Twice as much nutritive matter is lost if paring is done before boiling as there is if it is done after boiling, not figuring the waste in cutting away the potato. Tha juices of the potato contain 85 per cent of the protein and 85 per cent of the ash, and these substances are easily extrseted whea the protection of the skin has been removed.

A pared potato soaked from three to five hours loses about three times as much of its mineral matter and seven times as much of its protein as one that is pared sud immediately cooked.

In the most wasteful method of cooking, paring, soaking and starting to cook in cold water the loss of protein is 51 per cent and 39 per cent of ash. When cooked with the skins on potatoes not soaked and dropped into boiling water lose only 1.6 per cent of protein and only 4.9 per cent of ash.

Baking and steaming are the most ecoeonieal methods of cooking potatoes when fuel is considered. Potatoes cannot be baked well in a slow oven.—New York Sun.

WHAT A GARDEN DID.

How One Ambitious Girl Added to Her Bank Account.

Eight years ago a twelve-year-old girl in Cleveland started a little garden for vegetables and flowers. Flowers she sold that year brought her $18.45. It was a great sum, and she could hardly wait until the next spring so she could get at that gold mine of hers again. The next year she almost doubled earnings. In the third year they soared to $59.10. Each year thereafter saw money roll in in increasing amounts. Last year she came out with $285.63. She was a capitalist and could talk with the calm superiority of the class.

"I am able to buy all my school books, clothe myself, spend some for pleasure and still add to my bank account."

A fine young woman. At twenty we can imagine her. She has no complaint in the world. Her garden is a pleasant place, friendly to self reliant young people, remunerative for labor and pains, filled with the sweet odor of flowers. Sorrow may come to her some day, but never the sense of helplessness. The garden has taught her, as school and her parents' counsel could not have, that always there is a way by which the wolf can be kept from the doorstep and by which despair is made an unknown quantity.—Toledo Blade.

Battle of Dorking.

The battle of Dorking was an imaginary battle. In 1871, at the close of the Franco-Prussian war, Englishmen were reminded by the quick work done by Germany over France of the possibilities of invasion, and Sir George T. Chesny wrote an interesting and instructive narrative called "The Battle of Dorking, or the Reminiscence of a Volunteer," in which he depicted the imaginary scene of a great battle on English soil, which was won by the Germans. In short, the battle was the product of a military man's imagination, but it was so well worked out and so vividly described that as long as the German armies were in France the mention of the battle of Dorking was enough to make an Englishman shudder.

A Nautical Explanation.

A New York woman, recounting her impressions of a trip abroad, said:

"One thing at least I learned. That was the meaning of 'windward' and 'leeward.' The captain of the liner I crossed on explained this difference to me in a way that, if a little vulgar, was yet unforgetable.

"'Captain,' I said, 'I never can tell the difference between the windward and the leeward. Explain it to me, will you?'

"'Well, madam,' said the gruff old captain, 'if I were to spit to the windward and you were to stand to the leeward of me you would be a fool.'"

It Is.

"He doesn't care for expense."

"No?"

"No. He even bought his home from a man who didn't want to sell, and that's the dearest way in the world to buy anything."—Detroit Free Press.

ROAD MEETING AN EYE-OPENER

brought out that since the county had been under the present system approximately $140,000 had been expended in the building of good roads. Of course, this shows a discrepancy, as, according to the statement of Commissioner Hammond, approximately $105,000 had been expended in building the roads which leaves a balance of approximstely $35,000; which perhaps was expended in the purchase of machinery and supervision, or was expended in maintenance.

At this meeting it did not develop just what the cost of maintenance was in regard to the roads already constructed, due perhaps to the fact, that after the roads had been built, very little maintenance has been done, except on the road leading from Charlevoix towards Ironton, which was the first state reward road constructed and Commissioner Hammond informed the people that it costs $500 per mile this year to repair the road, which was not an excessive price to pay for maintenance per year.

There was no information offered as to the maintenance of any other state roads in the County of Charlevoix. It was, however, brought out in the meeting that the roads of Charlevoix County compared favorably with the roads of adjoining counties and counties even as far south as Mason; and that the good roads system has been a success in Charlevoix County with the trend of thought that any improvement upon the building of state reward roads that will make them more permanent and the cost of maintenance less would be a distinct improvement and gain for the tax payers of Charlevoix County. It seemed to be necessary on through trunk lines of Charlevoix County to build roads that will carry a pretty heavy traffic through July and August as during those months a great many touring cars which are much heavier in weight than those ordinarily used in northern Michigan pass through the county on their way to the various summer resorts of northern Michigan and upon which northern Michigan is becoming to depend for a large amount of their prosperity.

Petoskey Will Celebrate

Petoskey is making preparations for a monster patriotic and military spectacle which will be staged on the 4th of July. Special features intended to teach patriotism to those who may not be patriotic as might be expected during these war times will be put on. Numerous bands will furnish music and it is stated that the sports and fire works will be better than usual.

EVERYTHING THAT AN AUTOMOBILIST NEEDS

That's our aim in business—to make our garage the headquarters for all automobilists. We want you to come here with the expectation of obtaining anything you need—from gasoline to automobiles—with all accessories that may be needed. We also believe we handle three of the best makes of tires made—the

GOODYEAR, FIRESTONE, KOKOMO

These tires are giving satisfaction every day to hundreds of auto owners. They are made to stand the wear and tear usually given them, and so far have lived rigidly up to every claim made for them. Prices have advanced on the above mentioned tires but we are selling today at the old price. We bought before the raise took place and are giving you the benefit of it.

Accessories and Repairs

Nothing in your auto will be spoiled or botched. Only skillful, experienced workmen employed. We think too much of our reputation to spoil it. When you need repairs or your car needs overhauling, bring it to us or let us send for it. We will make it as good as new with but little cost.

SLIGHT DEFECTS ARE OVERLOOKED

BARS HAVE BEEN LOWERED ON PRESENT REQUIREMENTS

Big Surprise In Store for Those Who Believe They Will Never See Active Service

A surprise is in store for many young men who believe that they will never see active military service because of some slight physical defect.

It is a common occurrence for men between the specified ages to find themselves physically fit, as far as the army regulations are concerned, when some slight physical defect had led them to believe that they would surely be rejected.

The bars have been let down on physical requirements not completely, but they have been lowered considerably. The recruiting officers are still critical, but not as strict as during peace times. "Physically fit" is a phrase with a somewhat different meaning now from what it possessed before the declaration of war.

The recruit is now chosen from two points of view: First, the United States as an employer. Does he have necessary intelligence and the required education to make a good soldier? By education is meant his command of the English language and his apparent ability to understand and carry out the commands.

Second, the physical qualifications of the recruit. Has he sufficient physical endurance to carry out the daily routine of a soldier, and has he, or can he, develop sufficient reserve force to stand up under the strain of unusual physical exertion.

The applicant must be able to carry his rifle and packs, to kneel, to shoot and in other ways to perform the movements required of a soldier, in a normal manner. A slight stiffness of a joint, if it does not interfere with his duties, does not disqualify.

Diseases as a cause for rejection are classed according to their nature and severity, some, the acute diseases for instance, being curable and, therefore, not a cause for rejection. If an applicant is suffering from any form of pulmonary tuberculosis, or another form of chronic, debilitating disease, he is rejected even if he is the most prominent athlete in his school, city or district, as the case may be.

Table of Average Weights

The recruiting circular from the adjutant general prescribes a table of average weights for the various heights as follows:

Table of physical proportions:

Heighth	Weight	Chest Measurement. At Expiration	Mobility
64	128	32	2
65	130	32	2
66	132	32½	2
67	134	33	2
68	141	33½	2½
69	148	33½	2½
70	155	34	2½
71	162	34½	2½
72	169	34¾	3
73	176	35¼	3

"It is not necessary that the applicant should conform exactly to the figures indicated in the foregoing table. The following variations below the standard given in the table are permissable when the applicant is active, has firm muscles, and is evidently vigorous and healthy."

Height (inches)	Chest at Expiration (inches)	Weight (inches)
64 and under 68	2	8
68 and under 69	2	12
69 and under 70	2	15
70 and upward	2	20

"Marked disproportion of weight over heighth is not a cause for rejection unless the applicant is absolutely obese."

Defects of hearing are disqualifying. The hearing is tested by having the applicant stand with his back toward the examiner at a distance of twenty feet. While an assistant stops one ear the examiner whispers words or phrases, and if these are heard he records the hearing at 20-20.

Thus 5-20 signifies that the whisper is heard five feet and 12-20 that it is heard at twelve feet. The examining officer reaches his decision by determining whether, in his opinion, the applicant will be able to hear commands at all times.

The soldier who must have special food prepared because he is unable to masticate is a burden to the army. False teeth, while satisfactory for civilian occupations, are not satisfactory for military requirements.

Circular 66, war department, 1906 requires that "Unless an applicant has at least four serviceable double (bicuspid or molar) teeth, two above and two below, and so opposed as to serve the purpose of mastication, he should be rejected."

Foot trouble is one of the greatest causes of rejection. Every year more soldiers are discharged on surgeons' certificate of disability because of foot trouble than are discharged for pulmonary tuberculosis. The most common cause of foot disability is flat-foot.

Eyes a Stumbling Block

The eyes are another stumbling block. Circular No. 25, war department, 1906, requires that the applicant for the line of the army and for the signal corps shall have the following vision or better: 20-40 for the right eye and 20-100 for the left eye, providing that no organic disease exists in either eye.

The applicant is tested by requiring him to read black letters of various heights at a distance of twenty feet. If he is able to read the line in which the letters are three-eighths of an inch high, he is said to have normal vision, and this is recorded as 20-20.

P. M. TENDER JUMPS RAIL AT BAY SHORE

Oil Wagon Commandeered By Irate Passengers—No Injuries

Saturday afternoon last, the north bound train on the Pere Marquette, came to grief near Bay Shore.

The tender, for some unaccountable reason, left the track and was dragged a train length over the ties before the train could be stopped. Curiously enough, however, not a single one of the other cars in the train were derailed. Nobody was hurt.

The consequent delay was of five hours duration, and possengers who did not care to wait, took any means of conveyance that came handy, even to requisitioning a "Polarine" wagon belonging to "John D." to reach their destination.

Apprehended Culprits

Babcock & Son, the florists, whose loss of flowers was reported in these columns last week, has asked the Courier to state that the culprits have been apprehended, but owing to their youth and family connections, no arrests will be made. However, the youngsters were forced to settle for the damage done and warned that a repetition of their acts will result in a stiff fine or jail sentence.

NEW ATTRACTIONS FOR SUMMER

BASEBALL MACHINE AND BOWLING ALLEYS

Now Being Erected on Public Green to be Ready for Business This Week.

Plenty of amusements for young and old this summer. Work is now under way in the park on Bridge street, opposite the State bank, on a set of four bowling alleys and an automatic baseball machine, similar to the one we had last year.

H. A. Ackley of New York is the man behind the gun. His family is expected soon and will take up their abode in the Siminaw cottage on Mason street, where they have rented rooms. Mr. Ackley was traveling last summer in this territory for the concern that turns out the baseball machines and put up the one that we had here. He also operated a baseball outfit in Petoskey, but has given up his work there, feeling that Charlevoix offers the better field for his efforts.

The four alleys (located on the right hand side) will be 45 feet long and there will be additional space of some ten or more feet to take care of the players. They will be adapted to box ball, ten pins or duck pins. The alleys will be under canvas. The baseball machine needs little description, as people are familiar with the one in operation last year. The machine consists of an automatic electric pitcher, which "puts 'em across" the plate every time. The alleys and the pitcher will be ready for operation about the 1st of the week.

Mr. Ackley has other features which he will introduce on special days and occasions. His outfit, together with the rink and the swimming pool at the Inn, gives us a respectable quota of summer sports. Every little bit helps.

NEW RESTAURANT

Pfister's Latest Venture Bids Fair To Be a Success

The new ladies' restaurant recently equipped by Adam Pfister in the building vacated by Sam Rose's barber shop, fills a long felt want. It is a quiet, neat little place, and the six sanitary porcelain topped tables and the little buffet give it an air of cosy comfort that is quite inviting. Just the place for the business woman's lunch and the "after movie" parties who desire to prolong the evening's enjoyment by indulging in the succulent "red hot" and the cheering cup of tea, although you can get a full meal of Adam's good cooking if you feel inclined.

Will Soon Open Cafe

Alex Samra, who conducted a cafe in the Ayers building last season, and who spent the winter in Florida in the same line of business, arrived in the city Monday, and will soon be busily engaged in preparing the same quarters for opening this season. Both stores in the first floor of the Ayers building will be occupied this season by Mr. Samra, one for a cafe and the other for a lunch and soft drink parlor.

After June 15th, we will give a discount of 5 per cent on all accounts paid within two days from time work is finished. Sanitary Engineering Co., opposite P. O., Phone 208. 24t2

WE DID OUR "BIT" ON BONDS

CHARLEVOIX MADE GOOD, CONSIDERING

Huge Air Fleet Planned For Enemy's "Strafing"—Lots of "Pep" Behind Project

Reports from the local banks indicate that Charlevoix and surrounding territory fell slightly short of the quota assigned it on the Liberty bond subscription but that, taking into consideration the time of year, lateness of the season, etc., we did as well as could be expected. About $20,000.00 has been subscribed and token care of by the banks here.

It is understood that the entire subscription has been overpledged to the extent of a billion dollars. The president and congress expected two billion and they got nearly three. According to recent report, president Wilson's approval will be given to estimates which go to congress this week, calling for an immediate appropriation covering the major portion of the excess ($600,000,000) to perfect the American air craft program of a huge fleet or aeroplanes—some 36,000 machines, and providing for the issuance of the necessary additional bonds for the extra billion. Secretary Baker, in a recent statement, declares that the war department is behind the aeroplane project "with every ounce of energy and entbusiasm at its command."

The United States will make three main classes of machines.—Training planes, bombing machines and observation craft. Speedier types will be manufactured by the allies, who have already perfected them. The average cost of each machine will be $18,000.

American auto plants will be utilized making standardized engines for aerial craft.

Training camps are under way at Detroit, Dayton and Champaign.

RED CROSS WORKERS TO BE REINFORCED

North Side Resort Women To Work With Our Local Band

The local Red Cross society are to receive some very potent assistance from our summer visitors.

The casino at the Beach hotel will be used as a meeting place for the volunteer workers of the north side resort colony, who will act in conjunction with the present society now holding its meetings in the Wilbur block.

Everybody buckling down to business. That's good. With representatives of every walk of the nation's life holding up his hands, Uncle Sam will proceed to his painful duty overseas, with the satisfaction of knowing that all's well at his rear, which in these modern times is half the battle.

SURPRISED HIS FRIENDS

Popular Young Hurton Bay Farmer Married at Iron Mountain

Talk about doing things without the knowledge or consent of one's friends then the plum goes to Ned B. Fox of Horton Bay, says the Boyne City Bee. Just a week ago Tuesday he was married to a popular young lady of Iron Mountain; Miss Alice Trueman, at that place. There is nothing mysterious about the affair after all when you recall the fact that Ned made a sojourn in the far North for a period of two years or more and it is just as easy to get acquainted up there as down here.

Ned and his bride arrived home last Wednesday and on Thursday a party was given in their honor at the home of Volley Fox, a brother, and to which only relatives and Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Dillworth were present.

Ned is engaged in farming on an extensive scale at the Bay and for the time being will make his home with his mother.

OPENS NEW SHOP

Neri Cook Is The Latest Addition To Business Fraternity

Neri Cook, who for the past three years has been in the employ of F. E. Cartier, has opened his own establishment, to be known as the Star Cleaning & Pressing Parlors, at No. 320 Bridge street. He will also do mending.

Mr. Cook is thoroughly experienced in all branches of his work and we hope he will make a success.

Fountain City House Opens

The Fountain City House, under management of Mrs. Harrison Bedford, opened last week and is now entertaining several guests, among them, F. Krueger of St. Louis, who arrived last Friday. Mrs. Berry who has been here for the past two seasons will assist Mrs. Bedford this summer. She states that the outlook is pretty good. Nearly all of the former patrons of the hotel have written to engage accommodations and there are several new ones on the list.

RESORTERS ARRIVING DAILY

SUMMER SEASON FINALLY BEGINS TO BLOSSOM

Blue Bird Tea Room Under New Management—Many Fine New Cars

Despite the lateness of the season here, indications point to an excellent summer business for Charlevoix this year. Bookings at the hotels are holding their own with previous year's records for this date and quite a number of the cottagers are already established in their summer quarters.

North side people now settled in their homes are, Mrs. Ella Schwab of St. Louis, Crouter cottage; H. Stern, and J. R. Welnmon, of Chicago, Priest cottage; Charles Godchaux of New Orleans, McGee cottage; Jonas Hiller of New Orleans, in his own house; William Stern of Chicago, Swinton cottage; Mrs. J. C. New, Indianapolis, own cottage; J. W. Teasdale of St. Louis, in his own cottage; Isaac Moses of St. Louis, at the Shores cottage; J. L. Freidman, in the Iddings cottage; Samuel Stern in Crouter cottage and Mrs. Henry Newman, of New Orleans, who has been a summer visitor here for several years and who has taken over the Blue Bird tea room for this summer. The family bring a new Cadillac eight enclosed car.

At the Belvedere, most of the old timers have come. The roll to date includes J. C. Birge and Arthur Birge of St. Louis, with the respective families; Jomes I. Dissette, president of the association, from Indianapolis; Mrs. A. N. Edwards and family, of St. Louis; Mrs. Charles C. Gilbert of Detroit; Mrs. L. J. Heaton, of Detroit, her sister and daughter; Ben T. Hosking, of Chicago; Mrs. Mary R. Rockwell of Chicago; Mrs. J. S. Skinner of Oak Park, Ill., whose husband died last winter and who has purchased the B. F. Edwards place; Mrs. George Tranel, of Chicago; Mrs. J. M. Travis and daughter, Maud, of Grand Rapids, Mrs. E. C. Ware and her son, Robert and family, from Chicago, and Mrs. Warner, of Chicago.

Several fine new closed cars are to be seen on Bridge street lately. With upwards of 180 cars sold locally since last year, the traffic officer will be kept busy. Warning is issued to those inclined to speed that stern necessity will compel the severest of measures, if lives are to be safeguarded.

STRIKES GUSHER WELL

Flows Over 40 Foot Pipe At Rate of 3,000 Barrels Daily

J. B. Lord, of Chicago, who has been a member of the Chicago Club of this city for a number of years past, has struck a gusher at his farm on the peninsula across from Ironton—a well that flows 3,000 barrels a day.

Mr. Lord had a forty foot pipe sunk to take care of the water and it flowed over that. He purchased the place from M. A. McDonald, county register of deeds, and has recently completed a fine modern summer cottage and is making other extensive improvements.

WILL SOON BE ON HER REGULAR RUN

Name of Former Charlevoix Boat Changed to "America"

The Sturgeon Bay (Wis.) Advocate says: "The little passenger steamer America, which arrived in port about ten days ago, now has her new engine installed, and the craft was let into the boxes on Monday for a refastening of the engine bolts, etc. Mechanics are still busy making connections to the engine, and several calkers are busy doing a little work on her hull, although the craft is in very trim shape. The America was formerly the City of Boyne her name being changed this spring. She is owned by Chas. Roe & Co., of Harbor Springs, and Capt. Roe has charge of the boat himself. His brother, Henry J. Roe, is chief engineer. This craft will make the ferry run from Harbor Springs to Petoskey, where there is a large passenger business to and from the summer resorts of the east shore. She was formerly on the Beaver Island run, and carried U. S. mail. The Columbia, a similiar craft, was sold to another concern, and they will operate her on the Beaver Island run. The America will probably be here about ten days yet."

Saddle Horses and Riding Lessons

Frank Welch of Roanoke, Virginia is in the city with a fine string of Virginia and Kentucky Saddle Horses, for hire by day, hour or week. Private or class lessons given by careful instructor. TRIPLE DROWNING AT BELLAIRE

BOAT OVERTURNS THROWING OCCUPANTS IN WATER

Quick Work of Young Man Saves Two Lives—Community Shocked Over Affair

Dr. J. E. Dobson, Miss Leon Wallace, aged nineteen and Miss Stella Coombs, aged seventeen were drowned at Bellaire, Tuesday night of last week, when a overloaded rowboat capsized on Intermediate River. Those who escaped death were Mrs. L. G. Ball, Miss Cora Freeman and Sol Bricker.

Lured by the warmth and beauty of the evening the six went down to the boat landing shortly after nine o'clock. Almost immediately on entering the boat it capsized and threw its occupants into the river. Young Bricker was saved by Harry Friend, who chanced to be on shore at the time of the accident. Friend seized Bricker and dragged him safely onto the dock.

"Bud" White, a seventeen-year-old boy living nearby was in bed when he heard the tumult on the river. Leaping from bed, clad only in his pajamas, he ran to the dock and plunged into the stream. One at a time he brought on shore Mrs. Ball and Miss Freeman, both of whom were in a state of hysterics.

The bodies of the two drowned girls were recovered an hour after the sad affair, and that of Dr. Dobson at 11:30.

Bellaire is in mourning because of its loss. The remains of Dr. Dobson were taken to Albion, Wednesday, accompanied by Rev. W. A. Exner. Funeral services were held Friday afternoon for Miss Wallace. Miss Coombs parents reside at La Grange, Ind.,

NEW BOAT SCHEDULE

Columbia Leaves Here At 8:00 A. M. Manitou Due June 26.

The steamer Columbia started on a new schedule Tuesday last. She now leaves Charlevoix at 8:00 A. M. (instead of 2:00 P. M., as formerly) arriving at Beaver Island at 11:00 and leaving there at 1:00 P. M. to arrive in Charlevoix at 4:00 P. M.

The "Manitou" will be here on her first trip of the season, Tuesday, June 26th, on the run between Chicago, Charlevoix and Mackinac Island.

Will Play at the Majestic

The manager of the Majestic theatre has been very fortunate in securing the services, as pianist for the season, of Miss Florence Graham a member of the faculty of the Mary Wood Chase school of musical arts, of Chicago. Miss Graham has been very successful both as teacher and as pianist. We shall have a feast of good music at the Majestic this season.

At M. E. Church Sunday

In the morning the pastor will preach on "The Four Puzzling Questions." Glen Dolberg will sing. In the evening, "The Words and Deeds of Christ" will be illustrated by sixty colored slides.

BIG ESTATE FOR PINE LAKE

800 ACRES ON TWO AND THREE MILE POINTS

Albert H. Loeb, of Chicago, Will Make His New Purchase a Beauty Spot

For many years, all of our residents have admired Pine Lake and its beautiful shores and wondered why no one had taken advantage of nature's gifts.

Rumors have come to us from time to time that parties have been negotiating for large tracts of Pine Lake frontage, but these rumors have failed to take substantial form until within the last few days, very quietly and unobtrusively, a purchase of a large acreage of the best Pine Lake property has been consummated which involves the transfer of about 800 acres on what is known as Two and Three Mile point, including the Pine Lake dairy farm owned and operated by the Pine Lake farm company. Information of this comes to us on excellent authority and although all the details of the transaction are not given out we can assert with assurance that the matter has passed the rumor stage and we hope to be able to outline for our readers in the near future the plans which will be pursued in the development of this tract of land.

The new owners of the property will make this spot one of the most beautiful country estates in Michigan and without indulging in any idle speculation we feel that this purchase is filled with great promise for the City of Charlevoix.

In an interview with Mr. R. F. Sloan, regarding the rumored development on the south side of Pine Lake, he presents a history of the case about as follows:

"During last summer Mr. Harry L. Oldham secured my co-operation in an investigation of Two Mile point to determine its susceptibility to extensive development and beautifying and after thorough research, Mr. Oldham determined that Two Mile point, so long admired by him, was in his judgment the ideal, and only within the last few days his conclusion in this selection has been proven correct by the purchase of 800 acres by Mr. Albert H. Loeb, of Chicago, for his country home. And it is understood that he will develop the property to a high state of beauty and comfort.

I think that Mr. Loeb is to be congratulated upon his selection of this site, and I am sure that Charlevoix is favored by the passing of this long recognized beautiful point into such hands.

I bespeak for him the hearty co-operation of Charlevoix people in this development.

For any information as to this matter, I must refer you to Mr. Harry L. Oldham, who represents Mr. Loeb."

In an interview with Mr. Harry L. Oldham, he made the following statement:

"I consider myself lucky to be living in Charlevoix surrounded by such wonderful scenery and wealth of opportunity.

I always admired the land I negotiated for, on behalf of my friend. Everything a man wants for creating an estate is there; hence with the assistance of Mr. Sloan the deal went through. I congratulate Charlevoix on possessing these wonderful foundations for development and in having men like Mr. Sloan who are able to grasp in a minute situations when pointed out. Charlevoix may well feel proud of her selection for an estate of this magnitude, so close by on the shores of Pine Lake."

TELEPHONE CONGESTION IS GROWING

New Cables and Extensions Are Going In This Week

A gang of four telephone men under the direction of A. Rieter, of Saginaw have been busy for the past week, putting in additional cables to take care of increased business in various wire congested portions of the town.

The improvements include an extension and larger cable on Michigan Avenue, the same on Antrim street and from State street through the alley to Grant and down to the coast guard station to do away with the open wire.

The cable to Beaver Island is still out of commission. Government cable experts are now at work testing and repairing it, having found leaks in several places. The government light house tender Hyacinth is also engaged in the work. They expect to have the cable ship-shape again in about ten days.

At the Congregation Church

Special attention is called to the fact that the hours of service at the Congregational church until further notice, will be as follows: Sunday School, 9:30 A. M., public worship, 10:45, Junior Endeavor society, 3 P. M., Senior Endeavor, 6:30, public worship, 7:30.

To Merchants

"To the merchant let me suggest the motto, 'Small profits and quick service.'"
—From the President's Proclamation.

America has been passing through a period of unexcelled prosperity—a prosperity which has been evidenced in every line of business pursuit. To make that prosperity permanent even in the face of uncertain war conditions, trading must continue to be active. It is the merchant who maintains the confidence of the public who will also maintain its support and patronage both during the war and afterwards. In no way will he so surely accomplish his purpose in this time of high prices and public need than through a co-operative policy of "Small profits and Quick Service."

About Tires

are known where ever tires are known. They are made in three grades—the 6,000 mile Vacuum Cup, oilproof tread; the 5,000 Ebony, oilproof tread; and the 3,500 mile Bar-o-Circle tread.

All are guaranteed for the mileage, but they run far over the guarantee.

The price is surprisingly low on all grades.

Miller Tires

have a big reputation to uphold and are doing it in fine shape. Miller tires are made in two grades—the Millermelhod and the Millermolded.

A stock of tires and tubes of both makes on hand. Ask to see them.

HEART of the SUNSET

By REX BEACH

Author of "The Spoilers," "The Iron Trail," "The Silver Horde," Etc.

"Too bad. I had hoped to know him and convince him that we federales are not such n hed people us he seems to think. We ought tn he friends, he and I."

Under this talk Paloma stirred uneasily, and at the first opportunity burst out: "It's far from safe for you to remnin here, General Longorio. This neighborhood is terribly excited over the death of Ricardo Guzman, and if anyone learned—"

"So! Then Guzman is dead?" Longorio inquired, with interest.

"Isn't he?" hlurted Paloma.

"Not so far as I can learn. Only today I made official report that nothing whatever could he discovered about him. Certainly he is nowhere in Romero, and it is my personal helief that the poor fellow was either drowned in the river or mado way with for his money. Probably the truth will never be known."

Longorio had come to spend the evening, and his keen pleasnre in Alaire Austin's company made him so indifferent to his personal safety that nothing short of a rude dismissal would have served to terminate his visit. Neither Alaire nor her companion, however, had the least idea how keenly he resented the presence of Paloma Jones.

It was a remarkohle wooing; on the one hand this half-savage man, gnawed hy jealousy, heedless of the illicit nature of his passion, yet held within the hounds of decorum by some fag-end of respectahility; and on the other hand, a woman, hored, resentful and tortured at the moment hy fear about what was happening at the river hank.

It was late when Austin arrived. Visitors at Las Palmas were unnsual at nny time; hence the sound of strange voices in the hrightly lighted living room at such an hour surprised him. He came tramping in, booted and spurred, a helligerent look of inquiry upon his bloated features. But when he had met his wife's guests, his surprise turned to hlnek displeasnre. His own sympathies in the Mexican struggle were so notorious that Longorio's presence seemed to him to have but one possihle signifieance. Why Paloma Jones was here he could not imagine.

Alaire's caller remained at ease, and appeared to welcome this chance of meeting Austin. Luis Longorio was the sort of man who enjoys a strained situation, and one who shows to the best advantage under adverse conditions. Accordingly, Ed's arrival, instead of hastening his departure, merely served to prolong his stny.

It was growing late now, and Paloma was frantic. Profiting by her first opportunity, she whispered to Alaire, "For God's sake, send him away."

Alaire's eyes were dark with excitement. "Yes," said she. "Talk to him, and give me a chance to have a word alone with Ed."

The opportunity came when Austin went into the dining room for a drink. Alaire excused herself to follow him.

"What's That Greaser Doing Here?"

When they were out of sight and hearing, her husband turned upon her with an ugly frown.

"What's that greaser doing here?" he asked roughly.

"He called to pay his respects. You must get him away."

"I must?" Ed glowered at her. "Why don't you? You got him here in my absence. Now that I'm home, you want me to get rid of him, eh? What's the idea?"

"Don't be silly. I didn't know he was coming and—he must be crazy to risk such a thing."

"Crazy?" Ed's lip curled. "He isn't crazy. I suppose he couldn't stay away any longer. By heaven, Alaire—"

Alaire checked this outburst with a sharp exclamation: "Don't make a scene! Don't you understand he holds over fifty thousand dollars' worth of La Feria cattle? Don't you understand we can't antagonize him?"

"Is that what he came to see you about?"

"Yes." She bit her lip. "I'll explain everything, but—you must help me send him back, right away." Glancing at the clock, Alaire saw that it was drawing on toward midnight; with quick decision she seized her husband by the arm, explaining feverishly: "There is something big going on tonight, Ed! Longorio brought a guard of soldiers with him, and left them at our pumphouse. Well, it so happens that Blaze Jones and Mr. Law have gone to the Romero cemetery to get Ricardo Guzman's body."

"What?" Austin's red face paled, his eyes bulged.

"Yes. That's why Paloma is here. They crossed at our pumping station, and they'll be back at any time, now. If they encounter Longorio's men—You understand?"

"Ricardo Guzman's body!" Austin wet his lips and swallowed with difficulty. "Why—do they want his body?"

"To prove that he is really dead and—to prove who killed him." Noting the effect of these words, Alaire cried sharply, "What's the matter, Ed?"

But Austin momentarily was beyond speech. The decanter from which he was trying to pour himself a drink played a musical tattoo upon his glass; his face had become ashen and pasty.

"How many men has he got?" Austin nodded in the direction of the front room.

"I don't know. Probably four or five. What ails you?"

Something in her husband's inexplicable agitation, something in the hunted, desperate way in which his eyes were running over the room, alarmed Alaire.

Ed utterly disregarded her question. Catching sight of the telephone, which stood upon a stand in the far corner of the room, he ran to it, and, snatching the receiver, violently oscillated the hook.

"Don't do that!" Alaire cried, following him. "Wait! It mustn't get out."

"Hello! Give me the Lewis ranch—quick—I've forgotten the number." With his free hand Ed held his wife at a distance, muttering harshly: "Get away now! I know what I'm doing. Get away—d——n you!" He flung Alaire from him as she tried to snatch the instrument out of his hands.

"Ed!" she cried. "Are you out of your mind? You mustn't—"

Their voices were raised now, heedless of the two people in the adjoining room.

"Keep your hands off, I tell you. Hello! Is that you, Tad?" Again Austin thrust his wife violently aside.

"Hello! Is That You, Tad?"

"Listen! I've just learned that Dave Law and old man Jones have crossed over to dig up Ricardo's body. Yes, tonight! They're over there now—be back inside of an hour."

Alaire leaned weakly against the table, her frightened eyes fixed upon the speaker.

"Yes! They aim to discover how he was killed and all about it. They crossed at my pumping plant, and they'll be back tonight, if they haven't already—" The speaker's voice broke, his hand was shaking so that he could scarcely retain his hold upon the telephone. "How do I know?" he chattered. "It's up to you. You've got a machine—"

"Ed!" cried the wife. She went toward him on weak, unsteady feet, but she halted as the voice of Longorio cut in sharply:

"What's this I hear? Ricardo Guzman's body?" Husband and wife turned. The open double door to the living room framed the tall figure of the Mexican general.

CHAPTER XIII.

Rangers.

Longorio stared first at the huddled perspiring man beside the telephone, and then at the frightened woman. "Is that the truth?" he demanded harshly.

"Yes," Austin answered. "They are bringing the body to this side. You know what that means."

"Did you know this?" The general turned upon Alaire. Of the four, he was the least excited.

From the background Paloma quavered: "You told us Ricardo was not dead, so—it is all right. There is no—harm done."

A brief silence ensued, then Longorio shrugged. "Who knows? Let us hope that he suffered no harm on Mexican soil. That would be serious, indeed; yes, very serious, for I have given my word to your government. This—David Law"—he pronounced the name carefully, but with a strange foreign accent—"he is a reckless person to defy the border regulations. It is a grave matter to invade foreign territory on such a mission." Longorio again bent his brilliant eyes upon Alaire. "I see that you are concerned for his safety. You would not desire him to come to trouble, eh? He has done you favors; he is your friend, as I am. Well"—a mirthless smile exposed his splendid white teeth—"we must think of that. Now I will bid you good night."

"Where are you going?" demanded Miss Jones.

"To the river, and then to Romero. I may be needed, for those men of mine are stupid fellows, and there is danger of a misunderstanding. In the dark anything may happen. I should like to meet this David Law; he is a man of my own kind." Turning to "Young Ed," he said: "There is reason for haste, and a horse moves slowly. Would you do me the favor, if you have an automobile—"

"No! I won't!" Ed declared. "I don't want to see the Rio Grande tonight. I won't be involved—"

"But you are already involved. Come! There is no time to waste, and I have something to say to you. You will drive me to the river, and my horse will remain here until I return for him."

There was no mistaking the command in Longorio's tone; the master of Las Palmas rose as if under compulsion. He took his hat, and the two men left the room.

"Oh, Mrs. Austin!" Paloma gasped. "They'll be in time, and so will the Lewis gang."

"Quick! Ed will take his runshout—we'll follow in my car." Alaire fled to make herself ready. A few moments later she looked out from her window and saw the headlights of Ed's runabout flash down the driveway to the raid; then she and Paloma rushed to the garage where the touring car stood.

"The moon is rising," Paloma half sobbed. "They'll be sure to see us. Do you think we're ahead of Tad Lewis?"

"Oh, yes. He hasn't had time to get here yet, but—he'll come fast when he starts. This is the only plan I can think of."

Alaire drove as swiftly as she dared, following the blurred streak of gray that was the road, and taking the humps with utter recklessness. Ahead loomed the dark ridge of the river thickets, a dense rampart of mesquite. But even before they were sheltered from the moonlight Paloma saw the lights of another automobile approaching along the main-traveled highway behind them—the lights, evidently, of Tad Lewis' machine. A moment later Alaire's car drove into the black shadows. It had been a short, swift, exciting ride. "Young Ed's" runabout could not be many minutes ahead of them.

The women got out, then breasted the high grass and brambles between their hiding place and the pumphouse road. A hundred yards away they could now see the ghostly Rio Grande, its saffron surface faintly silvered by the low moon; lights gleamed from the windows of Morales' house. In the distance the vague outlines of the Mexican shore were resolving themselves, and far beyond twinkled the evidence that some belated citizens of Romero were still awake.

Paloma had brought with her the long-barreled rifle, and this she clutched nervously as she and Alaire stood whispering. Conditions were favorable for an approach to the pumphouse itself. They had nearly reached their goal when out into the clearing behind them, with metallic rattle and clang, burst another automobile, and Paloma whispered excitedly.

"There's the Lewis outfit at last."

In the Lewis car were several men. They descended hurriedly, and when one of them ran around the front of the car to turn off its lights, both women saw that he carried a rifle. Evidently Tad Lewis had come prepared for desperate measures.

A small door gave entrance to the pumphouse, and into the lock of this Mrs. Austin fitted a key; the next moment she and Paloma were safely inside. Dusty, cobwebbed windows let in a faint ghost-glow of moonlight, but prevented clear observation of anything outside; Alaire's fumbling fingers found the latch and began to lift a window, when someone spoke, just outside the building.

"What did you discover?" inquired a voice which neither woman recognized. Paloma clutched blindly for her companion; the two eavesdroppers stood rooted in their tracks. The pounding of their hearts sounded loudly. Since the building was little more than a wooden shell, they could plainly hear the answer:

"The house is full of greasers. I can't tell who they are."

A third man spoke, this time in Spanish. "That was Tad Lewis who just came, senor."

There followed some whispered words indistinguishable to the listeners, then a rustle of bodies moving through the tall grass and weeds.

Paloma placed her lips close to Alaire's ear. "Who are those people?" she breathed.

"I don't know. They must be the ones who came in that strange automobile."

MR. AUTO OWNER
Who Would Stand the Loss

If you should run into some innocent child?
If you should run into a horse and buggy?
If your car should burn tonight?
If your car should be stolen?

Fire and theft as well as liabilities that auto owners are assuming in driving automobiles are causing all cautious business men to secure protection against these hazards.

THE AUTO OWNERS' INSURANCE CO. stands between owners and such losses as Fire, Theft, Personal Injury, Property Damage, Tornado, Wind-storm and Cyclone. You can secure all this protection for only $7.00 per year if your car cost $1,000 or less. For full information inquire at CHASE S. OSBORN, SENATOR.

(The following editorial appeared June 9, 1917, in the Crystal Falls Diamond Drill, edited by Sen. M. H. Moriarity and the Hon. Thomas Conlin.)

"Speaking of Chase S. Osborn who visited our city last Tuesday and renewed acquaintences with many of our people we might say that he has the lead in the race for United States senator from this state in the contest that is now on and that Iron county, which has always stood by Mr. Osborn wishes him success.

"Chase S. Osborn in the United States senate from Michigan at this period in the nation's history will mean that this great state will be heard from nnd that it will have its views expressed in no uneertain terms on the great questions that will be up for settlement in the next few years.
